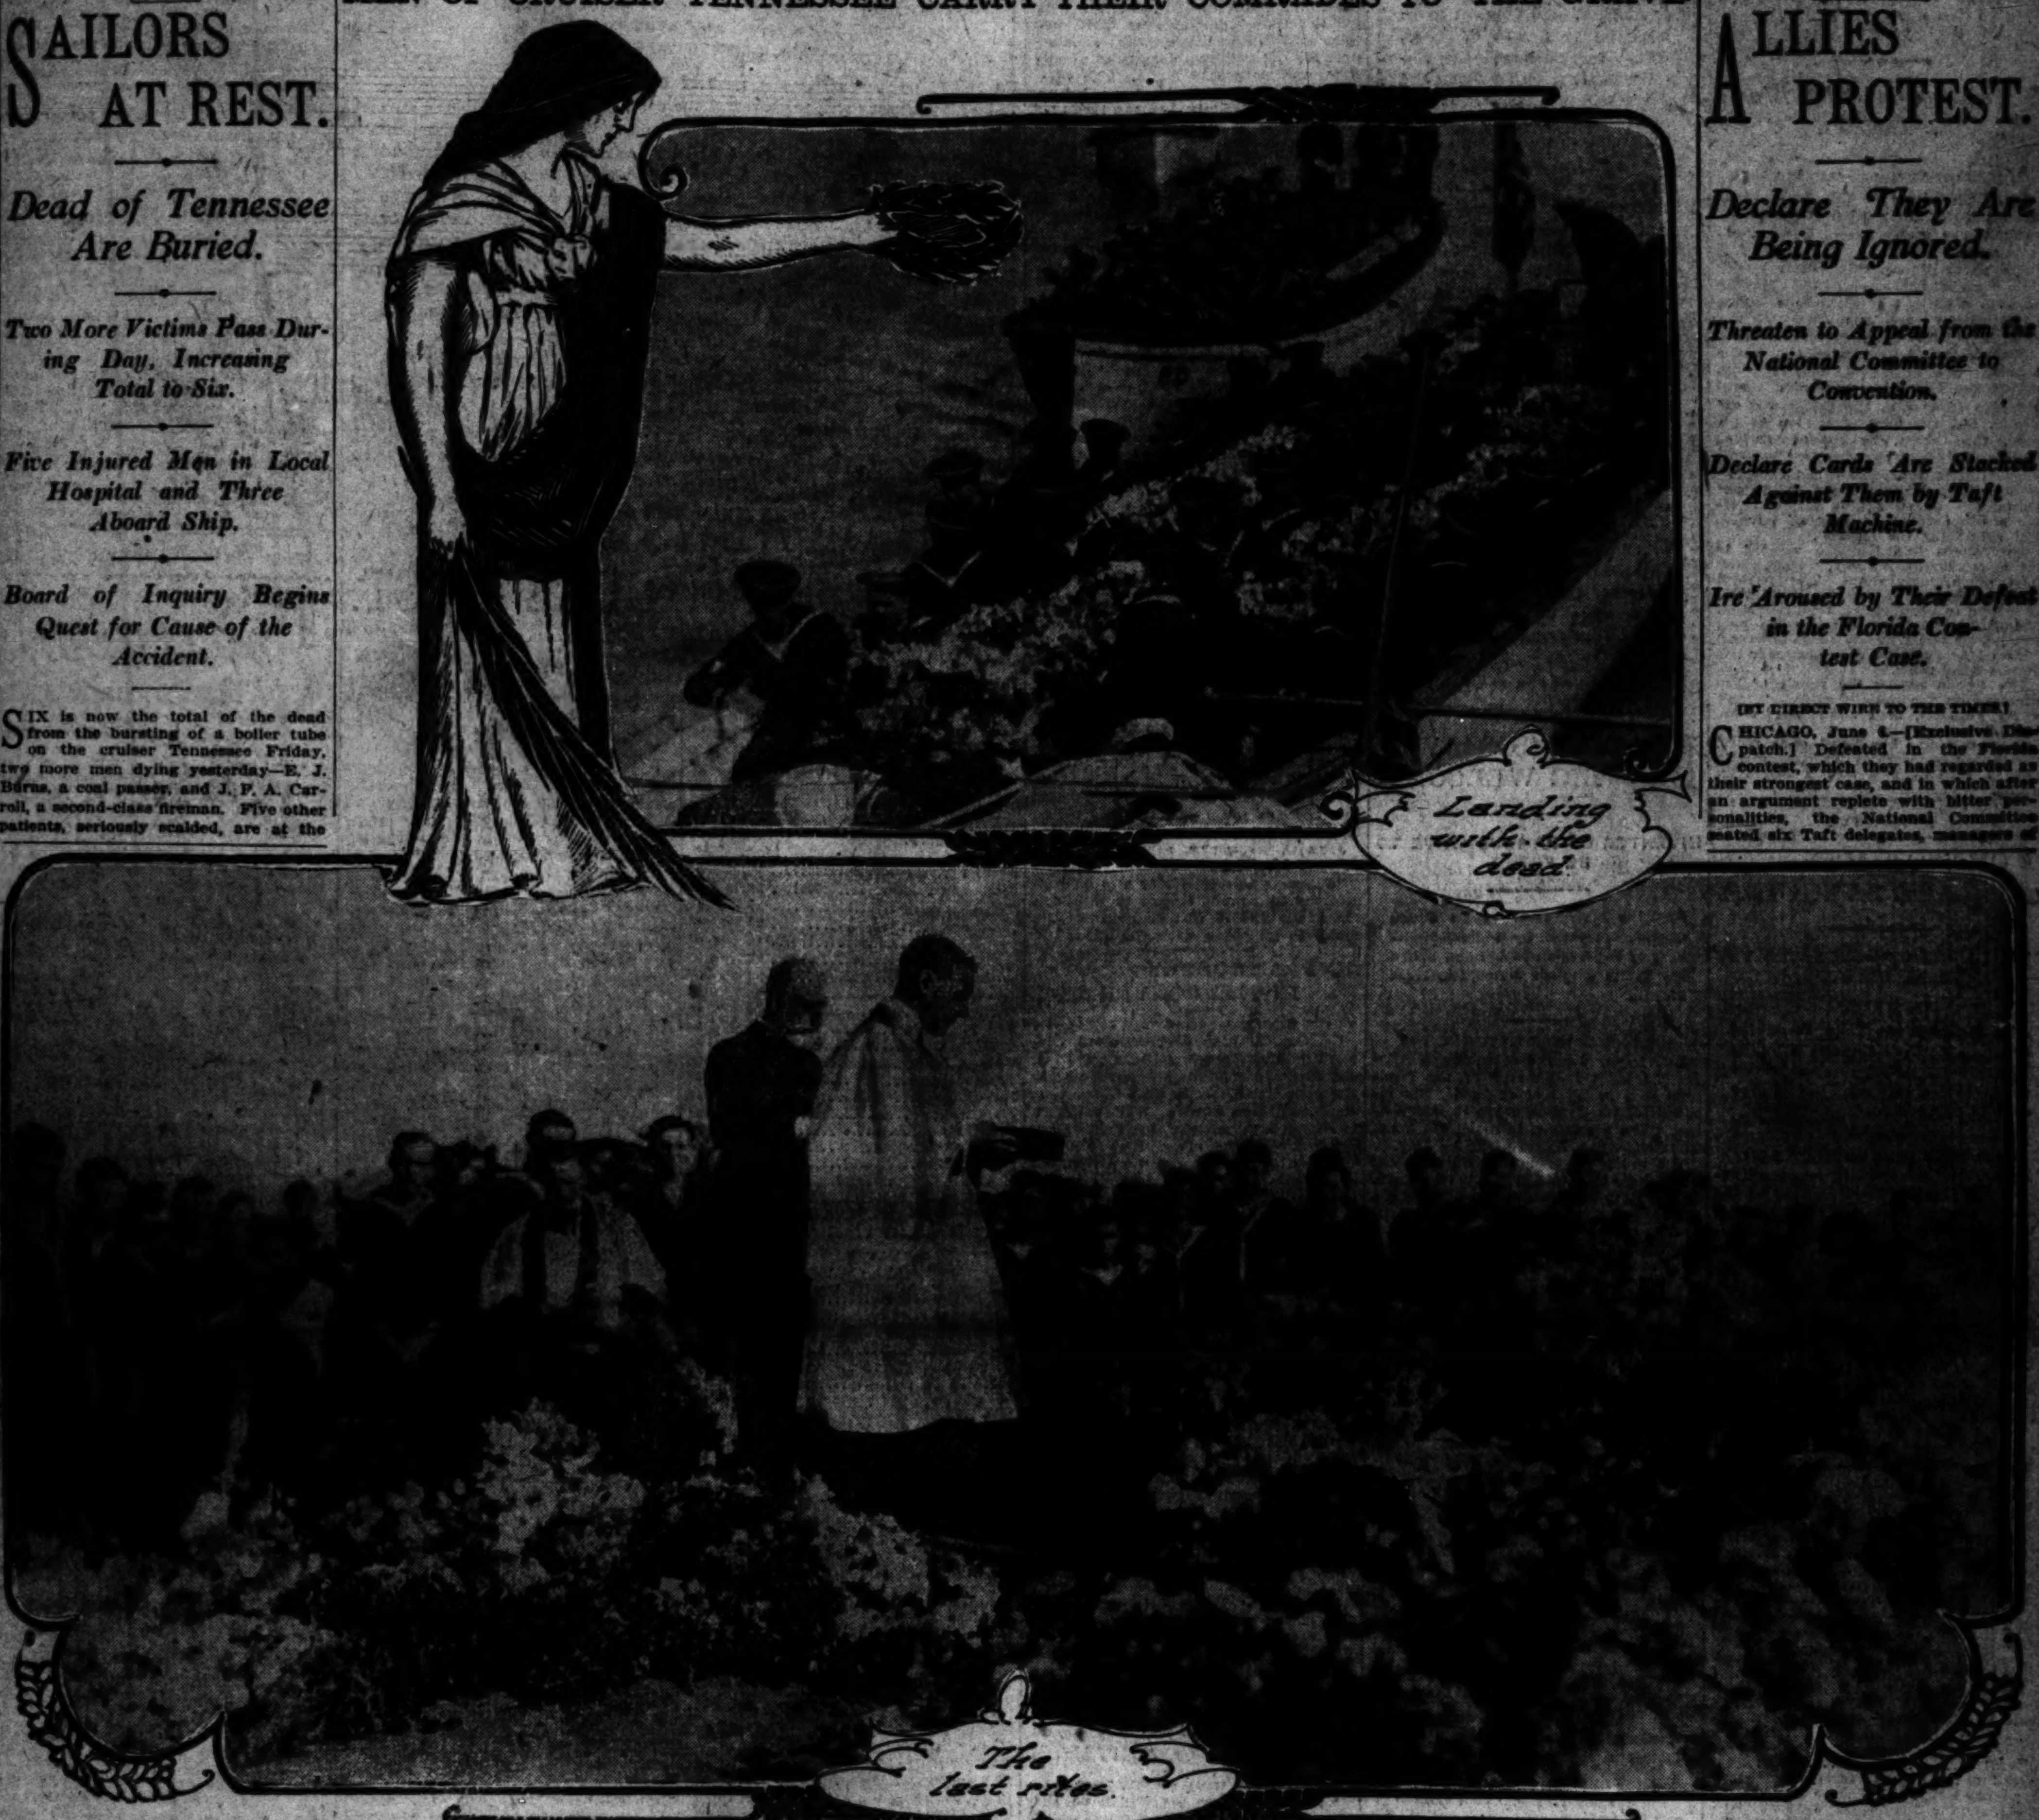
Sporting News.

MEN OF CRUISER TENNESSEE CARRY THEIR COMRADES TO THE GRAVE.



Landing with the dead.
The last rites.

Burial of the Five Dead Victims of the Cruiser Tennessee Explosion in Harbor View Cemetery, San Pedro, Yesterday Afternoon.

The lower picture shows Chaplain E. S. Dickens of the warship reading the impressive Episcopal ritual by the graveside. Assisting him is Rev. Mr. Hickman, pastor of the First Episcopal Church of San Pedro.

SAILORS AT REST.

Dead of Tennessee Are Buried.

Two More Victims Pass During Day, Increasing Total to Six.

Five Injured Men in Local Hospital and Three Aboard Ship.

Board of Inquiry Begins Quest for Cause of the Accident.

SIX is now the total of the dead from the bursting of a boiler tube on the cruiser Tennessee Friday, two more men dying yesterday—E. J. Burns, a coal passer, and J. P. A. Carroll, a second-class fireman. Five other patients, seriously scalded, are at the Angelus Hospital, in this city, and three others, less severely injured, are in the hospital ward aboard ship in San Pedro harbor.

Solemn and impressive were the funeral services held yesterday afternoon at Harbor View Cemetery, San Pedro, where the bodies of five of the bluejackets were laid to rest.

Close off Point Firmin, somber, but majestic in her mourning, the Tennessee rode at anchor, her flags at half-mast, the decks deserted, and with thin black folds, like floating crepe, issuing gently from the middle smokestack. The vessel was in plain view of the scene of the interment.

At the stern of the Tennessee lay the South Dakota, also in funeral dress, while every tug and launch in the harbor displayed signs of mourning for the country's dead. Business houses in San Pedro closed during the services.

ADMIRAL WATCHES.

As the simple Episcopal service for the dead was read at the graves, Rear-Admiral Uriel Sebree stood on the quarter deck of the Tennessee. As he raised his glasses to his eyes, a squad of marines fired the final salute, "Taps" was sounded, and in the approaching darkness the mounds of earth were gently rounded and covered with a wealth of beautiful blossoms.

Four hundred sailors formed the funeral cortége in the march from the wharf to the cemetery. Three thousand persons gathered at the wharf and joined the solemn procession. The parade was headed by Capt. Thomas D. Howard and a squad of officers of the Tennessee. Chaplain Dickins, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Hickman of the First Episcopal Church of San Pedro, officiated.

It was 3 o'clock when the ship's launch, towing three boats, left the side of the Tennessee with the dead. A moment later another launch, towing three more boats, filled with sailors, left the South Dakota for the wharf. Two more boats from the Tennessee also were taken in tow.

As the boats reached the wharf each casket was wrapped in a United States flag and a floral wreath, an anchor

FUTURE BRIGHT.

WILL SOON BE OUT OF DEBT.

KANSAS WILL WIPE IT OUT IN NEXT EIGHT YEARS.

Sunflower State Owes Only $623,000 in Bonds, Last Installment of Which Becomes Due in 1916, When Commonwealth Expects to Be Free from Grasping Creditors.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After eight years Kansas will be free from bonded debt. State Treasurer Tully so told the County Treasurers at their meeting today.

The debt is $623,000, and its last installment runs out in 1916. The present bonds of $623,000 are held in the school fund. If the Kansas assessment this year reaches $2,500,000,000 there will be but three States that exceed it—New York, with an assessment of over $8,000,000,000, and Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, with about $5,000,000,000 each.

Kansas does not possess more wealth, proportionately, than Illinois and Ohio, which have small revenue, but the assessment rate is different. Valuations in this State are based on one-third valuation, and in Illinois upon one-fifth. Illinois, with its big cities, is better able also to cover up taxable property.

Leavenworth, the only city in Kansas under the commission form of government, is taking on new life, and a new and clean Leavenworth is rising from the ruins of political graft.

KAW STILL RISING.

TOPEKA (Kas.) June 6.—The Kaw River is still rising here an inch an hour. The government gauge registered 17 feet at noon.

The river is out of its banks east and west of Topeka, and many of the people living in the lowlands of North Topeka have moved with their belongings to this side of the river.

BREWERS ON PROHIBITION.

Will Discuss Vital Question and May Inaugurate New Policy at Convention.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MILWAUKEE (Wis.) June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Brewers from all parts of the country will be here for the annual convention of the United States Brewers' Association, which will open Monday and last until Wednesday or Thursday. Prohibition in all its phases will be discussed at the meeting.

It is probable that the brewers will decide on some future policy to pursue regarding the agitation against the saloon that is now sweeping the country.

For years the brewers made no effort to stem the agitation against their interests, but they feel now that the time has come to present their side of the question. In connection with this an organized fight is now being made in various parts of the country for a better class of saloons, and at the coming convention plans for still further elevating the standard of the saloon business will be discused.

BY EXECUTIVE ACT.

President Roosevelt Keeps Word to Governors and Reappoints Inland Waterways Commission.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Carrying out his declaration to the conference of Governors that should Congress fail to provide for the continuance of the Inland Waterways Commission he should continue it by executive act, and Congress having failed to take action on the subject, President Roosevelt today reappointed the members of that commission. In doing so he made public the following:

"In view of the desirability of continuing the work of the commission, the President has requested those designated last year with the exception of Gen. Alex MacKenzie, chief of engineers, to continue their service on the said commission and has also requested Senator William B. Allison, Representative Joseph E. Ransdell and Prof. George E. Swain of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology to serve as members.

WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN.

FORTY-FIVE CYCLONES DEVASTATE NEBRASKA.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

OMAHA (Neb.) June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Forty-five cyclones in forty-eight hours is the record established by Nebraska Thursday and Friday of this week.

The cyclones were scattered in different portions of the State and in Southern Kansas and twenty-three towns were visited by the twisters in the two days. Some towns were struck a number of times by different storms and at one time Thursday afternoon, the citizens of Upland saw ten different cyclones at work in the country around that town.

Kearney caught sight of eight different cyclones within an hour while Minden was visited by four, Red Cloud two, and Franklin two, within a few minutes of each other.

With all these cyclones flying around the country, the property loss was heavy and at least twenty-one people were killed, five fatally injured, and the injured list will probably number fifty.

The towns visited were Axtell, Byron, Fairmount, Kearney, Geneva, Shickley, Guide Rock, Carlton, Franklin, Shiveley, Riverton, Fairfield, Amboy, Red Cloud, Hildreth, Minden, Upland, Chester, Deshlor, Friend, St. Paul, Edgar, and Inavale, and Courtland, Kan.

TOWNS WRECKED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

SUPERIOR (Neb.) June 6.—A telephone message from Byron says that Friday's cyclone struck Phillipsburg, Kan., destroying the greater part of the town and killing several people.

The town of Courtland, fifteen miles east of Phillipsburg, was struck and several casualties resulted.

It is uncertain whether both towns were sufferers or whether the two reports cover the same cyclone. Details will hardly get through tonight unless by messenger as all kinds of communication are cut off.

SIX KNOWN DEAD.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

GENEVA (Neb.) June 6.—At least six dead, four fatally hurt and several others more or less seriously injured is the result of the cyclones which swept across Fillmore county and destroyed everything in its path. A list of the casualties follows:

The dead:

LULU SMITH, domestic in home of John Shively.

IRENE SHIVELY, four-year-old daughter of John Shively.

ELIJAH ARGENBRICHT, two miles east of Shickley.

Two children of Mrs. Mall, near North Beach, Kan.

Fatally injured:

JOHN MERRIAM, Shickley.

MRS. ELIJAH ARGENBRICHT.

ROSS SHIVELY.

Seriously hurt:

Ed Fussel, farm hand on Shively farm.

John Shively and his wife.

A number of other persons are known to have been injured.

The cyclones, two in number, were practically the climax of a series of smaller storms which passed over Western and Southern Nebraska during the past two days.

Last night forty farmers came to Franklin with their families for shelter, their homes having been destroyed.

CABINET RECONSTRUCTED.

TEHERAN, June 6.—The Persian Cabinet has been definitely reconstructed under the Premiership of Mushir-Es-Sultaneh. It is hoped that this will lead to a subsidence of the political unrest in Persia.

DANDER UP.

ALLIES PROTEST.

Declare They Are Being Ignored.

Threaten to Appeal from the National Committee to Convention.

Declare Cards Are Stacked Against Them by Taft Machine.

Ire Aroused by Their Defeat in the Florida Contest Case.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Defeated in the Florida contest, which they had regarded as their strongest case, and in which after an argument replete with bitter personalities, the National Committee seated six Taft delegates, managers of the "allied" Presidential candidates prepared this afternoon to make a protest to the Republican National Convention against the methods of the "Roosevelt-Taft" machine.

Representatives of five States, other than Ohio, which have candidates for the Republican Presidential nomination were at the meeting, at which it was decided to make a formal protest to the Republican National Convention on the manner in which they are, according to their assertion, being ignored by the dominating elements in the Republican party.

They declare they have 126 electoral votes and that they "are being ridden down in the interests of States which cannot furnish a single electoral vote to the Republican party."

At the meeting were Messrs. Kealing, manager for Vice-President Fairbanks; Humphrey, for Gov. Hughes; McKinley of Illinois, manager for the Cannon candidacy; Senator Penrose and Representative Burke of Pennsylvania and Senator Hemenway of Indiana. They declared after the adjournment of their conference that they consider the States which they represent as the backbone of the Republican party, and "therefore entitled to a respectful hearing."

They charge that the Roosevelt-Taft forces are ignoring them in the interests of the Southern States and declare they will make a formal protest to the convention in the interests of the party. They will continue their fight before the National Committee, and before the Committee on Credentials, and, irrespective of the results before those two bodies, they will carry the matter to the floor of the convention.

TAFT MEN JUBILANT.

The Taft men, with great enthusiasm, declared this afternoon that Secretary Taft will not only be nominated on the first ballot, but will have more than 100 votes to spare. They were jubilant in their predictions and roundly congratulated Frank H. Hitchcock, the Taft manager, whenever he appeared in their midst.

The Taft men now say that all that remains to be done is to "fix up the bal-

QUEEN DOES KINDLY ACT.

Grants Dying Request of Poor Invalid.

Goes to Visit Latter at St. John's Home.

Gives Roses and Kind Words to Inmates.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Queen Alexandra now easily outdistances even King Edward in popularity.

She never did anything more kindly than her visit this week to Miss Martha Massey, a patient at St. John's Home, a Bayswater institution reserved for absolutely hopeless consumptive cases.

Miss Massey had written the Queen a dying wish to gaze on Her Majesty, saying she had heard so much about her. No answer to the letter was received, but the next afternoon at tea time, the Queen, having ascertained from an eminent consumptive specialist that that hour was easiest for advanced consumptives, appeared in her automobile at St. John's Home, bearing a magnificent bouquet of flowers, and asked for the matron.

The Queen told her she wanted to see Miss Martha Massey, without any fuss or announcement. The patient could not believe her eyes as the Queen advanced to her bedside, took her hand and said: "I have come to see you, and I hope you will like these flowers."

Miss Massey could only stammer her thanks amid tears.

The Queen seeing the result of excitement on the patient said: "Don't worry yourself, or I shall not come again."

Then pressing her hand once more, she passed on to other patients, giving each a rose or two and a few kind words.

JOHNSON MEN ARE SANGUINE.

CLAIM MOST OF DELEGATES YET TO BE ELECTED.

Also Claim More Than One-third of Anti-Bryan Delegates Already Elected—More Aggressive Campaign to Be Instituted in Favor of Minnesota Man.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A total of 194 delegates to the Denver convention is yet to be chosen, and the campaign managers of Gov. John A. Johnson asserted today that they will get a majority of them.

A more aggressive campaign for Johnson delegates is to be made, and the friends of the Minnesota Governor claim they now have more than one-third of the anti-Bryan delegates.

Scores of letters are pouring in daily to the Johnson headquarters in the Grand Pacific Hotel. A letter from George X. Thacher of Albany, who is one of the alternate delegates-at-large from New York, wrote that the uninstructed delegation surely will vote against Bryan.

The Democratic State conventions yet to be held and the date and number of delegates of each are as follows:

	State.	Delegates.
June 9	Oregon	8
June 10	New Mexico	6
June 10	Montana	6
June 11	Virginia	24
June 12	Utah	6
June 15	Colorado	10
June 17	Mississippi	20
June 17	Tennessee	24
June 16	Florida	6
June 20	Kentucky	26
June 23	Georgia	26
June 24	North Carolina	24
	Vermont	8

National Committeeman Roger Sullivan has not decided upon the date he will leave for Denver, but says he plans to be there at least for a week before the convention begins. He has given up the trip in an automobile.

BAFFLED.

FIND BOYCOTT HARD TO HANDLE.

ANTI-JAPANESE MOVEMENT DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

Nipponese Government Said to Have Been in Conference With Leader of Chinese Revolution in Hope of Enlisting His Services in Its Suppression.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TOKIO, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Numerous secret conferences have been held here between Japanese officials and the Chinese revolutionary leader, Liang Chi Chao, who came to Tokio incognito.

In Japanese official circles the belief is expressed that the Kwang Tung revolutionaries and their sympathizers are the principal factors in keeping the boycott alive, their object being to direct the popular resentment against the Peking government.

It is argued that as the arms carried by the Japanese steamer Tatsu Maru were evidently destined for the Kwang Tung rebels, the revolutionary elements should not sympathize with the action of the Viceroy in seizing the ship and cargo, and ought, therefore, to oppose the boycott. It is understood that Liang Chi Chao has agreed to proceed to Hongkong.

Owing to the apparent understanding between the Tokio and Peking governments for the suppression of the boycott, the Japanese find it difficult to devise means to bring pressure to bear upon the boycotters. A number of overtures have been made to the Chinese merchants at Yokohama, Kobe and Osaka with the view of inducing them to exert their influence and take some action for the cessation of the boycott, but so far all efforts to secure their active coöperation are fruitless.

A large consignment of marine products which was shipped from Yokohama several weeks ago has just been returned spoiled owing to the refusal of the Chinese coolies to unload it.

CONSUMPTION NOT FATAL.

Physician Declares no One Ever Died of This Disease Alone.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Consumption, next to cancer, the most dreaded of diseases, was declared to be non-fatal by Dr. H. C. Sharp, who today addressed the National Association for Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis. Dr. Sharp made the broad statement that, in his opinion and as far as he had been able to discover, nobody ever had died of consumption alone.

"I know this statement will arouse considerable doubt in the mind of the average physician and layman," said Dr. Sharp. "However, I am convinced that the tubercle bacilli alone never caused a death. The deaths popularly supposed to be the result of tuberculosis are the result of a mixture of ailments which result from the fact that the patient is in no condition to resist their onslaughts.

"When a patient is down with tuberculosis, the power of resistance is decreased to such an extent that he is an easy prey to a score of other diseases which soon make their appearance."

MARCEL TO HAVE BIG WELCOME.

INVENTOR OF FAMOUS WAVE TO BE FETED.

Parisian Hairdresser to Be Given Grand Reception by Fellow-Members of Profession in London When He Visits English Metropolis Next Month.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That benefactor of the feminine sex, M. Marcel of Paris, the inventor of the famous wave to which he has given his name, is to be the guest of the English hairdressers in July.

Wherever the art of hairdressing flourishes, the Marcel wave is known. It is a household word, not only in the capitals of Europe, but in every village and town.

With feelings akin to reverence the hairdressers, not of London alone, but throughout the United Kingdam, are preparing to welcome the author of the wave, who is coming to England to visit the White City. The "grand fete Marcel" to be held at the Holborn restaurant on July 28 is to be the supreme effort in his honor.

"The visit of M. Marcel is the most important event in our history," explained an official of the International Hairdressers' Society.

AMERICAN BOY LEADER AT ETON.

WINS IN OARSMANSHIP AND ORATORY.

Millington Drake Achieves Position Which Etonites Consider More Exalted Than Archbishopric of Canterbury or Premiership of United Kingdom.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ETON (Eng.) June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Millington Drake, an American boy, is at the head of Eton College this year.

He gained that position, which is coveted by the highest aristocracy of England, by a remarkable combination of brain and brawn. As captain of the boats, he led the way in the historic water carnival on the Thames last Thursday, and as the most gifted orator the school has produced in the memory of the oldest masters, he carried off all the honors of speech of the day.

He is tall, handsome and well built. He is taking his exalted position—which, from the Eton point of view is something much more important than that of the Premiership or the Archbishopric of Canterbury—with commendable modesty.

His stage success was made in "Maitre Patelin," an old French play full of quaint humor and character analysis. His parents are staying at the Ritz Hotel in London at present. Mrs. Drake was overwhelmed with congratulations upon the distinction attained by her son on river and stage.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PARIS, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ambassador, Mrs. and Miss White dined this week with Prince and Princess Hurst.

The dinner was given in honor of Grand Duchess Marie, now the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha; her daughter, Princess Beatrice, and her son-in-law, Grand Duke Cyril. The whole diplomatic corps was presented.

Mr. and Mrs. White gave a brilliant reception during the week at their residence on Rue Francois Premier.

ance of the slate." Sixteen votes were added to the Taft column today, and then the members adjourned, and went to the ball games. Two of the sixteen delegates have been claimed by the allies, but Manager Hitchcock of the Taft boom announced that they were with the Taft men now.

The committee's work on the contests lasted less than three hours, but so well oiled was the machine that, despite the bitter fights made by the attorneys for the opposing sides, the Taft men were seated with machine-like regularity. No roll call was demanded at any time, and none was taken. The committeemen could probably have kept up the work indefinitely, but the lure of a ball game proved too great, and, headed by Senator William Murray Crane of Massachusetts, they stampeded in adjournment when the Florida and Georgia contests had been disposed of in Taft's favor.

There had been rumors during the morning that a compromise was about to be effected between the allies and the Taft men—in the interest of party harmony—by which an occasional anti-Taft delegate was to be sprinkled into the convention. But this failed to take concrete form and, when adjournment came, the Taft men seemed to be just as ready as ever to bowl over all the anti-Taft men that might come within range of their machine.

Charles P. Taft, representing the Secretary of War's forces, said:

"We have not been able to thoroughly digest all of the big things that came our way today. We see a bright situation ahead and feel assured that success is headed our way."

Senator James A. Hemenway, representing the Fairbanks candidacy, said:

"Mr. Fairbanks's name will go before the convention. We will not give up this fight until a majority vote is cast for some one else in the convention."

Andrew B. Humphrey, representing the Hughes candidacy, said:

"We are ready to stay in this fight all summer if necessary. It is not over yet by any means and we will be heard from in the convention."

Congressman James F. Burke, talking for the Knox camp, said:

"Our fight has just begun and you'll find there is some go left in us before it is ended."

John C. Eversman, speaking for the Cannon forces, said:

"Congressman McKinley will be here Monday to assume charge of Cannon's campaign and it will be seen we are ready to go along with the fight."

NO FLAMBOANCY IN THE CONVENTION.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Flamboyant oratory will be cut short in nomination speeches in the convention. It is understood that Representative Burton will make a twenty-minute speech in nominating Secretary Taft, after that Senator Borah will consume not more than six or seven minutes in seconding the nomination. Other speeches probably will be governed by the same limitations.

In searching for precedents, the National Committee has discovered that Roscoe Conkling's nomination of Grant for a third term consumed twelve minutes, and Garfield at the same meeting took but little more time in placing the name of Sherman before the convention. Ten minutes was required for Ingersoll to nominate Blaine. These three speeches stand out prominently as models.

"The man with the voice" is talked of as a possible delegate to second the nomination of Taft. It was this same wonderful voice which boomed out at the Coliseum four years ago in seconding Roosevelt's nomination. "The human megaphone," as some of his friends call him, is Senator George A. Knight of California. He is here.

None of the thousands who attended the last convention will ever forget the ease with which Senator Knight made himself heard in the huge hall. In the first shock of surprise a wag in the gallery shouted: "Not so loud." This brought down the house.

ACTION OF ALLIES IS UNACCOUNTABLE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The surprising feature of the convention preliminaries is the continued opposition of the "Allies" to Taft in the face of the latter's almost certain victory.

All of the allied opponents are men who will insist on recognition in the next administration. None of them desires to be counted as a "has been," and their opposition to Taft is as bitter as if he were a man with whom they dare not associate politically.

Vice-President Fairbanks, for instance, faces retirement from political life for many years, unless he ceases his futile opposition to Taft and accepts the vice-Presidency which Taft's friends are eager to give him, and which his friends are anxious for him to accept. He cannot hope to return to the Senate for years. What has he to gain by going so persistently against the current of popular will?

Speaker Cannon, too, is anxious to remain as the presiding officer of the House. His interests all lie in making friends with the next administration, which, from present experiences, will be headed by Taft.

Senator Knox represents powerful interests in Pennsylvania which need a strong friend at the White House. He has everything to gain and much to lose by not going over to the Taft forces.

Senator La Follette is not taken seriously, even in his own State.

Gov. Hughes owed his election to the weight of the Roosevelt influence thrown against Hearst so sensationally. He is a Roosevelt policy man at heart. What can he see in the opposition to Taft? What makes him throw in his lot against him?

The Taft men preach conciliation. There are to be no reprisals against the antis. The history of Bryan's policy of revenge is not to be repeated.

BEEF JUMPS IN PRICE.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—Wholesale prices of dressed beef took an upward jump of 1½ cents a pound yesterday, as a result of sharply decreased supplies in packers' coolers and more general demand for fresh meat. Butchers said that the meat trade was fast "recovering" from the depression resulting from the recent financial stringency, and that the increase in consumption of meats "necessitated the advance." Live stock on the hoof were selling at the highest prices attained since 1906, and receipts during the last two weeks are the lightest in nearly a quarter of a century.

SUES FOR WOODMEN DEPOSIT.

Head Banker McNider Seeks to Recover $350,000 on Famous Bond; Crocker Accused of Forgery.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHARITON (Iowa) June 6.—Head Banker H. C. McNider of the Modern Woodmen of America has filed a claim of $350,000 against the F. R. Crocker estate, Guilford Crocker administrator, on the ground of alleged deposit that the Woodmen Head Banker had in the defunct First National Bank here. Crocker was cashier and manager of the bank.

A copy of the famous Woodmen bond is attached to the claim. This bond is the security Head Banker McNider had against loss of money in the bank, and is for $400,000. The names of the following persons are signed to the instrument: F. R. Crocker, A. L. Mallory, J. M. Thayer, G. J. Stewart, E. S. Baker, G. W. Larimer, John Bennett, L. Rex Bennet, George Bennet, J. S. Miller.

This bond was sent by Mr. Crocker, on July 25, 1905, and it is now practically proved that all the names on it except Mr. Crocker's were forged by him. All the men whose names appear state positively they never signed a bond.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Resolutions were adopted yesterday by the San Francisco Real Estate Board, protesting against the proposed consolidation of all the forces of the National Guard of California into one brigade with headquarters at Los Angeles.

The protest points out that geographically and strategically, San Francisco is the most important point in the State, and should the consolidation be carried out, this city should be the headquarters of the brigade commander.

The resolutions will be sent to Gov. Gillett.

CLUB PROBLEM IN STOCKTON.

SUNDAY CLOSING IS CAUSE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Since Sunday closing of saloons went into effect there has been much discussion whether the police could also close the private clubs.

A local incorporated club has been opened and Commissioner Meyers ordered the Chief to break down the door and raid the place, but the Chief, on asking advice from the City Attorney, was told the police could not break down doors or windows, but could secure search warrants.

It is possible other clubs will be organized, as this is the only means of getting around the Sunday-closing ordinance.

VANCOUVER, June 6.—The forests of the coast region of British Columbia will be protected from fire this summer in a more comprehensive manner than ever before, as wardens are being employed, and their jurisdiction is more extended than in the past. W. E. Gladwin, chief fire warden, has opened his office in Vancouver, and this week the appointments of all the deputies have been made and already some of the men have proceeded to their posts, while the others will be at work next week.

PARIS, June 6.—Counsel for Mme. Anna Gould yesterday applied to the civil tribunal to grant her a delay in the payment of $24,000 to Mme. Nemidoff, a singer, for a necklace purchased by her former husband, Count Boni de Castellane, pointing out that her income now is only $6000 per month, and that it would be impossible to pay such a large sum immediately.

The court consented to the payment of $6000 each three months to the singer.

RAGING WATERS.

TRAIN SERVICE DEMORALIZED.

Montana Railroads Tied up by Flood.

Smelters and Mines Put Out of Business.

Three Lives Reported Lost Below Helena.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

BUTTE (Mont.) June 6.—The railroad situation in Montana is much improved today, and the rain has stopped. The Northern Pacific is sending trains east from Butte tonight, although the line east of Bozeman was again tied up today by another washout.

Farmers in the Gallatin Valley estimate that about two-thirds of their crops will be destroyed.

Superintendent Goodall of the Northern Pacific says he has no idea as to when the line will be open. Big gangs of men are at work but the task is a tremendous one.

Conditions are better on the eastern than on the western end. The track, it is feared, has been washed out for miles through Hell Gate Cañon. No. 1, with four coaches, is held here until the tracks are cleared.

Wolf Creek, on the Great Northern, is reported under water. At Craig people are using boats in the streets and have been driven out of all one-story houses. The tracks are also under water, and when telephone communication was interrupted yesterday, a report stated it was believed the track would soon go.

The culverts went out near Silver, between Helena and Great Falls, but a number of Northern Pacific west-bound trains were on the other side before the break came. These are now at Great Falls.

A small dam up Lump Gulch went out, and the flood which poured into the Big Prickly Pear covered the East Helena smelters to a depth of three feet. Manager Smith said it will be two weeks before the company will be again operating.

A dam at Stanchfield Lake went out at 4 o'clock this morning, and flooded scores of farms in the valley.

South of Silver Bow the tracks of the Oregon Short Line are in good condition, and the Northern Pacific tonight will probably dispatch its trains to the Coast over that line, transferring to the tracks of the Oergon Navigation Company at Pocatello. East-bound Northern Pacific trains are expected to come from Spokane by the same route.

The Great Northern system today is in practically a complete state of demoralization—so bad that not even the transfer of passengers is being attempted. In addition to its tracks being inundated in the Prickley Pear Cañon, and washouts, and covered with landslides between Butte and Helena, the wires of the company are prostrated between here and Helena and to northern points.

The Butte, Anaconda and Pacific Railroad is out of business until Monday at least, and until that line is repaired, the mines of the Red Metals, North Butte and Amalgamated companies will have to remain shut down.

The Butte Reduction Works and the Clark mines resumed work today. Electric cars have resumed, and the city is again being lighted. Wire service out of the city is gradually being restored, though it is still in a sorry plight.

Three lives are reported lost in the valley below Helena, but definite information on the subject is hard to obtain.

HAS ITS WORST FLOOD.

OKLAHOMA TOWN SUBMERGED.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ENID (Okla.) June 6.—Enid is facing the most disastrous flood in its history. Following six hours' rainfall, Bologny Creek, running through the city, this morning widened from twenty feet to 2000 feet and flooded practically the whole of Enid, carrying away houses, flooding stores and endangering lives.

Today water stood twelve feet deep in Main street, covering two blocks of the business center. Fifty houses were swept away and carried down stream with the occupants, who had been driven to the roofs, shouting for help. Several families floated about at the mercy of the flood waters and in the darkness were in great danger. All were eventually rescued. Today the water is receding slowly.

Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton has been nominated by Harvard to give the American lectures before the University of Paris and other French universities next winter.

BARON DREW WRONG LOT.

So He Had to Commit Suicide in So-called "American Duel."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BERLIN, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Remarkable facts are coming to light in reference to the mysterious death of a Russian student, Von Tsclowsky, who was found with a bullet through his lungs at Dresden.

Two other Russians, one of whom is a millionaire land owner, are under arrest.

Tsclowsky was a Polish baron, belonging to one of the noblest families of Warsaw, and served with distinction in the Russo-Japanese War.

The landlord of the public house where the three students lodged asserts that a quarrel arose, and that the dispute ended with an exchange of cards for a so-called "American duel," lots being drawn to decide which of the combatants was to commit suicide.

CUPID'S VICTIM.

HEROINE OF BIG WRECK MARRIED.

MANY CHICAGOANS TO ATTEND WEDDING OF MISS WEST.

Nurse Who Saved Life of Engineer in Baltimore and Ohio Disaster, and Who Saw Service in Cuba Under Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, to Be Bride of Wealthy Land Owner.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—Many Chicagoans will go to Sandwich, Ill., to be present at the marriage of Miss Frances West and Frank Hatcher of Morris, Ill., which is to occur at the home of Mr. and and Mrs. Culver.

Dr. and Mrs. Culver are intimate friends of the bride-to-be, around whose name so much romance circles that she is known throughout the country.

Miss West served in Cuba as an army nurse in the Seventh Army Corps, commanded by Gen. Fitzhugh Lee. By all the known laws of story book lore, she should not be marrying Mr. Hatcher, who is a wealthy and prominent land owner. No novelist would have permitted her to do otherwise than to wed one of the men whose lives she has saved, either through private nursing, war nursing or at the wreck of the Royal Blue Flyer of the Baltimore and Ohio at Carbon, Pa., a few months ago, where she figured as the heroine.

The Royal Blue was on its way from Chicago to Washington, when, in the middle of the night, it crashed into a freight train, on an open switch at Carbon. On board were Senator Dolliver of Iowa, Congressman Feeney and Senator Hopkins of Illinois, and a large group of well-known men.

When found, Miss West was beneath the engine, caring for the engineer and binding up wounds, by which immediate attention the life of the man was saved. The nurse passed from one injured man to the next, working rapidly and caring for them until they had been taken to the hospital in a near-by town.

Later, at a White House reception in honor of the war nurses, Miss West was singled from the group by the President and introduced by him as the heroine of the wreck.

NEW YORK WOMAN SAYS SHE CAN CONDONE WRONG.

Descendant of Noted Family Seeks Separation—Declares Man "Might Decently Leave Wife in Ignorance, but When He Weeps in Her Lap Over Good Time It Is Too Much."

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Mrs. Elise F. Smith, descendant on her great grandmother's side from the Anneke Jans who once owned all the New York real estate that now is Trinity's, is suing her husband, John Cotton Smith, for separation, and says that this time she means it.

Here are her reflections on the subject:

"It wasn't altogether what my husband did, as the way he had of telling me of it afterward.

"A man might go wrong and decently leave his wife in ignorance, but when he goes home and weeps in her lap over the 'good time' he had, it is too much.

"After two marriages—the second with a man who had been divorced twice before—I have come to the conclusion that matrimony is no good—at least not for me.

"Of course, there are good men in the world, and good husbands. For my part, I would be willing to stand for a certain amount of, let us say, foolishness; but to have one's husband come home and alternately sob out his repentance and boast of his conquests—that is overstepping the limit.

"If a man must forget his family for a time, at least, let him have the decency to keep it quiet afterward. There are wives who realize only too well that it were best they should not know everything—yet they remain good wives, for they understand the frailties of their husbands."

THE TRUTH AND THE LIGHT.

Wonderful Progress of "The Times"—Exposure of Cowardly Tactics of "Express."

THE TIMES is the only newspaper in Los Angeles that has dared publish its sworn circulation figures day by day, for years, and still dares do it. They have shown a steady gain, year after year, perhaps varying in some weeks or months to a temporary loss, in the comparison.

The following exact figures give the progress of The Times' circulation since 1896: Daily, net average for 1896, 18,901; for 1897, 19,258; for 1898, 26,131; for 1899, 25,731; for 1900, 26,738; for 1901, 28,448; for 1902, 30,930; for 1903, 30,346; for 1904, 37,702; for 1905, 43,150; for 1906, 50,501 copies; for 1907, 52,211 copies.

The March (1908) circulation of The Times showed an average daily gain of 3046 over the corresponding month of last year.

The April (1908) circulation of The Times showed an average daily gain of 5911 over the corresponding month of last year.

The May (1908) circulation of The Times showed an average daily loss of 2250 from the corresponding month of last year.

The Times promptly published the fact of this loss, with the following explanation:

> "NOTE: Owing to the great number of papers sold daily during the Shriner celebration last year, the May, 1908, circulation statement of The Times, printed above, shows the first decrease in many months."

Like the barking of a grasshopper at the rush-past of a roaring, record-breaking transcontinental train, is the feeble attempt of a defeated and blasted little would-be rival to make capital out of these figures by lying about The Times.

The Times challenges the Express to publish its daily circulation figures, under oath, from month to month.

The Times challenges it to be honest enough to confess that its advertising for May, 1908, fell off 23 per cent. as compared with May, 1907.

The Times challenges the same tricky little sheet to publish the testimony of its owner before the Federal commission, when he confessed to rebating.

The Times not only challenges but fervently exhorts Brother Earl to tell the truth about himself and The Times.

DISCUSS EFFECTS OF KING'S VISIT.

RUSSIAN POLITICAL CIRCLE SET GUESSING.

Is Keenly Canvassing Probable Outcome of Forthcoming Journey of English Monarch to St. Petersburg—Anglo-Russian-French Understanding Foreshadowed.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, June 5.—The effects of King Edward's forthcoming visit to Russia are being keenly canvassed in political circles here, principally with regard to his relation to Germany, against which the broad trend of the King's policy is supposed to run.

Serious politicians are of the opinion that King Edward's statesmanship now has to face the hardest test, the initiating of more intimate relations with Russia, on whose soil he will be the first English King to set foot. The task, however, will be facilitated by the political necessities, the mutual advantages being equally appreciated by both sides.

Public opinion here is ready to meet England more than half way. All political parties except the extreme reactionaries look upon an Anglo-Russian accord as natural to the completion of the chain of Franco-Russian and Anglo-French ties.

The matters to be discussed at the meeting by King Edward and Emperor Nicholas will take a wide range, and particular attention will be given to questions relating to Morocco and Macedonia, regarding which the need of a common Anglo-Russian-French policy is especially felt.

The imminence of Austrian succession also forces to the foreground the question of Central Europe, in which Russia is vitally interested.

CELESTIAL.

BELIEVES IN CHINA'S FUTURE.

SIR ROBERT HART THINKS SHE IS COMING TO FRONT.

Says Country Will Become Formidable in Industrial and Trading Worlds, but not in Military, Although It Will Be Prepared to Hold Its Own.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

LONDON, June 6.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Genoa telegraphs an interview he had with Sir Robert Hart, director-general of Chinese customs, who arrived there yesterday on board the German liner Yorck, en route for England.

Sir Robert said he wanted a two years' leave of absence, but could obtain only one year. Whether he would return to China depended entirely upon the state of his health.

Concerning China's future, Sir Robert said he was a great believer in the Chinese. Once they were organized after the European plan, he declared, they were certainly destined to become a powerful nation. But with such an immense mass the work must go slow, and by the time they are organized along modern lines, even if they are aggressive, which they are not, they will know how to temper their strength with wisdom.

As to the "yellow peril," Sir Robert said he thought that though the Chinese are likely to become formidable in industrial and trading matters, they will not cause the world any special trouble.

Broadly speaking, he said the Chinese view is that military development is retrogressive, and not progressive. At the same time they will be strong enough to hold their own against all comers, "and it must be remembered," concluded Sir Robert, "consequences are like rabbits—once they get the start you cannot stop them."

The Daily Mail in an editorial regards the interview as an important change of opinion on the part of Sir Robert, who, it says, eight years ago, predicted a gigantic development of Boxerism, "which nothing could prevent but the partition of China or a miraculous spread of Christianity."

New York Supreme Court Decides Person Can Prevent Display of Photographs as Advertisements.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—A person has the right under the Constitution to prevent the use of his photograph for advertising sale or trade purposes, according to the decision of the Supreme Court.

Helen Wyatt brought suit in the name of a guardian, because she is under legal age. She sued two stores for $5000 each for displaying for sale, without her consent, her photographs on some of which had been written "Miss Wyatt." The firms alleged in defense that Miss Wyatt had informed the photographer who made the photographs, that she was a "professional," had appeared before the public as an actress, and in consideration of reduced rates, waived her rights in the photographs.

The lower court gave Miss Wyatt an interlocutory judgment by sustaining her demurrer in both suits to the constitutional questions raised, from which the firms appealed.

FLEE COMING FLOOD.

Weather Officials Warn Residents of Low Lands on Kansas River That Crest of Wave Is About Due.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

TOPEKA (Kan.) June 6.—The government weather officials here predict tonight that the Kansas River will go above the flood stage by Sunday night or Monday morning, from the water which has already fallen along its tributaries.

Many people in the lowlands are moving out and business interests in the lower part of the city are preparing for a flood.

The Wolff Packing Company had the Rock Island Railroad move 600 head of livestock from its yards today.

According to the weather officials the river will reach 22.5 to 23 feet. With this much of a raise, threatening weather prevails along the head waters, at Blue Rapids where the government gauge is located, the river has reached the stage of 3.9 feet and the gauge is submerged. The Republican River has left its banks at Clay Center. The gauge here registered twenty feet tonight.

ANALYSIS OF SMITH'S DEFEAT.

Louisville and Nashville Railroad, Liquor Interests and Watson Held Responsible.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ATLANTA (Ga.) June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] On behalf of Gov. Hoke Smith, defeated for renomination at the primaries by Joseph H. Brown, Ralph Smith made this statement today:

"A canvass of the returns of Thursday's primary election in Georgia discloses that Gov. Hoke Smith was defeated by approximately 9000 votes. The registration was the heaviest in the history of Georgia politics, and the vote exceeded by thousands any vote previously cast in the State.

"The cities of Georgia contributed largely to Smith's defeat. Atlanta and Savannah gave Brown 5000 of his total majority. Augusta, Macon, Rome and Columbus also went against Smith.

"The Louisville and Nashville Railroad, the liquor interests and Thomas E. Watson's opposition are believed to have accomplished Smith's defeat, though the returns show he received a larger vote than two years ago by several thousand."

RECONCILIATION POSSIBLE.

Remark of Pope May Mean Good Terms May Yet Prevail Between Vatican and Quirinal.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

ROME, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A dominion prelate crossing St. Peter's Square in a carriage last Sunday was mistaken for the Pope, owing to his white habit and a slight resemblance to the Pontiff. The mistake provoked some excitement and reawakened the question of a reconciliation between the Vatican and the Quirinal.

Yesterday the Pope, alluding to the incident in the course of a conversation with Prince Rospigliosi, said that he was determined to end his life inside the Vatican, but that if he should chance to leave it he would wear a black habit and take the train to visit Venice incognito.

The Pope's remarks are considered to have been a jest, but significant, as showing that perhaps conciliation is not utterly hopeless.

AESTHETIC.

FINDS BALM IN FLOWERS.

London Cult Both Bathes in and Eats of Blooms.

Deems Them Panaceas for Many Moods.

Will Revive Moody Spirits and Depress Gay.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Flora, the most innocent of all the gods, and as lovely as any, is the object of fashionable worship today.

It is not enough for her followers to surround themselves with flowers; they must bathe in tubs brimming with dewey blossoms—even must they eat flowers.

Flora's devotees fill their dwellings with such buds as they find soothing if they need calm, or exhilarating should their spirits droop. If they would be thoughtful they live in an atmosphere of narcissuses. Primroses lend gayety. Anemones supply energy. Doubtless you in America will find that your glaring sunflower will revive your accustomed strenuosity, but if you grow too bold, best sleep on a bed of shrinking violets.

The aesthetic followers of this floral cult now immerse themselves in a matutinal tub in which primroses float, or if a girl lacks esprit, glorious geraniums give life and color to the scented waters in which she bathes herself.

But to approach human perfection these "florists" eat flowers. Fashionable confectioners have long supplied sugared violets to delicate feminine palates. In Gilbert and Sullivan's "Patience" the aesthetics lunched by contemplating a lily. Happily the present fare is a trifle more substantial, and is called "ambrosia," which, as everybody knows, was food for the gods on high Olympus, as nectar was their drink.

The receipt for the modern ambrosia is kept a profound secret.

BIG PROJECT PLANNED.

Mexican Congress Appropriates $25,000,000 for Initiation of National Irrigation System.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

CITY OF MEXICO, June 6.—Minister of Finance Limantour's bill providing for an appropriation of $25,000,000 for the initiation of irrigation works throughout the republic was passed by the Senate yesterday. This makes the measure a law.

That portion of the bill providing for the establishment of a discount bank was amended so the bill now calls for the establishment of as many of these banks as may be needed in the aiding of farmers.

Congress took a further step in the protective tariff policy by raising the import duty on iron and steel 1 per cent. per kilo (about 2¼ pounds) yesterday.

DID NOT USE BULLETS.

Friends of Assailant of Maj. Dreyfus Advance Theory That Wax Pellets Were Fired.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—A.M.]

PARIS, June 6.—The excitement produced by the attempt to kill Maj. Alfred Dreyfus last Thursday at the Zola ceremonies in the Pantheon is rapidly subsiding.

It is now apparent that the Clemenceau government does not intend to play into the hands of the Nationalists by reviving the old Dreyfus issue, and the Republican press generally is minimizing the effect of the outrage and ignoring the vaporings of the Nationalist press.

Morris & Daudet of L'Action Francaise, evidently are disappointed that they were not hauled up to explain their statements in this journal that "a resolute patriot" had visited them and offered to kill Dreyfus, but that his proposal was rejected. An editorial was published declaring that the cause of the King will soon overthrow the Dreyfus republic. He defies the government to prosecute him.

The doctors have been unable to locate the ball in Maj. Dreyfus's arm, and say that possibly it may have been ejected by the muscles of that member. Friends of Gregoris advance the theory that he used wax pellets instead of bullets. These produced an abrasion of the skin, but otherwise were harmless. Some newspapers today say that neither the revolver nor any cartridges were found after the shooting.

HAVING HARD TIME.

American Business in Far East Felt Recent Panic and Now Feels Anti-Japanese Boycott.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Americans in business in the Far East are having hard times, says C. L. Gorhan, a Hongkong broker, who is now in London. Mr. Gorham said:

"The Wall-street panic was felt even in China, and seriously upset business conditions there. Now things have been made worse by the boycott. On the top of these troubles comes the lowering of the rate of exchange.

"I am afraid Ameicans in China are faring badly at present, but we are all hopefully looking for the horizon to clear."

were taken from Admiral Sebree ap-commander of the Lieutenant-Commanof the fleet, to the

of the same ship, to sit as a board of inquiry.

The board began work at 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon by taking testimony aboard ship. This afternoon they will go into fireroom No. 3 and inspect it carefully. It is expected that the board will finish its investigation on Tuesday, then a report will be sent to the Navy Department at Washington. As soon as this is done the necessary repairs will be made at San Pedro.

WITH THE INJURED.

In the marine ward at the Angelus Hospital, Trinity and Washington streets, five of the injured sailors of the Tennessee are making a brave fight against death. The sixth man taken there, J. F. A. Carroll, a second-class fireman, of Hartford, Ct., died at 10:50 o'clock last night.

Horribly burned and scalded, their bodies seared and blistered, the boys bear their injuries bravely. Two more of them face death. They know of their condition and simply take it as a matter of course. The nerve of the sailors has impressed even the surgeons in attendance, who are accustomed to such things.

Early yesterday morning ambulances were waiting at the San Pedro dock to receive the injured men. A heavy fog hung over the harbor, and it was decided that it would be dangerous to remove the patients from the ship hospital at that time. As the fog lifted the injured sailors were tenderly lifted from the ships and taken to a private car. At Washington street and Long Beach avenue, Los Angeles, the injured men were put in private ambulances and taken to the Angelus Hospital, where they are under the personal care of Marine Surgeon S. D. Brooks, stationed there.

F. S. Maxfield, second-class fireman, Toughkenamon, Pa., is the most dangerously injured. S. Stamatis, first-class fireman, Norfolk, Va., is also in a critical condition. H. Fitzpatrick, first-class fireman, Brooklyn, N. Y.; A. Hayes, water tender, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Walter S. Burns, coal passer, Brooklyn, are also at the hospital in a serious condition.

"It is hard to tell just how the men will get along," said Surgeon Brooks. "They are fearfully burned. Maxfield is in a very bad way, and the next twelve hours will mean life or death to him. The other men are desperately injured, but are resting well."

ALWAYS READY.

The remarkable efficiency of the several ships' crews is shown by the fact that every surgeon in the fleet was aboard the Tennessee within ten minutes after she showed the distress signal.

The Washington, being second in line, ranged abeam, leaving room for the West Virginia, flagship of the senior admiral, her lifeboat hitting the water within three minutes after the signal, while the ship still was under way, putting Surgeons Devalion and Dorsey first aboard the stricken ship.

Though the men had no knowledge that this was "action" and not a drill, the other boats were equally rapid in movement, the ships having made all speed to the scene of the accident.

L. Stevenson, ship's fitter, second class, of the Washington, whose cousin, G. M. Coins, was injured in the fireroom of the Tennessee, speaks in the highest terms of the efficient and faithful work of Surgeon Guest and his assistants. Stevenson learned of the presence of his relative aboard the Tennessee only through the accident.

TO SEEK CAUSE.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] President Roosevelt today had a conference with Secretary Metcalf about the fatal explosion in the boiler-room of the Tennessee. The Secretary called at the White House for the purpose of personally laying before the President the series of dispatches received from Rear-Admiral Sebree, giving a general account of the catastrophe.

Upon his return to the Navy Department, Secretary Metcalf sent orders to Rear-Admiral Dayton, commander-in-chief of the Pacific Fleet, to which the Tennessee is now attached as a unit in the armored cruiser squadron, requesting him to order a board of investigation without delay to ascertain responsibility for the accident. The orders for this board of investigation are explicit, and it will be along two general lines—whether the accident was due to negligence, or to defects of construction.

It is believed at the Navy Department, although technical details are lacking upon which to base accurate judgement, that the accident may have been caused by mud in the boilers, in which event nobody could be blamed. That was the case with the cruiser St. Louis, which had a somewhat similar accident in February.

The decision of the board of investigation in that case was that no blame could be attached. In the case of the Tennessee, the board will investigate under positive orders from the President, and if it appears that there has been negligence, a court martial will follow.

Secretary Metcalf sent a dispatch today to Admiral Dayton, directing that everything possible be done for the comfort and care of the injured men.

The following telegram was sent by President Roosevelt to Admiral Dayton:

"Am greatly concerned over accident on Tennessee. I hope the wounded are doing well."

BEGS PRIVILEGE OF DYING.

Despondent Man Takes Acid and Resists Surgeons' Efforts to Save His Life.

Discouraged over family troubles and disheartened because he could not secure work, Harry Heup, a house painter, committed suicide in a small room at the rear of No. 826 East Twenty-ninth street last night by drinking hydrochloric acid.

He was taken to the Receiving Hospital, but he died in a short time. He resisted the surgeons' efforts to save him, and it was necessary to strap him down in order to administer medicine.

When the surgeons started to pump out his stomach, Heup became very violent. He denied that he had taken poison and insisted that there was nothing the matter with him. He pleaded piteously with the doctors to leave him alone, saying that he no longer wanted to live.

According to neighbors, Heup became estranged from his wife because of his drinking habits. This also made it impossible for him to keep at work.

CHICAGO WINS TRACK EVENT.

Beats Stanford and Wisconsin by Four Points.

Coast Men Lose Victory in Distance Runs.

Feature of Day Is Finish in Two-Mile Dash.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

MARSHALL FIELD, CHICAGO, June 6.—Chicago won the annual track and field meet of the intercollegiate conference on Marshall field this afternoon, scoring 24 points. The teams of Leland Stanford, Jr., University, and the University of Wisconsin tied for second honors with 20 points each. Illinois, the former conference champion, was third with 18 points.

The meet was so close that the result was not counted until Merriam won the last event on the programme, the 220-yard hurdle.

No records were broken, but May of Illinois tied the western record in the 100-yard dash, running in 9 4-5 seconds.

The real feature was the desperate race in the two-mile run. Carr of Michigan Agricultural College, finishing with a sensational spurt and defeating the second and third man by inches only.

Outside of the two-mile, the results were largely according to form, although the failure of the Stanford men in the distance runs and the field events was not expected, and had much to do with the team's inability to win first place.

Merriam was the star individual performer of the day, gaining victories in both events in which he took part. Jacobs of Chicago took the pole vault, with comparative ease, Bellah of Leland Stanford failing because he could not control his pole after he had cleared the bar.

May of Illinois won the shorter dash, though Nelson of Colorado gave him the hardest kind of a race for second place, the two falling across the tape but half an inch apart. The scores:

Chicago, 24; Leland Stanford, 20; Wisconsin, 20; Illinois, 18; Grinnell, 11; Purdue, 8; Michigan Agricultural, 8; Ames, 7; Indianapolis, 1; Beloit, 1; Marquette, 1; Lawrence, 1; Colorado, 1.

EXCELLENT RECORD.

SECOND TEAM OF SAINTS.

Play in the Saint Vincent's handball tournament has unearthed some new material that has quite upset the opinions of the wise ones. No one has attempted to pick the winner, as many of the old-time stars have been forced into the consolation class, while the "prep" students are taking the first places.

The size of the court has done much to upset the dope sheet, as many of the younger players with an abundance of wind have been able to run the older and heavier men off their feet and win with comparative ease. In this class is Joe O'Brien, who has proved a surprise throughout the tournament. This youngster plays the walls and corners in a remarkable manner and is particularly clever with his left hand.

In the important matches, Lamer won from C. Giess, 21 to 15; Beatson beat John O'Brien, 21 to 1; Gantier beat O'Connor 21 to 19; Wilde beat Cunningham, 21 to 17; Olhasso beat McGuire, 21 to 14.

St. Vincent's High School baseball nine has disbanded for the season after a futile attempt to arrange a game with the winner of the County League championship. During the past year the younger Saints challenged all high schools in this end of the State and defeated the majority of those who accepted by decisive scores.

Ventura High School is the only squad who won from the local boys. The Saints hold a wet, slow field responsible for their defeat at the hands of the channel city team, and as a return match could not be played, the Vincentians had no chance to redeem themselves.

Under the direction of Coach Moores, the boys had developed teamwork to a high degree, and the entire nine met the ball consistently.

On the twirling staff was Yaborrando and F. Couts. Couts pitched nearly all the games, as Yaborrando did not join the team until after the 'varsity had disbanded. These two youngsters probably formed the strongest staff among local high schools. When the Saints' schedule was first planned both Polytechnic and Los Angeles High School accepted dates on the list. Later both games were canceled and no reason was given. However, the junior Saints believe that they should have a "look in" for championship honors. They twice defeated Pomona High, the champions of the Citrus Belt League, who in turn defeated "Poly" and the Grand-avenue team think that had they been given an opportunity they would have made a good showing.

Out of a total of eleven games played, the Saints won ten, which would give them a percentage a trifle over 900. The following is a result of the games in the order played.

St. Vincent's 12, Riverside High 3; St. Vincent's 5, San Bernardino High 0; St. Vincent's 2, Pomona High 1; St. Vincent's 10, Santa Ana High 5; St. Vincent's 7, San Bernardino High 0; St. Vincent's 8, Pomona High 3; St. Vincent's 5, Pasadena High 0; St. Vincent's 13, All-Star High team 2; St. Vincent's 7, Redlands High 3; St. Vincent's 5, Ventura High 6; St. Vincent's 8, Redlands High 1.

Next year Coach Moores will endeavor to have his fast academic aggregation entered in the County League, where they should make a hot fight for first honors.

GOOD GOLF CONTEST.

Thirty Men Enjoy Pleasant Day at Country Club in Four-Ball Play Against Bogey.

Thirty local golfers stole an afternoon away from business yesterday, and went out to the Los Angeles Country Club to play the Saturday card dealt by the Green Committee. It was the ever-popular four-ball 18-holes foursome at handicap match play against bogey, with a one-ball sweepstake feature.

The day was cloudy and too chilly to draw out the best there was in the entrants, but the scores show that the play was remarkably good, notwithstanding the fact that the course is hard, and that the grass is drying fast. This condition makes life easy for the long drivers, for there is little danger of not being up on such a hard course. There was a little wind to offset this, and some of the good golfers had trouble with the barrancas, but the majority of the men were well satisfied with the day.

S. S. Parsons and Dr. Hill Hastings tied for first place, with 6 up on the Colonel, and, strange to say, no less than six men tied for third prize with 3 up. W. Walton, a scratch man, was one of these, and the others were W. R. Millar, Joe Cook, Percy R. Wilson, Dr. Hughes and Judge Graff. Some of the others had such struggles with the barrancas that they did not turn in their cards.

Next Saturday the programme will be a mixed foursome, 18 holes handicap, medal play.

HAPPY ON THE WAY.

Renton and Party Reach San Luis Obispo After Thirteen Hour Run from This City.

P. A. Renton, Joseph Melczer and George Thompson arrived in San Luis Obispo yesterday afternoon in a Great Smith touring car. They made the run up the Coast without trouble or special incident and expected to reach Del Monte last night. They are traveling in a Great Smith roadster and it took them just thirteen hours to reach San Luis Obispo.

Renton left Los Angeles yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, expecting to make a run to San Francisco leisurely. His car was in perfect condition when he reached San Luis Obispo and Renton declared his intention of continuing on to Merced, where he will leave his machine preparatory to a journey through the Yosemite. TO USE NEW RIFLE.

The new United States rifle will be used for the first time in competition with the world at the Olympic games and it is up to America to send a team abroad capable of sustaining the reputation of Americans for marksmanship against the finest shots of the world. To secure the best ammunition for the match there will be exhaustive tests, probably held in Washington, under the supervision of a committee consisting of Gen. James A. Drain, president of the N.R.A. and captain of the team, Gen. William P. Hall, adjutant-general U.S.A. and Gen. Lawrason Riggs of Maryland.

The team will be selected after a competition to be held on the range at Camp Perry, Ohio, June 10, 11, 12 and 13, the range having been placed at the disposal of the Executive Committee for this purpose by Adj-Gen. Critchfield of Ohio. On the evening of June 13, the team will be announced and a few days be given for preliminary arrangements before it reassembles on some eastern range for practice. It will sail on June 20 from New York, on the St. Louis, and will reach Bisley range, where it will be quartered, some nine days before the matches.

While the team will thus have only about twelve or thirteen days' practice as a team it is expected that this will be sufficient and that America will sweep the boards. The Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and National Guard will strive for representation on the team, and it is expected several civilians will secure places. Several members of the naval academy team also expect to compete.

Rifle Club Affiliations.

WASHINGTON, June 6—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The National Rifle Association has received the application of the rifle club of the University of Idaho, at Moscow, Idaho, for enrollment among the college clubs affiliated with the N.R.A. It is probable the project of an intercollegiate shoot next month will be abandoned as there are not sufficient entries to justify the same. Meanwhile the beautiful college trophy remains in the custody of the N.R.A. Other recent affiliations are from the Southern California Rifles Association of Los Angeles, Governor's Troop of Harrisburg, Pa., and the Denver Rifle Club Association.

Washington to Enter.

SEATTLE (Wash.) June 6.—The University of Washington eight-oared crew, which now holds the Pacific Coast championship, has sent its entry for the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 23 and 24. Half of the necessary expense money has been raised among the students of the University of Washington. It is expected the alumni and others will subscribe the balance.

WASHINGTON TOO LATE.

Cannot Enter Big Regatta in East Because Arrangements for It Have Now Been Made.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—No provision can be made for the eight-oared crew of the University of Washington in the intercollegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie on June 27, according to an announcement made here today by the chairman of the Intercollegiate Regatta Association, when his attention was called to a dispatch telling of the intention of the Pacific Coast champions to start East on June 9, to take part in the races at Poughkeepsie.

"The University of Washington should have communicated earlier with the Regatta Association if they wanted to race at Poughkeepsie," said he, "as it is it would be impossible to accept the entry. All the arrangements for this year's race were completed some time ago."

Wise Talks

By the "Office Boy."

When a girl does not look with favor on a young man's suit, he should transfer his patronage to another clothing store. I think it would be a good thing if the people of Southern California would spend their summer vacation around St. Joseph, St. Louis or Joplin, or some of those places. Then when they return, they'll be from Missouri and those discount and rebate merchants will have to show them. Honest, I've got more respect for a train robber, or a hold-up man than I have for a fake merchant, who tells you he will sell you a $30 suit for $20 and in reality gives you a suit that cost him about $11; same suit exactly as we sell every day at $15. That sort of thing is demoralizing to a community. If continued, it will be carried into every kind of business, and a young man, in order to get a job will be compelled to lie and steal for his employer. The Silverwood Stores will discontinue before they will resort to those tactics to get your patronage. We undersell all that kind of stores, and they know it.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH RELIEVED.

Perhaps No Medicine in the World Has Relieved More Cases of Catarrh of the Stomach Than Pe-ru-na.

The Symptoms of Stomach Catarrh Are Heaviness After Eating, Belching Gas, Sourness of the Stomach, Sluggish Bowels.

ALDERMAN GEO. W. WEICK.
DENVER, COL.
SAYS:—
"I HAVE USED PERUNA FOR CATARRH OF THE STOMACH AND IT HAS HELPED ME WONDERFULLY."

Some Other Startling Testimonials

ALDERMAN GEORGE W. WEICK, 1474 South Seventh St., Denver, Col., Alderman Eleventh Ward, writes:

"I have used Peruna for catarrh of the stomach and it has helped me wonderfully."

Chronic Stomach Trouble

MR. SAMUEL A. SEAL, Route 2, Treadway, Tenn., writes:

"It gives me great pleasure to testify to the great good your medicine, Peruna, has done for me in a chronic case of catarrh of the stomach. I was confined to my bed for some time, and could not sit up. I had tried everything that I could find recommended for catarrh, without any benefit. I tried the best physicians in Hancock County, with little or no benefit. I then tried two of the best physicians in Hawkins County, and found they were doing me no good. I was gradually growing worse.

"Then a friend of mine, passing by, handed me one of your pamphlets, and seeing how Peruna was recommended for Catarrh, I sent to Rogersville, Tenn., next morning, a distance of about fifteen miles, and procured some of your Peruna, and began taking same according to directions, and after taking it a few days I began to get better.

"I continued using it until I was able to go to work on the farm again, and now I am in very good health and do work on my farm.

"I do honestly believe your great medicine, Peruna, saved my life, and I cheerfully recommended it to like sufferers. You are at liberty to publish my testimonial, and I truly hope it may be a benefit to some one."

Catarrh of Head and Stomach

Mr. Frank Richter, of 309 East Second St., Winona, Minn., writes: "As a remedy for catarrh I take pleasure in recommending Peruna for catarrh of the stomach. I know what it is to be afflicted with this awful disease, and consider it my duty to say a word in behalf of the remedy which gave me such relief.

"Peruna cured me, and I know it will cure any one else who suffers from this disease. It gives me great pleasure to testify to the curative effects of this medicine.

"Peruna is a well tested and frequently used remedy, and for catarrh of the stomach it is unsurpassed.

"My catarrh was principally located in my head and stomach. I tried many remedies without success. I tried several doctors, but they were unable to cure me. I read of Peruna in the papers, and five bottles cured me."

Almost from the first dose Peruna will relieve symptoms of stomach catarrh. Peruna at once sharpens the appetite, increases the digestive powers, and gives renewed strength.

People Who Object to Liquid Medicines Should Buy Peruna Tablets.

TEST YOUR KIDNEYS

Thousands, Both Men and Women, Have Kidney Disease and Do Not Know it. It is Hereditary. If Any of Your Family in This or Past Generations Have Been Troubled With Kidney Disease of Any Form You Cannot Be Too Careful. You Should Make a Test of Your Urine at Once and Satisfy Yourself as to the Condition of Your Kidneys.

Let your morning urine stand 24 hours. If you find a reddish brick dust sediment in it, or if particles are floating in it, or if it is cloudy, you will know your kidneys are in a diseased condition and unable to perform their work. The result will be inflamed bladder and urinary organs, uric acid poison, the stomach will become affected and unable to digest the food, the system weak, and a break-down of the general health will follow, with Bright's disease or diabetes, which will prove fatal if not treated with promptness and great care.

ANALYSIS FREE

If, after you have made this test, you have any doubt in your mind as to the development of the disease in your system, send a sample of your urine to our Medical Department, putting your name and address on the package, and our doctors will analyze it and send you a report with advice, free of charge, together with a valuable book describing all diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood, and treatment for each disease.

All letters from women read and answered by a woman doctor. All correspondence in strictest confidence.

Thousands of unsolicited letters are received daily from grateful men and women who have been cured by Warner's Safe Cure.

Mr. Charles A. Gregory, of 2228 Larimer street, Denver, Colo., a prominent Knight of Pythias, recently wrote:

"I am very pleased to recommend Warner's Safe Cure, as it cured me of a very severe case of kidney trouble, from which I had been suffering for several years. After having used several remedies without results, I was induced to try Warner's Safe Cure. I found in a couple of weeks that it was beneficial. I soon got rid of the aches and pains in my back and loins. My ankles and feet did not swell up as badly and in two months the swelling had entirely disappeared—the urine was healthy—the waste matter carried off through the proper channels and now I feel perfectly well and ten years younger."

When the kidneys are diseased the uric acid is not carried off and this causes Gout, Lumbago, Rheumatism of the joints, Rheumatism of the muscles, Rheumatism of the Heart, Rheumatism everywhere. Warner's Safe Cure drives out the uric acid and purifies the kidneys and bladder.

In kidney disease the bowels are often constipated and the liver torpid. Warner's Safe Pills quickly relieve this condition, and no ill after effect is experienced.

WARNER'S SAFE CURE is put up in two sizes and is sold by all druggists, or direct, at 50 CENTS and $1.00 a BOTTLE. Refuse substitutes containing harmful drugs which injure the system.

TRIAL BOTTLE FREE

To convince every sufferer from disease of the kidneys, liver, bladder and blood that WARNER'S SAFE CURE will absolutely cure, a trial bottle will be sent FREE OF CHARGE postpaid to any one who will write WARNER'S SAFE CURE CO., Rochester, N. Y., and mention having seen this liberal offer in The Times. The genuineness of this offer is fully guaranteed.

Wonderful Success of "Actina"
In the Treatment of Afflictions of the Eye

Every person with impaired eyesight or suffering from weak or diseased eyes should write for our latest free booklet, entitled "Positive Evidence."

The records of phenomenal "cures" by the "Actina" treatment, as described therein, by grateful patients themselves—names and addresses given—will satisfy the most skeptical that "Actina" is not only a remarkable, simple and harmless invention, but restores eyesight even after specialists have pronounced cases incurable.

Following are a few of the successes produced by "Actina," but more fully described in our free booklet.

A Chicago gentleman, after suffering 12 months with inflammation of the iris, used "Actina" a few weeks. He says he can now see as well and as far as anybody.

An Iowa lady writes that after being under treatment of specialists for 15 years, "Actina" completely restored her eyesight and she no longer uses glasses.

Astigmatism and granulated lids impaired the eyesight of a Hartford (Conn.) lady. Specialists failed to cure. As a last resort, against advice of friends, she tried "Actina." She writes: "For many months I have written almost daily without glasses. No more pain in my eyes and drooping eyelid is restored."

"Actina" removed a cataract from the eye of an Oklahoma lady; relieved the closure of a tear duct for a well-known Chicago lady, and in scores of instances people have been able to discard eyeglasses through the faithful use of "Actina." To get an idea of the enthusiasm of our patients the entire letters as printed in our book should be read.

"Actina" is made on common sense principles. Its simplicity, effectiveness and lasting qualities will appeal to any one that will investigate. Let us send you one or two weeks' trial. Use it as often as you please, and if you are not benefited, or for any other reason are dissatisfied, send it back and no charge will be made. Write today. Address Actina Appliance Co., Dept. 88W, 811 Walnut St., Kansas City, Mo.

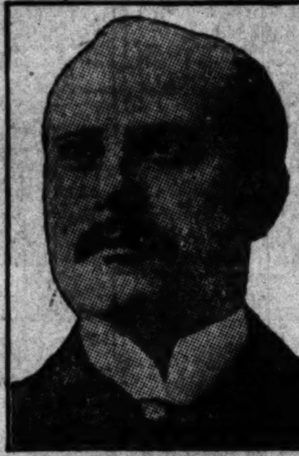
Cured Chronic Dyspepsia



MR. ALEX. K. KESSLER

Mr. Alex K. Kessler, of St. Louis, Mo., praises Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for completely curing him of dyspepsia and stomach troubles, which were of long standing. He strongly recommends Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey for all stomach troubles.

For five years I have suffered with stomach troubles, caused by over work, and several times have had severe attacks of gastritis, which developed into a chronic case of dyspepsia. After beginning the use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey I experienced immediate relief and eventually effected a permanent cure, and sincerely recommend Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey to anyone suffering from dyspepsia or similar stomach afflictions."—ALEX. K. KESSLER, St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 15, 1907.

DUFFY'S PURE MALT WHISKEY is an absolutely pure distillation of malted grain; great care being used to have every kernel thoroughly malted, thus destroying the germ and producing a predigested liquid food in the form of a malt essence, which is the most effective tonic stimulant and invigorator known to science; softened by warmth and moisture its palatability and freedom from injurious substances render it so that it can be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

It is invaluable for overworked men, delicate women and sickly children. It strengthens and sustains the system; is a promoter of health and longevity; makes the old young and keeps the young strong.

CAUTION.—When you ask your druggist, grocer or dealer for Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, be sure you get the genuine. It's the only absolutely pure medicinal malt whiskey and is sold only in sealed bottles; never in bulk. Price $1.00. Look for the trade-mark the "Old Chemist," on the label, and make sure the seal over the cork is unbroken. Write Consulting Physician for free illustrated medical booklet and free advice. There is no better farming land in the State than you will find at Lomita. There is no better fruit and garden land. There is no more beautiful suburban home site. There is no other location so rich in promise of great future value. Only four miles this side of San Pedro, it stretches along, beside the Shoe String Strip, presenting farming, gardening, home and investment opportunities instantly realized by all who see it. Adjoining the lands that are selling for $1,000 and more per acre, it is only a question of a very short time when even that figure will be cheap for Lomita Farms. The contemplated inlet of San Pedro Harbor, the proposed ship canal reaching up to within half a mile of Lomita Farms will boost values immediately.

No other land in the whole State obtainable today at such a low price has so many features that appeal to the homeseeker and investor.

The soil and water alone will pay for the land in a short time, aside from the marvelous advance in value assured.

WASHINGTON GOSSIP.

TO THE RESCUE OF COLLEAGUE.

Incident of Historic Filibuster Related.

Gallinger Slyly Procured a "Nip" for Carter.

La Follette in Recent Effort not Lubricated.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The filibustering of Senators La Follette of Wisconsin, Stone of Missouri and Gore of Oklahoma, which made the first session of the Sixtieth Congress "die hard," as a colored messenger expressed it, and caused Congressmen with political fences in need of the particular kind of repairing which can best be administered in a Decoration Day speech, to wish at the equator or some other warm place all who were responsible for keeping them at the Capitol so long, recalls similar former occasions.

Especially is it suggestive of the time Senator Thomas H. Carter of Montana literally "talked to death" a Senate bill to whose passage he was opposed. And "thereby hangs a tale" not generally known. The Senator was becoming exhausted with much speaking, and his opponents hopefully looking for the end of his oratorical rope.

These facts were apprehensively noted by his co-filibuster, Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, who, before entering politics, was a practicing physician, and caused him to quickly leave the Senate chamber. Liquor was not then frowned upon at the Capitol, and he had little difficulty procuring a glass of gin and water, which he ordered put upon his colleague's desk instead of the tumbler of clear water from which Mr. Carter had been went to refresh himself from time to time. The color of the two liquids was the same, and none but the taster detected the difference between them. His grateful acknowledgment of his friend's part in helping him to hold the Senatorial fort beyond all records, is responsible for the story getting out.

Senator La Follette's self-imposed task of delaying legislation had less favorable conditions from the first, as this session of Congress was practically unlimited, while the session of Mr. Carter's speech was limited by the Constitution, and he therefore knew just how many hours he had to hold out. Moreover, Mr. La Follette, who will contest with Senator Taylor of Tennessee the right to be called the "Fighting Bob" of the Senate, is a vegetarian and a teetotaler, and had only recently left a sick bed.

Heaven had not much tempered the sun to the shorn lambs during those last days of Congress, and the result was a display of sartorial combinations seldom equaled in such a representative gathering of men. There were coats of every variety, from the colonial style shown in the pictures of Washington at Yorktown back of the Speaker, to the saggy linen and revered alpaca of the middle ages in America; and the one, two or three-buttoned sack of the 1908 vintage, in whose left lapel ligthly rested a delicate rose or pink carnation. The memory of the gay-colored waistcoats which delighted the eye of the gallery gods just after Easter, was totally eclipsed by the sight of a variety of negligee shirts and ties whose color and design were apparently only limited to the makers' lack of originality.

Men whose duty it is to be within earshot as long as the legislative doors are kept open, remained at their posts, but the stream of onlookers rose and fell in arithmetical progression with the nearness of the hour to meal time. Now the galleries would be comfortably filled with strangers in traveling suits and severely tailored waists, and local maids and matrons in soft summer frocks topped with flower-decked "Merry Widows." Then, it would seem that a signal had been given, for one group after another would depart until only the regulars were left. Again, the scene was changed. The dinner hour had come and gone, carrying with it many duties of the day, and the ladies would reappear, dressed as for an evening entertainment, and accompanied by their husbands, brothers or escorts.

Downstairs, on the floor from which entrance to the House or Senate is made, the coming and going was of a more serious nature. There were people endeavoring to make the best of a last chance in months to grind an ax with their Congressman or Senator. On the faces of some a tragedy was written, while others seemed to take a philosophical view of life even when meeting disappointment at the end of a long journey.

The best-intentioned Congressmen cannot always get everything their constituents want, but most of them try, and when failure comes they endeavor to let it down to the waiting ones as gently as possible. A member from the Middle West was doing this the other day, and wound up by inviting the people whose longing for office he could not gratify, to lunch with him at the Capitol. His wife assisted in making the affair go off pleasantly, and to this day their guests are under the impression that the food cconsumed was furnished by the government along with the stationery perquisites supplied every lawmaker for his official work. Another time a young man graduate of a well-known college asked the writer if it cost a Congressman or Senator anything to get elected! Perhaps a publicity bill a little different from the one recently defeated in Congress might be well, after all.

The month of roses began in Washington with two birthday celebrations. The first was a banquet arranged by a committee of prominent citizens in honor of Gen. George M. Sternberg, whose service to the army and since his retirement, through science and philanthropy, to the country at large, has won him a legion of friends and admirers. The second was to commemorate the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Justice John M. Harlan, the oldest member of the United States Supreme Court, in point of service. Charles Henry Butler was the latter's host, and though it was a men's affair, Mrs. Butler received the several hundred guests, assisted by Mrs. Harlan and the wives of other members of the high tribunal. A picturesque feature from the costumer's point of view was the appearance of the host and many of his guests in white tuxedo suits.

Peru, which, like most Latin-American countries, experiences the excitement of a Presidential election only once in six years, and is then constitutionally sure of a change in the person, has just elected Señor Augusto B. Leguia to succeed President José Pardo, and now Washington's foreign colony is preparing itself for the sequel—the official retirement of Señor Ramon Pardo, who, for the past two or three years, has been the Peruvian Minister to this country. The change will not be immediate, however, as President Pardo's term does not expire until the autumn. Because anticipated, it will be none the less regretted, for both Minister Pardo and his wife, who came here a bride and by her beauty, took her world by storm, have been most agreeable members of the official circle, and among its most generous hosts.

The Ambassador from Brazil and Mme. Nabuco have arranged to leave Washington early in June for their summer cottage at Hamilton, Mass., and gave their farewell Sunday evening dinner on the 31st. Later in the week they were entertained at the Cuban legation by Minister and Mme. de Quesada, who invited to meet them the Spanish Minister, former Secretary of State and Mrs. John W. Foster, the Secretary of the Brazilian Embassy and Mme. Chermont (the latter née Miss Sloan of Baltimore;) the Secretary of the Spanish Legation and Mme. Pastor (also an American;) Dr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Chatard; the Misses Carbe of Ecuador, Mrs. Daniel McCartney, W. A. Royaards, Chargé d'Affaires of the Netherlands legation, and Dr. Guerrero, Chargé d'Affaires of Salvador.

Minister Ove Gude of Norway has arrived in Washington to succeed the late Minister Hauge, whose death while on a vacation in Christiania last winter was such a shock to Washington, where he served his country many years, and Louisville, where his marriage to Mrs. Frederick Joy was a sociol event during the season of 1905-06. The new Minister and his wife are now deep in house hunting for next winter, as the mansion recentiy erected for the Norwegian legation is the personal property of Mme. Hauge, who bought most of its decorations abroad and planned its arrangement with a view of entertaining on a lavish scale, and expects to occupy with her husband and son by a former marriage—both of whom have since passed to the great beyond.

"The King is dead; long live the King," is society's slogan, for, however popular the Hauges were their successors are expected to be equally interesting. Mrs. Gude, who is a talented violinist, brought with her to Washington a fine old instrument and much music which the diplomatic corps hopes to hear her play. It is also pleasantly anticipating a view of the paintings done by Mr. Gude's father, the noted Norwegian landcape and marine artist, which the Minister brought to this country for his official home. Next to the violin, Mrs. Gude is said to enjoy the piano upon which she interprets the songs her husband sings in a voice of much richness and volume.

The Country Club which in days past was the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, was the scene of another merry gathering on a late May afternoon, the occasion being the twenty-second wedding anniversary of Commander and Mrs. Richardson Clover, who are planning to leave Washington shortly and to spend the summer on the Pacific Coast. The younger element of the navy and diplomatic circles was especially well represented, as it leaked out that the hosts would be assisted by their twin daughters, whose birthday parties have been annual affairs so unique in character as to be looked forward to by parents as well as children, and become regular features of the winter season. Even when their father was accredited Naval Attaché to the American embassy in London, their mother planned her yearly visit to this country with reference to celebrating the birthday of the "twinnies" in the Capital City.

GRACE PORTER HOPKINS.

FIND WITNESS BY ACCIDENT.

STOCKTON, June 6.—While the prosecution regards as important the accidental discovery that Charles J. Molter, a missing witness against the Helm brothers of Fresno, on trial here for murder, was working as a farm hand at Lockeford, his appearance was not absolutely necessary, as he was nearly two days on the stand in the former trial, and his testimony taken then would have been admissable in the present trial.

Molter's evidence was to the effect that he had seen the defendants near the scene of the killing and heard them inquire about the old couple.

His whereabouts was discovered when N. H. Locke was being examined as to his qualifications to serve as a juror. He said he had talked with a man who was a witness at the former trial. Further questions brought out a description of the man, and later in the day he was served with a subpoena by the Sheriff.

BURNS'S SHADOWS HELD.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The four men, Harry Zobler, Frank Shaw, John R. Johnson and Cliff Middlemas, who were arrested some days ago and charged with conspiracy, for shadowing the automobile of Detective Burns, were brought before Police Judge Shortall on the charge today, and the demurrer to the complaint overruled.

Their preliminary examination was set for Tuesday next. The attorney for the men moved dismissal of the charges against them on the ground that a public offense was not stated in the complaint, but the judge would not allow this.

PAY BIG FINES.

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) June 6.—Three packing companies and one railroad company, convicted in 1906 of rebating and sentenced to pay fines aggregating $61,000, have handed to the clerk of the Federal court checks for the total amounts of their fines, plus costs. Each of the fines was for $15,000.

These paid: Armour Packing Company, Cudahy Packing Company, Swift & Co., and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Company.

"MERE GOSSIP."

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Postmaster-General Meyer, after the Cabinet meeting yesterday, said all talk to the effect that he might become chairman of the Republican National Executive Committee to conduct the coming campaign, was "mere newspaper gossip."

CRIME BRIEFS.

Beech Hargis Case Continued.

JACKSON (Ky.) June 6.—In the Circuit Court yesterday the case of Beech Hargis, charged with the murder of his father, Judge James Hargis, was continued until the October term of court.

Conductor Held by Coroner.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—A Coroner's jury has returned a verdict of manslaughter and criminal negligence against J. W. Baker, conductor of car No. 1666 of the Sutter-street line, which, in a collision last Sunday at Sacramento and Diversidero, resulted in the death of Henry Baer and Isabelle Harriman, an infant of 9 months.

Embezzled Million; Get Ten Years.

PITTSBURGH, June 6.—For the embezzlement of $1,105,000 from the Farmers' Deposit National Bank, Harry Reiber and John Young, former paying teller and auditor, respectively, were sentenced to serve ten years each in the penitentiar

FLASHES FROM WIRES.

Alarmed by the clanging of fire bells and the smoke which poured into the windows, more than a hundred guests of the Hotel Albert, at Eleventh street and University Place, New York, were routed from their beds early yesterday. Scantily attired, many of them rushed down the stairs carrying their clothing, suit cases and trunks, only to be assured in the office that the fire was in a building next door and that there was no danger. The blaze, which started in the factory of Carl Feinstein, was extinguished with a loss of $5000.

Oliver H. P. Belmont, who has been dangerously ill for several days with appendicitis, at his summer home at Hempstead, L. I., was reported to be a little better yesterday. His condition, however, is still regarded as critical.

The plant of the Prest-o'-Light Company on South street, Indianapolis, Ind., which stores gas in tanks, blew up this morning. Eleven persons were injured, none fatally. St. Vincent's Hospital and a fire engine house adjoining were badly damaged. Of the injured, three are employed in the wrecked plant, two are city firemen, four are hospital employés, one a patient in the hospital and one is a sister of the hospital staff.

Fire in two mines, near Durango, Colo., wrought considerable property damage and may have resulted in loss of life. Friday night fire started in the terminal house of the King Gold Mining Company at Gladstone, nine miles from Silverton, and before the night shift could be notified, had disabled tthe machinery and spread to other buildings. The property loss is $150,000. A rescue force is now in the mine, investigating the condition of the men underground. At 1 o'clock yesterday morning the buildings at the Porter mine, six miles from Durango, were discovered on fire. The loss will be heavy, because of the limited means for fighting the flames.

BOARD'S ATTITUDE IN DOUBT.

Sierra Madre Citizens Want Investigation of Charges Reflecting on Public School.

SIERRA MADRE, June 6.—There is an undercurrent of uneasiness regarding the public school situation and many are anxiously awaiting the announcement of the attitude of the new board. In the past suppression has been the policy. Now many think that the lid should be raised and the fire which has been smoldering stamped out.

That the tone of the school is below par is charged. That there is a lack of discipline was practically admitted by one of the former trustees, during the pendency of an investigation that never took place.

BUILDING ACTIVITY.

Many buildings are going up at the present time. The Home Telephone structure on Baldwin avenue, which will cost $2500, is nearing completion, and arrangements are being made to install the new system of telephones. Other buildings in course are: Residences of C. H. Parsons in San Gabriel Court, $1800; A. T. Kinney, Mariposa avenue, $1800; J. A. Kimball, Mariposa avenue, $1500; A. S. Riffle, Highland avenue, $2000; T. D. Hawthorne, Live Oak avenue, $2500; Mrs. Hopwood, Mariposa avenue, $1000.

NEGLECTED CEMETERY.

C. A. Hunt, formerly of this place, but now living in Pasadena, has raised a protest regarding the condition of the cemetery here. He buried a child here some time ago, and endeavored to grow plants over the grave and keep the grounds in a befitting condition, but he states that the plants would die did not his wife carry buckets of water from the Japanese camp, some distance away. He alleges that the grave of his child is the only one showing any signs of care; that the grounds are being constantly trampled upon and that the whole condition of the cemetery is deplorable. The matter was brought before the Trustees but no action was taken. The City Attorney said that they had no jurisdiction. It is suggested that an appeal to the civic bodies interested in beautifying the city, may bring about some change for the better.

AVALON PUPILS GET DIPLOMAS.

AVALON, June 6.—A large gathering was present last evening at the Congregational Church to witness the graduation of the 1908 class of the grammar school. Music was furnished by the Girls' Guild. Those who received diplomas include Miss Jennie R. Shaw, Miss Nelly Bianchi, Raymond Shaw and Leo Cloud. Rev. Charles W. Williams pastor of the church, spoke in exceedingly high terms of the work which has been accomplished during the past year by the teachers, Miss M. E. Sterns and J. F. Fiek of Artesia. The class history was given by Miss Anna Schiebush.

Among those who registered at the Metropole today are Dr. and Mrs. H. Brownell of Boston, Mass.; T. W. Kane, wife and daughter of San Francisco; Prof. Carl M. Fisbels of New York City; Mrs. O. W. Stager and daughters of Philadelphia, Pa., and A. J. H. Numinick of Holland.

VENICE.

VENICE, June 6.—F. A. Buchanan has let the contract for the erection of two cottages on his Wavecrest avenue property. They will cost $3700.

D. Braunberger has come here from New York and will open a store on Zephyr avenue.

At the annual meeting of the directors of the shoe factory, Abbot Kinney was elected president. The factory is now running to its full capacity. The surplus funds are to be used in the enlargement of the plant and in expanding the business.

The new baseball team will make its first appearance on the home diamond tomorrow afternoon in a game with the Pasadena nine of the Summer League.

Worw was commenced today on the construction of a home for the Cosmos Club of Los Angeles. A $700 bungalow will be built on Burbank Island.

A picnic was given today at the Country Club House by the Alumni Association of the University of Illinois.

Carroll J. Daly and family of Los Angeles are here for the summer.

Espee Cuts Down Force.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The Southern Pacific has, within the past few days, reduced the force in its Oakland shops by nearly half, and has cut down the force in its San Francisco shops one-third to curtail expenses, in keeping, it is said, with the continued shrinkage in railroad earnings.

BACHELORS GIVE PARTY.

La Paloma Bachelor Club entertained friends with a June party at Odd Fellows' Hall, Pico Heights, last evening. The ballroom was prettily decorated in the colors of the club, orange and green, and with a myriad of roses. Nearly 150 guests were in attendance.

RUSSIAN TO LECTURE.

Former Officer in Cossack Regiment to Tell Polytechnic Students of Russo-Japanese War.

Robert Von Reutlinger, formerly a lieutenant in the Primorski dragoons, will lecture to the pupils of the Polytechnic High School Tuesday afternoon.

During the Russo-Japanese War he took part in many of the battles, and he had previously had wide exeprience in China and Manchuria. He participated in the Boxer war in 1900, and was afterward on duty in North China.

While scouting before Mukden, the lieutenant was wounded and captured. He was taken to Japan, where he remained until peace was declared. Since then he has lived in San Francisco and this city.

CAMP FUND CONCERT.

Choir and Organist of St. Paul's Parish Will Give Benefit for Boys' Annual Outing.

A notable music event will be the concert to be given in Blanchard Hall Saturday night, June 20, by the choir of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral, under the direction of Ernest Douglas.

The boys of the large vested choir receive no compensation for their services, and it has become an annual custom ot give them a week's outing at Catalina. This requires a considerable fund, and the friends of the choir and lovers of good music are given this opportunity of helping defray the expenses.

Mr. Douglas, who, prior to coming to Los Angeles, was for seven years in charge of the chair of music in St. John's Episcopal Divinity School, Cambridge, Mass., has become well known in this city as an artistic director, and the programme promises to be of much interest. Tickets may be procured at St. Paul's parish house,

WON'T MODIFY ORDER.

War Secretary Wants Harbor Lines Fixed Promptly and Does not Anticipate Damage Suits.

Special dispatches indicate that Secretary Taft still sees no necessity for changing the order fixing the harbor lines at Wilmington, and that he does not anticipate suits against the government for damages.

He states that he wants the matter arranged to the satisfaction of the commercial organizations of Los Angeles and vicinity, and that he considers the prompt establishment of permanent harbor lines essential. Any claims for damages can be adjusted later.

GLADLY ACCEPTED.

Dr. Locke Telegraphs Positive Statement to the Official Board of First Methodist Church.

Announcement of the acceptance of the pastorate of the First Methodist Church by Dr. Charles Edward Locke, so far as that was possible without the consent of the bishops at each end of the line, and which was made in The Times on Friday, created such a stir that the official board of the church felt impelled to secure confirmation of the report. Yesterday S. P. Mulford sent the following telegram to Dr. Locke in Brooklyn:

"The Times publishes your acceptance, claiming direct wire from Brooklyn; my telephone kept red hot with inquiries. If possible wire me definite information, for announcement on Sunday."

Late yesterday afternoon Mr. Mulford received a brief dispatch that fully confirms the report in The Times. Dr. Locke, over his own signature, says:

"I gladly accept the invitation to First Church, subject to the bishop's approval."

It has not yet been definitely settled when the transfer will be made, but probably by the first of July. The above telegrams will be read at the service in the church this morning.

PAINFUL FLIGHT.

UGLY FALL, THIS, IN THE CANYON.

ONE INCIDENT MARS PICNIC OF THE VERMONTERS.

Child Tumbles Down Side of Mountain and Momentum of Her Body Breaks Water Pipe—Real Maple Sugar Pleasing Feature—Wins Oratorical Contest in Pasadena.

Office of The Times, No. 26 S. Raymond Ave.

PASADENA, June 7.—Losing her footing on the steep east bank of Rubio Cañon, yesterday afternoon, little Linda Cooler of Los Angeles fell nearly seventy feet down the side of the mountain. Her fall was broken by a suspended water pipe, which she broke completely in two, and was finally stopped by a great rock which hangs over one of the deep pools in the cañon bottom. The little girl was terribly bruised, but a hasty examination made in the cañon proved that no bones were broken. The parents of the child took her to Los Angeles immediately after the accident.

At the time of the mishap, the children of the Vermont picnickers were playing well up on the side of the mountain, and in the freedom of her play, Linda became too bold and approached an embankment that slopes abruptly to the bottom of the cañon.

Aside from this accident, the pleasure of the Southern California picnic and "sugaring off" of the Vermont Society was a success. Over 100 were present, and thoroughly enjoyed the day. A short business session was held, at which President L. F. Wells presided, with Secretary W. S. Hudson in attendance. Genuine maple syrup, all the way from "home," was there in abundance.

WINS ORATORICAL CONTEST.

Following a deliberation of over three-quarters of an hour on the part of the judges, Lawrence Jones was awarded the first prize of $25 cash in the E. L. Conger oratorical contest at Throop Polytechnic Institute last night. Allen Bixby was a close second, while Herbert O'Neal took third place and Harold Hoover received honorable mention. The judges were Mrs. Dorothea Hoaglin-Hayden, Hon. G. A. Gibbs and Rev. S. G. Dunham. The prizes were awarded by Dr. E. L. Conger, the doner.

The winning oration was entitled "An Appeal for the American Indian." In dealing with his subject, Mr. Jones showed especially deep knowledge of the facts, and his delivery was excellent. Mr. Bixby's subject was "Peace and Civilization," while that of Herbert O'Neal was "International Peace." Harold Hoover spoke on "The Influence of Christianity on Humane Education." While the audience was awaiting the decision of the judges, Miss Chita Kraft sang an alto solo.

IMPORTANT SERVICES TODAY.

Church services in this city today are to be of special interest. At the Presbyterian Church this morning Rev. Robert J. Burdette, D.D., pastor of the Temple Baptist Church, of Los Angeles, will preach the dedicatorial sermon, and special music will be heard. The services will begin at 11 o'clock in the morning.

Dr. Burdette will take as his text, from Acts iii, 2; "And a certain man, lame from his mother's womb, was carried, whom they laid at the gate of the temple, which is called beautiful, to ask alms of them that entered into the temple." The theme of the sermon will be "The Gate Beautiful."

Music for the service follows: Organ, "Lans Deo" (Dubois;) quartette, "Glorie in Excelsis" (Bluemenschein;) solo, Mrs. Bitman; quartette, "I Have Surely Builded an House" (Trimbell;) organ, "Solemn March" (Tombelle.)

At the First Christian Church this evening the members of the graduating class of Throop Polytechnic Institute will hear the annual baccalaureate address, preached by Rev. F. M. Dowling, pastor of the church. Rev. Dowling will speak along the line of the two roads in life that lie open to the young people.

This afternoon unveiling ceremonies will be held at Mountain View Cemetery by members of the Woodmen of the World. Flowers will be gathered at the hall in the morning, and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock the Woodmen will assemble and march to the car barns, where they will take special cars to the cemetery. Thirty-two graves are in the cemetery and these will be decorated.

Knights of the Maccabees will hold memorial services this afternoon in Maccabee Hall.

BOY STRUCK BY AUTO.

Eight-year-old S. J. Martin of No. 134 Bruce avenue, in this city, while riding a bicycle yesterday afternoon, was struck by an automobile, driven by B. M. McGee, South Hudson avenue, and narrowly escaped serious injury. Had McGee been caught immediately after the accident, he would probably have been mobbed, for he did not stop his machine after striking the boy, keeping right on out East Colorado street. It is said that until he learned the police had the number of his machine he did not offer to make good any damage he had done.

Young Martin was not seriously injured, his shoulder being bruised. Besides slight damage to his wheel and a shake-up he escaped lightly.

COMPLETE GREAT CUT-OFF.

Work on the big cut-off from "The Flats," just north of Switzer's Camp, to the top of Mount Lowe was completed late yesterday afternoon, and Ben Reed and his men came down from the mountain by way of Alpine Tavern and the Mount Lowe Railway last night. In the finished trail, the government forest rangers have a new way of reaching the interior of the mountains in the Colby district. In case of a great fire in the mountains, fire wardens and their men can be rushed to the top of Mount Lowe over the railway and distributed on the other side of the range in a very short time.

The new trail is three and a half miles in length, and although very steep in places, is safe. By using this cut-off, it will be possible to get into the West Fork or Big Tejunga without going up the Arroyo Seco Cañon, a trip of seven or eight miles.

Supervisor Ben Reed said last night that he expected the funds for the building of the fire breaks to hold out until all the work is done. The firebreaks running west from Dark Cañon was completed a few weeks ago, and the completion of the trail last night leaves only the firebreak running east from Dark Cañon to Mount Lowe to be completed.

READY FOR FINALS.

Kenneth Newell and Fred Jung will face each other in the finals of the Y.M.C.A. handball tournament next Tuesday afternoon. In match play yesterday afternoon these two showed decided form over all of their opponents, and when they meet next Tuesday a great match is expected.

These were the players and the scores for yesterday afternoon: Newell beat F. C. Tarr, 21-1, 21-4; Newell beat Edward Murphy, 21-14, 21-8; F. Jung beat C. M. Richmond, 21-3, 21-4; Jung beat Crump, 21-12, 11-21, 21-18.

SATURDAY AT ANNANDALE.

Twenty entered in the regular sweepstakes play at Annandale Golf Club yesterday. E. P. Gates and Benjamin Blossom tied for first honors with 2 up on bogey.

In the qualifying rounds for the Annandale cup, those who qualified and their net scores were: Benjamin Blossom, 77; E. P. Gates, 81; Edward Elliott, 82; J. A. Cole, 83; T. P. Mumford, 83; A. The total amount covering subsistence at the home, for the quarter ending September 30, for which contracts were awarded this week, is $32,410. Treasurer Moore says that prices were very little higher for provisions generally, and least on staple articles, but that meats were $1445 in excess of prices for the same quantities last quarter.

Two veterans, whose deaths are noted below, were, at the time of their deaths, holding office and were otherwise active in Masonic affairs. W. S. Smith was secretary of Veteran Lodge, No. 373, F. and A. M., and secretary of Columbia chapter, No. 247, O.E.S. (both of Sawtelle,) and George A. Conrey was chaplain of Veteran Lodge, No. 373. The joint funeral is to take place at 2 p.m. Monday, and services will be conducted by the orders named.

Dr. James A. Somerville, late second lieutenant of Co. K, Fifth, and first lieutenant of Co. B, Thirty-third New Jersey Infantry, a native of Ireland, admitted in 1903; died while on furlough, at the home of his family in Sawtelle, June 4, aged 73. Dr. Somerville was, before coming to the Coast, surgeon of Hot Springs Soldiers' Home, in South Dakota. He was until his health began to fail, commander of Home Co. F, and was held in high esteem by members of that company.

At the thirty-fourth concert by the Home Orchestra, which took place in Memorial Hall, on Thursday evening, an original song of the topical order, entitled "My Money Is Working For Me." was sung by its young composer, Arthur Parkinson, saxaphone player in the Home Band.

A meeting of the Sawtelle and Soldiers' Home Republican Club will take place in Markham Hall, at this place, one day next week.

Philip Wheeler, late Co. C, One Hundred and Sixty-ninth New York Infantry, is appointed sergeant of the firing squad, vice Gallagher, resigned.

Extra-duty members and civilian employés were paid on Friday for the month of May.

NEW MEMBER'S SAY.

Statement Concerning the School Affairs of Hollywood as Stirred up.

HOLLYWOOD, June 6.—Mrs. Anstruther Davidson, the new member of the board of school trustees, makes a statement concerning the school affairs of Hollywood, in which she says:

"Our teachers are elected each year, and, according to previous custom, not at the suggestion of a new member, they were asked to apply if they desired reëlection. Of those who applied, only two were not elected, and these two happen not to be in the district represented by the new woman trustee. The special teachers were told some time ago that it would be impossible to accede to the general demand for manual training in the schools, and at the same time retain other special teachers. Two of our highly-esteemed teachers are to be absent for a year of study. Of the others who did not apply, one is to take up the study of art, one wishes to resume High School work, and another has accepted another position. Mrs. Hilliker was reëlected.

"As to salaries, at the recommendation of County Superintendent Keppel, and because we believed that uniform excellence in all grades must be secured, a uniform system of salaries has been adopted for the two schools. The principals, who are also to have the eighth grade work, are to receive $115; the first grade teachers, $90, and all the rest, $85 per month. There is no question of derating. Miss Julia Dwire continues the work of the first grade, in which she has achieved remarkable success. Miss Brown did not desire the principalship. A proposal to 'keep a string on the teachers by inserting new clauses, etc.,' has never been considered by the board.

"While the board may not be infallible in judgment, they have pledged themselves to disregard any personal interests, to give unstintedly of their time, and to devote the best of their ability to securing the highest possible efficiency in the schools of Hollywood."

HOLLYWOOD NOTES.

Frank Tyrell was the principal speaker at the closing meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association of the Fremont school last evening. There was a talk by Mrs. Noble on the work and motive of the organization; a report on the recent Congress of Mothers by Mrs. Ledyard of Los Angeles; vocal solos by Miss Madge Stephens, Mrs. Gates and Miss Wilson; a flower drill and musical numbers by pupils of the school.

The junior class of the High School was entertained at a "hard times party" last evening by Louise Haskell and Marguerite Burlingame at the home of the former at No. 668 Sunset boulevard.

The junior reception will be held at the High School on June 19, and on the following Sunday the annual class sermon will be preached to the graduates. The seniors will give their class play in the assembly hall on June 23, and on the evening of June 25 the commencement exercises will take place. Twenty-two will receive diplomas.

EXASPERATED RESIDENTS.

Palms's One Pump Disabled and Lawns and Gardens Drying up for Lack of Water.

PALMS, June 6.—The residents are exasperated because of the great inconvenience and distress resulting from the enforced shortage of water. It has been almost two weeks since the pump of the Cypress Water Company became fouled with sand and disabled. Upon this one pump the entire community is dependent for its domestic water supply. Lawns and gardens are burning up and everybody is disgruntled. An indignation meeting was held, which was largely attended, and property owners were anything but mild in their criticisms of what they term the mismanagement of the public-service company.

IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE.

An improvement committee was organized by the citizens whose homes are on the hill north of the Southern Pacific tracks at the home of M. W. Iles, who was elected secretary. The president is H. A. Winslow. An effort will also be made to open a road to the north by which Palms and Sawtelle will be brought in direct communication, and to secure the widening of the road leading through the viaduct.

TO BORE FOR OIL.

Oil prospectors have recently been looking over some of the syndicated hill lands of the Palms Land, Light and Water Company, with a view to the sinking of an experimental well. Experts say the indications are that the Beverly oil field dips in this direction.

ENTERTAIN OFFICERS.

Gayeties at Redondo During the Visit of the Warships at That Port.

REDONDO, June 6.—The officers of the three cruisers, West Virginia, Colorado and California, now in this port, were entertained by Manager Woollacott at Hotel Redondo this evening at dinner and dance. The ballroom was tastefully decorated with asparagus, fern and carnations. Among the guests who were present were Capt. and Mrs. McCartner of the West Virginia, Capt. Underwood of the Colorado and Mrs. Underwood, Capt. Cottman of the California and Mrs. Cottman, Lieuts. Morrison, Shirley, Gilmore, Stephenson and Shonerd, and the following civilians: Mr. and Mrs. Burnell, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Griffith, Dr. and Mrs. McLeish, Mrs. Seymour, Mrs. Frank Perry, Mrs. Seyler, Mrs. Paul Buckley, Misses Seymour, Alène McCarthy, Jane Buckley, Dorothy Woollacott, Bessie Woollacott, Peralto Rodgers and Eliz Cross of Los Angeles, and C. H. Burnett, Drs. Hancock and Morey of Redondo. The music was supplied by the band of the cruiser West Virginia.

The public ball at the Pavilion tonight was attended by several hundred of the men from the ships, and so far as enjoyment of the occasion is concerned, it was a repetition of last night's function given by the boys of the California, when the participants did not separate until daylight.

Liberty parties, numbering 200 men from each of the three ships in the harbor, were ashore today, and the larger proportion of them spent the day in Redondo. The Colorado sent a party to the rifle range this morning for practice, and several hours were spent at the target.

The baseball teams from the West Virginia and Colorado met at the local diamond for a match game this afternoon, in accordance with the plans heretofore made for a series of games between the various teams of Admiral Dayton's squadron. The boys from the West Virginia were not satisfied with the grounds, and the game was declared off. This was a great disappointment to a large number of spectators who had assembled to witness a game between the crack West Virginia team and the Colorado.

The ships were open to visitors today, and a considerable number availed themselves of the privilege. The ships will be open tomorrow also. They will sail Monday morning, and in all probability will not return to Redondo for two weeks.

ALHAMBRA.

ALHAMBRA, June 6.—At the home of her cousin, Mrs. H. E. de Nyse, on East Main street, Florence Wells was today the hostess at an informal gathering of her classmates from the Dobinson school. The afternoon's amusement was largely of a musical character. Numbers were rendered by Mrs. Wells and Miss Dempster. The guests were Misses Ruth Kellogg, Grace Hasemeier, Lillian Wade, Mae McFarland, Helen Tyler of Los Angeles, Irene Wady of Covina, Mrs. W. P. Keller, Mrs. A. B. Wells and Miss Bernice Dempster of Alhambra.

Hot Weather Troubles of the Over-Fat

The worst is that "smothering" sensation. This is so suggestive of apoplexy, last rites and undertakers that it gets on one's nerves.

When this worriment is added to the other hot weather troubles of the overfat, the question of reducing gets some serious consideration. Fat folks begin about like this: "Exercise overtaxes the heart—dieting (especially dieting the liquids) is impossible—and the so-called remedies usually ruin the stomach. To adopt any one of these would simply add to my present distress." That is the way most fat folks reason. Nothing comes of it.

Still relief from one's excess flesh troubles can be gained only by reducing. But how?

Well, here is the information desired—and it is "straight" information, too. Do you want to reduce a pound a day—without exercising, dieting, stomach distress or the formation of wrinkles? Nothing easier, believe it or not. Simply ask your druggist (or write the Marmola Co., Detroit) for a seventy-five cent case of Marmola Prescription Tablets.

He will give you enough tablets for that amount to last quite a while. Take them as he directs daily and you will soon see the fat begin to slip off. Then continue until you are as slim as you want to be. That's all. There is no harm in them (they are made identically in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription) and they cost less by a half than any other remedy you could get.

MISCREANTS DRAW SPIKES.

Espee Engine Ditched Near High Grove—Ranchers Complain of Quail.

RIVERSIDE, June 6.—A Southern Pacific switch engine was ditched early this morning at Grand Terrace, a flag station about a mile east of High Grave, and train officials think that the rails were deliberately loosened by miscreants.

The accident happened near a deep cut, this side of the Santa Ana River. The spikes had been pulled from the rails for some distance. At one side of the track a Southern Pacific spike-puller was found. The work is believed to have been done after the passing of the Salt Lake east-bound overland at 9:55 o'clock last night. Between Riverside and Colton the Salt Lake uses the Espee tracks.

Conductor McIntosh and Engineer McGee, both of Riverside, who were on the ditched engine, escaped injury by jumping. There is no clew to the guilty parties.

QUAIL MENACE CROPS.

Complaint has been made to County Game Warden C. H. Vosburgh that quail are so numerous in the vicinity of Banning that they are a menace to the growing crops. Ranchers have asked for permission to shoot the birds. If the warden finds conditions as represented, he will write to the State Game and Fish Commissioner for a special permit allowing the farmers to shoot quail out of season.

STUDENTS IN MILLINERY.

DOUBLE WEDDING.

There was a double wedding this evening at the home of Mrs. E. A. Beadle at No. 158 East Tenth street. William T. Jackson of the Church of Christ, officiated, and only relatives of the principals and a few intimate friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Turley and Mr. and Mrs. Ball will live at the Riverside Hotel.

ORCHIDS ON DINNER TABLE.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin A. Chase gave a dinner at their home on Victoria Hill last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. W. Lionel Roberts. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. William Hinkle, Mrs. Alexander Strachan, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr, Miss Mary Baldwin, Foster Rockwell of New York and Frank Auten of Pasadena.

MRS. TAYLOR'S STATEMENT.

Mrs. Emma Taylor of Long Beach makes a statement concerning the article printed in last Wednesday's Times regarding the suit of Mrs. M. M. Fisher against her, which suit was decided by Superior Judge West in favor of Mrs. Fisher. She says that it was at Mrs. Fisher's request that she went to live with her, and at no time did Mrs. Fisher request her to wait till Mrs. Fisher's death to have the deed recorded, and that it was with her full knowledge and consent that it was recorded.

Mrs. Taylor says that she and Mrs. Fisher lived together for four months and parted as friends, and that it was after Mrs. Fisher had been on a visit to Canada that she would not stay with Mrs. Taylor, and said that Mrs. Taylor had been unkind to her. Mrs. Taylor says that in an effort to clear her name she expects to carry the case to a higher court.

In 1857 he went to Oregon territory and campaigned in favor of Statehood. Returning to Belleville, Ill., he purchased a newspaper, supported Stephen A. Douglas, and reported the Lincoln-Douglas debate. When Fort Sumpter was fired on, he entered the Union army as chaplain of the Thirtieth Illinois Infantry, afterward became a member of the staff of Gen. Grant, and was with him at Belmont, Fort Donelson, Shiloh, Iuka, Corinth, Vicksburg and Chattanooga.

George A. Pope.

STOCKTON, June 6.—George A. Pope, manager of the Bay Manufactory of the Ames-Harris-Neville Company, which removed its plant to Stockton after the San Francisco fire, died tonight after an illness of seven days from intestinal adhesion. He was operated upon by skilled surgeons Friday night, when it was feared he could not live, and that it was a desperate chance to take. He rallied, but the inflammation was such that he could not survive. He was popular in San Francisco and here, and had a wide circle of friends. Mr. Pope was a first cousin of Mrs. Robley D. Evans, wife of Rear-Admiral Evans, and a great grandson of Francis Scott Key, author of the American national song.

STANDARD IN MIDWAY.

Octopus Said to Have Bought Two and a Half Sections Out on Flat.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The report is current here tonight that the Standard Oil Company has purchased two sections and a half of Midway oil land, paying $108,000. It is said that the transaction was made by E. E. Jones, acting as a commissioner for the Standard, and that the lands secured are chiefly in sections 10 and 12, in 32-23, and the east half of section 14, which is owned by E. J. Boust of Fresno and the Fresno-Midway Oil and Land Company. The pipe line of the Standard into the Midway field crosses the above land. There are said to be 1600 acres involved, which makes the price per acre $67.50.

It is said that work will commence immediately on sixteen new wells on the above property. Arrangements have already been made for timber, and the rigs will be constructed as soon as the material is on the grounds. The belief is rife that the Standard intends to become an extensive producer on the West Side, and it is known that its agents have been active from Midway to Templor and Carissa during the past few months.

REPORTED BUY IS "WILDCAT."

If the above be true it means that the Standard is convinced that there is oil far out on the Midway flat as indicated by the Knob Hill's sensational strike. Section 10 is northwest by north of that find, an entire section intervening. While a little west of the Knob Hill it is, owing to the trend of development to the west, further east of any wells as far north as the Knob Hill is of those in its vicinity. Section is due east of 10, section 11 intervening, and it is not less than two miles from the nearest well.

If the Standard has really done as indicated it will be the purest kind of "wildcat" work, but the octopus is already doing that on a big scale in Monterey county in a region very remote from any commercial oil well.

TRAFFIC PROSPECTS BRIGHT.

President Ripley Says Low Point Is Near; Present Earnings Compare Favorably With Past.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] While railway earnings, compared with last year and in view of the increased fixed charges, indicate that further dividend reductions may be necessary, or at least some of the roads may be required to pass the dividend quarter, yet there is much in the statement made by President Ripley of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé that the low point in the dip will be reached this month or in July at the latest, and that with the crop movement the trend will be upward, as far as traffic returns are concerned.

As a matter of fact the earnings even at present for many roads do not compare unfavorably with those reported for the corresponding month of 1906, and in a large number they are larger than in 1904, when the requirements under the new accounting system installed last year are taken into consideration.

ELECTRICIANS STRIKE.

CHICAGO, June 6.—A strike of 400 electrical workers, the entire force employed by the West Park Board of Chicago, was ordered last night at a meeting of the Electrical Workes' District Council. The strike took effect today, and as a result practically 4000 electric lights in Humboldt, Garfield and Douglas parks, and the entire West Side boulevard system are dark.

The trouble arose over the employment of Oscar E. Carlstrom, a non-union man, by W. A. Jackson, who has the contract for rehanging electric lamps in the West Park and boulevards.

PREPARING WARSHIPS.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—The various battleships of the big fleet at present in port are rapidly being got into shape for their long voyage to the Antipodes.

The Connecticut, flagship, came off Hunter's Point dry dock last Thursday, and yesterday the Louisiana was towed into the big dock. The Louisiana will be cleaned and painted by her own crew, under the supervision of an officer from the Mare Island yard, as were the other vessels.

HIS BROTHER DEAD.

The police have received an inquiry from San Francisco regarding the whereabouts of W. W. Baylor, supposed to be employed in a hotel in this city. His brother, Frank Baylor, has died, and the members of his family are anxious to get into communication with him.

LOS ANGELES BECOMING FLIGHTIEST CITY AS WORLD CENTER OF AIRSHIP ACTIVITY.

Startling Trial Ascent to Be Attempted Here Soon by Inventor.

LOS ANGELES is suddenly springing into world-wide prominence as an airship center. The plans of its aeroplane inventors, which include a startling flight within three weeks, are attracting notice everywhere. There is an increasing belief that this city, owing to its exceptionally regular atmospheric conditions, will become the chief stage of airship activity, that government and private experimental stations will be established here, and that most of the American flying machines, at least, will be manufactured here. The recently-formed Aero Club will send out invitations this week to all the large clubs on the continent to send their representatives here to undertake flights. Here is the ideal spot in the universe for air-navigation trials and experiments.

Numbering among its inhabitants the man who claims to be father of airships in America and also the one who expects to be the pioneer maker of really practical aëroplanes, this city is certainly in the aëronautic class.

Dr. August Greth of No. 529 West Eighth street says he was the first man in the United States to make and navigate a steerable balloon, while Daniel J. Johnson of No. 448 South Johnson street expects to achieve fame with his heavier-than-air machine.

Each of these gentlemen, and several others, will perform trial trips in their own craft within a short time. Johnson will have first call on public attention. As a little surprise to the Wright brothers, who claim to have made long secret flights with their aëroplane, and to the public which so far has been rather skeptical concerning their assertions, the Angeleño announced yesterday that within three weeks a real flight will take place here. His assistant, A. F. Barra, will ascend in the "California Queen," a heavier-than-air flying machine, invented by Johnson.

"I think our flight will make the Wright brothers sit up and take notice," remarked Johnson as he sat on the slight seat of his aëroplane in the front yard of his residence yesterday, while a group of curious boys fingered the steel parts and listened, all ears, to his description of what, for want of a better name, he calls a dirigible aërodome.

"And here's the young fellow who'll make the first flight," he added, pointing to Barra, a young, sturdy-looking chap, as enthusiastic as any flying-machine man living, and that's saying a bookful.

SCARED? NOT HE.

"Scared? Not he. Why there's no possibility of an accident," Johnson said. "If anything goes wrong with the engine the craft become a parachute. It's perfectly safe."

"Well, how d'you make a start? Will you go to the top of a hill, or anything of that sort?"

A hearty laugh, entirely good-natured, was Johnson's preliminary to the answer. "We don't need a track, a hill or anything of the kind. We fly."

"We fly." He said it just as naturally as he might remark that he gas going to the next corner to take a Main-street car.

"The machine lifts right up when the propeller starts; like a bird," he went on.

The inventor has been fifteen years working on models. He is absolutely certain he's got the right machine now. Of course it has its secrets. For that reason it has been built at night, in a tightly-locked shed at the back of his house. There he and Barra have toiled for months past, completing what they are absolutely certain will prove the first successful aëroplane ever shown on the Pacific Coast by Pacific Coast inventors.

"After fifteen years I've found what I wanted," he continued, as one who says the final word. "We tried a model, eight feet in diameter, right on this street in windy weather, and it was perfectly satisfactory."

The machine is, Los Angeles built, by Los Angeles men, but they call it the "California Queen" so that the whole State may share in the glory they expect to come to it by means of the flight they will take in this city before June melts into July.

While Johnson was showing it, M. P. Dodge, treasurer of the Aëro Club of California, recently organized here, joined in with expressions of his great belief in the machine.

SURE OF SUCCESS.

"If that isn't a success, then I don't know anything," ejaculated Dodge. He is the "angel" of the local airship inventor. He's a pretty substantial one, both physically and financially. He has visions of becoming more substantial still when the Johnson flying machine shall be the ordinary means of conveyance between all parts of the country.

"What's the motive power?" he was asked.

"Steam, and there's the engine." He pointed to one so small that the tyro might be forgiven for asking the question, even with the engine staring him right in the face. "Equipped it won't weigh more than twenty-five pounds."

"It's a one-cylinder engine, and the propeller will hit the air, piston travel, 22,000 feet a second," burst in Johnson. "Oh, I know the fellows won't believe it," he added, "but it's a fact."

Johnson is full of facts. Behind that great forehead of his, typical of the inventor, he has them stored away by the thousand, all neatly labeled in the brain cells.

Dodge was inclied to take the patent attorney's advice and shut up like a clam on details. Johnson was not averse to talking, but it will be noted that he gave nothing away which any rival might take advantage of. When it comes to a heavier-than-air machine, Johnson is convinced he knows how. That's why Los Angeles will be treated to a sight of one flying with a man at the wheel, inside of three weeks.

The inventor went on to talk about thrusting power ahead 160 pounds, holding equilibrium fore and aft, three tail wheels, the capacity of the little boiler which sits right in front of

WORKING GIRL'S STORY.

SIX DOLLARS TO LIVE ON.

Los Angeles Young Woman's Way of Doing It.

Has Only That Amount for the Whole Week.

By Figuring Closely Makes It Pay Expenses.

BY HELEN Z. VANCE.

Miss Helen Z. Vance, who tells how she manages to live on six dollars a week.

I have drifted to my industrial level—$6 a week.

It's a difficult current to drift in, I find, without sinking. The good God only knows how long I shall be able to keep afloat.

Before the San Francisco earthquake, I was living alone in that city with my father who was in some sort of gas-engine business. My mother had died when I was a small child.

To tell you the honest truth, I don't know whether my father was well-to-do or not. I am ashamed to say so, now that I have been out in the world and know what it means to keep up the struggle. He always gave me what I wanted.

The morning of the earthquake we both rushed out from the house and wandered around the city with the other refugees. Our house burned with the rest. I managed to collect a few articles of wearing apparel and threw them into a little steamer trunk, which I dragged along the sidewalks. I suppose I intended to take my precious keepsakes of my girlhood. But I was so rattled that I tossed in an old tailor suit that I didn't want. When I came to open the trunk the day after the fire, I cried with chagrin to see the common old things I had saved instead of my keepsakes.

How glad—how glad I am now that I saved those old useful things.

My father and I got separated during the flight from the fire. I wandered for days around the parks looking for him, but I never saw him again. I learned afterward from friends that he died from exhaustion and was buried as an unknown.

Joining a sort of pilgrimage of the refugees, I came to Los Angeles and have been here ever since.

My father's business was of course wiped out. From what I know about things now, I imagine that he had been drifting downhill commercially for a long time.

We refugees were treated very kindly here and some of the committee offered to help me find work. Of course I realized perfectly that I must find work right away.

They asked me what I would like to do and I answered recklessly "Stenography!"

I didn't know a typewriter when I saw one—well, hardly more than that, anyhow. I was always full of confidence as most people are who have always acted over a net. I thought I could manage to bluff it out until I learned how to typewrite.

You can imagine how I got through with such an attempt. I might as well have tried to give a violin recital without ever having seen a violin.

TRIED AGAIN.

Then I tried to be cashier in a café; but I couldn't make change and one Saturday night my accounts didn't balance; they never did balance, but this time it was so bad that they had to let me go.

I knew so many of the girls in society in Los Angeles that I couldn't bear to go behind a dry goods counter.

The end of it was, after trying one thing after another, I landed in a bindery, doing sorting work of the simplest kind at $6. I have enough sense of justice to admit that I am well paid. There is nothing to do but arrange pages. I am to get more pay when I am a more skillful worker.

I have been asked by The Times to state how I manage to live on this pittance.

In the beginning, I tried to rent a cheap room at a quiet hotel. It seemed a little less of a blow to my pride.

They gave me a little vile room, absolutely without light or ventilation, for $7 a month. I tried to keep up appearances, and tried to flatter myself that not every one in the hotel realized my situation. But of course they did. After a while it got to be sickening to me to sneak off from the rest of the people in the hotel and suddenly duck into my dreadful little Black Hole of Calcutta before any one could find the entrance to my burrow.

My blessed old tailor suit carried me through this trial, but it began to wear out, and I saw that I must adopt some other and more sensible manner of life.

TWO CLASSES.

Looking about me among the girls of my wage-earning capacity, I saw two classes.

One was represented by a little shop girl I knew. Her ideal in life was going to cheap, little low-brow "society" affairs. I found that she starved herself nearly to death for the sake of clothes. Of course, she couldn't really buy clothes. She got about ten yards of some thin stuff that passes for lawn, for which she paid 10 cents a yard. Of course, it wouldn't wash, and mussed with the first wearing. She never thought of sewing it. She pinned the thing together, and sallied forth to her "party."

The dress would only last a week or two. She would then throw it away and buy another. Reckless economy, but she was perfectly frank in saying that she wanted to be married. Well, she was married last week.

I decided to take pointers from a different kind of girl—one that I knew in the bindery. She lived with a girl friend and her mother, and they were kind enough to offer to take me in too, but I saw there wasn't room.

Under her guidance, I got a pleasant, sunny room on the hills, near the central part of town for $10 a month, where there would be no car fare to pay. I was so tired of that vile, little cavern that I felt that the room was worth anything. I told myself that I would economize on my living and eat little enough to make up for it. My friend was very enthusiastic over the room, and thought I had the right idea, and helped me fix it up with pictures from the illustrated magazine which I bought for the purpose at a second-hand book store for four for 5 cents.

But pretty soon I began to see that I couldn't stand the price; that it meant inevitable disaster, and I shuddered to think what else it might mean. I got into debt.

IN DEBT.

I say, "Got into debt;" I owed my friend $1. If you knew what it cost me to clear that trifling indebtedness, you would realize that it was for me a crushing handicap.

As soon as possible, I gave up my pretty little room and got into another for which I pay $6 a month.

After trying first one way and then another, I have reduced my expenses to a system somewhat like this:

AS TO FOOD.

I get my breakfast in my room. I have some sort of breakfast food and a cup of coffee. At first I tried chocolate; but to get chocolate that's fit to drink you have to use milk. I can drink coffee without milk. I heat it over a gas burner.

I don't know just what my breakfast costs. But I allow 10 cents for breakfast and incidentals. Under that head I place any little unavoidable expenses that may come during the day; sometimes it even rises to the luxury of a soda water.

My luncheon costs me 15 cents at a cafeteria. I could get a luncheon for 10, but as a cold, hard proposition of business, I find that it does not pay. I tried going without luncheon for a while, but I grew so weak that the men in the shop began to notice it. One of them—a big, gruff mechanic, began bringing enormous lunches and contriving to leave about half of them somwhere around my table. I couldn't stand pity like that, although it touched me deeply—and if he reads this, I hope he will understand that I understood and appreciated.

I put the price of a good luncheon over against the cost of a possible sickness, and saw that it actually pays to sustain yourself. For my 15 cents I am able to buy plenty of sustaining food.

Sometimes I get a meat order and bread and butter—sometimes a salad and bread and butter—sometimes the inevitable toast and tea so dear to the feminine heart.

For my dinner I allow myself another 15 cents. I dine sometimes in positive luxury by cutting down a few luncheons to 10 cents, and having a 25-cent dinner.

Thus it costs me $2.80 for my meals during the week. Taking out $1.50 for my room I am left $1.70 a week over my actual food and housing.

Out of this, I have to clothe myself and send out my laundry.

LAUNDRY A PROBLEM.

I had a terrible time learning how to economize in my laundry. It makes me shiver to think what my laundry must have cost in the old days.

I discovered that the way to do is to have it rough laundered; then I borrow an iron from the landlady and iron most of it myself. My stockings and handkerchiefs, of course, I wash myself. By this scheme, my laundry doesn't cost me more than 35 or 40 cents a week. Unnecessary to say, I aim to get clothes that don't have to be laundered very much.

When I first started, I used to get the very cheapest clothes that I could find. But I found it didn't pay. My cheap hat sagged into nothing in a few weeks and my clothes fairly tumbled to pieces.

Now I save up and get—not the cheapest. In the old days I would have laughed at what I call "expensive clothes" now. By watching bargain sales, I sometimes do well; but the trouble is, a girl without money isn't always able to take advantage of the sale. One thing is imperative; you musn't wait too long. To fall behind in your clothes and let them wear out is simply fatal because you come to pieces all at once then. You must keep up.

THE FORTY-NINE-CENT HAT.

I have bought a hat for 49 cents. It's a Merry Widow sailor. I am wearing it plain. When the Merry Widow goes so far out of style as to make me conspicuous I intend to shave off the brim and put on some trimming that I have picked up at a remnant sale.

I have a skirt of yellow brown that I paid $5 for. That took a great many times passing and repassing the store windows I can tell you. But I'm glad I bought it. It's worth a dozen cheaper ones. I have small feet and pay $1 to $1.50 for sample shoes. A tan jacket to go with my skirt cost me $5. Shirt waists I use to buy ready-made at sales, but now I buy a sort of cotton crepe that I can launder myself and make the shirt waists myself.

On very rare occasions I manage to smuggle in a little excursion.

I went to see John Drew and his company. Dear Little Billie Burke! I don't repent my extravagance. My gallery seat gave my finances a fearful shock; but it gave me something to sustain myself on. It lifted me out of the world of breakfast foods and cafeterias; it was just as though I had found a helpful, sweet friend who whispered things to me when I was down hearted and discouraged. Ever since then, while I am going to sleep in my cheap little room, the words of the play come stealing over me and little Billie Burke seems to lift me out of the ruck of my deadly monotonous life.

I remember once reading how the college settlement girls in Chicago raised a sum of money to help a starving Italian family; and the starving Italians took the money and all went to the circus. Well, I understand now. They needed the circus more than they needed the food. You get to a certain place where you have to have an uplift.

I could cut out my luncheon again and eat the remnants the bindery man left for me, but I couldn't get along without my memory of that play.

Mathematical Mind Is Best.

A literary worker who wished to do a large amount of reading by proxy advertised for an assistant capable of digesting the contents of a tremendous quantity of books in a very short while. While weighing each applicant's qualifications for rapid, assimilative reading he inquired carefully into his mathematical acquirements. He finally chose the man who was most skillful at untangling arithmetical problems.

"On the surface that seems an unnecessary accomplishment in this case," he said, "but experience has taught me that anybody who is expert in figures can read any kind of literature put before him with greater accuracy and speed than the person lacking in mathematical acumen."—[New York Times.

SCHOLARSHIP CONTEST FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Eighth Annual Campaign to Open. A Chance to Earn an Education and Valuable Cash Prizes—Who Will Enter the Race?

WE'RE off again! Now for a great race! For the eighth consecutive year The Times announces its annual scholarship contest. In accordance with its usual custom, scholarships, cash prizes and incidental cash commissions amounting to several thousand dollars will be distributed among contestants making the largest showing in votes and points.

The contest will be conducted along the same general lines as heretofore, with such additions in scholarships and awards as the widening field justifies, and with such improvement in operation and detail as experience gives.

During the past seven years since these contests were inaugurated by The Times, hundreds of deserving young people throughout Southern California have secured an education by means of the valuable scholarships offered in the best private schools and colleges in the whole Southwest. The cash prizes afford incidental expenses while attending school, and The Times points with pride to scores of bright, alert boys and girls who have worked their way through school and today occupy positions of trust made possible by this opportunity for an education.

Young people between the ages of 12 and 21 years, in any part of the Great Southwest, are eligible to competition, save only members of the families of Times employés, who are debarred. Patrons of The Times may nominate candidates by filling out the application blank printed below and forwarding same to the scholarship manager. Detailed information will be furnished on application at The Times office.

For several weeks the eyes of scores of boys and girls have eagerly searched the columns of The Times for the announcement of its annual scholarship contest. Many of last year's contestants have telephoned inquiries, impatient to know the opening date for the great campaign, which has come to be one of the most popular features of The Times.

Well, boys and girls, you may begin filling your applications at once for a place in the race which this year promises to eclipse all predecessors. There will be greater inducement in the way of scholarships and prizes, and, it is believed, a larger list of contestants than ever before.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.

Previous contestants well understand that a Times scholarship contest means work—and lots of it—but the class of boys and girls who enter are so in earnest to obtain an education that they are willing to toil and sacrifice that they may win, knowing they will be richly repaid.

What boy or girl of 15 can earn during the summer vacation an average of $25 per week? Many of them do this every summer in the scholarship contest. In some cases the cash prize and incidental commissions alone amount to this aside from the scholarship itself. It is an excellent business proposition and, for ten weeks of work, offers unexcelled inducement. The valuable scholarships and money prizes are not given away indiscriminately or through favoritism, but to the boys and girls who honestly compete in a contest in which services performed in behalf of The Times will be the means of determining the awards.

BIGGEST EVER.

Indications point to the biggest and best contest of all. The contest last year touched the high-water mark.

Some of the contestants earned enough in cash commissions to pay their incidental expenses through college. The cash prizes this time will approximate $1000, and the scholarships will include tuition in the leading educational institutions of the Southwest. Further details will be published from time to time between now and the opening of the contest. Send in your applications, boys and girls. Address Scholarship Manager, Times Office.

LAWSUIT OF LARGE DIMENSIONS NOW EXPECTED.

President of Shannon Company Claims Rights to Keystone Concern's Mine, Although Another Man Has Paid Mortgage on It—Father's Complaint Dismissed.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

GLOBE (Ariz.) June 5.—N. L. Amster of Boston, president of the Shannon Copper Company, has hastened across the continent to investigate the turning down of a contract he thought he had made with the stockholders of the Keystone Copper Company, for their mine near Globe. He asserts that he has right to the property, despite the later deal made with J. B. Newman of Globe, and there is a prospect of a lawsuit of large dimensions. Mr. Amster says he only awaited the receipt of an abstract of title to the property before paying off the Keystone mortgage, as specified in his alleged agreement with the company. Newman has paid this mortgage, which was the sum of $65,000 and was held by the Old Dominion company. The latest trouble over the property was an attachment levy for $5179, due on an overdraft to the Old Dominion Commercial Company, which was nervous because of the impending arrival of Amster. The amount was paid and the attachment released.

About a year ago a little girl, Katie Salladay, was killed by being caught by the water of a small flume at the Old Dominion works and thrown over the edge of a slag dump to the creek bed below. The father sued the company for $25,000 damages. The case has just been decided in favor of the company, Judge Nave dismissing the complaint on the ground that sufficient grounds for action had not been shown. An appeal will be taken.

LIFE SENTENCE.

On March 4, a resident of Globe, James Walters, attempted the assassination of Policeman Lowthian in the office of the City Marshal. By the bravery of Lowthian's sister, Walters' aim was distracted till Lowthian reached a revolver. Both the officer and his assailant were wounded, the latter seriously. He recovered, however, was tried at the recent term of court and received a sentence of imprisonment for life. The severity of the sentence has won only approval from the townspeople.

FRANTIC EFFORTS TO ESCAPE.

Roadmaster Godso of the Gila Valley Railroad, had a narrow escape a few days ago on a south-bound train, which was boarded by a Mexican section foreman, who sought Godso's life for some imagined wrong. In the same car was the superintendent of the road, C. C. Mallard, who grappled with the crazed Mexican and tore from his grasp a revolver which he had drawn. All the other passengers were jammed in the doorway at the farther end of the car, making frantic efforts to escape.

A couple of years ago a laborer, Ramos Lasaro, was severely injured in a cave-in at the Saddle Mountain mine at Christmas, in the extreme southern end of Gila county. Since that time he has been an inmate of the Maricopa County Hospital at Phoenix, suffering from a broken back. It appears that the Supervisors at Phoenix have just discovered that Christmas is in Gila county, for they have shipped Lasaro to Globe, as a charge upon this county.

COMPROMISE EFFECTED.

The case of the United States against the Arizona Copper Company of Clifton, charged with having imported four contract laborers from Scotland, in defiance of the immigration laws, has been compromised in the United States Court here, the company paying a fine of $2000 and costs. The usual fine is $1000 for each offense.

As soon as the city authorities receive a report from Engineer Olmstead of Los Angeles, an election is to be ordered on the issue of bonds for the installation of a local sewerage system. Another improvement ordered is a district fire-alarm system. The new City Council has elected Neil M. Alred as City Attorney.

PUZZLING NAME.

Globe's new social organization has been named the "Sahuaro Club." There was tribulation over the proper spelling of the name, the first resolution specifying it as "Sahura." Better authority gave it as "Saguara" and "Sahuara," meaning the giant cactus of the Southwest. The spelling finally determined upon has the authority of the "Sahuaro Club" of Safford, a woman's organization. M. McCarthy has been elected president of the local club and G. A. Mauk, secretary.

RUN ON NAVELS.

UNPRECEDENTED ORANGE DEMAND.

PRICES AS HIGH AS OBTAIN AT CHRISTMAS TIME.

Such Sales as Have Taken Place in Past Two Weeks not Before Known at This Season in History of Gotham Market—Not Enough Lemons.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 2.—A holiday market prevailed in oranges throughout the week, as during the previous week. There has never been a summer season which has equaled that of the past two weeks. Prices as high as those that obtained at Christmas have prevailed, showing the eagerness of the people for California fruit.

Day after day bidders force up the price on navels. The stock of best grades is kept well cleaned up, and those which do not rank so high are bringing unusually high figures in consequence.

D. D. Black, agent for the exchange, is enthusiastic over the present situation, and thinks that this extra demand and the high prices will continue during the Valencias season. He remarked: "Navels are wanted by every one this year who ever wanted an orange of any sort, and people are paying the price, notwithstanding the alleged hard times. The present situation is largely due to the excellent quality of the western fruit, and the care with which the packing is done."

This seems to be the opinion of all experts in the business. They are certain that the excellent work at the other end of the line has encouraged buyers to take hold, secure in the knowledge that there will be no bad stock. Box after box has been opened which had not a speck in them. Frequently the oranges will keep for two weeks outside of storage before they show any signs of decay. The retailer can afford to buy liberally, for his losses are not serious, and his profits are sure.

M. Hicks & Sons, the well-known fancy fruit firm of upper Broadway, are making a feature of the navel orange this year. Some of their displays are marvels of beauty and attract a great deal of attention. The class of trade which goes to that store doesn't care so much for the eating qualities as for the decorative features. This year the size and color combine to make the navel most artistic. A centerpiece of oranges is the "proper thing" at a fashionable dinner now.

Other towns report greatly increased business and send buyers here for every auction.

The supply of California lemons is short. Higher prices have been obtainable at interior markets and western growers have shipped their fruit to those. The warm weather of the past two weeks has stimulated the demand for lemons, and the supply of Californias has been totally inadequate to satisfy the demand.

WHAT'S SAID IN SAN FRANCISCO.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 5.—Despite the fact that there has been considerable wind in this neighborhood the past month Prof. McAdie, director of the United States Weather Bureau says that only 6569 miles of breeze passed our skyline in May. Any citizen dissatisfied with this moderate amount of atmosphere is at liberty to move to Point Reyes where there was 28,465 miles.

Brotherly Love.

It is an easy thing to tell your troubles to a policeman, but he may afford scant sympathy when he has troubles of his own. Just at present our patrolmen have more than their share of care. One of their number has been killed while defending the Barbary Coast and twin brothers alike as two peas have been arrested for the crime. Each thug accuses the other and the harassed fly cops may impartially hang them both.

No Grudge.

Three citizens who had suffered from bank failures were promptly excused as talesmen in the trial of Banker Bartnett. They had no particular grudge against the defendant but his lawyer did not like the way they tied their neckties so he excused them.

Plenary Praise.

It is somewhat mortifying to a big cosmopolitan city like this to have Abe Ruef stand up in the Police Court and say that Henry Ach is the only lawyer he could trust with his defense. Ach is in the East on a trip of indefinite duration, but when he hears of his client's plight he will no doubt hasten back greatly gratified with so plenary a recommendation.

Bold Canter.

Public spirited ladies of the Outdoor Art League are looking askance at Supervisor Canter, chairman of the Street Committee. In promising them to change the name of Dupont Street to Grant avenue, he said in a fatherly way, "Now run along ladies, and dig up something else to fuss over."

Art is Long.

Artist E. A. Burbank has been so busy, the last five years, painting Indian heads and negro children and getting them exhibited in the Paris salon, that he has neglected to live with his wife. While she is pleased with his fame as a painter she is not pleased with his peculiar ideas of matrimony and she has divorced him rather than take chances on the next five years.

Before and After.

If Mrs. Joseph O'Brien is to be believed, Capt. O'Brien, her husband, thought more of his pretty stenographer than of his wife. The lady swears she heard the typewriter order the Captain to fetch a telephone book and the command was obeyed. At dinner. Mr. O'Brien ordered him to pass her a fork and she says he threw a plate at her, hence her divorce suit.

Golden Hopes.

The prune crop promises to be a little shy this year, but there are other golden opportunities to recoup, as twenty-five financiers all in a bunch, have just arrived, looking for investments. They came from the East in a special Pullman with an eye on some millions of newly issued gas bonds, but before they leave they may take a favorable squint at the $18,000,000 of municipal securities.

Vengeful Japs.

China's boycott of Japan's wares is being met by local Japanese in an odd way. The vengeful sons of Nippon now refuse to patronize Chinese gambling houses, and if the exclusive resorts in the rear of Fillmore street cigar stores will refuse to admit them they plan to go into business on their own account.

BRIGHTER SIGNS.

Business is not what it was a year ago, not what it should be; but there are signs of improvement. There is less idle machinery in the country. That means fewer idle men. The increased number of persons earning a living is at once reflected in a larger demand at retail for all sorts of goods. This is shown in a nearer approach to the clearinghouse figures of this time last year. It is reflected, too, in a decline in business failure.

The crop year is taking pretty definite shape and reports are generally encouraging. Winter wheat shows a good promise, and spring wheat is generally satisfactory. The corn is mostly in. A great deal depends on the outcome of these crops. The country has had a long series of good crops. A poor yield of the principal staples, this year, would prolong present difficulties.

Another good sign is the offering of railroad bonds in large blocks. The money will be spent in new work, or in betterments of the old lines. This is as important, almost, as are the crops. A time of depression is a time of small consumption of all staples and a slow circulation of money. As consumption drops, more machinery is stopped and more persons go on the idle list, making bad worse. When the reaction takes place the course of affairs is all in the other direction. More men at work, more staples bought and used, more orders at the mills, machinery started, hands at work, more money in circulation, and things on the up grade again.

These signs are all apparent now, and with good fortune we shall see more of them. We would not advise any rash movement in business, but there is surely reason to take heart and hope.

HOW WOULD EXPERTS DO?

In the history of the country we have had in the cabinets of various Presidents business men and professional men filling the offices of Secretary of War and of the Navy, and these gentlemen generally have done this work well. To be sure, the President is commander-in-chief of the army and the navy, and many Presidents were civilians.

No President would think of appointing a soldier, a sailor or a manufacturer Attorney-General. That office must be filled by a lawyer. Neither would a President appoint a professor of Greek or a noted preacher Secretary of Agriculture.

How would it do to have a real sailor as Secretary of the Navy? Concede that this Cabinet officer is never called upon to do problems in mathematics as applied to navigation, and that he is not likely to be called upon to point a twelve-inch gun. Concede that the professional sailor or soldier is often weak in business administration and that a Cabinet officer should above all be strong on this point. Yet all soldiers are not weak here, nor are all sailors. If they are, the course of study at West Point and at Annapolis is faulty and should be corrected.

A lawyer as Secretary of the Navy is not so anomalous as an admiral as Attorney-General nor as a criminal lawyer would be wrestling with the portfolio of agriculture. In the Bureau of Commerce and Labor it is thought necessary to have an expert at the head.

Southern California has been the scene of two accidents which seem to point to laxity on the part of some one. The sad explosion on the Bennington at San Diego a few years ago and that on the Tennessee on Friday are said to have come from defects that care would have discovered. The Secretary of the Navy would not make the inspection in person, but is it not possible that a man skilled in discipline in the navy would maintain a higher standard and thus secure proper inspection at the hands of the persons in charge?

A practicing attorney, physician or man in any other purely professional pursuit is often deficient in practical affairs. A business man of broad views and experience would as a rule be much better in an administrative position.

"TICKLED TO DEATH."

A London dispatch says, "This phrase tells how the British public feel about the agreement for a two-cent postage rate between the United Kingdom and the United States."

A great many persons born in Merry England are now domiciled in the United States. Wales has sent us many of her sons who revere the memory of St. David (whoever he was) and who love a pungent leek, which introduces itself and needs no encyclopedic reference like the patron saint. Likewise we have our shrewd and thrifty friends from north of the Clyde, from the "banks and braes o' bonnie Doon," and from the highland hills. They come from John O'Groat's House, from Glasgow down the waters, from Ould Reekie, from the Trossachs where the Lady of the Lake once lived and loved, from bonnie Dundee whose bonnets were cast so gleefully in the air and from divers and sundry other places with their dells "where the bluebells they do blow," and from the hills all purple with heather. But we must cross the channel to the Green Isle of Erin to find the spot which sends us the great railroad builders and policemen of America.

Jefferson was Welsh; so was Monroe. Grant was Scotch; so is Andrew Carnegie. McKinley, Sheridan and Bishop Conaty come from Irish stock. Robley D. Evans would never have fought and "cussed" with anything like the grace he is noted for, but for the blood, nourished on the leek, in his veins.

In fifty years the Green Isle has sent broadcast over the earth some 5,000,000 of her sons and daughters. The boys were brave, the girls were fair. The United States got most of them. The fighting blood in Mr. Roosevelt comes from the Irish in him. It was no vain boast of Ireland conveyed in those modest queries of her eloquent sons who asked in an eloquent speech to Americans at a St. Patrick's Day assembly: "Who built your railroads? Who fought your battles? Who cut down your woods? Who subdued your farms? Who filled your jails?" And the answer was in thunder tones, "The Irish! The Irish!" Of course they fill our jails. The police force in all cities are Irish for the most part, and do not the police fill the jails? The question is respectfully referred to Michael O'Hallaran. Sure Mike!

The people from Great Britain and Ireland resident in America take less interest in penny postage than those who remain at home. The rate between countries is now five cents here, or twopence half-penny there. It is to be two cents. The members of the police force in Los Angeles care little about three cents once or twice a year. But on the "auld sod," in Glasgow, in London on the East Side, and down in Wales in the places spelled with nineteen consonants and one short vowel, "three hapenny" is something worth thinking about.

FAIR PLAY IN POLITICS.

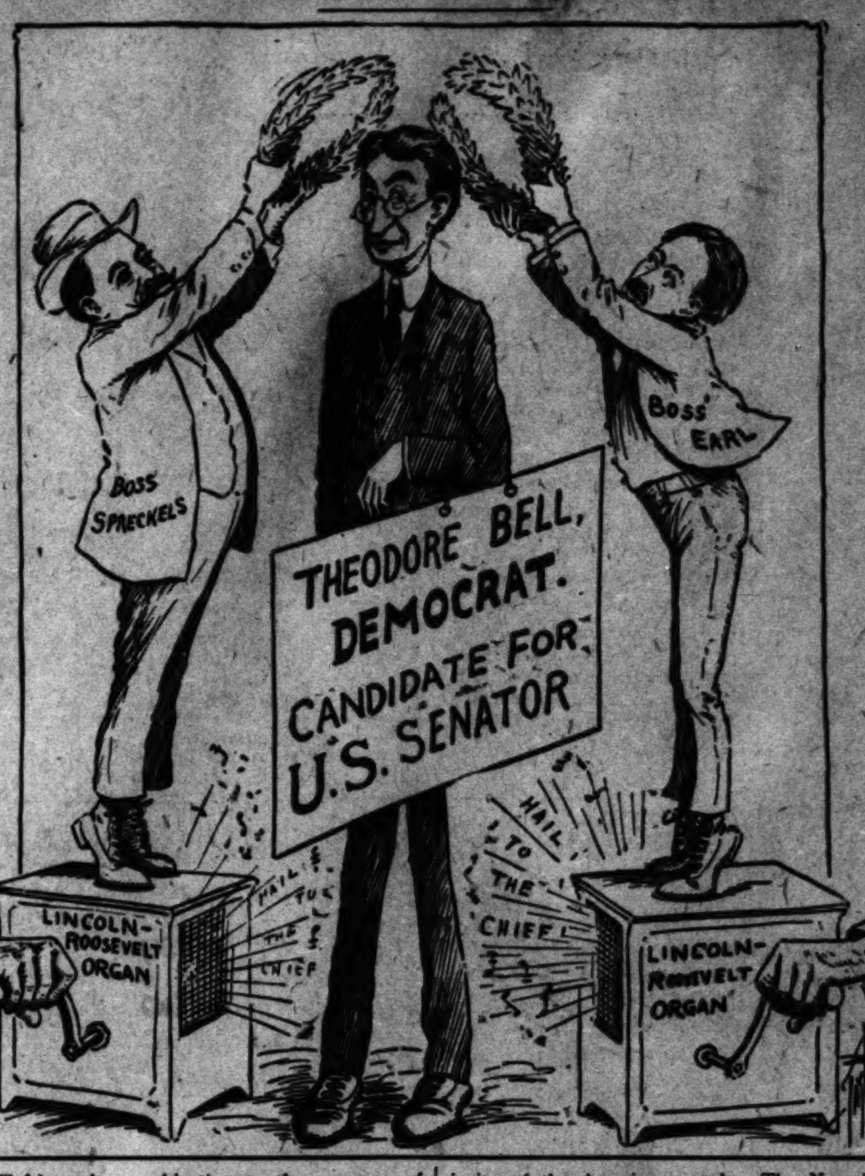
The tyro politicians in California, so prone to resort to sharp tricks, should learn a lesson from the Republican National Committee, sitting in Chicago, experts at the game who have learned to play fair.

Mr. Hitchcock surely made a shrewd turn when he got into the meetings of this committee several active workers for Secretary Taft as proxies from far-away Alaska and the Philippines. But it was fair politics because it followed the immemorial custom of the party. The rule is that any committeeman may be represented by a proxy held by any member of the party. The rule is of long standing and the committee (alleged to be against Mr. Taft) made no objection to the presence of these Taft managers holding these proxies.

The clique of the Holiness League at Sacramento would have been glad to use this privilege if it had been for their advantage, but how they would have waked the echoes along the tops of the Sierras if the regulars had tried the move! They play the slugster politics; the national committeemen play fair.

By the way, why is it that self-ordained reformers are so prone to think a thing is all right if their side does it, and so very, very wrong if the same thing is done by those whom they oppose?

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?



ROOM FOR THE SOUL.

The real estate men all over the country, and especially the real estate men of California, report an increasing demand for country property. The cause is not altogether found in business and financial conditions, although country property is easily made profitable. The real cause lies in the awakening of the souls of men. At last are they tiring of the superficial life of the cities.

For years past the trend has been in an exactly opposite direction. The country was drained to feed the cities. Young men were overcome with a positive mania to live in towns, and the larger the towns the better it pleased them. Fathers saw both their boys and girls stealing away from the farms to take up life in crowded communities to eke out bare existences as clerks in stores and offices rather than dwell in comfort in the free and healthful open spaces of rural settlements.

But now it is the other way. You talk to a man in an office in a big city skyscraper and you will find that he is dreaming of a place of his own in the country—a nice little farm of ten acres if he thinks he cannot get more. On a holiday he runs out to the foothills or the plains and spends his breathing spell among the birds and bees, scheming how he may turn some waste into a garden that shall have a bungalow within it for himself and his little brood.

How it lifts the heart to think that a change like this has come over the dreams of the people! It means that the souls of men are again seeking their lost wings. It means that we shall have a new race nearer like the old which gave us poets, and red-cheeked, pleasant men, happy women and rosy children. It means that there will be fewer parasites on the human organization, more producers, less doctor bills and a reacquired sanity of life. Room for the soul!

NO WILD-CAT MONEY.

Some wiseacres of the new type, teachers in finance who never had a bank account, got a glimpse into the Vreeland act and set up a shout that there is no clause in it forbidding banks to issue scrip as in the recent flurry.

The bankers who know what they are talking about come to our rescue and point out that the general banking laws forbid this sort of issue, that the issues of last fall were all illegal, and only the absence of a law like this passed last week restrained the Treasury Department from taking the matter in hand.

In the event of another panic (a thing not likely to come in several years) with the new law in force the treasury would at once step in and suppress any issue of shinplasters.

NOT TOO FAST.

Some of the La Follette sort of Republicans, gathering at Chicago, are anxious about the tariff and other planks in the platform. They are afraid that if any one not of the Oklahoma stripe has a hand in selecting the timber there will not be enough "Oregon" among the planks.

Senator La Follette modestly thinks he is the Republican party, and then some. But he and his following must reflect that neither he alone, nor he with their assistance, will be able to vote early and often enough to elect the Secretary of War to office. All kinds and conditions of Republicans will be needed at the polls in November.

Platforms are always compromises, and all should have a say about the expression in which the principles shall be set forth. If Mr. La Follette or his admirers should do the whole job, it would save the Denver convention much trouble. All Mr. Bryan's friends would have to do would be to pass a single resolution: "We heartily endorse every statement in the Republican platform promulgated at Chicago." There are a lot of self-esteemed political would-be leaders who think that sort of politics would make Mr. Taft's election sure. There are some of us who demur to this, and we think the American people would sustain the demurrer.

The Republican party is not of yesterday. Its principles are rooted in the hearts of a large majority of the American people. The New Lights have not strength enough to uproot them.

Whoever makes the platform, it should be Republican in all its parts. To make a different one would be to undo the party.

GET RICH QUICK.

As a nation we are certainly getting rich quick.

In ten years, 1897-1907, the railroad mileage grew from 184,000 to 230,000 miles, the railroad capital from $10,635,000,000 to $15,000,000,000, population from about 71,000,000 to 85,000,000, manufactures in value from $12,000,000,000 to $15,000,000,000, exports from $1,051,000,000 to $1,881,000,000, imports from $764,000,000 to $1,434,000,000, lumber cut from $400,000,000 to $700,000,000, mineral output from $647,000,000 to $1,902,000,000, farm products from $3,500,000,000 to $7,000,000,000.

In percentages the increase in railroad mileage was 24, in railroad capital 41, in population 20, in manufactures 25, exports 79, imports 87.7, lumber cut 75, mineral values 194, farm products 100. We grew faster in all development than in population, in some things twice, three times, four times, five times to eight times. After population railroad extension shows the slowest growth, mineral production the greatest.

As a sample of how internal trade grew the freight passing through the Soo canal is taken. The increase was from 18,983,000 tons to 58,217,000, or 206.6 per cent. If this is a fair exponent of this growth, then in this the highest percentage was reached.

Talk of the rich growing richer! Why, all the country grew richer in these ten years. Never before in the history of mankind was there development of material wealth on a scale like this!

"LIBERTY UNDER LAW."

In view of the prominence of industrial questions in the public mind in these days, there is special timeliness in the address of citizens to Gen. Harrison Gray Otis, in 1903, and his response thereto, republished on page 12, part IV, of this issue. The response was to a numerously-signed paper presented by citizens of Los Angeles thanking the editor of The Times for the successful stand for industrial freedom maintained by him. The response dwells on the vital necessity of preserving liberty under the law in our industrial life, of the preciousness of the equal right of all to labor and of the evils of strikes, boycotts and industrial turmoil. The views expressed have as much significance today as they had in 1903.

HIS WAYS.

[From "California: Where Sets the Sun."]

God's ways are not our ways, and dim and dark
Sometimes they seem, and sorrow-filled,
As if all joy had died, and Grief distilled
Her tears in liquid fire. Then, then, O hark!
God speaks! Be not afraid, my child,
Though tempests rave and storms break wild;
For I am near, behind and sullen dark,
My hand upon the helm, I guide thy bark.

ELIZA A. OTIS.

HOROSCOPE.

Sunday, June 7, 1908.

They who throw dice with fortune may behold
How into dross she changes ruddy gold.

Venus in Gemini, Mercury on his greatest elongation eastward and in ecliptic conjunction with Mars, and Venus with Uranus conjoined in benefic aspect with the moon, mark this 159th day of the year.

A period of full promise for vigorous endeavor and purposeful deeds, whether the footsteps of the seeker are guided along accustomed paths or force a new trail into strange and unaccustomed places.

In the coming days there will be a sign set for the wise to read. They will be wise who refrain from gaming with "the uncast dice of the near future."

The ways of commerce and barter in that which may be held and used, are unaffected by the omen. Deal with others freely, buy, sell, ask favors or concessions, and push all affairs, particularly before 3 p.m.

Courtship and weddings are under a prosperous stellar configuration. The ways of women fall in pleasant places and all their concerns, particularly those pertaining to beauty and art, are under good influences.

The man with this birthdate may expect successful issues to business undertakings, but he is threatened with quarrels that may lead to a lawsuit.

The girl born this day will be inclined to sharpness of temper, but her impulses will be good and culture may guide her to a high place.

The boy born today must be guarded against danger from the water. He should be taught to swim at an early age. He will succeed in business and attain distinction.

are being passed against allowing the police to photograph criminals until they are actually convicted.

Putting aside all question of kindness and charity and coming down to a cold proposition of business, this eternal branding of a criminal is all to the bad. Costs money. It's this kind of business that makes crime a militant trade.

Bloodless Heroines.

The women of some of the Confederate societies have arranged to make a change in the words of Dixie. They have inserted some bloodthirsty language about "lost causes" and "patriots," etc., etc.

The men who did the fighting in the war are satisfied with the same old words.

These belligerent women's patriot clubs are about as funny as the recent attempt of the Evening Express to "throw light" on the Sioux wars.

It's certainly a green light—in the latter case.

Slandering Gen. Custer.

Poor old Custer!

E. Tobias Earl, after all these years, has published the cruelest slander that I have read in regard to the slaughter of the ill-fated Seventh Cavalry at the Little Big Horn.

As long as anybody remains who knew Custer, the squabble will rage as to the blame his memory is to bear.

But no one before has ever charged that "Old Curly" ran away from the battle field. In the Reno court-martial that straw was pretty thoroughly thrashed out and every western historian since has had a whack at it. To give publicity to this heartless slander, voiced by some old wind bag trying to advertise his theatrical show, was a vicious act of cruelty.

The only saving clause is that every one who has the slightest information on American history saw at once that Earl's story contained hardly a true statement from start to finish.

THE LANCER.

Memory's Ghost.

Strange apparition of a vagrant hour,
Thou comest as a mist from o'er the sea—
Dim fashioned—gliding silently,
To burst the bud of memory into flower.
Some passing soul has given thee for dower
A cunning hand with which to touch the heart—
Thrilling afresh the life-blood with thy power
Till wounds, forgotten, with new anguish smart.
Thou hast no season—neither night nor day
Can speak thine absence, truly, from our side;
At any step along our fleeting way
The mocking shadows of thy presence glide.
Face unto face, we mutely stand and gaze,
Knowing thee well—thou ghost of bygone days.

NATURE TO SET SCENES FOR PASTORAL PLAYS.

Rosetta Ashton,
as Mustardseed in "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The entertainment to be given by the Civic Association to secure funds for the carrying on of the work promises to be one of the most artistic events of the season, as well as one of the most important socially. On Friday evening "A Midsummer Night's Dream" will be presented and on Saturday afternoon "As You Like It."

The outdoor theater for these productions will be at Singleton Court on Adams street. Nature has already proved herself an excellent scene setter there, but her touches of beauty are to be enhanced and multiplied by the hand of man.

Percival Aylmer is directing the rehearsals of the professionals and amateurs who are to take part and he is ably backed by Stanley DeWolf and A. H. Lewis, who will be the stage managers.

A very pretty feature of a "Midsummer Night's Dream" will be the dancing of thirty little girls. The solo dancers will be Aileen Chase and June Kilpatrick. The music will be furnished by an orchestra under the direction of Miss Gertrude Barrett. In "As You Like It" the Philharmonic Quartette will sing.

The casts in full are as follows:

"MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM."

Theseus, Duke of Athens, Nigel de Brulier; Egeus, father to Hermia, F. Eaton; Lysander, William Stoner; Demetrius, Jack Belgrave; Philostrate, master of revels, Henry Clay; Quince, a carpenter, Stanley DeWolfe; Sung, a joiner, Henry Lewis; Bottom, a weaver, Percival Aylmer; Flute, a bellows-mender, Wayland Trask; Snout, a tinker, Charles Chamberlain; Staveling, a tailor, James M. ANGEL CITY IS FLYING.

the operator, and all sorts of other technical details. The general public doesn't care a continental about these. What it wants is to see the thing fly. Johnson, materially assisted by Barra, will comply with the "show me" request.

It was suggested that the flight might be undertaken somewhere out on the desert.

"Not with me," says Johnson. "Los Angeles is the place for us, eh Barra?"

"You bet," came from the hitherto silent young chap who will do the first up-in-the-air performance of any local man, save Dr. Greth.

THIS, THE IDEAL PLACE.

"This is the ideal place for conducting experiments in the air," proceeded the inventor, unconsciously repeating the words of Jacques Balsan, the distinguished French aëronaut, who visited this city some time ago. His verdict was: "There are few cross currents and the atmospheric conditions are regular for months at a time. Most of the air currents are from the ocean and the mountains are far enough away to allow of long flights."

There is no wood in this Johnson machine. The frame is all steel tubing, the machine complete will weigh 150 pounds, while Barra will add 130 pounds. The aërodome is made to comply with the conditions called for in the United States government test. These requirements are that the machine shall stay in the air one hour, make at least thirty-six miles an hour, return to the starting point, and be taken apart and loaded in a commissary wagon. In the Johnson machine the plane and everything fold up and can be taken apart and carried through a six-foot door.

FIRST IN AMERICA.

Dr. Greth, the father of airships in this country, flew his steerable balloon in San Francisco five years ago. It was called the "California Eagle," and was practically the model for the flotilla of dirigibles which the French government possesses today.

"The French saw the descriptions in the California papers of my ship and gave up the type they were using to adopt mine. I made numerous trips over the business section in San Francisco. The ship was 110 feet long and 35 feet wide, but as I could not find a light motor powerful enough to drive it continually, I had to store it and it was destroyed in the great fire," he said.

He intends to build a new model here. "I think this a much better climate," he said, "and I believe we shall have here the headquarters for all airship manufacturers as well as the principal experimental stations, both government and private. The splendid climatic conditions and other considerations make this undoubtedly the best place in the country."

Dr. Greth is working on a heavier-than-air machine as well as on his dirigible balloon, but he thinks it is too previous to think of having aëroplanes just yet. Not until light, powerful and reliable motors are secured can safety be assured, he declared. He is of the opinion that the world must wait for the heavier-than-air machines for many years. In the meantime the lighter-than-air will be able to perform most valuable work.

THE THREE STAGES.

The three stages of aërial navigation Dr. Greth describes thus: Dirigibles, which must hold first place for a long time yet; aëroplanes, and finally "we may all be able to put on wings and fly." With his dirigible balloon he can turn in twice its length, can circle and reverse at will, cut figures of eight and crosses, and can navigate it at its buoyant level, or above and below it. "There is no experiment about this," he observed, "I have done it."

Answering the oft-heard question, How will you go against the wind, he said: "We don't intend to. We will make use of the air currents. They go different ways. It is easy to find the one going the way we want to travel. These air currents seem to have been made by providence for the airships to take advantage of. Some are permanent and some are periodical. Meteorology is being increasingly studied by all governments and they tell us where to find the currents and how to make use of them.

"Of course we want to eliminate the gas bag as fast as possible, but at present it can't be done."

This latter view is shared, to a certain extent, by J. S. Zerbe, president of the Aëro Club of California. He has plans for an aëronef which can be launched into space vertically, at any angle or speed, at the will of the operator by mechanism inherent on the ship itself. In discussing airships from his point of view yesterday, he began with a statement of the problems, remarking:

STILL PRIMITIVE.

"A propeller, or lifting wheel, revolving in free air, will produce a thrust of not more than twenty pounds, approximately, for every horse power developed. Hence, to raise an airship by means of a lifting wheel mounted on a vertical shaft of the helicoptere type, requires that the horse power shall equal the weight, divided by twenty. With the aëroplane type, in order to effect a launching, it is necessary to mount the apparatus on wheels, and then by a running start with a speed of not less than twenty-seven feet per second, secure sufficient pressure on the aëroplane surface to be able to initiate flight. This is truly primitive, unmechanical, unscientific.

"The remarkable feature is that, if, for instance, an aëroplane is in horizontal translation, one-horse power, connected therewith, will readily sustain in space over 200 pounds. Now why this disparity in the utilization of power between an airship at rest and one in motion? Where is the lack of application or the loss in energy represented by ten times the difference in the two conditions?

WHAT HAS BEEN DONE.

"The types usually employed by inventors may be briefly summarized as of three kinds. First, orthogonal flight, where wings supply the ascensional means, and for translating horizontally. Second, fixed aëroplane surfaces with propellers for motive purposes; and, third, lifting wheels, like the helicoptere, for raising and translating. Not a single experimenter in the first and second class has, for an instant, considered apparently, the possibility of raising a ship into space by other means than by making a running or gliding start. The helicoptere does provide for a purely vertical ascent, but singularly enough, the only thing this type is available for is to raise the ship, but not to move it horizontally with any degree of speed or safety.

"Furthermore, the most absurd feature of all attempts has been in the direction of making an airship which would fly when once in space; but absolutely no scientific or truly mechanical attempt has been made to produce an airship which would ascend from a position of absolute rest to a condition of positive motion by means of its own mechanism—this ascensional means to be entirely free of launching ways, gliding or shooting structures, or wheels of some character which are set in motion to give the ship the initial impetus. Such a ship, therefore, when once in space, must constantly move at approximately the same speed at which the launching takes place, and it is impossible to poise it, because it has no means except motion to hold it in space.

WHAT IS NECESSARY.

"I formulate what are the essential elements in an airship, before describing the new principles which I have discovered in the science of aërodynamics. I enumerate them as follows:

"(1.) The ship must be able to raise itself from the ground with its own internal mechanism, at any desired angle, or speed, at the will of the operator, without a gliding or running start.

"(2.) The body should always be on an even keel, and not have its angle changed whatever the angle of flight may be.

"(3.) Its vertically and horizontally translatable mechanism must be the same, and not be composed of diverse mechanism.

"(4.) It should be so constructed that the aviator will be able to poise it in space for an indefinite period of time.

"(5.) Its entire aëroplane surface should be available for impact against the air for a purely vertical descent.

"(6.) It must have absolute stability in space, whether in vertical or horizontal motion.

"As heretofore stated, a propeller or lifting wheel revolving in air, produces a thrust of about twenty pounds for each horse power developed. The propeller, if on a horizontal shaft, thus sets in motion a horizontal column of air, the effective force of which, if utilized, is greater than the pull of the propeller which sets that air in motion. Every inventor, thus far, has utilized the pull on the shaft, but no one has ever suggested or intimated, in any manner, that the moving column of air thus displaced could be utilized to raise the airship into space. It is 'grinding with the water that has passed the wheel,' and all investigators have proceeded on the principle that the old adage is absolutely true.

"I propose to utilize not only the thrust of the propeller on its shaft, but also the lift of the horizontally-moving air column, so that the adjustable aëroplanes on the frame of the ship, receive not only the vertically-disposed lifting force of the mass of air set in motion, but also the horizontal pulling force of the shaft—the two forces thus acting conjointly being available to raise the ship into space without a running or gliding start, and without using any means outside of the mechanism on the ship itself.

"The arrangement of the propelling force and the aëroplanes is such, therefore, as to enable me to utilize the ascensional means for horizontally-translatable purposes, which is a great advantage, as diverse mechanism need not be employed for the two different directions or movements involved in attaining flight.

"Suction is a more powerful agent than compression. This is recognized in pneumatics. The bird owes more to the force of suction on the upper side of the wing than to compression on the under side, in soaring. But the bird's wing is not the most perfect structural expression. Man improves on nature's formation in every line of mechanism. The blunt and thick anterior portion of the wing is designed to split the air, and that, together with the curved formation, so divides the air that compression takes place below the wing, and rarefaction on the upper side. This rarefied area in the bird's wing extends only over the rear half, so that the active principle, suction, operates to hold the bird in space."

"Instead of having a blunt and rounded anterior edge, I provide an upwardly and rearwardly-projecting fin which, when the aëroplane is moving horizontally, provides for diverting the air upwardly, and thus makes an area of suction over the entire surface. Repeated tests show that this formation will increase the lifting power fully 25 per cent. while, astonishing as it may appear, the added resistance in the drift of the aëroplane is so small that it cannot be measured.

"According to the laws of fluid motion, an aëroplane, inclined at an angle of 15½ degrees, and moving at the rate of twenty miles per hour, or thirty feet per second, will have one pound pressure, or lift, on every square foot of surface. This is the speed required by every machine now in existence. If the speed is less the angle must be greater.

"It is obvious that if an aëroplane at rest is disposed at the same angle, and a horizontal column of air, moving at the same speed, twenty miles per hour, impinges against it, the lifting power will be the same.

"The illustrations show that I place the aëroplanes on a frame inclined from front to rear, so that they are disposed in a step-like formation, and that the propeller, or propellers, are placed at the forward end of the frame. All the aëroplanes are thus in the path of the column of air projected rearwardly thereby, and a propeller so mounted can move a column of air twenty, thirty, or forty feet per second.

PROVIDES STABILITY.

"The construction shown not only permits vertical ascent at any angle or speed, but it enables the aviator to hold the ship poised in space; and what is of the utmost importance, it provides fore and aft stability, which no structure of the bird formation, or

How Syracuse Woman Took Her Wrinkles Out In Three Nights

After Massage and Beauty Specialist Had Failed

"Made Me Look 20 Years Younger"

Says Cincinnati Lady Who Tried It—"Now Past 40, But My Complexion is Smoother and Better Than in Girlhood," Writes a Kentucky Woman, Who Used This Wonderful Process for Removing Wrinkles.

The Discoverer Offers to Give Particulars Free of Charge to All Who Write Her Within Next Ten Days——Exacts Promise of Secrecy—Treatment Very Simple and Absolutely Harmless—May Be Used Without the Knowledge of Your Most Intimate Friend.

Ever since woman's beauty held sway over man and brought her power, influence and wealth, she has sought a way to stay the processes of old age and banish deep lines and furrows from the brow.

Chemists, beauty doctors and skin specialists have for centuries past vainly tried to fathom the sealed secrets of nature, and find a way to keep the beauty of youth in a woman's face and form.

Harriett Meta was no exception to the general rule of women. Trouble and worry left their unsightly lines and marks upon her face. She saw the beauty of her youth giving way to the heavy imprints of coming age.

Her first resort was to facial massage, cold cream and steaming pots; then next to beauty specialists; but all in vain. The wrinkles seemed, if anything, to grow deeper and deeper. Massage even appeared to stretch the skin; more wrinkles came. She had spent all the money she could afford to spend, and was ready to give up in despair, when one day a friend made a happy suggestion.

This gave her a brilliant idea. She set to work on the thing herself, and after several months' hard labor and almost endless experimenting, she succeeded in producing a wrinkle remover, entirely different from anything she had seen or heard of. She tried it on herself, and lo and behold! it worked a wonderful transformation in a single night. She tried it a second night, and her wrinkles were practically gone. A third night—three treatments in all—and her wrinkles had entirely disappeared and her skin was soft, clear, rosy and smooth.

Many others also have used this remarkable process with wonderful results.

Mrs. Moran Elmer of New York City writes: "Your treatment removed my wrinkles in one night." Mrs. Turnham of Seattle, Wash., says: "My wrinkles are all gone; words cannot express how grateful I feel to you for what your treatment has done for me." Mrs. A. M. Brooks of Howe, Texas, writes: "Your treatment is the first I ever tried that really had the desired effect in banishing face lines. I am 68 years old and yet many say I do not look more than 45." Miss Gladys Desmond, the actress of Pittsburgh, Pa., says: "Your treatment made my wrinkles disappear in one night. It is certainly a Godsend to womankind. I tried cold cream, skin foods and various advertised wrinkle removers, but they all failed absolutely, and I confess I was very skeptical about your treatment, but in one night my skepticism had entirely vanished. When I looked at my face on the following morning and saw what a wonderful transformation had taken place I was sure at last I had found the right thing."

In speaking of her discovery, Miss Meta says: "Yes, I know it sounds too good to be true, but really I do not think removing wrinkles is half so wonderful as the telephone. Before the telephone was invented, it appeared ridiculous to think of talking from New York to Chicago.

"Those who have used cold creams, etc., cannot understand how my treatment can act quickly. Yet, after all, it is very simple, and I wonder that someone did not discover the process long ago. My letters from patients tell the whole story. Here is one from a lady who says my treatment made her look twenty years younger, also letters from many others. I do not see how anyone can doubt in the face of such testimony as this. I tried cold creams, massage, etc., myself, without results, and I can thoroughly sympathize with those who have tried to get rid of wrinkles, and I am truly glad that I feel I can now offer womankind a surer and shorter way.

"I will give further particulars to all those who write me within the next ten days. I must exact a promise of secrecy from every one for my own protection before I give full information—you can use my treatment on yourself in your own family, but you must not tell what it is to outsiders.

"I guarantee my treatment will in no way injure your skin. On the contrary, it will give it a soft, velvety feeling, and greatly improve your complexion, as well as banish unsightly lines and wrinkles. It takes only a few minutes to use it.

"Address Harriett Meta, Suite 526F, Syracuse, N. Y. I will send everything in plain sealed envelope, that our correspondence will be strictly private."

THE PUBLIC SERVICE

SUMMARY OF THE DAY.

Despite the protests of the "all-night" restaurant keepers, the rule forbidding the sale of liquor between 1 o'clock and 5 o'clock in the morning is now strictly inforced; today the Sunday-closing laws will be in full effect.

The stockade for yeggmen on the river bank near Elysian Park is finished, but the vagrants have all disappeared; the Supply Committee of the Council has decided not to furnish the quarters in the stockade until the hobos come back.

An accusation of forging deeds is involved in a quiet title suit filed yesterday in the Superior Court by Mrs. Agnes McNutt of Port Huron, Mich., against Mrs. Kitturia B. Osborn, now confined in the County Jail on a felony charge.

W. D. Wilde was sentenced to seven years in San Quentin by Judge Wilbur, yesterday, for bigamy.

AT THE CITY HALL.

DEEP WOE FOR "ALL NIGHTS."

EARLY MORNING CLOSING RULE MUST BE OBEYED.

Final Protest of President of Royal Arch Proves of no Avail—Closing of Lid Forces One Saloon Into Hands of the Sheriff—"Pulls" Are Exposed.

The "lid" went on at 1 o'clock this morning, when the all-night restaurants closed their ice chests and declined to serve liquor with meals. Today the Sunday closing laws are in full swing.

For the first time in the history of Los Angeles it is against the law to sell liquor between the hours of 1 o'clock and 5 o'clock in the morning, except at a drug store on the prescription of a physician. The usual week-end crowds that gravitate between the saloons and the all-night restaurants went away this morning in a surly mood. Most of the rounders cannot comprehend that an important outpost of the Royal Arch has fallen and that for four hours each day booze is off the market.

President Roule of the local branch of the Royal Arch called on the Mayor in the executive office yesterday morning and made a final attempt to secure a modification of the rule stopping the sale of liquor in the all-night restaurants. Friday night Roule announced to his associates of the Royal Arch that he proposed to call on the Mayor and have certain things explained.

Apparently the explanations were not wholly satisfactory, for two plain-clothes officers were detailed to go to the combination saloon and restaurant at Fifth and San Pedro streets this morning to se whether any liquor was sold there. This saloon and restaurant belongs to President Roule.

That the "lid" is on in earnest was evidenced on the streets yesterday afternoon and last night. The cigar stores along Spring and Main streets declined to accept bets on the horse races, and one saloon, The Builder's Exchange, Main and Winston streets, was closed to the public.

The Builder's Exchange was run in connection with the Bismarck Café by "Jack" Edwards. Tuesday the Police Commission revoked the restaurant liquor license of the Bismarck and Friday the saloon was closed by the Sheriff. This is the first time in years that the Sheriff has taken possession of a local saloon. The license will probably be continued by the Los Angeles Brewing Company; at the present time some one is paying $100 a month to keep the license alive.

During the week the proprietors of the all-night restaurants worked quietly but earnestly to secure a modification of the morning closing rule. The protests have come from the Saddle-rock, Levy's Café, the Bristol Café, the Imperial and the Palace. The managers of these restaurants assert that they will be compelled to run at a heavy loss or to close their places this summer if the morning closing rule is to be enforced.

On this, Mayor Harper has stood pat. He has replied to all importunities that the class that drinks in the cafés after 1 o'clock in the morning is the class that is a detriment to the city. Admitting that there may be individual exceptions to this, the Mayor holds that, as a rule, the stragglers will clear off the streets if they can buy no more liquor.

One amusing result of putting on the lid has been the exposure of certain alleged "pulls." Some who have claimed to peddle protection are out of business themselves. There are others who have suddenly taken vacation trips that may keep them away until the grand jury has met and parted.

HOBOS HAVE FLED.

STOCKADE, BUT NO TENANTS.

The genus hobo is as perverse as the Missouri mule. A year ago, the sign "standing room only" hung above the entrance to the City Jail, the Police Courts were filled with vagrants and yeggmen; now the city has a beautiful new stockade, with ample accommodations for brake-beam tourists, and, lo, the hobos have all disappeared. The jail is not half filled, and there are no prospective tenants for the stockade.

The Finance and the Supply Committees of the Council have decided not to furnish the quarters at the stockade just now, for the reason that it is not needed. The building is about finished, and could receive prisoners by July 1; but the prisoners come not, and the Council may conclude not to open and equip the stockade until the hobos return next winter.

Councilman Yonkin says the stockade bears the same relation to the yeggmen that a big fleet does to national peace. He has always held that the surest way to get rid of the vagrants is to prepare for them a rock pile. The stockade on the bank of the river provides both a rock pile and a sand pit.

THE INFERIOR COURTS.

Leader of Gang of Boy Thieves Sent to Chain Gang—Court Refuses Complaints.

John Hayes, 18 years old, the leader of a gang of boy bandits that has operated for the past few months, was sentenced to ninety days on the chain gang yesterday, after trial in the Police Court.

Hayes made no plea in his own defense, and seemed rather proud of the notoriety he had gained. He came here from El Reno, Okla., and, according to the police, taught boys to pick pockets and steal in other ways. Before they received instruction, the lads were compelled to take a solemn oath not to divulge any of the secrets of the gang.

Vincent Whitehead and Glenn Farnsworth, who were arrested with Hayes as members of the gang, will be tried this week in the Juvenile Court.

Most of the stolen property, consisting of revolvers, ammunition and articles taken from various department stores, has been identified.

Justice vs. Attorney.

Because Justice Rose refused to allow a complaint to be filed yesterday, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Guy Eddie accused him of violating his oath of office.

The attorney had two complaints against newsboys for violations of the anti-tip ordinance.

"You have no right to say that these complaints shall not be filed," said Eddie.

"This court calender is too crowded now, and I will not permit another case to be filed this week," answered the justice.

AT THE COURTHOUSE.

FORGING DEEDS LATEST CLAIM.

NOTORIOUS WOMAN, NOW IN JAIL, FACES MORE TROUBLE.

Mrs. Kitturia Osborn Accused of Appropriating Titles to Three Lots. Other Defendants in Suit to Quiet Title Said to Be Creatures of Her Imagination.

Mrs. Kitturia B. Osborn, whose notorious real estate transactions have already landed her in the County Jail will be called upon to explain to the courts another realty deal. A clever forgery of deeds to lots is now charged to her account.

Mrs. Osborn was made defendant yesterday in a quiet title suit filed in the Superior Court by Mrs. Nellie M. McNutt, and the Misses Irene and Agnes McNutt, heirs of Henry H. McNutt, who died in Port Huron, Mich., in 1904. The McNutts claim title to three lots, worth about $5000, in the Wiesendanger tract between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth streets. Other defendants named in thec omplaint are A. M. Grant, Mrs. K. B. Wilson, D. R. Irvine, and one Wright—all believed to be the creatures of Mrs. Osborn's imagination, as Mrs. McNutt's counsel, Edward T. Sherer, has been unable to locate any of them.

"My client holds deeds to these lots, which were purchased by McNutt in Los Angeles in 1878," said Mr. Sherer. "The titles have never been alienated by him or his family. When Mrs. Osborn, in 1904, before McNutt's death, wrote to him that she wished to buy the property, Mrs. McNutt refused to consent to the sale and negotiations ended.

"Yet in January last Mrs. Osborne deposited in escrow with the Title Guarantee and Trust Company a deed purporting to be executed in January, 1904, by H. McNutt of San Diego, an unmarried man, vesting title to one of my client's lots in A. M. Grant, also described as an unmarried man of San Diego. The deed was acknowledged in this city. I have affidavits from my clients that at the time it was signed and acknowledged, the real owner, Henry H. McNutt was in Port Huron, Mich.

"A second deed placed in escrow by Mrs. Osborn is dated January, 1908, and purports to convey title from Grant to D. R. Irvine, described as a Los Angeles resident. Irvine gave a mortgage on the lot to one Wright, who has not been located. The mortgage is also included among the papers in escrow. In view of my clients' evidence, I believe that all the deeds are forgeries.

"The discovery of Mrs. Osborn's claim to a lot was made when I sent notice to Mrs. McNutt, four months ago, that a street assessment was due on it. She wrote back that she owned three lots, and I then found that Mrs. Osborn had paid the assessment on one. As I have positive evidence that H. H. McNutt was never in California after 1878 and never sold the three lots he bought then, I suspect that Mrs. Osborn herself is Grant, Irvine, Wilson and everyone else named in her papers."

Mrs. Osborn is now awaiting arraignment in the Superior Court on a charge of obtaining $1000 from Samuel E. Larkin by false pretences in February, 1907. Larkin says she borrowed the money from him after showing him the house and lot at No. 1217 West Forty-fifth street and telling him she owned it. But when he got the mortgage executed by her, he says he discovered that it covered a $600 lot, without a house on it, farther up the street. She is said to have told him that one J. D. Watts held a trust deed to the lot, but Watts has never been located. As Mrs. Osborn could not furnish bail, she has been in the County Jail for the last three months.

Yesterday afternoon she refused to say anything about the second case against her.

GETS SEVEN YEARS.

BIGAMIST REFUSED PAROLE.

"This is a case in which the example to others must be considered. The marriage relation is the most important relation of society, and your application for probation must be refused," said Judge Wilbur yesterday in imposing a sentence of seven years in San Quentin on W. D. Wilde, confessed double bigamist. Wilde told the court that his first wife, married in Los Angeles in 1905, would be practically destitute with her two small children if he were sent to prison, and he asked consideration on their behalf. He stated that he had a child by his second wife, formerly Miss Lela Warren of South Pasadena, and that his third wife, formerly Miss Beatrice Pitts of Los Angeles, was married this spring. As he was sentenced, his first wife, who was in court with one of her children, covered her face with her hands.

In the man's application for probation, he omitted to mention the fact that at San Francisco, some years ago, he had been sentenced to one year's imprisonment for desertion from the army. When the court called his attention to this, Wilde admitted its truth, but said that had he known more then, he would have been able to clear himself of the charge. He was granted three days' stay of execution to arrange his affairs.

COURTHOUSE NOTES.

BREVITIES MISCELLANEOUS.

NO EXTORTION. After seventy minutes' deliberation a jury in Judge Monroe's court yesterday acquitted Dr. J. S. Owens of the charge of extortion preferred by J. Whyte Evans of Portland, Or. Owens says Evans owes him about $8000, which he refuses to pay. The plaintiff was not in court yesterday morning. The defendant shook hands with each juror and thanked him. A second complaint of extortion lodged against Owens by Evans will not be prosecuted.

CITY SUSTAINED. Judge Monroe yesterday gave judgment for the defendant in the quiet title suit brought by the Ralph Rogers Company against the city of Los Angeles, W. R. Clark and others, on the ground that the work done on Pennsylvania avenue had not been properly let by the city and that the street bonds and assessments were therefore invalid. The court sustained the defendants' contention that the contract was let legally. About $10,000 is involved. The plaintiff owns lots in abutting property.

INSURANCE AT ISSUE. Thomas J. Pollard yesterday filed suit in the Superior Court against the Railway Employés' United Protective Society and the Order of Railroad Employés to recover $2025 alleged due as the unpaid balance on his $2500 accident and death policy in those orders. He says that in November, 1905, he took out the policy and that by an accident at Kelso, in May, 1906, he lost the use of his left hand, incapacitating him as a locomotive engineer.

EXTRADITION. Under Sheriff Dishman left for Las Vegas with extradition papers for Virgil Snyder, with whom he will return Sunday evening. Snyder is wanted here on a charge of forging telegrams.

FORGER CAN'T DRINK. Frank J. Blandon, charged with forging a $200 check on a local bank, was placed on probation for three years by Judge Wilbur yesterday. Blandon said that his offense had been committed while drunk, and the court made it a condition of his probation that he shall abstain from liquor in future.

WORTHLESS CHECK. D. Edward Cline pleaded guilty in the Superior Court yesterday to drawing a worthless $10 check on the Union Savings Bank of Pasadena on April 20. The court will investigate his application for parole on June 12.

ASSAULT. Jesse Mackintosh, a negro, pleaded guilty in Judge Wilbur's court yesterday to a charge of assaulting John Wellington on May 22. He said he hit the plaintiff on the head with a piece of gas pipe. He will be sentenced Monday morning.

DISMISSED. Felony charges against Louis Larson and L. L. Sidwell were dismissed by Judge Wilbur yesterday at the District Attorney's request.

SHIELDS FAMILY. Alfred C. Ellsworth, a one-armed man of prepossessing appearance, pleaded guilty before Judge Wilbur yesterday to having uttered a fictitious $24 check on the American National Bank on April 25. He said that he is a stranger here and that he would not apply for probation because it would be useless. He declined to give his true name, as he desired to shield his family. The court deferred sentence until Monday, that his case may be investigated.

INCORPORATIONS. Articles of incorporation were filed with the County Clerk yesterday by the Consolidated Merchants' Tailoring Company, capital stock, $25,000; the Pacific Club of Santa Monica and the Pomona Grocery Company, capital stock, $25,000.

AUTO THIEF'S REQUEST. Judge Wilbur yesterday held an examination of witnesses in the case of Joe Leinen, who has applied for probation after having admitted that he assisted James McFarlane in burglarizing W. A. Dandy's garage, and in stealing an automobile and safe. McFarlane, who was convicted, testified that he and Leinen had committed about twenty burglaries, automobile thefts and hold-ups. Leinen's testimony against MacFarlane secured the latter's conviction.

EVIDENCE WANTING. On the ground of insufficient evidence, the District Attorney yesterday secured the dismissal of a felony charge against Emery V. Coulthard, secretary and book-keeper of the Bartlett-Coulthard Pickle Company, who was accused of making false entries in the books of the concern.

MARRIAGE LEGAL. In the account of the court proceedings in the case of the rival petitions of Mrs E. A. Olney and Mrs. Bryant, grandmother and mother of a child whose custody both seek, it was stated that Mrs. Bryant's second marriage took place several months after the interlocutory decree of divorce from her former husband was granted. Mrs. Bryant declared yesterday that she had her final decree sometime before her second marriage.

SUIT OVER NEWSPAPER. Justice Stephens will hear arguments on June 17 in A. E. Cronenwett's suit against Paran F. Rice to recover $250. The evidence has been submitted. The plaintiff asserts that when he sold the Monrovia News to the defendant, in August, 1906, he was to receive 250 shares of stock in the corporation then formed, but that this has not been delivered. He avers the stock is now worthless, and sues for its par value. Rice contends that when he bought the newspaper, he was to receive $720 worth of printing material that Cronenwett never delivered. The plaintiff asserted that he did not examine his bill of sale closely, and so failed to notice the amount of printing material called for.

STIRRING.

GOOD ROADS CAMPAIGN ON

Committee Named to Conduct Bond Movement.

Petty Politics Cut Out of Improvement Plan.

Hoped Now to Call Election Early in August.

It is now for the people of Los Angeles county to say if they a system of good roads that will go far ahead of anything of the kind yet attempted in the United States. At a meeting yesterday of the Executive Committee of the Good Roads Association of Los Angeles county, there was named a Campaign Committee that will push with vigor the proposition to issue $3,000,000 in bonds for carrying out the project.

Prominent men from all parts of the county have been named on the committee, and they will get to work at once. It is planned to hold the bond election at as early a date as possible—probably on August 1.

The main feature of the action taken yesterday lies in the fact that petty politics will have nothing to do with the case. Busy-bodies who have attempted to take charge of the campaign are left out of the reckoning. The campaign is to be conducted on the broad lines of practical business, with the good of the entire county as the only objective. No man who has set himself as the one who shall say what the voters of the county shall or shall not do will have any weighty word in the conduct of the campaign.

REPORT READY.

The Highway Commission, composed of C. D. Daggett, George H. Bixby and Martin C. Marsh, after months of work, in which they have been assisted by the most competent road engineers of the United States, have prepared a comprehensive plan for a good roads system throughout the county. It is settled that the Supervisors will accept the recommendations of the commission that has made a study of the subject, though, after the report is officially filed, there will be an opportunity for the public to be heard and for such changes to be made as may be considered advisable.

The main recommendations of the commissioners have been printed from time to time in these columns, and with hardly an exception have been approved by the people most concerned—the taxpayers. On the whole, the report contemplates a system of roads that will bring all sections into close communion, giving ranchers free access to markets and shipping points, affording tourists and residents fine drives to the points of interest, connecting cities and towns, and providing highways that will connect with the main roads of adjoining counties.

Yesterday's meeting of the Executive Committee of the Good Roads Association was attended by the following members: S. A. Butler, president; F. W. Blanchard, first vice-president; A. P. Fleming, secretary; A. P. Griffith, treasurer; Thomas Earley, Harry Barndollar, C. D. Manning, George D. Whitcomb and T. J. Walker.

To this committee was made a report by a subcommittee, Thomas Earley, chairman, recommending that the good roads campaign be conducted by the following men, to be known as the Campaign Committee: C. D. Daggett, George H. Bixby, Martin C. Marsh, Thomas Earley, S. A. Butler, F. W. Blanchard, P. J. Beveridge, Harry Barndollar, A. P. Fleming, C. D. Manning, T. J. Walker, George D. Whitcomb and A. P. Griffith.

The further recommendation was that C. D. Daggett be chairman of the Campaign Committee, and that its headquarters be at the offices of the Highway Commission.

These recommendations were adopted unanimously, and Mr. Daggett, as chairman, was authorized to appoint a committee of three or five members, himself as chairman, to visit personally every Board of Trade or Chamber of Commerce in Los Angeles county and to have these bodies name special committees to take charge of the bond elections in their respective districts.

The general opinion among members of the Executive Committee is that the bond election should be held as early as possible; also that politics should be kept entirely out of the question of good roads.

Some of the Supervisors in talking of the matter yesterday said they believed the election could be called for the early part of August, even after giving two or three weeks for public consideration of the report of the Highway Commission.

MINES AND MINING-Week's News From Ore Districts

IN THE EARTH.

RARE MINERALS, METALLURGY AND CHEMISTRY.

To Correspondents:

This department is not conducted for pay. Its object is to convey reliable information of interest and value to the public, and it is not for the private benefit of any miner, collector, speculator or prospector. Correspondents are particularly cautioned to take careful note of the statements and injunctions contained in the paragraphs below.

(1.) Specimens must be small and bear a tag giving name and address of sender, and the general—not exact—locality from whence the specimen was taken, also the name of it as nearly as the sender knows. Send, also, with the specimen a clearly-written letter briefly describing the find and what the finder wishes done with it. The letter must be properly dated and plainly signed.

Letter and specimen must be in one package, not in separate enclosures.

(2.) No attention will be paid to anonymous letters or to letters signed merely with initials.

(3.) No examination of samples or specimens will be made in cases where The Times may decide that the specimen and inquiry are not of public interest. This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office.

(4.) Inquiries relative to matters of purely personal interests will not be answered.

(5.) When no response to an inquiry made or specimens sent appears in these columns, the inquirer will understand that his inquiry does not come within the purview of this department.

(6.) It is impossible to return specimens, as they must necessarily be destroyed or impaired in the process of analysis.

Address invariably, The Times.

Barite.

RHYOLITE (Nev.) May 12.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I inclose a small sample of rock with this, and would like for you to tell me if it contains minerals of any value, and how much, and oblige.

The unusual weight of the rock leads me to believe it is mineralized. From hear here. "READER."

ANSWER: The specimen is barium sulphate (heavy spar) with iron peroxide present—in streaks—and also traces of lead.

When pure, barite forms a pigment superior to "white lead" where a paint is required for buildings "exhaling" certain fumes—acids, for instance.

The sample carries over 30 per cent. sulphuric acid, with over 60 per cent. baryta.

"Barytes is a very widely diffused mineral, and commonly occurs in beds or veins of metallic ores."

It would appear, from a portion of the specimen, that cerussite (lead carbonate) with silver values should occur with the mineral.

Poor Showing.

SEARCHLIGHT (Nev.) May 17.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I beg to submit to you herewith two samples of rock, taken from large deposits of same, in the Crescent mountains, about twelve miles west from Searchlight.

From weight and general appearance they should carry metals, possibly zinc, lead and silver. There is a great quantity of both kinds, but they are some distance apart and not associated, in any way, at the surface.

If considered of sufficient general interest, I should appreciate an opinion from you in "In the Earth" at your convenience. (1.) Do the samples contain mineral having commercial value? (2.) Is the percentage sufficient to pay for working, the deposit being extensive, and good facilities for mining? Yours faithfully, H. B.

ANSWER: Replying to question (1:) No. The White specimen is a very impure silicate of lime and alumina, slightly porphyritic and carrying traces of lead with zinc.

Sample No. 2 is impure calcite, lead present.

Quartz and Conglomerate.

TEHACHEPI, May 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Am mailing three samples of rock from vicinity of Sand Cañon, and about ten miles from Tehachepi. Numbers 1 and 2 taken from five-foot ledge. Kindly state if of any value. Very truly, E. F.

ANSWER: No. 1 is quartz with iron oxides. No. 2 is also quartz with mica and iron oxides. No. 3 conglomerate. Assay 1 and 2.

Baryte.

RHYOLITE (Nev.) May 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In sending in to you a week ago a specimen of rock for analysis I forgot to comply with all of the requirements. Will say that the rock came from the new mining district of Florence, about twelve or fifteen miles from Greenwater, Inyo county, Cal.

It has been called tungsten ore by a good many miners, and I wish an expert's opinion as to what it is.

Hoping that this will reach you before it is too late to get your opinion on same, I am, yours respectfully, B. W. F.

ANSWER: The sample is barium sulphate (heavy spar) with streaks of iron oxides, and does not carry a trace of tungstic acid.

Manganese and Greasy Quartz.

LOS ANGELES, May 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I have found those two samples of rocks and ledge back of Imperial Junction.

Please let me know if there are any values in them. I call the black No. 1, and the yellow No. 2. Yours, G. T.

ANSWER: Sample No. 1 is manganese dioxide with iron oxides. No. 2 yellow specimen is greasy quartz. For commercial values No. 1 is not high enough in manganese; it is very impure and would "bust" any chemical apparatus in the attempt to generate chlorine.

Manganese Dioxide.

LOS ANGELES, May 21.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I am sending you a sample of black rock found near Independence, Cal. Will you please tell me if same has commercial value? Ledge is about twenty feet wide. Sincerely yours, C. J. W.

ANSWER: If the sample submitted is a general average of the ledge it is worth prospecting further. Submit samples to the iron, steel and chlorine industries.

Hubernite and Wolframite.

KINGMAN (Ariz.) May 20.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Inclosed specimens of ore are found in considerable quantity in Mohave county, Arizona, about fourteen miles northeast of Yucca, a station on the main line of the Santa Fé Railroad. The ore occurs in seams from less than an inch to several inches wide, across a zone 100 feet or more in width, which has been traced for over a mile in length. Sincerely, J. D. J.

ANSWER: If your letter and samples are true in fact, the Santa Fé will sell a number of tickets to Yucca. This department of The Times is responsible for samples submitted only, and will not indorse statements as to leads or deposits of minerals. One of your specimens yields on analysis 74.2 per cent. tungstic acid of commerce. The remaining five samples run over 22 per cent. tungsten trioxide. The high grade specimen is hubernite (manganese tungstate.) The remaining samples are mixed hubernite and wolframite (tungstate of iron.)

Gold in Places.

OMAHA (Neb.) May 16.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Please find inclosed two samples of ore from Northeastern Nevada, one of which is 55 per cent. magnetite, and the other 30 per cent. copper. The copper seam from which this copper ore was taken is only about two inches thick; it runs in the center of about six inches of iron oxide, same is located in the white-lime quartzite, the body of quartzite is about 500 feet across and dips under a large ledge or dyke of birdseye porphyry to the east. On the westerly side there is about 300 feet of fine rhyolite, and on the west side of this there is about one mile of slate. The formation pitches about 45 deg. in a south of east direction while the iron oxides are almost vertical—if anything they pitch a little to the southwest. The magnetite ore of which there is about twenty feet is also found in the lime quartzite about 300 feet from the iron oxides—gold in places.

The general direction of the formation is north and south.

What I want to know is which ore body is best to go down on, the oxides or the magnetite? Is the copper sure to follow the oxides even though it disappears for space. Have only gone down eighteen feet on same. Give your views as to the same being a good prospect.

Thanking you in advance, I remain, as ever, a reader of The Times and from the West. F. L. W.

ANSWER: Magnetite is composed of iron oxides also. Your narrow seams are but "stringers."

Prospect where you find "gold in places."

Garnet and Tourmaline.

KELSO, May 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Will you kindly tell me what the enclosed specimen is? Does it contain any values? Found in San Bernardino county, California, in Kelso mining district. It occurs in bunches in ledge twenty inches wide—in granite and chist. Yours very respectfully, C. A. C.

Quartz With Iron Oxides.

ELSINORE, May 22.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This rock is from a ledge near Elsinore, Cal. Please state in your "In the Earth" if it contains gold or copper and what kind of rock it is. Thanking you for your favor. J. A. C.

ANSWER.—The rock is quartz with iron oxides and carries a trace only of copper. For gold and silver assays you are courteously referred to assayers.

Old Iron Shale.

LOS ANGELES, May 23.—[To the Editor of The Times:] This sample was found in the hills adjoining Hollywood. I think it is copper-stained indicating presence of that metal. H. V. R.

Pigrite and Chalcopyrite.

RIVERSIDE, May 15.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Please tell me if there is anything in this ore of value besides copper. The ore is from Vontrigger, San Bernardino county, where, I have one claim. Thanking you in advance. Yours respectively, J. O. C.

ANSWER.—The samples carry iron (pyrite,) pyrrhotite (magnetic pyrite,) and chalcopyrite (yellow copper ore.) Pulverize some of the material, concentrate (pan) with water, and have concentrates assayed for gold.

Lithia and Strontia.

LOS ANGELES, May 19.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Please state in your valued "In the Earth" what this inclosed sample contains. Thanking you in advance. We thank you for the many favors and much valuable information which you have rendered us in our search in the Alabama Range near Lone Pine, Cal. Yours truly, A. B. F.

ANSWER: You're welcome! The sample is a magnesium silicate with streaks of white mica. Lithium and strontium are present in low percentages only.

Not Tellurium Ore.

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—[To the Editor of The Times:] We are handing you herewith four samples from Hamilton mining district, Kern county, eight miles southeast of Paris, on Indian Creek.

We have been informed that No. 1 is a nickel ore, No. 2 zinciferous, No. 3 molybdenite, and No. 4 tellurium.

We would thank you for a correct classification, as we are greatly puzzled on these deposits, which seem to be strong fissure leads in porphyry.

If they are not the ores we mention will you very kindly inform us through The Times what they are, and if worth while to prospect the veins? Yours very truly, B. & B.

ANSWER: No. 1 carries no nickel values, and is impure olivine, with low per cent. vanadic acid and lead. No. 2 is partly massive garnet—zinc present. No. 3 makes neither a black streak (graphite) or gray streak (molybdenite) on paper. It is not graphite or molybdenite, but it impure vicaceous iron ore. No. 4 does not carry a trace of tellurium; it is an iron silicate with microscopical micaceous iron and iron peroxide (hematite.) Some limonite (yellow iron oxide) is present. None of the specimens were tested for gold or silver values. It is very difficult to advise you as to the "prospects." The ores are not encouraging from a metallurgical point of view.

Not Ruby.

EL CENTRO, May 14.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Am sending you some samples found on a large ledge near here. The ledge is several miles in length. The earth was found near the same place. Could you tell me if these minerals contain gold or valuable minerals. No. 4 I take to be rubies; if not, what are they? Yours sincerely, K. M.

ANSWER: No free gold is present in sample (1.) The sand is made up of white quartz, some calcite crystals, a garnet or two, and menaccanite (titaniferous iron.) No. 2 is like (1.) but more earth (dirt) is present. Sample (3) is composed of one piece of whitish quartz—the gray samples are flint. No. 4 (stated by you as rubies) are but worthless garnets.

No Tungstic Acid.

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I send you samples of ore. No. 1, tungstite; No. 2, think hematite iron; No. 3, uncertain. I send these for a poor prospector to learn if they are of any value.

Will you kindly inform me by letter as soon as convenient, as it is of importance to party. Sincerely, E. A. F.

ANSWER: The three samples were not numbered. They are all iron ores. No tungstic acid is present in any of them. The radiated specimen is gothite (hydrated iron peroxide.)

Requests for personal replies with self-addressed envelopes for answers, marked "p.q." or otherwise, cannot always be complied with.

A. C. W. forwards forty-seven samples for "control assays." The specimens are returned by express. Charges prepaid.

A glance at head of column shows: "This office does not undertake to perform the work of an assay office."

Correspondents are requested to send—not over—three or four samples, for determination, at one time.

NEVADA.

SMELTER FOR FAMOUS CAMP.

MILLIONAIRE NEWHOUSE SAYS HE MAY BUILD.

Utah Mining Magnate Is Optimistic Over What He Saw at Lincoln's Old Properties—Iowa Company Has Sensational Find as Result of an Unusual Method of Work.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PIOCHE (Nev.) June 5.—The visit of Samuel Newhouse to Pioche week before last was the most important event which has occurred here since the railroad reached the camp.

Mr. Newhouse is, perhaps, the most conspicuous living illustration of what a man can achieve in mining in the United States. Twenty years ago he was poor, but seeking industriously for a chance to make a raise. (His first small stake of a few hundred dollars he acquired at Ouray, Colo. There is a tradition to the effect that years before that he drove a transfer wagon in Leadville for modest wages, but that belongs to a period in his history to which very little significance attaches now.

His first real success came from the Highland Boy mine in Bingham Cañon, Utah. After this property had gone begging for years, Newhouse induced some of his friends to take up the option he had secured, and to furnish money enough to equip it as a gold property. At first they made a little money, then the game turned against them, and it looked as though the venture was going to prove a failure. At this juncture, when hope was about extinct, it was discovered that stuff which had been thrown over the dump as waste was really an ore running high in copper, and almost in a night Newhouse found himself a millionaire. Nursing his enterprise with consummate ability, he secured gradually, by patient effort, the control of practically all the ground on the hill on the other side of the cañon. When Newhouse finally parted with control of the Highland Boy, it was as president of the Boston Consolidated Mining Company, the name by which that property on the opposite side of the cañon is now known. Both the Highland Boy, now known as the Utah Consolidated, and the Boston Consolidated are among the world's greatest copper properties.

After a time Newhouse went down into Beaver county, Utah, and secured an old, abandoned copper mine. He knew what he was about, and this old, abandoned property, now the world-famous Cactus mine at Newhouse, has added millions more to the multi-millions which came from the properties on either side of Bingham Cañon. He is still at the head of the Boston Consolidated, and the Newhouse mines and also president of the great Newhouse Tunnel at Idaho Springs, Colo., the Nipissing Company at Cobalt, Ontario, and the Ohio-Kentucky Mining Company at Pioche, and other widely-scattered interests, many of them of vast importance.

It was to study personally the Ohio-Kentucky and its allied property under the same management, known as the Prince Consolidated Mining and Milling Company that Mr. Newhouse made this visit. In view of his comprehensive experience in great mining enterprises, his proven judgment and the regard which the mining world has for his opinion, his conclusions are highly important. After several days spent in careful observation and analysis of developments and conditions, he made the following statement to the writer:

"I am amazed at these vast deposits of ore. They will be the basis of an enormous mining industry, to be developed on your known virgin bodies of ore, without regard to the old mines famous in early days. They warrant the immediate erection of a capacious smelting plant, for which your ores are peculiarly desirable. As soon as certain details can be arranged, and I believe it will be only a few months before they are satisfactorily arranged, I am ready to build such a smelter myself. You have an abundance of lead and zinc, as well as the precious metals. With the return of general prosperity, lead and zinc values will recover, and these metals should prove highly profitable in the quantity and under the conditions in which they occur here." There was more of the same general tenor, and considerable discussion of the large concentrator which the Ohio-Kentucky intends building for the separation of the lead and zinc in their ores.

The Newhouse party had a special train, in which they visited the tailing beds at Bullionville, ten miles northeast of Pioche. These beds, left by the old mills which treated the ores here in the '70's and early '80's, now contain, by careful estimate, several million dollars in value. The presence of these beds, together with the unfailing supply of water, will doubtless determine that as the site of the smelter which Mr. Newhouse contemplates building.

Mr. Newhouse lives at Salt Lake City, where he is now erecting, at a cost running into millions, two great office buildings, which will establish decidedly new architectural standards for that city. It was interesting to recognize in all the talk during the visit of this party the confident assumption that Pioche belongs commercially to Salt Lake. The time is not far distant when this district is going to produce wealth freely. Surely the great commercial metropolis of Southern California is not going to allow all this product to be absorbed by the ambitious inland city upon the shores of the great salt sea.

There is a daily increasing interest here in the preparations of the Nevada-Des Moines Mining Company, which sank a shaft last season in the flat below town, within half a mile of the postoffice. Without any apparent theory for a guide, this company went down through the limestone 250 feet, then sank a diamond drill hole about 250 feet further, passing out of the lime into the silicious shale, and probably reaching the quartzite below. During the last few feet the core showed evidences of mineralization, and also of the probable existence of a wide vein on the contact between the shale and the quartzite. The principal stockholders reside in Des Moines, Iowa, and to that city pieces of the core were sent for assay. Report came back that the Des Moines Assaying and Refining Company had made three assays on this core, which yielded from 49 to 54 ounces of gold per ton. Such news was very startling, in view of the tremendous and far-reaching possibilities involved. The first impressions were naturally those of incredulity. Everybody seemed to be "from Missouri." But the strictest investigation and analysis of all the known facts proved only confirmatory. The Des Moines Assaying and Refining Company has a high reputation. The core reached them through channels which preclude any probability of bad faith. All excepting treasury stock in the company is pooled, so that promiscuous trading is prevented, and any opportunity for the original owners and promoters to profit by fraud is eliminated. The company has recently purchased a forty-horse-power hoist and compressor plant, for which the gallows frame is erected, and the plant is expected to arrive any day. No one who knows the principal parties interested can doubt the sincerity of their faith, which is apparently fully settled that a bonanza awaits the further sinking of the shaft. As soon as the hoist is installed two shifts will begin sinking, and it is expected that within four months the shaft will reach the expected ore body, and the mystery yield place to established demonstration. What will the harvest be? No one knows. Nothing could better exemplify the fascination of mining.

Among the enterprises here of great promise are three, of which George Weddel of London, England, is president, and Edward Thomarson of this town is secretary and treasurer. They are the Nevada Horn Silver, the Ely Valley Mining and Milling Company and the Anglo-Nevada Company, Limited, the latter being a financing and holding company.

The first is in the Bristol district, about thirty miles northwest of this town. It derives its name, "Horn Silver," from the character of its richest ore. When first discovered the pieces of high-grade horn silver ore brought into camp by the locater gave rise to frenzied excitement, and a wild rush was made to the region, where the landscape for miles in every direction soon bristled with claim stakes.

The company has gone ahead without noise or flourish to prospect its ground. It has sixteen claims, but the principal development thus far is in three shafts and drifts leading from them. The deepest is down about 300 feet. Hundreds of tons of a good grade shipping ore have been developed, and a large tonnage of milling ore, which will be treated on the ground after it has been finally determined what process will be best adapted to the conditions.

The Ely Valley property is about three miles north of Pioche. It has five full claims and some fractions. Two shafts, one to a depth of 130 feet, the other 70 feet, have been sunk on the vein, in limestone, with a drift connecting them from the bottom of the 70-foot shaft. These shafts are in ore the entire distance. From the bottom of the deeper shaft a cross-cut forty feet long has encountered another vein, upon which they have drifted both ways. It is a very desirable smelting ore, running well in lead, iron and manganese, and with sufficient gold and silver to make it a highly profitable shipping ore. A forty-horse-power hoisting and compressor plant is to be installed at once.

The Mendha is still waiting for its new hoisting plant, but will be added to the list of prominent shippers as soon as it arrives.

At the Day mine the Nevada-Utah is preparing foundations for a 100-horse-power steam hoist, two large compressors, and four 80-horse-power boilers.

The Boston and Pioche is installing its new 100-horse-power plant.

STOCKHOLDERS REVOKE ACTION.

BOSTONIAN LOSES KEYSTONE OPTION AND MAY SUE.

Ten Thousand Dollars Forfeited on Fifty-Thousand-Dollar Bond—Old Dominion Has Second Highest Record of Monthly Output—Mines Are Active.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) June 5.—The stockholders of the Keystone Copper Company of Globe have revoked their action of May 11, accepting an offer of A. J. Amster of Boston and have given a two years' bond and option on their property to John T. Newman, a Globe capitalist. Amster had agreed to pay off a $65,000 mortgage, to spend $60,000 in development work and at the end of a year to organize a stock company with $3,000,000 capital. Newman gets a two years' bond on the payment of the mortgage, held by the Old Dominion Mining Company, and must spend $4000 a month on development work for the two years. At the end of that time he has the privilege of taking the mine at a price which has not been made public. It is understood that Amster proposes to bring suit against the Keystone for damages, on the basis of the stockholders' action of last month. Newman already has paid off the mortgage and has entered upon compliance with the contract terms.

The Superior and Pittsburgh Copper Company is considering an extra issue of 50,000 shares of stock, to be sold for $3.50 per share, in order to make final payment of $156,000 due on the property in July. The company will then have about $150,000 on hand to be used in development and sinking and equipping a new shaft. The mine is considered one of the best in the Globe district.

The Globe-Arizona Company has forfeited the first payment of $10,000 on a bond of $50,000 on three copper claims near the Superior and Boston property, the mine reverting to the original owners, William Rolling, C. L. Rogis, Charles Store and James Wiley.

May's production of copper bullion at the Old Dominion at Globe was about 2,600,000 pounds, a record passed only in last October. Five furnaces were used most of the month. Something new in the Old Dominion management is announced in the determination to offer leases to miners in the upper levels of the main property. Three hundred tons of 23 per cent. sulphide ore is being sent each month to the Old Dominion furnaces from the Gibson mine.

Very rich silver ore is coming into Globe from Richmond Basin, a locality famous for native silver in the early days of the camp.

For several weeks past different parts of the Moctezuma Copper Company's new Nacozari concentrator have been operated in "limbering-up" trials and the whole will start within a few days. It is one of the largest in the Southwest, capacity for 2000 tons of ore a day, to which will be added that of the old concentrator, which has been handling 650 tons a day. The concentrators will make a notable addition to the demands of the Copper Queen smelter at Douglas. In the new concentrator has been abandoned the old method of securing power by means of gas manufactured mainly from wood. The wood supply of the vicinity is about exhausted.

Los Angeles capital, represented by P. J. McIntyre, is negotiating for the property of the Merchants Mining Company, seven miles north of Nogales. The price offered is $25,000.

The Calumet and Arizona Company has discontinued work on the Snider-Shibell group on the Sierrita Mountains thirty miles south of Tucson, which had been under bond to the corporation for a year and a half past.

High-grade sulphide ore has been found in a cross-cut on the 300-foot level of the Helvetia mine, near Tucson. The existence of this body was known, but considerable work had to be done to improve ventilation before development could be had on the lower level.

Thirty stamps are being operated in the Commonwealth mill at Pearce, Cochise county, the mine and mill being under lease by A. Y. Smith & Co. The mine has been notable as a great gold and silver producer, the eighty-stamp mill having turned out millions of dollars within a few years.

Nine miles south of Pearce is Turquoise camp, especially notable for its turquoise mine, owned by Tiffany & Co. of New York. The property is only intermittently worked, very little labor sufficing to take out enough to supply the great jewelry house's needs. In the same vicinity are a number of very rich copper mines, the only drawback being a considerable percentage of garnet in the ores, rendering them refractory for smelting. The Copper Bell Mining Company is shipping about fifty tons of copper ore a day to El Paso.

The business men of Patagonia, Santa Cruz county, have formed a Chamber of Commerce, and are conducting an extensive advertising campaign, freely supplying mining news of their locality to the Territorial papers.

A new electric power plant has been established on the Savage mine in Paradise district, in the Chirichua Mountains of Southeastern Arizona.

Nine six-horse teams are working steadily, hauling machinery and lumber to the camp of the Copper Creek Company near Mammoth, Pinal county, where an electric concentrating plant is being built. In the same locality preparations are being made to build a forty-stamp mill on the Mohawk mine. A five-stamp mill is being erected on the Tanner property.

Near Mammoth, on the property of Harner & Hand, has been found a six-inch ledge of gold ore that averages over $100 to the ton, and from which assays have run as high as $1200. The discovery shaft is only eight feet deep.

A group of copper claims on the Gila River, near Winkelman, and adjoining the London-Arizona property, has been acquired by Thomas Wall of Harrison, N. J., and George L. Haas of Newark, N. J., who will organize a company to work the claims.

At Quartzsite are mines owned by the Will Smelter Company, a corporation which is being given publicity in the courts in Chicago, through a suit brought by William R. Keen, who owns 20,000 shares of its capital stock. He asks for a receiver and an accounting, alleging that he has been grossly deceived, that the management salted samples of the ore, and that $50,000 was spent in the purchase of machinery for a smelter at a time when the erection of reduction works would have been an absurdity. Though the mines have been abandoned, more than 100,000 shares of stock had been sold in the corporation, the price ranging from about 18 to 50 cents. According to the complaint, the chief offender was F. C. Skadan, who was vice-president and general manager.

Hank Hankins claims to have found the lost "Spanish mine," one of those supposedly mythical properties whereof tales are so abundant in the Southwest. He has written to a friend in Yuma that the find is 175 miles north of Yuma, in the west end of the Harqua Hala range. There are several ledges running for miles and he claims to have found the old Spanish furnaces. The news has been received without any undue amount of enthusiasm, for the Harqua Hala district is one of the most thoroughly prospected in Arizona, especially the western end wherein are situated the well-known Mammoth mines.

Five mining claims near Kofa have been bonded by C. W. Wheeler and W. C. Pruitt to R. K. Humphrey for $100,000. In the same locality O. R. Ginity and J. T. Vatterhall have bonded four claims to C. A. Berdell and R. K. Humphrey for $30,000.

Work is being resumed on the Lake Superior and Arizona mines at Superior, thirty miles north of Florence and 100 miners are to be put on immediately. The mine has been unwatered and new equipment has been added during the last few months.

TWIN BUTTES TO FRONT.

TUCSON, June 5.—Additions have just been made to the working force at the Twin Buttes and extensive development work is being carried on by Superintendent William McDermott, formerly in charge of the United Verde. Ore is being shipped twice a week to the El Paso smelters. Operations are confined mostly to the 200 and 400-foot levels. Some work was done on the 500-foot but had to be suspended on account of the inrush of water. Big pumps have been obtained, and, as soon as they are working, development will be resumed.

Preliminary work is progressing well on the fifty-mile railroad to be built by Boston people interested in the Rendell Reduction Company, owner of the old Ajo properties, from Ajo to the Southern Pacific main line west of Gila Bend. It is the intention to extend it later to Gunsite and Growler, properties worked on a large scale for gold and silver a quarter of a century ago.

Prof. William P. Blake of New Haven, Ct., formerly with the University of Arizona and a leading geologist of the Southwest, is a chief stockholder in the company developing the Saleros mine, one of the early properties in the Patagonia district. Its name comes from the priests' having obtained sufficient silver to make salt cellars for table use. The company has ample funds and is preparing to sink a shaft 500 feet.

The Moctezuma, in the same district, owned by the McCormick estate—of binder fame—is being prospected thoroughly. Operations are likely to begin soon.

The Gringo gold property, in the same region, is to have a stamp mill which will be enlarged later if development warrants. The main shaft is down 120 feet and will go 500.

The West Cananea, owning claims in the Cananea district, has reorganized, as follows: President, John H. Slaughter; vice-president, R. H. Samuel; secretary and treasurer, J. A. Howell.

A large amount of machinery is being taken into the Mammoth district, north of Tucson. The Calumet and Arizona is working vigorously on the Clark-Scanlon properties which it has bonded.

At the Copper Creek about forty miners are at work. A concentrating plant will be erected.

It is reported that a forty-stamp mill will be placed on the Mohawk, about three miles from Mammoth. The company is crosscutting on the 400 level. A cross-cut has just been finished on the 350.

A few men are working on the Leatherwood claims in the Catalinas, which were bonded a year ago to Epes Randolph and associates.

HART DEVELOPMENTS.

New Company Formed and Others Prepared to Push Operations.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

HART (Cal.) June 3.—Several new companies opened the month by inaugurating developments, and a number of others are getting in position to commence active work. This week the Hart Florence Mining Company was organized, taking over the Florence group of two claims, lying north of the Jumbo and south of the Oro Belle No. 1, where Hart & Hitt are taking out high-grade ore for shipment. Associated with George A. and William L. Foster in the new organization are J. C. Popper, who is largely interested in a valuable tungsten property at Round Mountain, Nev., and a number of Los Angeles and San Francisco capitalists. Work will be started next week, and the treasury of the company is said to be in excellent condition to develop quite extensively.

Last week the Hart Gold Mining Company took over the Red Hills and Gray Horse groups, consisting of six claims. This company will also begin operations the coming week. Recently B. A. Jennings discovered a valuable deposit of cinnabar on the Gray Horse, which is to be developed immediately.

The Hart Consolidated Mining Company is arranging for a twenty-five-horse-power compressor. It is expected the property will be equipped with this machinery within the next sixty days. In the meantime a force of men will be put on sinking a working shaft and running a tunnel. The claims lie within 500 feet of Hart & Hitt's estate.

The Oro Belle Mines Company, with a working fund of $20,000, will commence work on the Oro Belle and Oro Belle Fraction about June 20.

Some of the finest-looking ore ever uncovered in the district is now coming from the Sloan lease on the Jumbo. The rock is liberally shotted with free gold, and is being sacked for shipment. It will average $100 to the ton.

A station has been cut on the 100-foot level of the Quartette shaft, on the Jumbo, and the working is being sent to the 200-foot mark with three shifts steadily employed. A cross-cut is also being run to catch on its dip the rich ore shoot which was encountered at a depth of seventy-five feet.

Another good strike has been made at the Big Chief lease, in the fifty-foot shaft, which is just penetrating the ore shoot opened in a near-by winze. The rock averages $150 to the ton, and the vein is four feet wide.

Hart & Hitt are taking out a shipment of high grade this week. Upward of 200 sacks of their best is now on the dump, while many tons of $15 and $20 rock are piled up ready for shipment.

Another long tunnel will be driven from the east side of Big Chief Mountain by Todhunter, Felix & Aldridge, lessees on the Oro No. 1. This will connect with the one being driven by the Big Chief Mining Company.

The excursion from Los Angeles last Saturday was a huge success, upward of fifty people taking advantage of the low rates over the Santa Fé Railroad. The Hart Business Men's League entertained the visitors and showed them various properties. On Saturday evening a ball was given in their honor at the Norton House.

The Kid Glove lease on the Foothills is taking out a shipment, which will be sent to a Searchlight mill for treatment. The ore averages $33 to the ton.

drunkard, is now assistant engineer for the Pacific Light and Power Company.

R. C. Yates, who lost his family and everything he had through drink, is now a sober building contractor in this city.

Britton Ross is now studying for missionary work in South America, at the Los Angeles Bible Institute, and will go into the field under the Presbyterian church.

William Gilbert, a converted bartender, is an Englishman, and has seen service in both the English and American navies; has done duty in China, Cuba and the Philippines. For some time past he has been preaching in the by-ways of the Imperial Valley. He is a fine speaker and a fine singer, and is now preparing himself at the Bible Institute for more efficient work.

J. P. Monahan, who is now preaching at Holtville, Cal., tells a startling story of his conversion, which started while he stood at the door of the Mug saloon in this city. Mr. Pearson had a letter from him on Friday, in which he said there had been over fifty conversions at his meeting.

William Thomas, who was thrown out of the employment of the Hughes Lumber Company for drunkenness, is now foreman of the same establishment.

William Snyder, a converted Jew, is a clerk for the Wells, Fargo & Co. Express; Henry Newmaster is in the restaurant business in this city; John Calhoun is clerk in a dry goods store.

E. E. Leary, now superintendent of the City Rescue Mission, was a switchman for the Southern Pacific Railway for many years, and was rescued from the habits of a drunkard.

O. D. Conrey has many times told the story of his life, and after many years of straight living, he has made superintendent of the Coffee Club Association of this city, and has shown marvelous business ability. At the same time he has become known as a fine lecturer and is highly respected throughout the city.

A. V. Culver is assistant superintendent of the Union Rescue Mission, under acting Superintendent Frederick Allward, both of whom have shown great efficiency.

James J. Bender, who is still a member of the league, is in business for himself at Bakersfield. He was rescued from a life of crime.

Dick Manning, whose story of desertion from the United States Navy was told in The Times, surrendered to the authorities after his conversion, and served time at Vallejo. He is now on the sea.

L. Mordant, a graduate of Oxford, a bartender, a highwayman, and a few other things, is now an honored employé of the Edison Company.

These are but a few of the examples of men who have been redeemed through the efforts of the missions and the Good Samaritan League, and the list might be continued almost without limit.

NOB HILL REVIVED.

History of Early Chloride Work Sixteen Miles North of Searchlight.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

SEARCHLIGHT, June 5.—Incidental to the marked revival of general mining at Nob Hill, sixteen miles north of this place, one man has recalled some of its old chloriding history. All of the property mentioned is probably comprised in a plot of about two miles miles square and near its center would be the small but conspicuous granite nob from which it takes its name.

The Combination mine, formerly known as the Old Blaine, produced in these surface chlorides something like $150,000. There is a positive record of $80,000. About 900 feet of work has been done, and a depth gained of 115 feet. It is probably the foremost example of the crude chloriding work extending back to thirty years. M. L. Cook, the mineral surveyor of this place and San Bernardino, has control of this and will soon start operations on a considerable scale, the work to be under his immediate supervision.

The Rich Hill property of the Santa Barbara Company is an old timer. The old mule-back trail leading to the river mill, along which the Southwest Mining Company transported its ore, is still pointed out. The present owners bought about six months ago, paying $10,000. As a 100-ton oil burning smelter is now being erected by this company it may well be inferred that its value has already multiplied many times.

The Silver Legion group is nearly central in this district of Nob Hill, and is the best known camp. This by reason of the fact that its present managers, Spanogle and Sartain, are the oldest in active service under the new order of things—their activity dating back eight years. This was favorite ground for chloriders. There are government figures for a production of $25,000. A depth of 150 feet has been gained and much lateral work done. Shipping ore has been opened up in three different places and several shipments made. Machinery for deep sinking is soon to be installed. I. R. Landis of Los Angeles, looks after the city end of this company's business. There are two automobiles connected with the camp.

The amount of chloride output of the Mizpah, next south of the Legion, was not learned, more than that it was considerable. The owner-superintendent, A. K. Wright, is pushing development rapidly and with fine results. The main shaft is now about 150 feet down and there is considerable lateral work. All is in the handsome gray-colored sulphide ore that is characteristic of all the properties of Nob Hill, where the sulphide zone has been penetrated—this, from forty to sixty feet below the surface. The surface equipment is very complete, including a 15-horse-power hoist.

Here also it might be said, as pertaining to all of Nob Hill, that the sulphide ore is considered quite ideal for concentrating—going twenty to thirty to one.

The Daisy Bell, west of Legion and part of the Nob Hill Gold Mining Company ground, so known, was chlorided for close to $40,000. This was recently sold under bond to John M. Taylor for the Santa Barbara Company for $80,000.

Adjoining the Mizpah on the south is the well known Sphinx group on which a sale is imminent at around $25,000. There is 160 feet of tunnel; a 40-foot winz, midway, and a working depth from the surface of 100 feet.

The Captain property, one of the old Hughes & Werneke holdings, was spooned out for $12,00?

This report is only as one party recalled the facts out of mind, and several of almost equal importance are certain to have been overlooked.

Also this report does not comprehend any of the Eldorado Cañon country, of which Nob Hill is the western end. The Cañon is another story and not second in importance or interest and another time, will have a hearing of its own.

CHURCHLIKE.

HOUSE OF WORSHIP MODEL FOR HOME.

After having been educated for the nun's veil, spending many years as organist of St. Patrick's Church in Chicago, and passing a long time in visiting and studying Palestine, Miss A. Martine has builded for herself a unique home at Santa Monica-by-the-Sea, where she is passing the evening of her life in solitude. Fashioned after a village church, her cottage is frequently mistaken for a house of worship. It has the belfry, the gable, the windows and the entrance of a church, and was built upon designs submitted to the contractor by its eccentric owner.

"It is my church—my private chapel," explained Miss Martine, in referring to her peculiar house, when asked yesterday why she had taken a church for a model. In it I live, study, read and pray. Within its walls I take spiritual comfort; and there I am bothered by nobody. It is my church. Of course, people think I'm queer; but what do I care for that. One Sunday evening some ladies were walking by and observing what they believed was a public church of worship, they sat upon the steps, saying they guessed they would wait and attend the service. I overheard the remark, and told them there was no public services, that it was a private chapel. They took the explanation in good part, but they gave me a queer look. And it is for these reasons that I like to be alone. Every morning I sit at the piano and sing the masses just as if my chapel were a great church and every seat occupied by a devout worshiper. I prefer to be alone with my books—and then, you see, I am not alone. I am living for the future life. The present existence has been nothing but a disappointment to me. It seems to me as if I had already lived at least 400 years."

Entering the chapel from the front door one would require no fertile imagination to believe himself within the four walls of a church. There are the stained-glass windows, the Bible on a pulpit and the piano near by. The entire house consists of one room, with a small kitchen and dining-room in the rear, and dormitory in the tower, and when Miss Martine is not absent from home teaching music or French she is the house's sole occupant. Born sixty-six years ago on Christmas Day, she says she would have had all kinds of wealth if she had continued the search for missing papers which entitle her to a great estate that was left to her by the McNeils of the highlands of Scotland, from whom she descended. These papers she failed to produce, and in pursuance to the Scotch custom the property has long since gone into the public orphanage fund. She says she was educated to be a nun, and although she never took the veil, she has always considered that she had taken the vow of a nun, and for that reason has avoided the society of men, even to refusing the offer of marriage. Her habits of life are simple. She eats two meals a day. She acquired the no-breakfast habit during Lent, and has seen no reason after long years to change; and for thirty years she says she has eaten no meat, although making no claim to being a vegetarian.

Moses Besbeck, Aged Twelve Years, and two photographs taken by him with a camera attached to a flying kite.

Photographing from a kite is a pastime successfully indulged in by Moses Besbeck, aged 12 years, of No. 1141 East Eleventh street, as the samples of his work given herewith show. He overcame several difficulties before he was able to take the pictures, but he is of the try, try again sort.

An important auxiliary in making kite photographs is a trapeze. Besbeck found it no easy matter to make this light enough. Moreover he had to make a kite large and strong enough to hold the camera upright and keep it from swinging.

His first trapeze, being too heavy, would not work, neither did the kite come up to requirements. Nothing daunted, the boy made a larger trapeze and a stronger kite. For the benefit of other lads who may wish to follow his example, Besbeck describes both thus:

"The trapeze was made of two sticks about three-sixteenths of an inch thick, one-half of an inch wide and one and one-half feet long. The end of one stick was nailed to the center of the other. Pieces of string were tied to the end of each stick, and then together.

"The kite was a nine-foot tailless one, covered with coarse, rough, white tissue. I flew it at Twelfth and Paloma streets, and let out three balls of thick hemp cord."

The camera was over Eleventh street and Central avenue when the pictures were taken. The method of photographing in the air, the lad explains as follows:

"To take the pictures I had to run the camera along the string until it was about ten yards from the kite, then I tied a strong thread on the camera lever and let the kite ascend. As it went further I let out more thread tied to the camera lever until I had used two spools. Then I pulled the lever, drew the kite in, changed the numbers of the films, and repeated the process until I had used six films. Two out of the half-dozen pictures were good."

Bad Attack of Dysentery Cured.

"An honored citizen of this town was suffering from a severe attack of dysentery. He told a friend if he could obtain a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, he felt confident of being cured, he having used this remedy in the West. He was told that I kept it in stock and lost no time in obtaining it, and was promptly cured," says M. J. Leach, druggist, of Wolcott, Vt.—[Adv.

AT RAWHIDE.

Samuel Newhouse and Party of Noted Visitors Look Over the Camp.

RAWHIDE, June 5.—Last week was a busy one for Rawhide. Samuel Newhouse and his party, including Mrs. Elinor Glyn, spent two days here, and Mr. Newhouse, in particular, was pleased with the camp and its appearance. In the party were Count De Laborde and William Miller Graham of Santa Barbara, and several ladies besides. The Count has been interested in mining in Nevada for some time, and was very much taken with the camp. He went away with an option on a part of two Mascot claims, the remainder of which is owned by the Grutt brothers. He said on leaving that he would undoubtedly return and take it up.

Since his departure there has been a strike on the Jordan lease of Mascot claim No. 1, where some of the high grade of the camp was uncovered. Mining experts declare that, without a doubt, the Kearns No. 2 ledge has been found on the other side of the hill, from where this high grade was taken. The most remarkable part of it is that the ledge goes around the hill, instead of going through it. But that it is the same ledge there is no doubt. On lease No. 5, which adjoins, there is the same ledge, of which Gene Grutt, the father of Rawhide, says there is not the least doubt. He is authority for the statement also that the same ledge crops on the Jordan.

The discovery on the latter was made a few days ago, and this morning there were a band of high graders on the hill, and they got some very pretty specimens.

Mr. Newhouse says that he will return to the camp in two weeks. He is interested with the Count in the two Mascots, and says that he will take on some other properties upon his return. He said that the work that is being done is sufficient evidence of the faith and confidence the men here have in their properties, and should inspire the newcomer. He added that the TOPICS OF THE STAGE.

Young actors in general may all be herded into the raw-raw sophomore class; they have escaped the humility of the amateur just far enough to forget their own inconsequence; they all perform with the same futility, do the same foolish, theatric things, avoid any similitude of life by the widest margin.

But there are occasional moments in which a new actor appears who is neither green nor conceited, who goes about his business quietly and effectively, and who, even in a short succession of comparatively unimportant parts, strikes such a note of telling fidelity that his endeavor cannot escape without deserved comment.

I might say, before proceeding to secondly, that this preambles a few remarks about Charley Ruggles. Charley Ruggles is a Los Angeles boy whom I have no wish to set on a pinnacle of self-esteem—indeed, I think he'd be very uncomfortable there—but who is surely the most realistic actor that this town has produced in many a day.

If you count by years, since young Ruggles is scarcely out of his teens, he is a real prodigy; but as a matter of fact he is not a prodigy at all, but a young man who has gained maturity early.

Like Ibsen—whose work he abominates—Charley Ruggles first hit the path of endeavor in the drug business. Young Ibsen twirled the pestile for Apothecary Reimann, in the little town of Grimstad, and Ruggles, after a scholastic attack on chemistry, found a similar job in San Francisco. Presently, Mr. Ruggles quit his files of herbs and ungents—he was a wholesaler—and went in for the drama. Mr. Ibsen did likewise, but at this point we shall cease to make comparisons.

"The first part I ever played," said Ruggles, chatting in his dressing-room the other day, "was really a triple part. I was a piece of the mob in the first act, in the second put on a waiter's apron and swooped across the stage, and in the third scene I lifted up my voice as one of a quartette. I remember the second act well—for two reasons. As I made my entrance I felt called upon to make a little extra effort, so I did a comedy walk and got a real laugh from the front; and when I went behind again I got something else from the stage manager. He was the maddest stage manager I ever saw, and when he had finished broiling me, I had no more humor in me than a bottle of bitters."

The man who can make a small part stand out in absolute relief, amid a variety of much larger roles, possesses true actorial talent.

Did you see the Belasco production of "The Middleman?" If you did, you cannot fail to remember young Mr. Ruggles's vividly lifelike portrayal of the little, formal old English newspaper reporter, completely submerged in the very essence of obsequiousness, peering formally over his spectacles, jotting carefully all the humdrum nothings in his little note-book—in a word, a perfectly realistic type.

Another very lifelike study, though touched with a little over-intensity, was the Greaser, in "The Girl of the Golden West." I think Charley Ruggles and Willis Marks have the joint distinction of being the only actors to place on view the Greaser as he dwells in our midst—unkempt, unromantic, sullen and pathetically hopeless. Other players have never been able to resist the tinsel and glitter of the Spanish caballero of tradition, wearing expensive sombreros and jingling masquerade suits that never saw a moment of real utility.

And then there was the self-willed, headstrong boy in "The Three Of Us," and a Frenchman or two and a German who might have been straight off Unter den Linden.

I think this astonishing Teutonic facility will mean fame and money to Ruggles in the future. He has a natural aptitude for Germans, partially —perhaps—because he has a strain of German blood in his own veins.

This actor has ambitions toward character comedy. Musical comedy would suit him well, and he hopes to essay it—some day.

He began his career with the Belasco and Mayer firm in San Francisco. Afterward he went to New York, played there a season, and then returned to his home in Los Angeles. He has been on the stage about four years.

"In New York," said he, "the specializing of parts is becoming an absolutely predominating factor in theatrical life. The author of a play describes the age, height, appearance, and even the supposed weight of his fictional character—and they look around till they find a living replica in some actor. If they want a man with blond hair, they get a man with blond hair—no wigs, if you please. If the part calls for an actor of generally mature appearance, they bait their traps for such a one, wait until he goes by, and then nab him.

"When I was in New York I was considering three or four possible jobs, and, one afternoon, I was loitering past a well-known theatrical building. I stopped a moment to look at something in the street, when a man, hatless, rushed out the front door of this institution. He held a part in his hand; he would first consult the part, and then look at me.

"'Are you an actor?' he said, coming over to where I stood.

"'Yes,' I said.

"'Want a job?'

"'Well, I don't know; perhaps——'

"'Come right in! Come right in! We want a young man weighing about 140 pounds, 5 feet 7 inches tall, and with light hair and complexion.'

"So I went in, and presently I took the part, and played it on the road for months.

"I'm not particular as to what sort of work I do, as long as I am assigned to real characters.

"I'm supposed to play juveniles, as a specialty, but I hate juveniles. The dramatist of the average sort has only one species of juvenile—an ass. I had rather manufacture an extra pair of papier-maché legs and play a sick calf. Why the dramatic young man must, as a rule, be such a namby-pamby fool is not plain to me.

"I should hate to stick to one thing, for the actor who is forced to confine himself to a certain peculiar character, either by his own personality or the tyrannical approval of the public, becomes literally warped into his groove, and seldom, if ever, succeeds in breaking out.

"I realize that to succeed permanently in acting, more than in any other craft, only means that the endeavorer must keep on succeeding, for the work today is shattered tomorrow, and the ranks of the theatrical profession are always too crowded with has-beens."

Well, if Charley Ruggles can succeed in doing all that, and then doesn't put the anti-climax of swelled-headedness on his good efforts, he ought to be a great actor. Vanity is the siren that has lured many and many a promising player to destruction.

The reformers may linger long upon the evils of dissipation, the pastor of industry may preach the reward of work and the sticktoitive zealot may intone the certain recompense of concentration—but oh, for a new Voice, crying in the player's wilderness upon the hidden bane of Vanity!

Verily, Vanity is the trap set for the man who has shunned all other dangers. She is the last temptation of the actor—and the most fearful, for she is cloaked in self-righteousness, and wears a false front of honest attainment.

So one little prayer, please, that Mr. Ruggles may never be spoiled by his admirers—and another that he may learn the art that conceals art, without which no actor may become great.

I might explain that Mr. Ruggles's peroxided temples are not intentional. His brown make-up in "The Girl," roughened his skin, and he put on peroxide as a remedy—and it wandered—that's all. This paragraph is by request.

MANTELL'S UNDERTAKINGS.

Some of the Epoch-Marking Productions in Shakespearean Actor's Interesting Career.

Robert Mantell first went on the stage October 21, 1876, playing the sergeant in Boucicault's "Arrah-na-Pogue." In 1877 he acted as juvenile man with Charles Matthews, and came to the United States the following year, in the same capacity, with Mme. Modjeska.

In 1883 Mr. Mantell played Loris Ipanoff, with Fanny Davenport's production of Sardou's "Fedora." The following year he created the principal male role in Steele Mackaye's "Dakolar," in New York City. In 1887 he produced "Monbars," reviving "The Corsican Brothers" the following year.

His first essay in "Hamlet" and "Othello," as a star, was in 1893. He revived "Richelieu" in 1895, and "The Lady of Lyons" the following year.

About 1900 he went into Shakespearean drama with a determination to force the public to an acknowledgment of its worth. "Romeo and Juliet" was revived that year, and two seasons later came his production of "King Richard III." He first played Richard in New York City in 1905, the following year doing Shylock, and also Brutus.

"King Lear," the piece which brought him the prize of general recognition, was revived in New York in 1905, and a production about the same time was "Macbeth." "King John," his latest Shakespearean novelty, was essayed in Chicago last November. The production was a joy to the classicists, and was received with favor by the critics, though it is not included in his general repertoire.

Tomorrow afternoon Miss Cora Mel Patten will give a reading of Hauptmann's "Sunken Bell," before the Ebell Club.

THE LOCAL WEEK.

Robert Mantell, whose life work in the exploitation of Shakespeare was finally rewarded, a season or two ago, by general critical recognition throughout the country, wil present a week of repertoire at the Mason Operahouse, commencing tomorrow night.

Mr. Mantell's opening play will be the one which first brought him into the white light of genuine fame—"King Lear."

Tuesday night he will play "Macbeth;" Wednesday night, "Hamlet;" Thursday night, "Lear;" Friday night, "Othello;" Saturday afternoon, "Macbeth," and Saturday night, "King Richard III."

The management promises a fine equipment for each production, and accuracy in historic detail.

His company includes Marie Booth Russell, who has been his leading actress for some time, and a large number of supporting players, most of whom have had long experience in the classic drama.

The night performances will begin at 8 o'clock, and the matinée at 2.

Clyde Fitch's comedy-drama "The Girl and the Judge," will be used this week by the Belasco stock company, with Joseph Galbraith as the young judge, and Florence Smythe as the girl.

The piece is based on the kleptomaniacal tendencies of the mother of the girl, a weakness which is confessed by the parent during a scene in the dark—a form of dramatic effect which is a favorite utility of Fitch. The play abounds in good comedy scenes, chiefly furnished by a boarding-house keeper who has known better days. Carrie Clarke Warde, in this part, will make her first appearance with the Belasco company.

Following "The Girl and the Judge," the Belasco players will offer a double bill, comprising "The Private Secretary" and "The First Born," powerful little one-act dramas of San Francisco's Chinatown, which was seen several seasons ago at this theater.

"The Wrong Mr. Wright" will be seen at the Burbank during the week commencing today. This Broadhurst farce comedy is familiar to most theater-goers, and will enlist the full strength of Morosco's organization.

The new Orpheum programme lists five new acts. The headlined feature is Marcel's pictures, an offering which has not been seen here since the day when living pictures were a novelty. His act is a very heavy one, enlisting the services of twenty-five people.

Salerno, famous juggler, will come again. Kennedy and Rooney offer "The Happy Medium," a brief comedy. William Tompkins is a monologist new to the Coast. Nell Lockwood and Hazel Bryson, who have recently returned from a tour of the Orpheum and allied circuits, will make a week's appearance only.

The Bedouin Arabs, Shields and Rogers and the six English Rockers remain for another week.

Herr Fischer's company will make its first appearance under Richard Cummings's direction this week, the bill being his own comedy, "Fun in a Hammock."

Al G. Flournoy has arranged a double bill for Royal next week, consisting of "All Mixed Up," a musical comedy, and "King Doodle," a travesty.

"The Wrong Professor," by James T. Lee, will form the dramatic offering at the Unique this week. The musical burlesque company, under the direction of C. T. Wippern, will continue its tabloid operas, staging "Olivette," with Kate Carlson in the name part.

JOHN DREW'S MEMORIES.

Comedian Reverts Seriously to the Parts of Other Years, Mostly Successes Now Forgotten.

On his tour of the West, says the Dramatic Mirror, John Drew has seemed to drop his debonnair air and to talk more seriously than he has yet been recorded as doing in the metropolis. Perhaps he thinks the metropolis will have him only gay, while the road will tolerate some plunges into nether depths of earnestness. Perhaps it is because blunt chroniclers of facts appertaining to the stage have been printing the date of his birth and reveling in their knowledge that next November he will have rounded out his fifty-fifth year.

"How soon they forget what we have done," he has sighed in a half dozen western cities. "Even the New York critics, who ought to keep track of prominent actors, do not always seem to know what they are talking about, and ask silly questions."

Laboriously to the rising generation of interviewers he enumerated his forgotten successes, his Petruchio, his Mirabel, his Henry Dontin of Dorincourt, his Don Felix and his Charles Surface. With more than a dash of dolor he has talked of parts he would have liked to play had he gained the consent of public and author.

"I wanted to have a try at Dick Dudgeon in 'The Devil's Disciple,' but Shaw wouldn't let me," he said. "He said I couldn't play it, and as he regarded that as an adequate reason and correct conclusion the matter was settled. Shaw agreed, however, that I could interpret the role of the dentist in 'You Never Can Tell,' and that I could satisfy his critical sense in 'Captain Brassbound's Conversion.' I should have enjoyed playing 'Arms and the Man,' but the public likes me where I am and that settles the matter for my manager."

Dramagraphs.

Emma Calvé netted more than $15,000 from her American concert tour during the past winter.

Before beginning her season at Covent Garden, Luisa Tetrazzini invested some of her American dollars in diamonds in Paris.

A concert tour, embracing one hundred concerts, extending from coast to coast, has been arranged for Lillian Nordica, the soprano, next season.

Charles Klein is at his country place at Rowayton, Ct., completing a new play for Henry B. Harris, for production next season.

John Drew's play next season is to be "Jack Straw," a comedy by William Somerset Maugham, that is now being played by Charles Hawtry at the Vaudeville Theater, London.

Louis James is preparing for his next season's production of "Peer Gynt." The Mansfield scenery has been examined and is being rebuilt to fit any stage.

Eugene Walter, author of "The Undertow" and "The Wolf," has completed another play, which as yet is without a title, though it is said to in no wise lack plot or interest.

A recent revival of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" in London has made a great hit. Reports say the production was lavish and that the music, like good wine, is better for its age.

Edmund Breese, the original John Burkett Ryder of "The Lion and the Mouse," gave a dinner to Julia Herchett in Boston recently in honor of her thousandth performance in that play.

Annie Russell will return to the stage next October, after a rest of more than a year. She will appear first in London as Emma in "Paid in Full." Her supporting company and the production will be entirely American.

The two hundred and seventy-fifth consecutive performance of "The Merry Widow" at the New Amsterdam Theater will be celebrated on June 13 by the distribution of Merry Widow hats to the women in the audience.

Marie Dressler will return to London next week with the scenario of a new musical comedy which she will produce under her own management. Edgar Smith and Maurice Levi are the authors.

The Friars, at their big festival in New York, May 14, realized over $15,000, of which sum about $8000 was derived from the sale of programmes. Out of the profits 10 per cent. will be turned over to the actors' fund and the balance will be devoted to the uses of the Friars.

The first English company ever to make a tour of Spain, is now giving the first of a series of thirty performances before the royal family, the corps diplomatique, and the Spanish élite, at the Comedy Theater, Madrid. The principal pieces to be performed are "Miss Hook of Holland" and "The Dairymaids," with the scenery, costumes and properties brought especially from London. All the boxes and seats have been taken for the series.

As Eddie Foy was on his way to his home in New Rochelle in an automobile one evening last week, the machine was held up at a lonely place on the road by two masked men, who requested the comedian to hand over his valuables. As Mr. Foy did not comply at once, the road agents lifted him out of his seat and searched him thoroughly. They found only $2.90, and were so disgusted that they punctured the tires of the auto and did other damage to it that terminated its usefulness for the time being. Mr. Foy was forced to walk four miles to the nearest garage, where he hired another machine to take him home.

Enrico Caruso, the tenor, sailed last week on the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria for London, where he sings this Saturday at a concert to be given in Albert Hall in aid of the League of Mercy under the patronage of the King and Queen. He will then go to Paris to make his first appearance in opera in the French capital in the performance of "Rigoletto," arranged for the benefit of the Society of Dramatic Authors and Composers. Mme. Melba will sing Gilda. From Paris Caruso will go to his Florence home to rest there till October, when he will fill engagements in Germany and Austria before returning to New York. During the season just closed he has sung over ninety times in opera and con-

Col. William F. Cody, better known in all sections of the world as Buffalo Bill, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of his entrance into the amusement field, on May 19, at Washington, D. C., where the Wild West was filling an engagement. The performances were attended by members of the President's family, Gen. Eugene A. Carr, Gen. Wesley Merritt, and twenty other officers of the army, with whom Colonel Cody served as a scout many years ago. There were also Cabinet officers, Senators, Congressmen and innumerable others who figure largely in the life of the National Capital. Quentin Roosevelt, who has developed a liking for appearing in public since he had the adventure with Howard Thursday a few weeks ago, rode in the Deadwood coach, and was introduced to all of the Indian chiefs. Col. Cody received many distinguished visitors, and was showered with floral offerings and good wishes by mail and telegraph.

HERBERT TALKS OPERA.

Famous American Composer Recounts Some of the Difficulties That Beset Contemporary Music-Maker.

"Who is going to write the great American opera?" was the question put to Victor Herbert, says the Musical Leader, who has been responsible for more popular successes than any other writer of light opera at the present time. There was no reason to suppose that Mr. Herbert would reply "I am," yet when he said that many things would probably happen before that work was written, it occurred to his questioner that he might be able to throw a new light on a question which is in the minds of a much larger number of people than the ultra music lovers of everything non-American would like to admit. Accordingly, Mr. Herbert, whose symphonic writings stand as firmly to his credit and show as complete a musical mastery as do the catchiest bits in "M'lle Modiste," "The Red Mill" and any number of other Broadway successes, was then prodded with questions.

"It seems uncertain," he replied, "when conditions shall adjust themselves in a manner which would permit of such development on the part of our musicians and composers when we see cities like Cincinnati and Pittsburgh try to fall out of line because their orchestral attempts do not pay. I cannot see how Cincinnati could have brought itself to abandon its regular concerts and its own orchestra, when it has so many millionaires to whom five times the amount necessary to support them would be the merest bagatelle.

"Do they never think of what they owe to the children of their city? The country will never be great musically until music, and the best music, can be heard everywhere. I have young men come in to see me with compositions that show tremendous talent. But what do they know of music? Two or three times they may have heard a great orchestra, but their imagination has never received the proper impulse and they are insensible to everything really great. I do not believe that genius manifests itself and accomplishes great things because it is genius. I think more genius is killed in this country than we ever dream of—killed because it has nothing upon which to feed, and no source from which it may derive assistance except in the few isolated cases where individuals interest themselves.

"We who write light or heavy opera must reckon with the people at large and with the musical conditions of the country. Take, for instance, in my case. I cannot write freely even the light operatic works. Do you think I write a tenor part as I would if I knew a Caruso were going to sing it? No; the probability is that I write and rewrite, and do the very thing that I hate the most. I write down to the possibility of finding some tenor who can handle the easier form, preferring to have a lighter part, but one which is within the range of the average tenor.

"Instead of expressing our musical feelings we write for the limitations of those who are to interpret our work, and while this is almost humiliating, it is better than to write in a style that cannot be well interpreted. To illustrate: It has been claimed that people nowadays care less for Wagnerian opera than they did formerly. Now you do not believe that Wagner means any less to the public than he has meant for the last years? But with all due respect to Mahler, let us look back upon the Seidl days and remember Lilli Lehmann, Marianna Brandt, Albert Niemann and a few of those who gave us "Tristan and Isolde." Can any who remember these singers be blamed because they prefer to live with their memories?

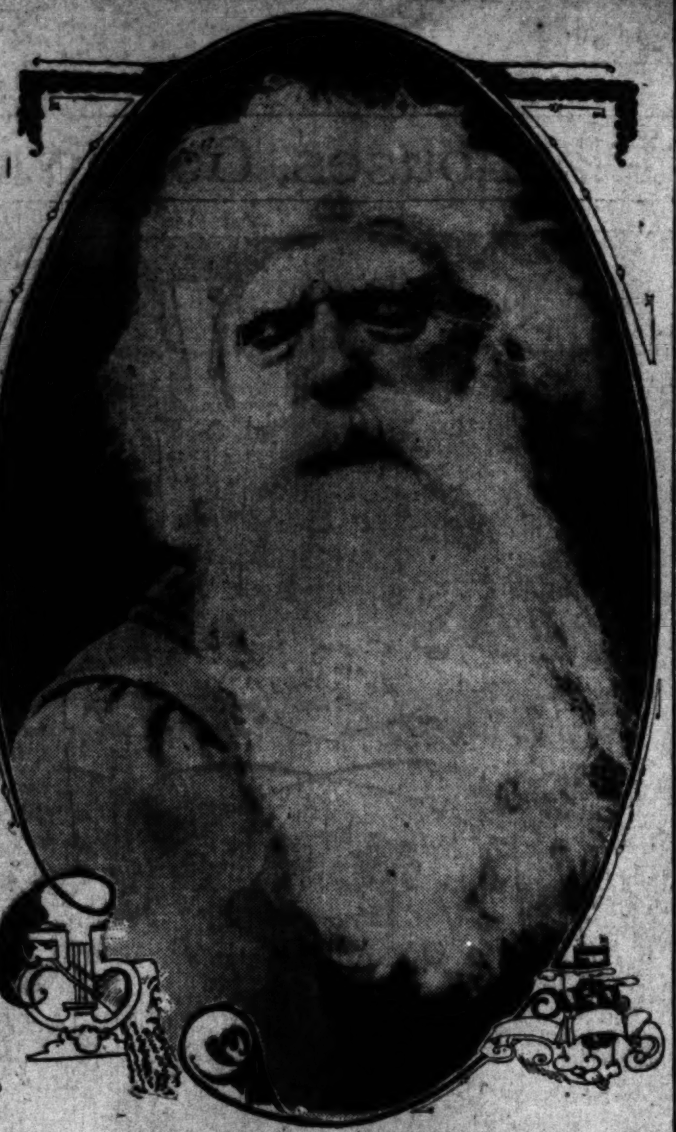
"The trouble in opera is, that we need the illusion as much as we need the voice, and America demands it still more than Europe does. No very young person can be a very great artist. Therefore, we have to take fat tenors for Siegfrieds and we are forced to accept Elsas of 50, and if their deep art and experience are present, where is the voice? For this reason I regard Geraldine Farrar as so remarkable. For her age I find her art wonderful. And Mary Garden, too, is an artist far beyond her years. To return, however, to the application of all this to the writing of the American opera—it is the talent of the people that brings forth great things from those who live among them. I cannot see how any one could set himself down to writing an opera for imaginary people, or rather knowing that the people do not exist who could or would sing the work.

"If I fulfill the engagement I have with Mr. Hammerstein to write a grand opera, I shall expect to write it in English, and that it will be translated for his use, either into French or Italian, as the case may be. Then I may be writing with the capabilities of his people in mind. How could any one doubt that Donizetti wrote for an individual Lucia? He wrote for a specific tenor as well, that is evident from the manner in which he has treated the voice. Well we know that the most beautiful voices in the world are to be found in every State in this country, but that does not help us out very much, because they are just that much raw material. The teachers are here as well as the voices, and it is nonsense to send students away because the teachers here are, on the average, as good as those on the other side. Now, why cannot we use these people?"

Mr. Herbert answered this question himself:

"The singers," he continued, "if they study, only do a little vocal exercising, and they never think of the big things in music or what the big thing in music means. They do not hear enough opera, and if they do, they take it as an amusement and do not hear it in the proper spirit, in the spirit that would lead them into the real thing. It is not their fault that they are superficial and that after they have studied their value is hardly greater than it was before.

"They do not know how to be serious or how to make themselves great, because they are not surrounded by proper influences. The people who could do things for this coutnry also take music as an amusement, and therefore hold it lightly. Music is an amusement just as philosophy or any education is an amusement. I believe that children who go to school consider their work an amusement—I mean the studious ones—and I know perfectly well that when I am sitting alone in my study, whether I am reading, or studying, or writing, it is amusement for me. But, so long as the people who could do it if they wished, do not realize what music means to a nation, the value of its refining influence and its effect upon the mental poise of the people, there is little use in speculating upon the great musical work which such a country will produce."



Robert Mantell as King Lear.

After many years of unremitting but poorly-rewarded labor in exploitation of the classics, Mr. Mantell's portrayal of this complex character, a season or two ago, made him the talk of the metropolis for many days. "Lear" will open Mr. Mantell's week of Shakesperean repertoire here tomorrow evening.

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

The Symphony Orchestra will give its next year's recitals at the Auditorium. That rarest of rare things, a surplus in orchestral work, remains above all current expenses of the previous year. The surplus is about $300, and as there is in addition a provisional fund of $2000 ready to be applied to next season's work, the prospects are very bright.

One of the promised innovations is a chamber music number by Mrs. Harry Lott, Arnold Krauss and Ludwig Opid. Archibald Sessions will probably be the soloist at one of the concerts.

Lovers of violin music will gladly welcome the return of Mrs. Otie Chew-Becker to the local concert stage. Mr. Becker's appearance, likewise, will doubtless be an occasion for comment. He has been teaching quietly here for the past decade, and is without doubt the foremost piano instructor in the Southwest. Years ago he enjoyed a great reputation as a virtuoso, and his talents have probably not depreciated.

Mrs. Becker is one of few women in this part of the country with a European reputation. She made her début in Berlin with the Philharmonic Orchestra, and appeared with many leading European organizations.

They will be heard in two concerts this week, in Simpson Auditorium on Tuesday evening and again on Saturday afternoon.

The Tuesday evening programme will include the Beethoven Sonata in C minor; Op. 30, No. 2; the Mozart Fantasia in D minor; the Brahms Rhapsody, Op. 79; the Bach concerto in E major for violin; the Chopin preludes, Nos. 3, 7, 8, 11, 23 and 22; Liszt's "Saint Francis Preaching to the Birds," Bach's Air for G string; the Sinding Romance in E minor, and Paganini's "Moto Perpetuo."

The final concert of the Lyric Club's season will be given at Simpson Auditorium on Friday evening. Solo participants will be William James Chick, Miss Myrtle Oulette, Miss Bessie Fuhrer, Miss Lucy Fuhrer, Mrs. Eva Young-Zobelein, Miss Edna Wenger, Mrs. Marie Sweet-Baker and Mrs. Ada Marsh-Chick.

The numbers to be presented include Chaminade's "St. John's Eve," Henry Edmond Earle's "A Vision of Angeles;" Frederick Stevenson's "In Rare Vienna;" Abbie Norton Jamison's "The Rose and the Moth;" La Cieca's air, "Gioconda;" Julius Albert Jahn's "Prayer;" Jenkins's "Spring, Come Then;" Loeffler's "By the Rivers of Babylon;" Stevenson's "Italian Serenade," and Mrs. Jamison's "Mammy's Lullaby." Miss Oulette will offer two harp solos.

The season's closing concert for the the First Congregational orchestra, to be given on Tuesday evening, promises pleasing variety and some novelties. Among the numbers are Schubert's "Rosamunde" overture, a special arrangement of airs from "The Bohemian Girl," a march from Moszkowski's "Boabdil," a suite from the incidental music to "Monsieur Beaucaire," a new orchestral number by Morton F. Mason of this city, a trio for three violoncelli, and an idyl by Michaelis, with oboe and euphonium solos.

Miss Grace Helen Nash, who has recently returned from Europe, will be the soloist. She will sing airs from "The Magic Flute" and from "Figaro."

Each year the choir boys of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral raise the necessary money to defray the expense of a week at Catalina by giving a concert. This year the recital will be given at Blanchard Hall, June 30.

The programme will include Eaton Faning's "Song of the Vikings," Becker's "Springtide," Handel's "Smiling Dawn" trio, Barnby's "Soft Southern Breezes," Ingraham's "The Owl and the Pussy Cat," Nevein's "Wynken, Blynken and Nod," and Buck's "Paul Revere's Ride."

Soloists will include Masters Drown, Brunger, Ross and Day, and Messrs. Parker, Sibertson and Saunders.

The concert will be under the direction of Ernest Douglas, with Jean de Chauvenet at the piano.

Director Moore's programme at Eastlake this afternoon will incude Martorell's "La France" waltz, an air and chorus from Verdi's "Corsar," Mercadante's "Diverlassene Dido" overture, and a selection from Verdi's "I Lombardi."

Messrs. Douglas and De Chauvenet will give their third studio recital of organ and piano music at the Guild Hall of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral on Tuesday evening.

L. E. Behymer will leave for the East today, probably returning about the middle of July.

A lecture upon Florence and her arts will close E. R. Baumgardt's series at Blanchard Hall this evening.

Attention was called in The Times some weeks ago to the masterful work of Henry Ohlmeyer, with his orchestral band. Mr. Ohlmeyer has now practically completed his organization for this summer, and will present it here the latter part of this week and the first of next, giving an invitation concert at Simpson Auditorium on Tuesday evening, June 16.

The programme on this occasion is of the very finest sort, and of true orchestral magnitude, including a fantasia from "Madam Butterfly," another from "La Boheme," Thomas's "Le Songe D'Une Nuit D'Ete" overture, two Chaminade compositions, Sousa's "Looking Upward" suite, and the Mendelssohn Rondo Capriccioso. Soloists will be the celebrated contrabass Vaclav Jiskra, who will play Limandi's "Divertisement," and Frans Helle, fluegel horn, who will play an excerpt from Saint-Saens "Samson and Delilah."

C. S. DeLano will present Miss Helen Mae Reynolds in a mandolin recital at Symphony Hall, Blanchard building, next Friday evening.

Miss Reynolds will be assisted by Mrs. Russell Hyatt, Miss Edna Lutusky and Mr. DeLano. The Lyra Mandolin and Guitar Club and a quartette from C. S. DeLano's club will also participate in the programme.

The closing concert of the season for the Immanuel Presbyterian Orchestra, of which R. J. Nichols is director, will be given Friday evening, June 19, at the church.

The orchestra will be assisted by the Bessie Fuhrer String Quartette, and by Gladys DeWitt, reader.

Miss Kathleen Lockhart will be heard in recital at the Ebell Clubhouse on Tuesday evening.

Miss Ethel Wyatt, a talented young local pianist, gave an enjoyable recital at Cumnock Hall last Monday evening.

Mrs. Robert Rankin, soprano, contributed several numbers to the programme.

A THANKSGIVING TO GOD.

Lord, thou hast given me a cell,
Wherein to dwell;
A little house whose humble roof
Is weather proof;
Under the spars of which I lie
Both soft and dry;
Where thou, my chamber for to ward,
Hast set a guard
Of harmless thoughts, to watch and keep Me, while I sleep.
Low is my porch, as is my fate;
Both void of state;
And yet the threshold of my door
Is worn by th' poor,
Who thither come, and freely get
Good words, or meat.
Like as my parlor, so my hall
And kitchen's small;
A little buttery, and therein
A little bin,
Which keeps my little loaf of bread
Unchipt, unflead;
Some brittle sticks of thorn or briar
Makes me a fire,
Close by whose living coal I sit,
And glow like it.
Lord, I confess, too, when I dine,
The pulse is thine,
And all those other bits that be
There placed by thee;
The worts, the purslain, and the mess
Of water-cress,
Which of thy kindness thou hast sent;
And my content
Makes those, and my beloved beet,
To be more sweet.
'Tis thou that crown'st my glittering hearth
With guileless mirth.
And giv'st me wassail bowls to drink,
Spiced to the brink.
Lord, 'tis they plenty-dropping hand
That soils my land,
And giv'st me, for my bushel sown,
Twice ten for one;
Thou mak'st my teeming hen to lay
Her egg each day;
Besides, my healthful ewes to bear
Me twins each year;
The while the conduits of my kine
Run cream for wine;
All these, and better, thou dost send Me, to this end—
That I should render, for my part,
A thankful heart;
Which, fired with incense, I resign,
As wholly thine:
But the acceptance, that must be,
My Christ, by Thee.

My Thoughts Go Marching Like an Armed Host.

My thoughts go marching like an armed host
Out of the city of silence, guns and cars;
Troop after troop across my dreams they post
To the invasion of the winds and stars.
Oh, brave array of youth's untamed desire,
With thy bold, dauntless Captain Hope to lead
His raw recruits to Fate's opposing fire,
And up the walls of Circumstance to bleed.
How fares the expedition in the end?
When this, my heart, shall have old age for king
And to the wars no further troop can send,
What final message will the armistice bring?
The host gone forth in youth the world to meet,
In age returns—in victory or defeat?

Art and Artists.

BY ANTONY E. ANDERSON.

Sketches by Two Friends.

Hanson Puthuff and Victor Higgins, two painter friends, have recently returned from a sketching trip of about four weeks in Montecito and Dinsmore Cañon, bringing with them some very interesting work. Mr. Higgins, who is a Chicago man, went back to the Windy City last week, though he is so taken with the landscape of Southern California that he expressed his intention of coming back here early next winter. Mr. Puthuff had decided to go with his friend, but we are glad to know that he changed his mind at the eleventh hour, and that he will now remain with us indefinitely.

Victor Higgins's output was eight sketches and studies, while Hanson Puthuff, more familiar with California's contours and colorings, turned out sixteen. Like all eastern painters, Mr. Higgins found difficulties at every turn, due to our higher scale of light and the consequent subtleties of values and colors, but he met them all with fine patience and humility. As the art students say, he "learnt a lot" from his study out here, and what he learned has undoubtedly added much to his power as a landscape painter.

Of course he still sees our landscape a trifle grayer than our own painters do, but not so very much grayer, after all, and on his next visit he is sure to discover the full gamut of our color.

Among the most interesting of the sketches Mr. Higgins brought back from Montecito is the "Road to Karlsruhe," showing a flat foreground, touched with green to the right and with tall eucalypts to the left. The sky is perhaps a trifle too blue and white in effect, but the grays of the distant hills, which are covered with sage brush, are charmingly rendered. Another is "In Dinsmore Cañon," with gray mists floating over high hills that are remarkably well modeled and lovely in color. Still another gives us a view from Eucalyptus Hill overlooking Montecito Valley. The clump of oaks to the left is well painted. The sunlit valley lies dreaming below.

Mr. Puthuff, of course, knows his California. His various pictures, exhibited last year and the year before, have amply proved his intimate acquaintance with her. His more recent studies show that he is gaining other secrets from her right along. Mr. Puthuff seems to have been born with technical dexterity, for as soon as he discovers a thing he appears to know how to put it down without fumbling. Yet this is perhaps true of all other painters; expression comes with knowledge, and not before.

The largest and most important of Mr. Puthuff's Montecito canvases gives a fine, rhythmic flow of lines to the hills which are its main motive. The rocks in the foreground, while simply and adequately painted, are not permitted to attract too much attention, for the point of interest lies beyond them, in the play of rich color that distinguishes the foliage on the sloping hill to the right. The over-reaching sky, blue and vibrant, with floating clouds, is a very successful bit of painting.

Another good study from Mr. Puthuff's brush is the "Beach at Miramar,' showing a blue sea that is alive just beyond the rocks that show brown and golden with seaweed. The clump of eucalyptus is well done. The pale blue sky, flecked with clouds, is also very successful.

A study of some hills near Montecito, the entrance to Dinsmore Cañon, has an unusually beautiful color scheme. The hills seem to be hung with old tapestries, made gray-green by sage, pale purple by shrubs, with a deeper note due to the live oaks. The sky of this excellent study is a trifle too crudely blue, however; it is somewhat out of harmony.

A quiet and effective bit gives us a sunlit vista, with oak trees and green grass in the immediate foreground. An afternoon shadow is slowly creeping up the distant hills.

E. A. Kilpatrick, a young painter, who renders subtleties of color and tone with much distinction, also did some painting near Montecito when Mr. Puthuff and Mr. Higgins were there. I have not seen Mr. Kilpatrick's sketches, but hope to do so later, when I shall be more than glad to make mention of them.

We need have no fears for the future landscape art in California so long as we have such earnest students as these among us. They are only three among many.

Abbey's Early Experiences.

Even the great men among artists have known the meaning of struggle and discouragement. Our London correspondent gives the following account of the trying experiences Edwin A. Abbey had in the first few weeks of his thirty years' stay in the world's metropolis. Mr. Abbey can afford to smile now, as he recounts his adventures, but at the time of their happening they must have been bitterly hard to bear:

Edwin A. Abbey gave a good many entertaining reminiscences at the luncheon given in his honor this week at the Pilgrims, on the occasion of his departure to the United States to install his paintings in the Pennsylvania State Capitol, and as no account of his speech has been printed, and as this distinguished American artist has almost never been interviewed, a verbatim report of portions of his remarks will make good reading.

"I recall a great many things," he said, "when I look back over the thirty years of my life in England—for I came a pilgrim to these friendly and hospitable shores just thirty years ago.

"When I started upon my journey to England in 1878, I had commissions for a large number of drawings from Messrs. Harper. But after settling up my small affairs, I found myself not particularly blessed with ready cash. And when the publishers celebrated my departure at Delmonico's by a rather lavish breakfast, the guests being afterward driven down to the dock on a four-in-hand drag to see me off, there were moments in the immediate future when the reflection was forced upon me that the money the breakfast cost would be an agreeable thing to have. But I was filled with hope.

"My companion on the voyage was dear old Prof. Youmans, who was going over to spend his holiday with Herbert Spencer, and I was given to understand, in casual conversation on the way over, that living in England was, on the whole, cheap. This is a superstition that generally obtained in America at this time, and it gave me a good deal of comfort.

"From Liverpool, where I parted with my companions, I went immediately to Stratford-on-Avon. The first incautious thing I did was to inquire at the postoffice whether heavy packages of, say, drawings, might be sent to America without the postage having been prepaid. I was assured that this was possible, and thereupon took a nice private sitting-room at the hotel. It appealed to me because Washington Irving had once used it, so I did not ask for any details about terms. This was also incautious. I stayed some weeks and made my drawings, sent them off, with a 2½d. stamp on them, the balance to be collected, and asked for my bill. This bill, although a shock to me, was what you all know it would have been. I left my trunk with the landlord and started for London. In the train, after very careful consideration, I arrived at the result that I could, with care, last there until I received my remittance for the drawings I had just sent off to America, which I reasonably expected would be in about three weeks' time. When the three weeks were up I had a notice from Washington to the effect that my drawings were held for postage in the Dead Letter Office, and would be forwarded to their destination on the receipt of the balance.

"I was a young man of 26, and this was all a long time ago, but I vividly recall those next three weeks. I am not sure it was not a month; it seemed a year. However, this incident being presently closed, I was able to send for the trunk, which I had left behind at Stratford, and as soon as it arrived I hastened to present my letter of introduction, and began immediately to experience hospitality and kindnesses innumerable. The London of Dickens still existed to a great extent, and one still could see in London drawing-rooms many of those who had made the great Victorian era of English letters famous. I saw George Eliot and Browning, Anthony Trollope and Charles Reade, and Matthew Arnold, Tom Hughes, Huxley, and Herbert Spencer, to mention only those who gone from us. Lord Leighton, great man that he was, the steadfast and helpful friend of all young artists, was beginning his career as president of the Royal Academy, and it was one's privilege to hear at Sir Lawrence Alma-Tadema's those musicians who had made famous the Monday 'Pops.'

"But to come to more recent days, in so far as my own profession is concerned, it is a source of great satisfaction to know—as we do know—that here in England the average of performance grows higher every year, and I may be allowed, with my colleagues, to be very proud of the growing excellence of the work of the younger men whom we, in our turn, have watched from their beginnings, and in whose careers we have taken an interest."

ART NOTES.

At the Blanchard gallery this week are to be seen three large and striking pictures by Frederick Melville Du Mond. Among the new pictures at Steckel's are some interesting studies of horses by Harry C. Bailey, and some good pictures, landscapes, figure studies, etc., by John A. Rich. Kanst's has a striking snow scene by Svend Svendson, some excellent new landscapes by Granville Redmond, and a fine copy of Millet's "Gleaners" by Fannie E. Duvall, who is still in Paris. Gould's shows a lifelike portrait of a young girl, painted outdoors, by Antonia Melville of Santa Monica; the laughing face is sparkling and vital.

Helma Haynsen Jahn has just finished her fine portrait of Mrs. Campbell-Johnston, among the best of the recent pictures from her brush. She will start immediately on a portrait of a child of two years, a little boy on a hobby horse, out of doors. Mrs. Jahn's new studio is in the Birkel building.

Jessie M. Washburn will leave tomorrow for a year of art study in Europe. She will join a class from the Chase School of Art, New York, for a three months' tour of Italy, spending the winter in Paris, and visiting Switzerland, Germany, Holland and England before her return.

The College of Fine Arts, Garvanza, will hold its seventh annual reception and exhibition of students' work, in the gallery of the school, on the evening and afternoon of Thursday next. The exhibition is, of course, open to the public.

MAKING MEN RIGHT.

BRAIN STUDIES OF GREAT VALUE.

DETERMINATION OF PHYSICAL CENTERS OF ACTIVITY.

Abnormal Muscular Conditions Become Better Understood and Measures Are Developed for Restoring Normal Nerve Conditions for Betterment of Humanity in General.

Although there is a very expensive connection of the various parts of the brain with one another, it has long been believed that each several function possesses an individual habitation if not a name. Physiologists and physicians have for many years been endeavoring to determine location. They began with a clean slate. They assumed nothing, and only tabulated such demonstrations as hung together in evidence. There have been three methods of investigation possible—by the study of comparative anatomy and physiology, by direct experimentation on animals, and by the tabulation of symptoms exhibited by men suffering localized brain injuries and disease, and their relations to the injuries found on operation or post mortem.

By comparative anatomy and physiology there can be observed in certain animals a very marked preponderance of some particular function, and observation may reveal which parts of the brain are specially developed. Thus the sense of taste is so preponderant that nearly one-half its brain is for taste in the catfish. In the microscopic study of the growth and cellular arrangement of this brain the observer can gain some knowledge of its meaning. In the rabbit's brain the sense of smell is prominent. In the eagle, sight; while in the blind fish and the mole there is corresponding decrease in the seeing part of the brain.

Most of these tests have been made on dogs and monkeys, their brains most closely resembling the human organ. With the animal anaesthetized and a small portion of the brain surface exposed, a delicate electric current applied to certain parts of convolutions of the brain will cause certain muscles to contract. For example, the electric point may be placed at one end of a convolution and cause the toes to contract; applied a little farther, the foot contracts; farther, and the leg muscles act. If these parts of the gray matter be destroyed, paralysis of the same muscles results. Function is ended. These are the surest tests because muscular action can be observed. Sensation is subjective, and unless there is some action that indicates pain, or pleasure, or seeing, or hearing, etc., the experimenter cannot judge an effect. It may be mentioned here that the brain itself is devoid of feeling of any kind. Stimulation of what is now recognized as the center of hearing caused an animal to prick up its ears and bark, as if it had heard some sound. Destruction of this center results in permanent deafness. Removal of the cerebellum—the organ of coordination or harmony of muscular action—from a pigeon caused the bird to fly with greater gyrations than the bat.

It will be seen that electric stimulus tests are largely limited to the upper and outer surfaces of the brain, the inner and under surfaces not being reachable. Neither are the higher faculties of mind to be located by such method.

The right half of the cerebrum controls the left half of the body, and vice versa. If the right arm is paralyzed by injury of its motor center, the injury will be found in the left side of the brain. If the hearing center in the right half of the brain is destroyed, the left ear will be deaf. Both right and left centers have direct connection through nerves where unity of action, as in moving the eyes, is required.

If a man is struck on the head by a small, sharp instrument, he may show, in addition to pain and shock, such symptoms as tingling, convulsive contraction, or paralysis of a group of muscles in the hand or foot of either the right or left side. The surgeon removes the splintered bone which is pressing upon or into the brain, and the man recovers.

It must not be thought that brain centers are sharply defined like a mosaic, nor that the centers as marked have no other function. There is probably mutual occupation of some of these areas by sensory and motor cells.

The ability to locate by means of the symptoms in cases of injury and disease of the brain the exact site has in

Charles Webster Bell, Fred Elmer Wilcox, Samuel Hinds, Sumner Cristy, Roy Hull and others. The choruses were extremely good and the jokes clever and original.

Equal in social importance, if not in members, was the charity bridge party, which was given Tuesday afternoon at "The Blossoms," the picturesque home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Blossom, for the benefit of the Pasadena Children's Training School. The function was arranged by the young women of the auxiliary, and was a social and financial success. The tables for both bridge and 500 were arranged on the verandas and under the trees on the lawn, where Misses Irene Grosse and Cora Auten received the guests. Mrs. William H. Nevin assisted in seating the 150 society matrons and maids present. The prizes were won by Mmes. Clarence Austin, D. H. Girouard, John Grosse, G. M. Barber, William Morgan and Miss Pauline Lutz. These were presented by Mmes. Philip L. Auten, William Scripps, J. S. Glasscock and Miss Sinclair.

One of the large affairs of the week was the reception and musicale given Monday evening by Rev. and Mrs. Henry T. Staats of North Raymond avenue, complimentary to their son, Henry T. Staats, Jr., and his wife, who have recently come here from New York to reside. Violin and piano music with several vocal numbers made up a programme which was enjoyed. The house was beautifully ornamented with yellow roses and wood ferns, and was illuminated with waxen tapers. Mrs. Staats was assisted by Mmes. Hudson W. Woodworth, William Douglas Turner, Newell Watson, Hayden, Lloyd Macy, William Vedder and D. S. Green. Mrs. William R. Staats presided at the table in the dining-room, where a bevy of pretty girls assisted, including Misses Carol Green, Isabel and Clara Watson, Anita Dodge, Marion Painter, Grace Vedder, Bessie Dodge and Virginia Lynch.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Anderson of Waverly Drive entertained Monday in honor of the twentieth anniversary of their wedding. The house was beautified with quantities of white roses, and the nuptial idea was carried out in the accessories of the buffet luncheon, where heart-shaped cakes and confections, as well as ices moulded in heart shape, suggested the motif. There were twenty guests present, including friends from Los Angeles.

"Sunnycrest," the home of Rev. and Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, was the scene Tuesday of a large gathering, when Dr. and Mrs. Burdette entertained with their last Tuesday evening of the season. Mrs. Walter Raymond sang several solos, and Miss Alice Coleman contributed piano numbers. These fortnightly salons will be resumed early in October.

Mrs. Hampton L. Story was the hostess Thursday afternoon at a prettily-appointed card party, which was the second of a series she is giving. Five hundred was the game and the prizes were won by Mmes. George Ross, E. M. Kelley, George W. Stimson and W. D. McGilvray. The card tables were arranged in the music-room, which was profusely ornamented with garden roses. Each of the guests was presented with a souvenir of the occasion, in the form of a copy of one of Paul de Longpre's famous flower paintings. Those present were: Mmes. Clinton P. Morehous, E. R. Hull, Phillip Lester Auten, W. D. McGilvray, Henry H. Sinclair, Charles W. Bell, Lawrence Hurlburt, A. H. Sellers, William Strain, Benjamin Blossom, James Montgomery, William Jerrens, C. S. Cristy, A. R. Dodworth, H. M. Lutz, William Franklin Knight, A. R. Metcalf, E. M. Kelly, Frank Stevens, Theodore Welsh and George B. Ross.

Mrs. Thomas McDougall has formally announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Priscilla McDougall, and Will A. Merwin, son of the late Rev. A. Moss Merwin of State street, Pasadena.

Mrs. C. M. Tulloch of "Hill Farm," San Rafael Heights, gave a charming juvenile party Tuesday afternoon in honor of her three children, Diantha, John and Mary Harvey. There were forty little folks present, who enjoyed an al fresco merrymaking with all the acompaniments dear to childhood.

Among charmingly-appointed functions was that given Friday afternoon by Mrs. Neal K. Traylor and sister, Miss Florence Doolittle, at the home of their mother, Mrs. S. H. Doolittle, on South Orange Grove avenue, complimentary to Miss Vestina Scobey, who is soon to wed Harold Doolittle. The house was appropriately ornamented in wedding white and green, and wedding bells were everywhere in evidence. The game was hearts, and the score cards were heart-shape, ornamented with cupids and wedding bells. Shasta daisies and Bermuda lilies were used in decoration in the living-room, where the card tables were arranged, and in the dining-room coreopsis gave a pretty sunshiny effect. Mrs. S. H. Doolittle and Mrs. Mattison Crandall Scobey, mother of the bride-elect, assisted in receiving the guests and with them stood Mrs. John W. Traylor, Mrs. Neal K. Traylor, Misses Doolittle and Scobey. Prizes were awarded and those who participated in the game were Mmes. Chamberlain, David Smith, John W. Traylor, Wallace Woodworth, LeRoy Henderson, Carl Nash, Fred Nash, Roy Davis, M. A. I can now do more work with less exertion, and feel much better. It supports my figure perfectly, and is the strongest and most serviceable corset I have ever worn."

FOR PIMPLES, TOO

New Discovery Cures Eczema and Eradicates Minor Skin Troubles Over Night.

A few months ago the dispensers of poslam, the new discovery for the cure of eczema, decided to allow the druggists of the country to handle it. Previous to that time it could only be obtained direct from the laboratories.

Since this change in the method of distribution, poslam has met with the most phenomenal success of anything introduced to the drug trade in the last 30 years. All leading druggists, including the Owl Drug Co. in Los Angeles, are now carrying the special 50-cent size recently adopted, also the $2 jar.

This great success is not surprising when it is remembered that, in eczema cases, poslam stops the itching with the first application, proceeds to heal immediately, and cures chronic cases in a few weeks. In minor skin troubles, such as pimples, blackheads, acne, herpes, blotches, rash, etc., results show after an overnight application. Experimental samples of poslam are sent to any one by mail free of charge, by the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West Twenty-fifth street, New York City.

Join Brent's Home Furnishing Clubs

Our Sewing Machine Club has been very successful, and we have had so many requests to organize other clubs that we have decided to meet the popular demand in every respect.

The Club plan is very popular in the East—the working idea is that the Club plan enables the merchant, on account of increased sales, to sell all articles for less money, thereby making a substantial saving for the purchaser.

All Clubs Limited to 100 Members

So that our Clubs will not become too large and unwieldy, we are compelled to limit the membership to 100. As fast as the first Clubs are completed, new Clubs will be formed.

Mrs. Chauncey Depew.

OF CHARMING PERSONALITY, CULTURED, REFINED, AND WELL GOWNED, SHE IS AN AVOWED SOCIAL LEADER.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—When Senator Depew brought Miss May Palmer to Washington as his bride, a brilliant career was assured her, for at that time the horizon of the New York orator was unclouded, and few could boast his personal prestige. But Washingtonians have taken note that the man who is crowned with laurel today may tomorrow be cast into a dungeon, the popular idol today may be the scapegoat of next week. Mrs. Depew received an ovation rarely accorded a stranger in the Senatorial set, but this reflected glory from the prestige of her husband steadily developed into sincere regard for her own personal worth. During the first years preceding the Hughes investigation both Senator and Mrs. Depew lived virtually in retirement, Mrs. Depew spending most of her time in Europe with her mother, Mrs. Palmer, and her sister, Mrs. Von Andre, and the Senator residing principally in hotels here and in New York. The past winter, however, the fact was impressed on both that political troubles do not alienate sincere friends, and they can count on the loyalty of a large proportion of their intimates in Washington, New York and various parts of the country. Mrs. Depew, on her return last autumn, received even a more cordial welcome than that extended her as a bride.

ATTRACTIVE PERSONALITY.

Few women in high society possess such an attractive personality. It is safe to say that had Mrs. Depew come to Washington without the powerful lever of official position and a handsome income, she would by the force of her beauty, social fascinations and her intellectual charm, have attained the proud position which she now occupies in Washington society.

"What do I enjoy most?" said Mrs. Depew to the writer—"meeting interesting people, studying unusual types, learning American politics. I am surprised that so few American women study political questions, the higher field of politics and the great aims of the country. I recommend this study to all Washington women who find the routine of social life wearisome. To my mind all social life should be a pleasure, not a bore, nor a duty which has become irksome. The way to make the routine enjoyable is to study all the conditions of politics. Not the local affairs, which are generally comprehended under the term politics, but the graver issues, the points where each section of the country touches foreign interests or involves the entity and well being of the nation. To my mind the recent meeting of Governors was the most interesting incident of the present year, because the conference focused politics in the broadest and most exalted sense.

TOO MUCH CALLING.

"However, I can realize how these things may appeal to me with a sense of novelty, whereas women who have been reared in political environment may find the topics palling. I lived abroad many years. Now I am learning my country, and I find the study most absorbing. In Washington, I think, much of the pleasure which attends meeting interesting people and broadening the field of knowledge is nullified by the custom of having such large gatherings and of calling through the entire official list. This last custom belongs essentially to Washington. In no other capital of the world is it obligatory for women to make such a tremendous number of calls every season. I think much good would be accomplished if the wives of the members of the lower house called only among those of their State delegation, at the homes of the Senators from their State and on such officials as come from their immediate environment. This would simplify matters and make intercourse more intimate and agreeable. As it is, one's entire time is taken in making calls. The consequence is you get a bowing acquaintance with a great number of people and you know none well enough to derive either pleasure or benefit.

ADVOCATES SALON.

"I am hopeful of the establishment of the American salon and the crown of queenship must be placed on the brow of that hostess who clearly demonstrates that a crowd of men and women, no matter how exalted their official or personal position, does not constitute society. Nothing is more foreign to the genius of highly cultivated existence than the crowded drawing-room. Conversation on important topics is impossible and the loftiest sentiments must be repressed. Imagine bon-mots at a fete given according to the present mode or a person getting an opportunity to hear more than fragments of talk about the weather or the temperature of the room. No matter how gilded such a life may be, it is frivolous and empty. It appears to me that in Washington a salon is not only possible, but is fast becoming a necessity. I mean a salon where music and cards do not occupy the main portion of the evening, but rather where conversation flows and great thoughts are exchanged.

"Those who read of the salons of the past, must feel a thrill of interest in the grand siecle as exemplified in Mme. de Rambouillet's famous assemblages. It was in her salon that the French Academy had its birth and its original members were all part of the little circle which gathered weekly in her hotel. There are certainly large movements ripe for consideration, now before the American public. There is the National Gallery of Art, the concentrated efforts to aid arts and crafts, the National Conservatory of Music. Legislation as will benefit all these worthy causes can come only from the leaders of thought and as the result of discussion among representative people. Such assemblages would attract men of letters, artists and musicians and this alliance of genius with social rank and official position is what has made French society so brilliant. I am an advocate of having a purpose in every act of life and to blend social occasions with such high ideals in the national scheme is to my mind something which is replete with splendid inspiration."

A SKILLED CONVERSATIONALIST.

Mrs. Depew describes herself as rather unattractive for the average hostess, especially the week-end parties, since she does not ride, has never played cards and from stress of social duties has been compelled to give up her music. Yet she has cultivated the lost art of conversation and may be described as the highest type of the cultured woman who can talk entertainingly on many topics and who induce even the most silent to enter the conversational circles. According to Mrs. Depew, conversation is most emphatically a lost art in Washington and in many social centers in this country. It is part of the programme during dinners or luncheons, but few people tolerate mere talking as an amusement more tha n ten minutes after the banquet is consumed. As for sitting down to talk at an evening party, why the hostess who would propose such a thing would be brave indeed. She would never get guests sufficient to make up another party, unless she provided some methods of amusing people through the evening, cards, music, magic tricks, lectures. Exchange of ideas, talking over interesting topics, why, that is for the aged, for the feeble, or for those without accomplishments. Society must be riding, golfing, playing tennis or cards, doing something all the time. Conversation is out of date.

OPERATES HER OWN AUTO.

"All my pursuits must appear somewhat tame and obsolete in these days of physical effort and athletic prowess. I have never taken an active interest in the athletic sports and my sole accomplishment along those lines is knowing how to manage my auto. I am fond of a spin in the country and during the spring and early summer I spend all my leisure moments in my runabout.

"I delight in embroidery, something which is part of my French training. French women are all clever with their needles. They beautify their linen and home accessories with their own fingers. I draw all my own designs, so that my work is really my own in every way. I give much of this work to my friends and I am particularly happy when I originate something entirely new."

Up in the third floor of the spacious mansion on the corner of N street and Eighteenth avenue in Washington city, in a tiny room which opens on a court, Mrs. Depew has established her boudoir. It is dainty and exquisitely appointed as its mistress. Here she spends her time when social engagements do not press, over her embroidery frame. Here she sketches her patterns and outlines them on the linen or silk which she has selected, and here she passes what is generally considered a good working day with her needle. She has just finished a lovely little picture frame of white linen encircled with true lovers' knots in electric blue floss. The knots wind in and out most gracefully and wreathe the photograph. The outer frame is silver and the whole is artistic and unique. Another of her recent triumphs in embroidery is a summer scarf for mantel or dresser, also of fine white linen. The pattern is an irregular graceful scallop done in fraise silk and beneath all it filet net which is cut out in insets and gives a rich and beautiful appearance. Cloths for tea tables, napkins, towels, handkerchiefs, hundreds of such trifles claim Mrs. Depew's attention, and to see the result of this winter's work, one would wonder how she stole the time to attend to any other avocation.

LOVES MUSIC.

Music is another pet occupation of Mrs. Depew and a French piano is near by her boudoir. "I studied for over six years in Paris and am deeply regretful, that life in Washington is incompatible with keeping up one's practice," she said. "I have now given up singing except for my own amusement. Music is the most absorbing of all pursuits and like the Biblical parable you cannot serve this god, or rather, goddess and Mammon. You must give up either one or the other. I was forced to give up my music or get on the tabooed list for neglecting my social duties. Embroidery can be picked up at odd moments and I follow the rule of many women of my acquaintance to keep my fingers busy even during receiving hours."

ACCOMPLISHED LINGUIST.

Mrs. Depew is a tower of erudition where languages are concerned. French she knows as well as her mother tongue and part of her education was received in Dresden in order to perfect her German accent. She has faithfully continued her German studies and belongs to a circle for German conversation. Italian she studied when cultivating her voice, which is a rich mezzo and gave promise of great compass, had she continued her practice. Spanish and various dialects of the romance tongues she has mastered herself. "I think it was my interest in the salon which inspired by love of the romance languages," explained Mrs. Depew, almost inclined to palliate her deep philological studies. "I was reared partly in a convent and convent girls are generally given to romance. The gay troubadours expounded the subtle metaphysics of love and the study of their songs seemed a delightful occupation. I am fond of the troubadour music and have rendered many of them in different keys in addition to translating the verse, but all for my own pleasure, never with the intention of seeking literary laurels. I once gave much time to the poetry and music of Provence, and a knowledge of this country which gave birth both to chivalry and poetry naturally influences one who seeks a connection between the salon and chivalric love."

Add to the charming qualities which love of music, poetry and intellectual attainment infer, that Mrs. Depew is one of the most exquisitely gowned women and another of her delightful personal attractions is understood. Mrs. Depew understands the fine art of correct dressing as well as she does the others equally necessary for supreme social leadership. In appearance she resembles a Parisian of the most aristocratic type, but her finery seems as adaptable as the petals of a flower. She looks most distinguished in evening raiment and this year she affected the empire fashion almost exclusively. With her prematurely gray hair, her slender figure and regal bearing, she seemed a part of the era of powder and patches and crinolines rather than of the prosaic twentieth century period of Marcel waves and jumper effects. Mrs. Depew is noted for her broad philanthropy and her endeavors to aid all worthy causes in the domain of higher culture.

Edition: Twelve Billion Copies.

It is estimated that the annual aggregation of the circulation of the newspapers of the world is some 12,000,000,000 copies. To grasp an idea of what these figures mean one should be told that these papers would cover no fewer than 10,460 square miles of surface; that they are printed on 781,250 tons of paper; and, further, that if the number (12,000,000,000) represented, instead of copies, seconds of time it would take thirty-three years for them to elapse. In lieu of this arrangement, we might press and pile them vertically upward to reach our highest mountains.

Topping all these and even the highest Alps, the pile would reach the magnificent altitude of, in round numbers, 500 miles. Calculating that the average man spends five minutes in the day reading his paper (a very low estimate,) we find that the people of the world altogether annually consume in the reading of their papers an amount of time equivalent to 100,000 years.—[Harper's Weekly.

DEAD IN LUZON.

So far away, so far, our sons are sleeping
Their last long, quiet sleep;
The great white tropic stars are vigil keeping
Over their slumber deep.

All memory of the tumult and the fighting
For them doth cease;
No battles to be waged, no wrongs for righting,
In that deep peace.

Yet may they sometimes hear, as stirred to dreaming,
Their strenuous bugles cry;
And thrill to know their brave bright flag is streaming
Above them as they lie;

Dream of the old, old days, with shadowy yearning
And dim regret;
Then, to their deep repose again returning—
Sleep and forget.

There he enlisted in the United States cavalry, and after serving in the Apache campaign, he was discharged and entered the employ of the Southern Pacific, and in six months became a locomotive fireman.

LITERATURE—News From the Realm of Books and Authors.

Algernon Charles Swinburne, whose latest work is "The Duke of Gandia."

mula piercing through the drama, the life subordinated to the criticism. "The French Stage," he says, "is suffering from intellectual hypertrophy. Where is the remedy to be found? Assuredly not as some enthusiasts deceive themselves into believing, in the rhymed fantasies of M. Rostand. Practical conduct, life as we knew it, is the staple commodity of French drama. This does not exclude great poetry, for a great poet will always have a 'message' for his day. M. Rostand only offers it a copy of verses. An inspired schoolboy, like our own Landor, he can turn anything into metre-gasconnades, a duel, patisseries, a protuberant nose, the Old Guard, a battlefield, Napoleon's cocked hat, what you will. He was with difficulty dissuaded from addressing the French Academy in verse."

Ibsen for a brief moment frightened the tight little isle of England from its propriety. Conservative playgoers mistook for a new reign of terror what proved to be little more than a tempest in a teapot. Yet though Ibsenism passed away without establishing itself as a vital force, it left its mark on the English drama. Without Ibsen, the serious plays of Pinero and Sydney Grundy, and Henry Arthur Jones, could hardly have been written. Without the Ibsen episode the world would certainly have been poorer by the brilliant dramatic vagaries of Bernard Shaw. Mr. Shaw's plays, however, do not count as plays at all. "His characters do not love or hate, laugh or cry, they merely argue it out."

In "Some French and English Plays" Mr. Walkley discusses the work of Shaw, Pinero, Barrie, Jones and Labiche, Hervieu Brieux, Jullien, Donnay and others. Discussing "The Modernity of the Poetics," he comes to the conclusion that it is an abuse of language to call it modern. "If the exaggerated importance which Aristotle ascribed to plot is not quite dead, it is assuredly moribund," Mr. Walkley says, "while his rules about the choice of heroes and of catastrophes are so obsolete as to be almost unintelligible to the modern reader. Why must the hero of a tragedy be neither very good nor very bad? Why must his fate be determined by error and not by wickedness? Why ought the culminating fatality of a tragedy to be the work of ignorance and its true nature to be only discovered afterwards?" The answers to these questions lie, of course, in the "moralistic" trend in Greek criticism, and in the difficulty which even the "master of them that know" had in completely differentiating art from actual life.

Others of Mr. Walkley's chapters deal with some plays by Euripedes and Shakespeare, and by Pinero, Barrie and Bernard Shaw. He writes of the acting of Henry Irving in "Dante," and of the work, in various plays, of Duse, Bernhardt and Rejane. He shows wide and deep knowledge of plays and players.

How a Problem Is Attacked.

THE STUDY OF STELLAR EVOLUTION. By George Ellery Hale. The University of Chicago Press, Chicago. (Price $4.)

In commemoration of the completion of the first ten years of its existence, the University of Chicago, has issued a set of remarkable books which are called "The Decennial Publications." Among them, perhaps, the most interesting to general readers, and certainly the most interesting to people of Los Angeles and Pasadena, is Prof. Hale's contribution, "The Study of Stellar Evolution."

As originally projected, this was to be the record of work done at the Yerkes Observatory. Prof. Hale came to Pasadena as director of the Mt. Wilson Solar Observatory, and changed the plan of his book to include a more general explanation of the observational methods employed in attacking one of the problems most vital to astronomy—the problem of stellar evolution.

Since the publication of the "Origin of Species," Prof. Hale explains, the attitude of scientific investigators has undergone a radical change. The idea of evolution has permeated all the sciences, so that now the study of evolution is regarded as the study of a single great problem. It begins with the origin of stars in the nebulae, and ends with the attempt to account for the laws which control a society composed of human beings.

It is with the very beginning of this problem that Prof. Hale is concerned. He has the power, rare except in the greatest of scientific men, to make his ideas clear to the non-scientific reader, without sacrificing in the least his dignity of precise wording and exact conciseness of statement. He explains little, yet no intelligent reader can fail to grasp the essence of the problems that in their minutiae puzzle the best of astronomers. He never condescends to the reader.

Above all, Prof. Hale succeeds in arousing in the reader the same enthusiasm for abstract facts that he himself must feel. He makes the problems of astronomy as present and as human as those of everyday life.

A large part of the book explains the apparatus used in observation, the difficulties in construction and employment. It is surprising to find that a skilled astronomer must be a good mechanic, a fine chemist and physicist, an optician of highest rank, and several other things beside. This is one of the many interesting facts with which the book is crowded.

In Simple Words.

STORIES OF WAGNER OPERAS TOLD FOR CHILDREN. By Elizabeth M. Wheelock. The Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.

The title of this book indicates amply enough the contents. The stories of seven of the Wagnerian operas are here put in a form to interest and attract children. They are really conversations with children put on paper, and conventions of style are disregarded. This has been carried a bit far in some places.

Music Study.

THE PIAN—ST. By Gustav Kobbe. Moffat, Yard & Co., New York.

This is at once a recognition of the merits of the mechanical piano player and of the needs of the thousands of music-loving persons who can produce music in this way only. It is in a way a guide to the study of music for such persons as have the taste and not the skill.

The book has nothing to do with the actual manipulation of any mechanical instrument, but the relation of it to music.

author of "The Study of Stellar Evolution."

NEWS AND NOTES OF FORTHCOMING BOOKS.

Giovanni Cena's novel, "Gli Ammonitori," has been translated by Mme. Olivia Rosetti Agresti and is to be published under the title of "The Forewarners." Mrs. Humphry Ward contributes a preface to the translation.

Hallie Erminie Rives is writing a novel, the scene of which is laid in Japan. Her husband, Post Wheeler, is the second secretary of the American Embassy at Tokio. The author and the diplomat were married shortly before the publication of "Satan Sanderson."

"The Acropolis of Athens," by Prof. Martin L. d'Ooge, is to be published as a companion volume to Prof. Seymour's "Life in the Homeric Age." The new book will embody the results of a number of years of study and of many visits to Athens, where at one time the author was director of the American School of Classical Studies.

"The Power Supreme" is a novel of church and state in South America to be published next month. The author, Francis C. Nicholas, has spent many years in Central and South America among the Indians and he will give accurate descriptions of their life and customs. Part of the story is laid in the rubber country and it shows in a new light the peonage among the Indians.

The Century Co. has a number of books scheduled for summer issue: In June, "Diana of Dobson's" and "The Post-Girl," both novels of English life by English writers; in July, "The Well in the Desert," the scenes laid in Arizona, by Adeline Knapp; and, later, Harvey J. O'Higgins's novelization of "The Grand Army Man."

"The Government of England," by Prof. A. Lawrence Lowell, is announced for immediate publication. This is the great work in which Prof. Lowell has essayed to give a complete description of the present political system of Great Britain. It consists of eight parts, dealing respectively with the central government, the party system, local government, education, the church, the empire, the courts of law, reflections. It is to be published in two volumes, uniform with Bryce's "The American Commonwealth."

Dr. G. K. Fortescue, the well-known English scholar and keeper of printed books in the British Museum, has lately translated and edited the famous "Memoirs of Thibaudeau," which are now published under the title "Bonaparte and the Consulate." Thibaudeau's memoirs are undoubtedly among the most important original sources of information about Napoleon. Of all Napoleon's friends who have placed on record their recollections of him, only Thibaudeau and one other have preserved to any extent the exact words which he used in the debates of the Council of State or in private conversation with those who enjoyed his confidence. In spite of the importance of this work, however, it has not only never before been translated into English, but it is even extremely rare in French, the only edition known to Dr. Fortescue having been published in 1827. The present edition contains careful notes by the editor, and is well illustrated.

PEOPLE AND THINGS OF LITERARY NOTE.

Gelett Burgess is in Paris, where he spent his student days. He is supposed to be at work on a lively romance of the American colony in the French capital, a distinct departure from "The Heart Line" and "The White Cat."

The edition of the works of M. Anatole France that is being prepared for English and American readers has been placed under the general editorship of Frederic chapman, a French scholar and lover of letters and a critic.

"Trilby" defies the death tradition of the too-too popular novel. The Harpers have sent this memorable heroine to press for the unknown-th time, and there is no predicting when she will consider herself among those past.

The East and the West are terms very loosely used in fiction as elsewhere, much to the disgust of the real westerners. Mary Austin in "Santa Lucia" has phrased the Californian's idea of the matter in a smart speech: "The East on the Coast is the place you come from."

Charles Belmont Davis, the author of "The Stage Door," is a brother of Richard Harding Davis. He is not so prolific a story writer as his brother or his mother, Rebecca Harding Davis, although his work proves that he has the story-teller's genius. He was at one time United States Consul at Florence, Italy.

Lieut. T. Sakurai's account of the Port Arthur campaign, "Human Bullets," of which seven editions in the English translation have been sold out, is to be published soon in Berlin in a German translation by Capt. Schingingel of the Krupp company. A French translation has been made by Baron Col. Corvisart, attaché to the French Embassy.

Katherine Cecil Thurston has finished her story of "The Fly on the Wheel" and is taking a rest before beginning the new story, which is well thought out ahead. The scene will be laid in Paris, where Mrs. Thurston has spent some time gathering material, and the story is said to have an unusual central idea which has something in common with "The Masqueraders" in that it deals with a peculiar set of circumstances.

Mr. Swinburne since finishing "The Duke of Gandia," has been busy with the final revision of what is to be his greatest work in prose, "The Age of Shakespeare." There are many bookmen who contend that, significant as the Swinburnian genius has been in the world of poetry, it will have a preponderating influence in the annals of criticism. Meanwhile the poet, although 71 years old, enjoys excellent health and spirits, and works with unabated vigor.

Word has just been received of the engagement of H. Hesketh Prichard, the young author who captained the English team of cricketers that played in America last year, to Lady Elizabeth Grimston, daughter of Lord Verulam, and niece of the Duchess of Montrose. Two of Mr. Prichard's books, "The Chronicles of Don Q" and "Don Q in the Sierra," have been published in America, and both have been well received. Mr. Prichard has for several years written in collaboration with his mother, and one wonders whether his marriage will terminate this arrangement.

Fredric S. Isham, author of "The Lady of the Mount," wrote a goodly portion of that romance in various cafés in different parts of France. At Tours, where the writer called for paper and ink one day, the waiter, an inquisitive mortal, noticed that Mr. Isham numbered his page of note paper, 104. "That is a long letter, Monsieur," this provincial garcon permitted himself to murmur. "Monsieur must have a very exacting sweetheart?" "She is," answered the writer, "the most exacting, and, one might add, capricious." The waiter looked sympathetic: "Ah, mon Dieu! Did he not know? Could he not commiserate? Did he not have his own capricious Marie? But what—mon Dieu!—was Monsieur's sweetheart called?" "Madam Public," said the writer, and the garcon, who did not see the point, again murmured sympathetically.

MOST POPULAR OF ALL BOOKS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

LONDON, June 1.—In a single year over a million Bibles have been distributed throughout China and 140,000 in Japan, according to the advance summary of the British and Foreign Bible Society's hundred and fourth annual report, while in England and Wales, where the year's demand has fallen off, only 1,105,000 have been sold.

Three additions have been added to the society's long list. In South America, where Lengua is spoken by the Indians of the Paraguayan Chaco, a version of St. Mark's gospel has been printed in this tongue; in the heart of Africa, St. Matthew's gospel has been printed for a Uganda tribe speaking a language called Lu-Nyankole; in India, two gospels are being published in Hindu-Sindhi. In six other languages versions are almost ready. The publication of the canonical books of the Bible has been completed in two additional languages—in Giryama, for British East Africa, and in Nguna-Efate, a combination of the dialects of two islands in the New Hebrides. With these, the number of complete Bibles is now 105. The New Testament has been completed in Baffin's Land Eskimo, and in the Mombasa form of Swahili; these raise the number of New Testaments to ninety-nine. While 208 other languages, in which only some part of the Testament has been issued, make up the total of 412 different languages "in which the British and Foreign Bible Society has promoted the translation, printing or distribution of at least some part of God's Book."

Important progress has also been made in revising versions, whose quality requires improvement. Here we can mention only the two dominant languages of the Far East. In Japan a representative body of Japanese scholars and foreign missionaries has recently agreed upon a joint plan for revising the Japanese Bible. In China the missionary conference at Shanghai in 1890 arranged for "union" versions of the Chinese Bible in High Wenli, and in Mandarin. The task has been successfully fulfilled in all three cases, so far as concerns the New Testament.

The rapid influx into North America of immigrants from Europe has increased the demand for diglot Testaments, in which English is printed side by side with one or the other of a dozen continental versions. A new edition of the English Bible in Braille (raised) type for the blind is in preparation. "Thus in divers portions and in divers manners," in the hands of the English and among far-away folk of foreign speech under alien stars, God's Book carries its own eternal message to the human heart.

The year's issues amount altogether to 5,938,281 volumes, a total of 272,000 copies above the output in the previous year, though still 289,000 below the record total announced two years ago.

The issues from the Bible House in London for the past year were 1,838,281 copies—an increase of 88,000 on the previous year. The growth here, however, has been in foreign versions sent out from London. The issues in English and Welsh amounted to 1,105,000 copies—a falling off of 112,000 from the previous year, which again was 114,000 below the year before. Of the society's issues, a smaller proportion are English and Welsh scriptures than was the case ten years ago; then it was over 30 per cent., now it is under 20 per cent. of the total. For this, however, there may be a twofold explanation. On one hand, people today who can afford them prefer more expensive editions, often with notes or helps, which they procure elsewhere than from the Bible House. On the other hand, some extremely cheap English editions have been put on the market by other publishers.

The Bible Society maintains depots and distributing machinery in nearly a hundred of the chief cities of the world. It forwards to missionaries supplies of scriptures, in the versions and editions which they need, carriage paid, and on such terms that practically no part of the cost falls on the missionary exchequer. The Bible Society also carries on distribution by its own favorite agent—the native Christian colporteur, or book agent. It employs about 900 of these colporteurs continuously at work all the year round. They serve the missionary as his aides-de-camp and scouts and pioneers; and they enter many a field which no missionary visits, and surmount many a barrier which no foreigner could pass. And wherever they wander—by road or river or railway, in the ice fields or the backwoods or the eastern bazaars—they scatter abroad their cheap little gospels and testaments, from whose pages they have learnt for themselves "the message of redeeming love."

It is prerogative of the Bible Society to go where few other Christian agencies penetrate. It sends camel loads of scriptures to the capital of Abyssinia; it places Arabic Bibles in the mosques of Western China; it sells Chinese gospels in the compounds at Johannesburg, and in the opium dens at Singapore. Year by Year its work runs the gauntlet of drought and flood and plague and famine. "It is nothing new for our agents," says the Bible Society's report, "to suffer hindrance from revolution in Central America, or from bigotry in Austria and in Greece, or from clericalism in Portugal and Poland and Peru. Last year we heard of anarchy in many parts of Persia, where the Persian Bible is still forbidden to enter the Shah's dominions. In Madagascar, the authorities are persecuting Christian converts. In many parts of Russia and of India the perturbed state of the people has seriously lessened our circulation across both those great empires. On the other hand, China and Korea and Japan lie open to Chinese teaching as never before. Those who know best speak most emphatically as to the amazing opportunities for the gospel in the Far East. In Korea last year we could not provide Testaments fast enough to meet the demand."

How Harsh Physic Wrecks the Bowels

Irritate the skin in any spot frequently and that spot will grow calloused.
That is Nature's means of protection.
So with the bowels. When you irritate the lining with salts or "pills," the lining grows hard.
That so retards the natural bowel action that you come to need physic constantly.
And you need a constantly larger dose because of the calloused bowels.
You have the "physic habit."
Cascarets bring the same results gently and naturally—without irritation.
They restore the natural bowel functions, so you don't need them long. And the dose never needs increasing.
Their effect is the same as the effect of laxative foods—or of exercise.
They act exactly the same as right living would do.
If the bowels are already calloused, you may need two tablets a day for a time.
But, after that, take one at a time—when you need it.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure to get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The box is marked like this:
Cascarets
The vest-pocket box is 10 cents. The month-treatment box 50 cents. 12,000,000 boxes sold annually.

THE PAUPER OF PARK LANE.

BY WILLIAM LeQUEUX.

[Copyright, 1908, by William Le Queux.]

The general public are ignorant of the tyranny of shoplife in London. There have been strikes—strikes quickly suppressed because, by lifting his finger the employer is overwhelmed with assistants glad to live on a mere bread and butter wage—and those strikes have been treated humorously by the evening papers. And the tragedy of it all.

Charles Rolfe, though secretary and trusted factotum of a millionaire, knew it all. His sister had been in a snug "billet," one from which he had fondly believed she could never have been dislodged.

But the hard, bitter truth was now apparent. Even his own brotherly protection had availed her nothing. She had been consigned to disgrace.

It was with such bitter thoughts he resolved to return to London. He went to the telegraph office and sent a long message to Sam Statham, explanatory of what had occurred, and beseeching his intervention with Cunnington.

Through the night he waited, but received no response.

Then he went round in the morning to bid Sir Charles adieu.

"Well, Rolfe!" exclaimed the representative of the British government; "I'm sorry your're off so quickly. My wife was asking you to dine tomorrow night—usual weekly dinner, you know."

"And have you discovered nothing regarding Petrovich?" asked Charlie quickly.

"Well," replied the diplomat, after a moment's hesitation, "to tell the truth, I have."

"You have!" gasped the young man eagerly. "What?"

"The other knit his brows, and was for a moment silent.

"Something—something!" he said, "that is astounding. I—I cannot give it credence. It is all too amazing—too tragic—too utterly incomprehensible."

CHAPTER XLIII.

THE LOST BELOVED.

Weeks had dragged by. To Max Barclay they had been weeks of keen anxiety and unceasing search to discover traces of his lost beloved.

Once, and only once, had he seen Jean Adam, against whom Sam Statham had warned him. He had met the map of brilliant financial ideas by appointment at lunch at the Savoy, and had told him plainly that he had reconsidered the whole matter of the Turkish concession, and had decided to have nothing to do with it.

His excuse was lack of funds at that moment. To the old millionaire he owed a good deal for giving him the "tip" regarding the plausible Anglo-Frenchman. Adam, alias Adams, received Max's decision without the alteration of a muscle of his face. He was a perfect actor, and betrayed no sign of surprise or of chagrin.

"Well, my dear fellow," he remarked, raising his glass of Brauneberger and contemplating it before placing it to his lips; "you're losing the chance of a lifetime. If Baron Hirsch had been alive he wouldn't have allowed such a thing to slip. When old Statham knows of it he'll move heaven and earth to come in."

Max was silent. He did not allow his companion to know that Statham had been responsible for his refusal to join in the project.

"I'm sorry, too," he said. "But just now I'm rather pressed. I was hard hit last week over those Siberians."

"But the money required is a mere bagatelle. I have mine ready."

"I regret," answered Max, "but my decision is final."

"Very well, my dear fellow," replied Adam lightly. "I don't want to persuade you. There are a thousand men in the city who'll be ready to put up money tomorrow morning."

And the pair finished their luncheon and parted, Adam, of course, entirely unsuspicious of the part Statham had played in upsetting his deeply-laid plans.

To every address which Marion's brother had furnished he had gone at post-haste, only to draw blank every time. Charlie had, at Statham's instructions, gone first to Constantinople, then to Odessa and Batoum, after which he had returned direct to London.

In Odessa he had been met by a special messenger from the London office bearing a number of documents, and his business in that city had occupied him nearly a fortnight. Therefore it was early in October when, arriving by the evening train at Charing Cross from Paris, he took a cab straight to Park Lane.

In greeting him, old Sam was rather curious in his manner, he thought. There was a lack of cordiality. Usually, when he came off a long journey, the old fellow ordered Levi to bring the decanter of whisky and a syphon. But on this occasion the head of the great financial house merely sat in his chair at his desk and heard his secretary's report without even suggesting that he might be fagged by his rush across Europe.

Rolfe related, briefly and plainly, the various points upon which he had failed, and those upon which he had been successful. Some of his decisions had brought many thousands of pounds into the already overflowing coffers of Statham Brothers, and yet the old man made no sign. He heard all without any comment save now and then a grunt of satisfaction.

The younger man could not disguise from himself the fact that the millionaire was not himself. His face was paler and more transparent, while the green-shaded electric lamp shed upon is a hue that was unreal and ghastly. Old Levi, too, as he flitted in and out like a white-breasted shadow, seemed to regard him with unusual suspicion and distrust.

What could it all mean?

He looked from one to the other in puzzled surprise.

He was unaware that only on the previous night a thin, dark, bearded man had been ushered into that very room and had sat for two hours with the great financier. His countenance, his gestures, the cut of his clothes, all showed plainly that he was not English. Besides, the consultation was in French, a language which old Sam knew fairly well.

That man was a spy, and he was from Belgrade.

From the moment Charlie Rolfe had descended at the station to the moment he had left it, secret observation had been kept upon his movements. And to furnish the report to his master the spy had traveled from Servia to London. Samuel Statham trusted nobody. Even his most confidential assistant was spied upon, and his own reports compared with those of a spy.

More than once, as Charlie Rolfe, all unconscious of the surveillance upon him, related what had occurred in King Peter's capital, the old man smiled—in disbelief. This the younger man could not understand. He was in ignorance of the great conspiracy in progress, or of the millionaire's ulterior motives. The old man's face was sphinx-like, as it ever was—a countenance in which no single trait was visible, neither was there human joy or human sympathy. It was the face of a statue—the face of a man whose greed and avarice had rendered him pitiless.

And yet, strangely enough, this very man was, to Charlie's knowledge, a

IN THE LIMELIGHT.

RAFAEL VILLAFRANCA, of Costa Rica, the banana king, is to make Richmond, Va., his home. He will engage in the banana trade and will devote all his time to that one business. He says he expects to make that city the headquarters for the South for this industry. He has large plantations in Costa Rica and other banana-producing countries, with large warehouses and depots for receiving and shipping the fruit, and will manage the whole business from Richmond.

Secretary Straus, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, has designated W. H. Tolman, director of the American Museum of Safety Devices and Industrial Hygiene, of New York City, to represent the United States at the International Social Insurance Congress in Rome next fall. The grand duke conferred a jubilee gold medal upon Mr. Straus and presented him a life-size oil painting of the late venerable grand duke.

HEROES.

MISS MAREE Y. TREVOR, 11 years of age, of Marion, Ill., has been awarded a Carnegie hero medal for her rescue from drowning of her cousin, aged 5 years. The lad, while fishing from a bridge across the Marion Creek, fell headlong into the swift current. Hardly had he disappeared when Maree sprang after him over the railing into the swirling stream, where the water was eighteen feet deep. She succeeded in catching his clothing, pulled him from the current, and fought her way to shallower water. Here she grasped a post with one hand and with the other held the almost lifeless body of her cousin out of the water so that he would not strangle.

Mrs. George Greerell of New York saved a boy from the ferocious attacks of two bull terriers last week. One of the dogs had him by the thigh and the other by the face and throat. They turned on her, one jumping at her throat and, as she threw up her hands to protect herself, the force of the animals' weight brought her to her knees. As she raised her hand again one dog bit the flesh to the bone. Seizing a whip she beat off the dogs. Picking up the boy and still lashing the dogs she reached the door. The boy may live.

CHURCHMEN.

HERBERT H. HINES, an eighteen-year-old high-school student of Marshalltown, Iowa, recently filled the pulpit of the Presbyterian Church of McCallsburg, Iowa, for his father, who had been invited, but was ill. The congregation liked him so well that, instead of engaging the father, chose the son, and for the next three months an eighteen-year-old lad will expound Christian doctrine to the people of this place. The pastor of the church is on a three months' vacation in Germany.

Rev. Joseph Lubeley, who was stabbed last Sunday morning by one of his parishioners while officiating at the services of his church at Salisbury, Mo., has been appointed irremovable rector of Holy Trinity parish of St. Louis by Archbishop Glennan. He was chosen from eight clergymen considered for the position, and is the youngest man to occupy so high a position in the Catholic church in St. Louis.

Cardinal Logue, archbishop of Armagh and primate of all Ireland, while in Philadelphia last week visited Independence Hall. After registering, he was led to the Liberty Bell by Archbishop Ryan, and as he gazed upon the historic old relic he removed his hat. Then he extended his hand and touched, almost caressed, the proclaimer of American liberty. "I did not want to go back to New York without seeing this bell and touching it," he said. "It is a grand old bell and one of which Americans can justly be proud. I am glad to have seen the building, too."

JURISTS.

JUDGE W. H. A. PIKE, of the First Judicial District of Nevada, the most important in the State, has announced his intended retirement that he may become a candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket. Pike is one of the old-time Democrats of the State.

Judge Peter S. Grosscup of the United States Circuit Court at Chicago, "has his dander up," according to his friends, and it is stated he has no intention of resigning to make room for the promotion of District Judge Kenesaw M. Landis or any other man. It is also stated Judge Bethea might be elevated to the Circuit bench instead of Landis, should Grosscup step down. The story is revived that Grosscup and Landis are not on the best terms since Judge Landis publicly scored Federal judges who made public addresses and said spicy things for the purpose of getting into the newspapers. At the time Judge Grosscup retorted that he would speak when and where he pleased and say just what he pleased.

PEOPLE OF THE COAST.

WILLIAM R. WHEELER, recently appointed Assistant Secretary to the Department of Commerce and Labor, was last week given an enthusiastic reception in San Francisco by Mayor Taylor and the members of the Chamber of Commerce, of which body he was at one time vice-president.

George F. Ashley, a former student in the college of architecture of the university, who recently received his degree from that college with the class of 1908, will start for Paris soon to study for entrance into the Ecole des Beaux Arts, the architectural school of the French capital. When Ashley arrives in Paris he will become a member of the University of California art colony in that city. Harry Gutterson and Warren Perry are among those at the French capital. For two years Ashley has been instructed by Prof. John Galen Howard, head of the department of architecture, who speaks highly of the young graduate's ability.

Miss Agnes Regan, Mrs. C. R. Pechin, Joseph O'Connor and James Ferguson have been selected as delegates of the San Francisco school department to the convention of teachers to be held in London in September and October.

Frank L. Kleeberger, one of the most prominent athletes in the University of California and a graduate with the class of 1908, has received an appointment as director of physical culture in the University of Arizona, of which K. C. Babcock is the head. The appointment includes that of an assistant in the department of entomology at the university, and will go into effect at the beginning of the fall term. He has been assistant to Prof. Walter E. Magee, head of the department of physical culture in the university, for the past two years.

Miss Jean Reid's bridesmaids, on the occasion of her wedding with John Hubert Ward, brother of the Earl of Dudley, on June 23, will include Miss Bessie Crocker and Miss Mills and Mr. Ward's nieces, Lady Gladys Honor and Lady Morvyth Lillian Ward, the daughters of Lord Dudley.

OVER THE SEA.

LORD EDWARD SPENCER CHURCHILL is well known as a mechanical expert. His greatest interest, perhaps, is in the practical application of electricity. When he decided to have the electric light in his house at Queens Mead, Windsor, he himself wired the rooms and built the dynamos. He was one of the pioneers who succeeded in converting society to the bicycle. Then he fell an easy victim to the motor car passion.

Prince Luitpold, regent of Bavaria, celebrated the eighty-seventh anniversary of his birth recently amid a brilliant gathering of the Bavaria nobility. The effects of his many years are almost unnoticeable. The venerable regent looks much younger than he is. He is in splendid physical condition. His limbs have retained their elasticity, his muscles are still hard, and nearly every day he defies wind and weather and undergoes the hardships of the chase, wearing always the old-fashioned greenish-gray shooting costume peculiar to Bavaria.

Some one has said that King Edward never wears the same suit twice. This is, of course, an exaggeration. He changes his attire about three times a day and, consequently, would need more than 1000 new suits in a year, costing something like $50,000, if such a story were true. As a matter of fact, King Edward orders about 40 new suits every year and at Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle and Sandringham he keeps a stock of about 200.

Count Bottaro Costa, who is at present serving as Italian Minister at Stockholm, has been promoted to the rank of Ambassador and will be sent to Tokio to succeed Count Gallina.

Prince Augustine de Iturbide, grandson of the great liberator of Mexico, heir to the throne, man of the world, educated, widely traveled and a member of the jeunesse dorée of many European capitals, has forsaken the ways of the fashionable world and joined the third order of St. Francis. In Washington fashionable society Prince Iturbide was widely known for many years.

CENTENARIANS.

VERY REV. CANON J. C. MOYNIHAN of Chicago, who has just celebrated his one hundredth birthday anniversary, says to live long and keep good health one must eat and sleep regularly, shun tobacco and liquors and banish worry.

Dr. Williamson F. Boyakin of Maryville, Kan., has just celebrated his one hundred and first birthday anniversary. He is the oldest resident of the county in which he resides, and is still in good health.

Jacob Epstein of New York, aged 104, has returned from a visit to a grandson at Albany. On his return he fell out of his berth on the steamer during a dream, and had to be taken to the hospital on the arrival of the boat at New York.

EDUCATORS, AUTHORS.

MRS. JULIA WARD HOWE, at the age of 89 years, makes her first appearance as a composer of music. She is to have a volume of fourteen songs with music published under the title of "Original Poems and Other Verses." Both the words and the music are her own. Mrs. Howe's public life has never brought her fine musical ability to the front, and these songs will be new to many persons who have known her in comparative intimacy. They are said to be simple in form, but of fine musical sentiment and to give genuine pleasure.

Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin has just sailed on her annual spring visit to England. She has been nominated as an honorary steward of the anniversary dinner of the Royal Literary Fund in London, May 21. Lord Tennyson is the president of the society. Rudyard Kipling, who will preside at the dinner, has asked Mrs. Wiggin to respond to a toast.

Though the compiling of a dictionary is a task that even a corps of trained editors undertake with no slight hesitation, a Washington woman, Mrs. George H. Gorham, has just finished the remarkable feat of writing an idiomatic French-English, English-French dictionary entirely unaided. After nine years of hard, grinding labor, she enjoys the distinction of being the only woman in the world who has ever written a dictionary.

Miss Anna Pritchett Youngman of Louisville, Ky., has been named professor of economics at Wellesley. Miss Youngman is only 24 years old, but her record in the local schools and at the University of Chicago has been amazing, and has shown a wonderful grasp of commercial and economic questions. When she graduated from the girls' high school here in 1901 her thesis on trusts excited wide comment. A similar paper upon taking her bachelor's degree made college men over the country watch the career of Miss Youngman. She took three degrees in three successive years at the university, and before receiving her Ph. D this year she was tendered the full Wellesley professorship. She has led every class in which she was ever entered.

Prof. Felix Adler of New York will fill the Roosevelt chair for 1908 at the Berlin University, and the German scholar who comes to Columbia is Max Verworn of the University of Goettingen. For 1909-10 the American professors selected to go abroad are President Benjamin Ide Wheeler of the University of California, and Prof. William Morris Davis of Harvard. Dr. Verworn is one of the most distinguished of living physiologists.

ARTISTS.

J. H. SHARP, the well-known artist, has been painting pictures of Indians of the Far West for a number of years. He will spend the summer in the Grand Cañon of Arizona with his wife. His best Indian subjects are found among the Sioux, Blackfeet, Cheyennes, Crows, Apaches and the southern Indians. A number of the Indians who were in the Custer massacre have been subjects of his brush.

Charles Dana Gibson has returned to New York to stay, though he will return to Paris for a month next winter.

Miss Nellie V. Walker has just won the first prize in sculpture offered by the Municipal Art League of Chicago by a group entitled "Her Son," representing a mother and child. Miss Walker is one of the pupils of Lorado Taft, and has for several years acted as his first assistant in the work of his studio. When a child she is said to have spent much of her time in a marble yard with her father, where she learned to cut marble.

George Davidson, a nineteen-year-old New York artist, has received unexampled recognition. He has had several pictures hung at the recent exhibition at the National Academy of Design. He is a native Russian, and was brought to this country at the age of 10.

Miss Hilda Belcher has received the first prize of $500 in the Strathmore water-color exhibition. Miss Belcher is a native of Vermont, and her mother was an artist of local reputation. Beginning as an illustrator of magazine articles, she has done creditable work in several fields of art. A stained-glass window which she designed is one of the chief ornaments of a new church in Baltimore, while one of her portraits took the scholarship in portrait painting at the New York School of Art.

SCIENTISTS.

MISS MARY A. PROCTOR, daughter of the late Richard A. Proctor, is to start this summer on a trip around the world in the interest of science. Miss Proctor has an international reputation through her astronomical studies and discoveries. She is to address the British Astronomical Association in Manchester, October 7, and will lecture later in all the larger cities of Great Britain. After that she will visit the observatory in Paris, going from there to Egypt and to Bombay and Calcutta on her way to Australia, where she will observe the total eclipse of the sun on April 28, 1911. She will then make her way to South America, where an eclipse is visible October 10, 1912.

The Prince of Monaco, occupant of the smallest thronedom in the world, is one of the most interesting and praiseworthy notables of European court life. Though he draws his revenues largely from the gambling syndicate that controls Monte Carlo, he expends his wealth in furthering scientific knowledge, and the nautical museum which he is having built and which is now almost on the point of completion will be one of the most complete institutions of its kind in existence. And, more than this, a great part of the treasures it is to contain have been gathered by the Prince, in his own boat, from every quarter of the marine world.

Dr. N. Gordon Munro, a famous Scotch surgeon and scientist, is visiting the United States, after a residence of seventeen years in Yokohama, where he has become an authority on the prehistoric races, and the ancient coins and monuments of Japan.

ARMY AND NAVY MEN.

GEN. ALEXANDER MACKENZIE, Chief of the Engineers of the Army, has been placed on the retired list by operation of the law on account of his age. Since the close of the Civil War he has served in various parts of the country in charge of important public works, including the improvement of the harbors in Lake Michigan, the construction of the Louisville and the Portland canals and the improvement of various sections of the Mississippi and Missouri rivers. In January, 1904, he was appointed chief of engineers, with the rank of brigadier general.

Lieut. Allan Rutherford, Fifth Infantry, made the highest score in the rifle competition recently held at Camaguey, Cuba. At the finish of the four days' shoot he had an aggregate of 765 points. The best score among the enlisted men was 763 points, made by First Sergeant Irwin G. Patch, Troop K, Fifteenth Cavalry.

After having served forty years in the United States army as a contract surgeon, Samuel T. Werick, on duty at Alcatraz Island, will probably be rescued from a penniless old age by being promoted to first lieutenant and placed on retired pay of $1,800 a year. In accordance with a law approved April 23, contract surgeons who pass examinations will be promoted at once to be commissioned officers, thereby receiving all the benefits of such positions. The age of retirement for officers in the regular army is 64 years, and Dr. Werick is now 66 years. It was stated at the Presidio yesterday that if Dr. Werick is successful in the examination his will be the first case in history where a man has served past the age of retirement and has then been promoted to an office.

Capt. A. F. Dixon, Capt. G. B. Ransom, Capt. J. R. Edwards, Commander R. T. Hall and Commander R. S. Griffin, United States Navy, are engaged in a spirited contest for the position of engineer-in-chief of the navy, to succeed Rear Admiral C. W. Rae, who died May 13. The friends of each are very active.

POLITICIANS, STATESMEN.

SENATOR STEPHENSON has a most loving way of conversing with his fellow-Senators. When he has anything to say, he throws his arms around the neck of his victim, and with his mouth close to his ear, holds him in fond embrace while he pours forth his story, oft-times much to the apparent embarrassment of his hearer.

During the session of Congress just closed Senator John Kean of New Jersey managed to bob up daily with an objection or a suggestion that some matter go over. A distinguished Senator said to him one day: "John, don't you get tired of continually objecting?" Senator Kean, with that effervescent smile of his, answered: "No, indeed, and I am glad the steering committee appointed me the one to do that stunt, because if they hadn't I would never get my name in the Record."

Henry Lane Wilson, Minister to Belgium, is in Washington on leave of absence. He is accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, and will return to Brussels early in July.

Representative Cy Sulloway of New Hampshire is the best known man at the head of a long table in all Congress, says the Boston Herald. The Capitol sees little of him except in that attitude. Sometimes he stalks upon the floor of the House, so tall and massive that there is no seat quite large enough to make him comfortable. He rarely remains very long. The place he likes is in the swivel chair at the head of the Committee on Invalid Pensions, which adjoins the most used of the House elevators. The Hon. Cyrus keeps the mahogany doors open most of the time with a plump, round-faced negro messenger on guard. The multitudes pass and repass day after day, and the big Granite Stater, poring over papers, examining private pension bills and writing reports thereon, has become as much of a fixture in the optical apparatus of this perambulating throng as the Goddess of Liberty on the Capitol's top.

Congressman Charles E. Littlefield of Maine, who will retire from Congress at the conclusion of his present term, today was admitted to practice law in the Federal courts in New York by Judge Hough.

Gov. John A. Johnson, Democratic candidate for the Presidency, likes red neckties and wears them, says a Washington correspondent of the Brooklyn Eagle.

The talk about Vice-President Fairbanks being an iceberg, cold, and all that, is a mistake. He is the warmest thing in the United States Senate. Ordinarily he sits in a high-back chair, upholstered in seat and back, but the last few days have been too warm for such a warm member, and he has discarded that chair, now using a much smaller one with cane seat. When not using the gavel, and he doesn't have need for that instrument of torture just now, he wields vigorously a large palm leaf fan.

ACTIVE WOMEN.

DR. MARY LOUISE GORDON of London has been appointed inspector of prisons and assistant inspector of State and certified inebriate reformatories. It is the first time that the British Home Office has appointed a woman to such an office, and the appointment is looked upon as an important step in prison reform. For many years there has been a demand for a woman inspector in view of the fact that an average of 32,000 women and girls are sent to prison in London every year. Dr. Gordon has been for several years a visitor of State inebriate reformatories and is an authority on the treatment of alcoholism.

Mrs. Jane Moffit, 80 years old, has been working in the Delaine Mills at Olneyville, R. I., for the last twenty years. What is more, she has been operating two looms simultaneously as handy as the mill girls who have not yet reached their majorities. The task of keeping two looms going is not an easy one by any means, but she has no trouble in keeping up her work.

Mrs. Eldridge Claiborne, the first woman to cast a vote at the annual election of the directors of the Trades League of Philadelphia, is a widow and conducts a thriving real estate business in Philadelphia. Her voting excited considerable comment, though her right was not denied. Now that she has broken the ice it is said that several other women actively engaged in business in Philadelphia are ready to follow her example.

to order by the president, who gave us a friendly "lecture" regarding whispering, chatting, etc., during business meetings. She also suggested we appoint certain members to be at the door to greet new ones and extend the courtesies of the club.

The secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved.

The chairmen of different chapters gave interesting reports of the members' work.

We had some pleasing news from the president, who told of a gift of $5 for our festival.

Our exchange book, in charge of Mrs. Wilson, was very much in evidence, and we remind all members not to forget its existence.

Another pleasing feature was the gift from our president of autographed pledge cards, which were very beautiful and greatly appreciated. These were sent to her from an eastern friend.

All business of the meeting being over we adjourned to meet again at 2:30 p.m., June 17, in The Times rest room.

Fancy Workers' Report.

Mrs. Baker sends her report of the Fancy Work Chapter, which met last week with Mrs. Heironymus. It was the best attended meeting the chapter has yet had, and more work was consequently accomplished. Several pretty bags which will be both useful and ornamental, were begun. These will be for sale, the proceeds to be added to the festival fund.

The next meeting of the chapter will be with Mrs. Wilson.

The Society Pin.

The local manufacturer will have the new Each and All Society pins completed in about two weeks, when they will be ready for distribution among the members. Therefore it is requested that members send names and addresses and the amount of the cost of the pin (50 cents) to Miss Josephine Myers, No. 731 Carondelet street. Out-of-town members may send the amount by postoffice money order. The pins will be very dainty and ornamental affairs, one of which every member of the Each and All Society will wish to possess. The design is the California poppy with the letters E. & A. prettily stamped thereon. Many of the members have sent their requests for the pins to the editor of this department. She now requests all to send directly to Miss Myers, remitting the price of pin.

To the Art Workers.

All art workers in oil, water colors, china or [illegible], and all members of the Each and All Society who are at all interested in art, whether old or new members, are invited to meet Wednesday afternoon, June 10, at 2:30 o'clock, in the rest room of The Times building. The object of this meeting is to get all our workers together in order to talk over plans for our festival. Members who wish to contribute anything in the art line to the booths may report this at the meeting, or send word to the chairman of the art chapter, 731 Carondelet street. There will also be an exchange of studies at this meeting.

For the Musical Chapter.

Miss A. L. A., a Los Angeles girl, loves the motto and pledge of the Each and All girls, and wishes to become one of them. She says:

> Constant reader of the Each and All paper, and now wish to adopt your beautiful motto and pledge and become a member if you will permit me.
> I should like to join the Reading Circle and the Musical Chapter. Would you kindly put me in communication with the chairman of the Reading Chapter?

You are welcome as an Each and All girl, and you will be put in communication with the chairman of the musical and the chairman of the would-be authors chapters at once. You will find both of these chairmen enthusiastic Each and All workers.

Special Notice.

A special call is made by the chairman to all members of the Sharps and Flats (Musical Chapter) to be present at first rehearsal of action songs and musical sketch, which is being prepared for our forthcoming festival. It is very important that we have a large attendance at the next meeting, which will take place Wednesday evening, June 10, at No. 731 Carondelet street.

A Lover of Animals.

Mrs. L. Y. of this city writes as follows:

> I should like very much to become a member of Each and All, and will be glad if you will enter my name on your list, although at present I cannot join any particular chapter. I am with "The Walkers" each week in spirit, and hope soon to join them in reality. I think our motto and pledge fine and a good thing for any one to live up to. I shall endeavor to do as is the best of my ability.

The members of the Walking Chapter will welcome you gladly as one of them. You will receive a personal letter from the president as to your request.

An Eastern Girl.

Miss T. C. of Newport, R. I., simply writes:

"I would like to join your Each and All Society."

We are delighted to welcome eastern members among us.

Motto and Pledge Beautiful.

Mrs. W. S. U. thinks our motto and pledge an embodiment of all that is beautiful in thought and word, and wishes to adopt it by becoming an active member of the Each and All Society. She says, in a letter:

> For several years I have been deeply interested in all ethical lines of thought. Your society's motto and pledge seem the embodiment of all that is beautiful. They put into working activity theories I have long and so greatly admired.
> I should like very much to receive the benefit the association with such workers must give. I would like, too, to add my own mite of helpfulness.
> I have considerable leisure and am desirous of becoming an active member.
> Please tell me the necessary steps to take for enrollment. Where and how I may learn more concerning your society's work and plans.

You shall learn all about the Each and All Society through a personal letter from the president. This letter will reach you during the week.

OUR MOTTO.

Golden thoughts, golden deeds,
Rid life's garden of its weeds.

OUR PLEDGE:

"To make one another happier, to lighten one another's burdens, to share one another's cares, to be lifters, not leaners, to make the world a little sweeter place to live in, to be mutual encouragers, never discouragers of any one, to start songs, not complainings and to do every day something beautiful, some kindness which will cheer and strengthen another."

Domestic Science Chapter.

The chairman of the Domestic Science Chapter sends in the following report:

> Although the Domestic Science Circle has not much to report this week, it does not mean that our interest is lagging, for we are still "at it." The meeting of May 29, was another good one, though the culinary subject, "Invalid Cookery," did not bring out many responses, whether fortunately or unfortunately depends on the point of view, but we were able to file away a few recipes "forninst" the need of them.
> The slumber robe is developing into "a thing of beauty."
> There is room for many more members and we extend an invitation to all. The next subject of cookery is "Cakes" repeated. Members are requested always to bring thimbles.

Will Help Festival.

Mrs. Anna C. of this city says one cannot go far wrong, if she will always remember the Each and All pledge. She says:

> Something came up that prevented my attending the meeting, neither could I join the girls in their walk, and this week no meeting place was appointed that I could see, but I will be on the spot next time surely. I have a few things already and will take them to Mrs. Murphy next week, and I will send some silk pieces to the Fancy Work Chapter also. Will you send me a list of the shut-ins, as I have some magazines I would take to them, also some flowers? I am sorry that I did not make your acquaintance long ago, but better late than never. I enjoyed your letter very much; a little thing goes a long way when one is alone and not very well. I think our motto and pledge beautiful. Surely a person could not do wrong if they would always remember it.

If the members of Each and All would only remember just what Mrs. C. says: "A little thing goes a long way when one is lonely and not very well," they would not look upon the "little things" as trifles and unimportant. It is these little things that count, and somehow seem to make things worth while.

Invites Other Members.

G. L., a young stenographer, invites others who need brushing up in dictation to join the Stenographers' Chapter. She says:

> Why do the stenographers hang back, I mean those who do not get sufficient dictation to keep in practice? You have the opportunity to get in good practice now. The stenographers of this chapter ask you to be present at their next meeting at 7:45 p.m., Tuesday, in the library of the Times building.

The Stenographers' Chapter is made up of a few earnest young workers, who meet for an hour's practice in shorthand one evening in the week. They help each other with valuable little hints gained through experience, take turns in dictating, are happy little earnest workers, who wish to extend the benefits of their chapter to other girls.

All Plans Complete.

A. T. of this city writes entertainingly of her "Wideawake Chapter," and suggests an indoor entertainment. Here is her letter:

> "Ye Each and Allers, do wake up." It seems to me as though the chapters are asleep. Why don't they plan for the coming festival? The Musical Chapter is the wide-a-wake chapter in the society. We are almost through planning. By all means have the entertainment in doors. If given out of doors, a mob is sure to form and step around the place, also the vocalists will object to singing in the night air. If each chapter will do its best it seems to me the festival can't help but be a success. A number of the members hope it will not be given before September, for many will be on their vacations during the summer. Then the people are through with pleasure and the children are back at school and also the warmest weather is over.
> Now, I wish to tell you something of our sharps and flats. We are doing splendid work and we still have room for more musically-inclined girls, especially girls who are willing to take part when requested. Our chapter is steadily growing. Come on, girls, to our next meeting. (See calendar of meetings.)

Indeed, your indignation would be righteous, if the members of other chapters were sitting back doing nothing for the festival, but these chapters are all working, quietly but tellingly, and through the concerted action of all the chapters, the festival is going to be a big success.

An Effort in Verse.

This is a Los Angeles girl's way of telling us she likes us:

> For weeks I've been a reader
> Of the page of Each and All.
> It has drawn me and has held me,
> Till I can't withstand its call.
> So I'm knocking at your door,
> And I'm asking to come in;
> To become a helpful member,
> I am anxious to begin.
> Will you let me have a place?
> Will you let me lend a hand?
> If you will, I'll gladly join you,
> For the rules I understand.
> May I join the Would-be Authors?
> For I know they'll aid me so;
> Then out among the Walkers,
> I would dearly love to go.
> Just one other place I'll ask,
> One where I may helpful be,
> And give sunshine into others.
> Will you not choose that for me?
> With success for Each and All,
> May it grow both near and far,
> Peace and love to every member
> Is the greeting true, from Star.

That you're welcome as can be,
We will surely let you see;
By our cordial, friendly greeting,
If you'll call on us at meeting.

A Busy Member.

Busy with beautiful homely cares is Mrs. C. H. of this city, but withal she will find time to help others:

> I thought I would like to join the Would-be Authors' department, but hesitated to apply on account of experience. However, after reading the letter from the "Rancher's Wife" of Merced, Cal., and your vice-president's letter of encouragement, I decided to send in my letter of application; for even with the desire of being helped, I may be able in some way to aid others who are trying to live up to your beautiful motto and pledge. I am a pretty busy woman; am a wife, mother, housekeeper and home-maker, and enjoy many blessings I would be glad to share with others and I hope you will put me on your list, and place me where you think I can help.

You will find that instead of adding to your cares, being a member of the Each and All Society will really lighten them. Our president will find just the place for you to fit in to a nicety.

Offers to Teach Languages.

This member writes she will aid the festival, and offers to teach languages in exchange for service.

> I shall help for the festival and the grab-bag, but why not have 5c and 10c grab-bags as well? The Invalid Club is a worthy cause and must be a success.
> May I venture to suggest that we make scrapbooks for the hospitals, the rescue homes, prisons, etc.? I would gladly help, and aid the members who lack experience. This is a pleasant work and one in which everybody could help. Do you say yes, my big-hearted sisters? Then let us all send cheering and elevating bits of literature, useful information, pictures, etc., and have our motto and pledge in every page of these scrapbooks.
> Would you kindly let me know where and when the "Exchange Book" may be found, or if there is none send me the names of those who have made offers.
> I would be pleased to give lessons in languages, in painting, in various sciences, etc., in exchange for sewing or anything. To exchange is to co-operate with divine and natural law.

That scrap-book plan is a happy suggestion, upon which the Invalid Helpers might get to work next Tuesday afternoon at their meeting.

For the Walkers.

The next meeting of the Walking Chapter of the Each and All Society will occur at 9 a.m., Thursday, June 11, at Fourth street station, between Broadway and Hill. We will take the Hollywood cars to the five-cent limit, where the walk will be commenced up to the cañons. Bring lunches.

A Humorous Member.

The very thought, says Mrs. L. S., that she will soon be able to join the walking chapter makes her very happy. This is her letter:

> Many thanks for our president's little talk, and for the wholesome letter from one of our members against fads. I recently came across this verse:
> "In life's small things be resolute and great,
> To keep thy muscle trained; knowest thou when fate
> Thy measure takes or when she'll say to thee
> 'I find thee worthy; do this deed for me'?"
> To me it seems in keeping with the sentiment of our society.
> Nobody at home but the cat and me. (The cat isn't home, either, 'cause there isn't any, but I 'low to git a cat.)
>
> In some Each and All page that I missed seeing, a member asked for my address, to confer with me about learning Spanish. I am sorry to have missed seeing her request, and hope she will yet allow me the privilege of knowing her.
> I am glad we are to have a festival. Let's all make something saleable for it. When I read about that Walking Chapter and remember that next year I can join it, I almost turned a handspring. At present I must keep my nose to the grindstone, but it's a fine large nose and can stand to be ground off quite a bit. May "Each and All" live until its spirit embraces every human creature.

There is a sermon for Each and All members in the first line of the verse quoted above. "In life's small things be resolute and great." The address of the lady who wishes to learn Spanish will be forwarded to you.

A New Member.

Mrs. K. H. presently of Fullerton, writes that she enjoys the page. Her letter follows:

> I have enjoyed the Each and All page very much and now may I join your society? I have read the account of it since it first started, and have thought many times of joining. I should like my name in the post-card exchange, especially the eastern one, as I am a native daughter. Should also like to join the Fancy Work Chapter. My home is in Los Angeles, but I am here at the oil wells just at present. Should like one of the badges, if you have them for sale. I trust you will enroll me as a member. Yours,

> MRS. KATE HARRINGTON,
> Fullerton, Orange Co., Cal., R. F. D., No. 2.

The society pin will be sent you in a week or two; you may send money order for 50 cents to Miss J. Myers for the pin. You will be put in communication with the Fancy Work Chapter at once.

Will Add Her Mite.

A little Burbank girl wishes to add her mite spreading cheer, and writes for a list of shut-ins.

> I have been reading the Each and All page for some time and like it very much. I think the pledge is beautiful. Will you please tell me the name of some shut-in that I could write to, as I would like to help in this very much? Will you please, also, put my name down for a pin?

Right glady shall you be furnished with a list of the shut-in members. You can send a postoffice order for 50 cents to Miss J. Myers, No. 731 Carondelet street, this city, and she will send you the pin in a week or so.

Who Wants to Exchange?

Mrs. H. A. F. writes as follows:

> Hurrah for the Exchange Department! I have a [illegible] outfit and will be [illegible] for any one [illegible] if they in exchange will give me [illegible] or anything to have to be given to our festival.

This is a fine bargain. Who wishes the lady's address?

Moist Hands.

For excessive perspiration of the hands try bathing them three times a day in a mixture of four ounces of alcohol and half an ounce of belladonna. Moisten the palms well and let the lotion dry on. Before putting on gloves dust with a powder made of one dram each of oxide of zinc and boracic acid in powder, two drams of lycopodium powder, half an ounce of starch and a quarter of an ounce of powdered orris. Sift together many times to mix well. This may be applied at night as well as through the day.—[Kansas City Star.

Fenia Agoltzoff and Natalia Urinoff.

Mary Moran and Gracie Taggart.

hibition this cake was cut and passed around to the guests, and every one pronounced it a great success.

Milton Baker is a sure enough little baker. Milton exhibited a pan of appetizing looking biscuits. This boy is a fourth-grader, about 11 years of age. When asked how he went about making his biscuit, he said, "well, the first thing I do is to get everything I will need right on the table at my hand, before I start." Every housekeeper will know at once that Milton knows his business just from this statement, for he starts out the right way.

Willie Carter is a tiny boy with a real manly bearing, still you would never judge that Willie is a splendid muffin-maker from his appearance; but he is, and he had a pan of muffins on exhibition to verify this. Willie is a mother's helper; he says he often makes muffins for the folks at home and they all like them very much.

Following is the programme in full of the flag-raising exercises:

Songs	Eighth-grade pupils
Song and drill	Kindergarten pupils
Recitation	A1 and B2 pupils
Songs	Seventh-grade pupils
Memorial Day song	Fourth-grade boys
Song—"Tenting on the Old Camp Ground"	Eighth-grade pupils
Flag selections ...	Fifth and sixth-grade girls
Our Flag.
Recitation and presentation of flag	Nellie McCarty
Address	M. C. Bettinger
Salute to the flag	School
America.

Two Bright Scholars.

The two girls, with their quaint head dresses, are Fenia Agoltzoff and Natalia Urinoff, two little Russian girls, pupils of the Utah-street school. They are both very apt pupils; especially may this be said of Natalia, who is 12 years old, and who has done remarkable work while at school.

Natalia was entered at school last September; at that time she was not able to speak a single word in English. She has gone through the first, second and third grades within five months, and will be promoted to the fourth grade at the end of this school session.

Dutch Doll and Potato Menagerie.

The next time you have a party be sure to have the Dutch doll as a guest; for she will be the means of much merriment to the other small guests. The Dutch doll is made by having some one lie on the floor, face downward, under the table, the long tablecloth covering all of the body but the legs and feet; then dress up the legs and feet with a shawl and sunbonnet. When the guests come into the room, the doll begins dancing up and down. All the fun is caused by the mysterious dancing, for the little folk will not be able to tell what makes the doll move.

There is also much fun in making a potato menagerie. This may be made with a half dozen large, solid potatoes. After carefully peeling them, cut animals from them. The only tool necessary is a good sharp penknife. It will require a little practice to become a skillwul potato cutter. But the boy or girl who will persist will be rewarded for the trouble, when there is a nice row of animals on the table. There should be an elephant, a giraffe, a hippo, a horse, a lion, a cow, a bear, a hog, a cat and a dog.

After completing the menagerie the animals may be colored with water colors and ink. A hog may be left potato color, save for spots made of ink. The giraffe is also left the natural potato color and spotted with ink.

You will be surprised to find how lifelike these little animals will look, and they will keep for many days in good condition.

Two Fast Friends.

Mary Moran and Gracie Taggart are insparable little friends. All day long the two sit at the same small desk in the first grade class-room. Gracie really belongs to the kindergarten department, but she cannot bear to be away from the little Irish lassie, who is her comforter, and who begs, with a delicious brogue:

"Please, ma'am, leave her stay wid me; 'cause it makes her cry to hear 'em sing in the kindergarten room."

When Gracie was questioned, why it made her cry to hear the children sing, the tears only started afresh, and her champion drew her closer in a dear, protecting embrace, and answered for her:

"Well, you see—you see—she ain't got no mamma."

And Gracie, looking up with sad, little tear-stained face, simply nodded her assent to Mary Moran's statement, for the little one was indeed too crushed with the sense of her awful loss to speak, her dear mamma having passed away very recently.

And so, Mary Moran has taken Gracie under her loving care during school hours, calling for her every morning at her home; then the two go along hand in hand, while Mary chatters away in cheerful fashion about "what we gonter play and what we gonter do," until she finally and artfully gets Gracie interested, and she forgets her grief for a brief spell.

Gracie's grief appealed to Mary Moran's warm little Irish heart, and so the two sit at the same small desk, and Mary keeps her arm around Gracie's neck, while she studies her primer lesson.

A National Spelling Match.

Keen interest is being shown in the big spelling match which will take place at Cleveland, O., on June 29. This will be one of the interesting features of the National Educational Association's convention, which will be held in that city the latter part of the present month.

All the big cities of the country have been invited to send delegations of pupils for this great spelling test, and great preparations are in progress therefor.

Preliminary tests are being given to the eighth-grade classes in all the schools of the big cities, in order to select the best spellers of these schools to send on to represent their cities in the big spelling match. It will be a monster affair, and each class will endeavor to capture the honors for its city.

A test was recently given in one of the cities which will be represented at the national spelling match to a class of 767. Fifty words were selected from a list of words given to 144 pupils of Cleveland, by the educational commission, appointed by the Board of Education to investigate the school system of that city. The result was reported as satisfactory. Although there was no perfect paper handed in at the test, there were three papers with only one misspelled word in each. The average misspelled word per pupil was 12.14, only .04 poorer than the Cleveland showing, in which one perfect paper was reported. Here are the fifty words of the test:

Drowsy, dimmer, opponent, excelled, opposed, tongue, cholera, Wednesday, increased, imagine, riddle, convalescence, barbarous, financial, telegraph, balance, diligence, control, annoyance, stirred, elegant, orange, civilise, veteran, chargeable, patriotic, sieve, hazel, marvel, navigator, collision, ally, alliance, peninsula, wrangle, surviving, worthy, measles, conceal, ratio, Delaware, anxiety, military, possess, abandon, guardian, blamable, obliged, business, seditious.

To Wash Windows.

Every woman who does her own work dreads the day when the windows have to be washed. She will find it very easy if she will follow these directions:

The Blessing of Good Teet

The man or woman who has g[illegible] teeth is not always sensible of [illegible] very fortunate they are. It is [illegible] much the same way with those [illegible] enjoy perfect health. They do [illegible] know anything else; but the suffer[illegible] could tell them that they did [illegible] know how greatly they were bless[illegible]

Before the discovery of the Alveo[illegible] Method of restoring missing te[illegible] without the aid of plates or ordina[illegible] bridge work, the person who had l[illegible] teeth had no way of supplying t[illegible] omission but with a set of tee[illegible] fastened to a partial plate. The[illegible] were styled, and are styled to t[illegible] day, "false teeth," and that term a[illegible] describes them. They do not l[illegible] like natural teeth; they do not act l[illegible] natural teeth, and while they are b[illegible] ter than nothing at all, provided o[illegible] has lost his natural teeth, that [illegible] about as much as can be said in th[illegible] favor.

You can imagine how the announce[illegible] ment was received by the gene[illegible] public, who were wearing these fa[illegible] teeth, when a few years ago we [illegible] nounced through the columns of [illegible] daily press that we had discovere[illegible] method of restoring missing te[illegible] without the aid of partial plates [illegible] even ordinary bridgework. Our [illegible] fices were besieged with people a[illegible] ious to find out what we meant by [illegible] statement. None of them co[illegible] imagine how we were going to m[illegible] teeth stay in the mouth without [illegible] suction, which is the main princ[illegible] of the partial plate.

Naturally, we were prepared [illegible] meet these questions and to m[illegible] them in the most convincing man[illegible] —namely: by offering to restore [illegible] the teeth they had lost with the Al[illegible] olar Method, and guarantee the wo[illegible] We told all these people, and we [illegible] you now, that if you have two or mo[illegible] teeth left in either jaw we can sup[illegible] all that you have lost and make th[illegible] as solid as a rock in your mouth, [illegible] that they will look and feel and [illegible] like natural teeth, and in doing [illegible] we won't cover up your mouth wit[illegible] rubber plate. We won't cause y[illegible] any pain or discomfort while we [illegible] doing the work, and we won't char[illegible] you any more for it than any fi[illegible] class dentist would ask for ordin[illegible] bridge work.

In support of these contentions [illegible] are able to offer a mass of testimo[illegible] from satisfied patients. The follo[illegible] ing letter will give you a fairly g[illegible] idea of how the work is regarded [illegible] those who have had it done:

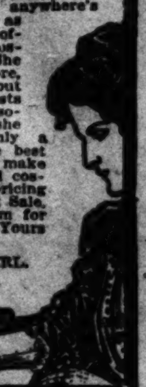
"A Woman Who Knows"



One of the leading society women of Los Angeles said yesterday: "I've never seen such handsome suits at anywhere's near the prices as Hamburger's are offering in their Closing Out Sale." She wasn't in the store, either at the time, but was one of the guests at a swell evening social. The gown she wore was certainly a beautiful one. The best artists of the world make the very gowns and costumes we're underpricing for this Closing Out Sale. You can buy them for nearly half now. Yours truly,

BYRON STANLEY.

THE WORLD'S WONDER.

424 S. HILL—424

25c—POSITIVELY, ONLY THIS WEEK—25c.

If you contemplate consulting a psychic several things should be taken into consideration—ABILITY, the HONESTY of methods, the FAIRNESS of dealings, the HIGHER degree of work, the ACCURACY of each prediction, the COMMON SENSE used with it, the INTEREST taken in each case, the RESPECT shown to each caller, the fact of SECRECY in consultation, the FEE charged for services.

TAKE NOTICE.

This reduction in readings is to positively close at the end of this week. His only purpose for making the reduction was the realization of the many deceptions and misstatements that are too often chaperoned through the columns of the daily press, and a desire to place the line of work above ridicule and vulgar fakirism. On account of the large patronage he is receiving; principally those patrons who have recommended him to their friends. While he is not wealthy, he does claim to be charitable.

So take notice and do not call after SATURDAY, JUNE 13, for the above prices, as they positively will not be continued from week to week as is often the case.

It is not necessary that he should, through the columns of the press, mention all the ills one is heir to. Let PROF. STANLEY analyze your troubles and suggest the remedy. These things taken into consideration will place a thinking public in a position to judge for themselves, and not be misled, imposed upon or their time thrown away.

Are you satisfied with your present condition? Are you sick, are you suffering, mentally or otherwise? Have you been for months, and perhaps years, the victim of professional ignorance? Have you lost all faith in mankind? Have you visited so many psychics, so many specialists that you are tired and disgusted? If so, it would be to your great advantage to call at his office and talk to him. He is not a doctor and is not claiming to be nor has he any personal quarrels with them or their methods. While his methods do not deal with material substances, he does not claim power not consistent as a gift or a talent to a human individual. A trial is convincing. The cost is nominal. If not satisfied you pay nothing. It is only the ignorant who scoff and will not investigate. Work upon your own judgment. Consult yourself, not others. Learn for yourself if there is not a remedy or relief. You will at least have the satisfaction of being able to judge for yourself; then if satisfied, you will understand thoroughly the proper steps to take for your success, health and happiness.

THE NAME STANLEY A DOUBLE GUARANTEE.

Hours 9:30 to 8, Sunday included.

It is better to call early to avoid disappointment.

LIVE AND LET LIVE.

Never before in the history of occult science has a man of PROF. W. E. KING'S professional standing consented to place his services at the disposal of the public for such a nominal consideration. Realizing that this city has been overrun with pretenders and that many of its citizens are anxious to visit a genuine clairvoyant, PROF. W. E. KING has decided to place his consultation fee within the reach of all.

Years of study, travel in far eastern lands, and endless experience, coupled with rare psychical gifts, have made him the world's greatest living exponent of HINDOO and OCCULT MYSTICISM.

How can I make home happy?
How can I conquer my enemies?
How can I marry the one I choose?
How can I marry well?
How soon can I marry?
How can I conquer my rival?
How can I make any one love me?
How soon will my lover propose?
How can I get a letter?
How can I get a position?
How can I remove bad influences?
How can I control any one?
How make distant ones think of me?
How can I settle my quarrel?
How can I hold my husband's love?
How can I hold my wife's love?

PROF. W. E. KING tells all—never asks a question.

EXTRAORDINARY PSYCHIC POWER, combined with his superior knowledge of occult force, enables him to read human life with unerring accuracy from infancy to old age; his powers are wonderful and indisputable; his advice is reliable, his information clear, concise and to the point, in love, marriage, divorce, sales, wills, patents, journeys, old estates, investments, property mortgages.

I WILL GIVE YOU THE LUCK that wins success in love, marriage, divorce, speculation, business, health and transactions of all kinds; restore lost affection; I will tell you how to gain the love of the one you desire, even though miles away; will tell you who and when you will marry.

I WILL TELL YOU HOW TO ATTRACT, control and change the thoughts, intentions, actions or character so that you will reach the highest possible development of mental vigor, health, happiness and capacity to earn wealth; how to accumulate a fortune and be happy.

I WILL TELL OF YOUR HUSBAND, WIFE, lover, friends, or enemies; who is true and who is false; will tell you every hope, fear, ambition, better than you could tell it yourself; those that are unsuccessful are made prosperous and started on the road to wealth; tell you how to make your husband or wife, or any one, be kind and true to you.

PROF. W. E. KING.

PROF. W. E. KING FORETELLS MANY EVENTS.

Some of the prophecies made by Prof. W. E. KING and which were fulfilled to the letter and day were:

The explosion of the United States warship Bennington at San Diego, Cal. It was predicted that on that day the government would lose a ship in the Pacific.

Prof. W. E. KING, Psychic, had warned the public of San Francisco's earthquake of 1906 for years.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the Japanese-Russian war. The day of the month and year was predicted on which hostilities would be begun and the victory of the Japanese.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the late President McKinley's assassination at "Buffalo Exposition."

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the assassination of Carter Harrison the elder three weeks before the weak-minded Prendergast fired the fatal shot at Chicago's chief executive.

Prof. W. E. KING predicted the earthquake at Kingston, Jamaica, W.I.; the earthquake in Chile; the Thaw-White tragedy; also predicted the Galveston flood.

On Jan. 17 two earthquake shocks were felt at Oban, Scotland. They had been predicted by W. E. KING.

Prof. W. E. KING, Psychic, has foretold many great events that took place on the day set.

Prof. W. E. KING is now located at 247 S. Hill st., where he will be pleased to meet his clients and many friends.

All Los Angeles society is excited over Prof. W. E. KING'S predictions. His parlors are crowded daily.—London Mirror.

Dear Prof. W. E. KING:

My husband has returned. AFTER TWO PSYCHICS FAILED in this case, you have succeeded. I wish to commend you with my heartfelt thanks and may the Lord bless you in your work, as you certainly are a deserving prophet.

Your sincere friend,
MRS. G. E. M.

Prof. W. E. KING:

Esteemed Sir—I am so happy. My Jack is home after three years' absence. The reading and advice you gave me was the means of his return. May God bless you.
M. A.

Prof. W. E. KING:

Dear Sir—I found the diamond ring in among the soiled linen where you located it while you was in "the astral dead-trance." You are a wonder. Words cannot express my views.

Gratefully yours,
MRS. A. W.

Prof. W. E. KING:

Your predictions all came true. My wife has entirely recovered from her illness. You are certainly a wonderful psychic.

Yours truly, G. L.

Prof. W. E. KING:

Dear Sir—When I called on you I was truly a skeptic, but your predictions have all come true. You have my co-operation in advocating your cause. JULIUS S.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

Ladies and gentlemen can visit W. E. KING without fear of having their confidence betrayed. He has thousands of written testimonials from leading citizens of the United States, but he never publishes a name of any of his patrons, as he considers his business a sacred trust. If you doubt his ability, call and he will give you positive evidence in your own case. Unlike the fortune teller and pretender, he asks no fee in advance and absolutely refuses to accept any remuneration for his readings if perfect satisfaction is not given.

"O YE OF LITTLE FAITH."

This too masterful generation, steeped in luxury and blasé from a surfeit of pleasures, is blind to the greatest opportunities through unbelief in the higher sources of knowledge and spiritual guidance, such as have in past ages shaped the destinies of the greatest individuals and nations. Human life is made up of a multiplicity of interests, and ever and anon there comes a time to every mortal when in bitterness of spirit they have cried: "WOULD THAT I HAD WARNING ERE THIS CAME TO PASS." THERE ARE NONE SPARED THESE TRIALS of patience, though some, by a greater mental endowment and higher gifts, avoid for a time pitfalls into which those less favored fall. In the person of Prof. W. E. King remarkable and extraordinary gifts were early manifested to himself in perplexing and astounding ways. Finally, recognizing the power conferred upon him, his aim has been to refine, develop and uplift to that degree of scientific accuracy that its benefits may devolve to his fellow-creatures. These wonderful and inscrutable institutions brought into subjective control are now at the service of the humble or the great, without distinction or reservation. The marvelous tests he performs prove the magnitude of his strange and wonderful powers. He stands at the head of his profession, and does not wish to be measured by any other standard than his own. He brings personal indorsements from great people, from nearly all civilized parts of the earth. His experience and knowledge of life is broad, deep and profound, and when united with his most marvelous powers of mediumship it makes him all that he claims to be, "the peer of all mediums and life readers."

SPECIAL READINGS THIS WEEK —50c—50c—50c—50c—50c—50c

Indorsed by THE LEADING MEN AND WOMEN OF THE NATION.
In consulting a Psychic the very best is the first to be considered. The name is famous in two hemispheres for he acurately correct reading of human life from cradle to grave.

KARMA

KARMA

stands alone in her magnificent power of reading the future of human kind. Born with a double veil. Educated in Occult Mystery and Hindoo Philosophy in India and Egypt.

KARMA gives you names, dates, facts and figures; tells you of loved ones, living or dead; YOUR SECRET TROUBLES, the cause and remedy—in fact, tells you everything. Locates absent ones, overcomes your rivals and enemies, gives infallible advice on all affairs of life, including business, law, health, changes, travel, patents, financial troubles, love, courtship, marriage.

KARMA IS NOT A PSYCHIC FROM CHOICE, BUT BECAUSE FATE HAS SO DECREED IT. HER ANCESTORS WERE POWERFUL PRIESTS AND PHILOSOPHERS AND HAVE FOR AGES HANDED DOWN THEIR WONDERFUL POWER OR GIFT FROM GENERATION TO GENERATION, SO SHE HAS RECEIVED THE RICH INHERITANCE TOGETHER WITH COMBINED KNOWLEDGE AND PRICELESS KNOWLEDGE OF GENERATIONS. NO MATTER WHAT YOUR PRESENT TROUBLE MAY BE, OR WHAT YOUR PAST EXPERIENCE HAS BEEN, YOU WILL SAVE TIME AND AVOID DISAPPOINTMENT BY AT ONCE CONSULTING HER.

Strangely fascinating are the words that come from the cultivated lips of this interesting woman whose journey of life has already taken her through all the renowned psychic schools of Egypt, India and Europe. It seems indeed as if her knowledge must come from that mysterious world of which we all would know, yet, longing, cannot know. She looks far away into the dim, mysterious future—the great beyond—across the dark chasm which separates the human body from the flitting soul—and that which is to be is told. The separated ones are brought together, foes are made friends, lost property is recovered, the mist is brushed away from business ventures, the hand is so guided that failures are averted, the earth's surface is explored, its treasures laid bare to her mysterious, receptive mind, and while she gives names, dates, facts and figures, her visitor sits dumbfounded at the revelations she makes to him. She is surely a woman of the passing time.

A TRUE PSYCHIC IS BORN—NOT MADE.

"TRUTHFUL IN HER PREDICTIONS; RELIABLE IN HER ADVICE. No matter what troubles you may have with yourself or others, come and she will guide you. Mme. Karma advises you with a certainty, by a higher than human mind.

SPECIAL LOW FEE
SEVEN DAYS ONLY.

This remarkable SEERESS is free from all mercenary motives, having no desire for personal gain, as she is a very wealthy woman. Her only mission is to use her marvelous powers for the benefit of unfortunate humanity—and in order that all may equally reap their share in these blessings, Mme. KARMA will place her FEE so low that no one need remain away.

MRS. MASSON,

the noted palmist of London, Eng., may be consulted at 322 S. SPRING ST. (Suite 17.)
by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND-READINGS FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn, in his investigations along psychological lines, that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT INFORMATION.

PALMISTRY, HONESTLY PRACTICED, WILL NOT tell you your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in everyday life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health, marriage and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.

HIGH CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

STRUGGLES FOR NOMINATIONS.

Crucial Moments in National Conventions.

Contest Between Grant and Blaine Recalled.

Lively Times Expected in Colorado Capital.

In the Republican National Convention, which will assemble in Chicago on June 16, there is no prospect of even one of the many crucial moments which have marked similar events in the past. Secretary Taft is so far ahead of his rivals that his nomination for President is a foregone conclusion. There may be some lively incidents in the selection of a candidate for Vice-President and in reaching an agreement on all phases of the platform, but as a whole the gathering will be a tame affair—tame when compared with some stormy conventions which are milestones in the history of the Republican party.

For supreme moments that test men's nerves; for thrilling developments, which will make delegates stand on their tiptoes, and for quick evolutions that will take staid statesmen off their feet, the Democratic convention in Denver in July promises a full supply from start to finish. William Jennings Bryan will be the center of that boisterous gathering. He will be the idol of the western delegates and of the galleries, but deep down in the breasts of delegates from the East, from the Middle West and from some of the Southern States, and deep down in the breasts of the Democratic leaders behind those delegates there will be a determination as inflexible as iron to defeat Mr. Bryan.

MIND AGAINST MATTER.

It will be mind against matter, intelligence against force, organization against disorder. When the conflict comes, and it is bound to come, great will be the upheaval. The explosions will be frequent and loud.

For has not Mr. Bryan to get a two-thirds vote of all the delegates elected to secure the nomination?

He has not that many votes to date, nor has he that number in sight.

That Denver convention will be worth going miles to see and to hear. It promises to take its place alongside other national party conventions in which there have been crucial moments.

When the Republican National Convention met in Chicago, May 16, 1860, the nomination of William H. Seward for the Presidency seemed a foregone conclusion, and until well toward its close his election was regarded as a certainty by all save a handful of delegates. Why, in the end, was he put aside and Lincoln taken in his place? Andrew G. Curtin of Pennsylvania, some years before his death, gave the answer to this question. A few weeks before the meeting of the national convention Curtin was made the Republican candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania. Strong as were the hopes of the Pennsylvania Republicans of success at their State election, then held in October, it was still an unsettled question whether or not the rank and file of the old Whigs would follow their chieftains into the new Republican party.

STRONG MAN OPPOSING.

The Democrats had nominated for Governor a man whose ability and popularity were sure to put the strength of the infant party to the severest test. A strong Presidential nomination would add greatly to the prospects of Republican success in Pennsylvania in October, and would have an incalculable effect on the November contest. Upon the other hand, Curtin, weighted with a weak Presidential candidate, would probably fail of an election, and his defeat would react disastrously upon the national ticket. Curtin believed that Seward was especially weak in Pennsylvania, and that his nomination would mean the defeat of both State and national tickets.

Seward led on the first ballot, but on the second, as had been previously arranged, the Pennsylvania delegates changed from Cameron to Lincoln, which caused an immediate and fatal break in the lines of the Seward men. Before the ballot closed the Vermont and New Jersey delegates deserted Seward for Lincoln. Changes to Lincoln followed each other in rapid succession during the progress of the third ballot, and before it was ended he had 231½ votes, 233 being required to nominate. Then four of the Ohio delegates changed to Lincoln, assuring his nomination, and before the ballot closed 354 out of 446 delegates had declared in his favor. The Seward leaders, who had been confident of his nomination until the last, were amazed and dumfounded at the result. William M. Evarts promptly moved that Lincoln's nomination should be made unanimous, and with the enthusiasm that usually attends an event of the kind the motion was carried. Lincoln carried Pennsylvania by a decisive majority, and his nomination proved that it was the strongest that could have been made.

NOMINATION OF GRANT.

Grant's consent to become a candidate for the Presidency made his nomination by the Republican National Convention, which met at Chicago on May 20, 1868, a mere matter of form. There was not a dissenting voice to his selection in the entire convention.

A struggle over the nomination for Vice-President was the principal feature of the Republican National Convention held in Philadelphia on June 5, 1872. Grant's course as President had arrayed against him many of the ablest leaders of his party, but these, when the Philadelphia convention met, had already deserted the Republican standard to support the candidacy of Horace Greeley, and the President was renominated without opposition on the first ballot. Vice-President Colfax was not so fortunate. He had suffered from ill health during the preceding winter, and announced that he would not be candidate, but later changed his mind and made a desperate battle to win what he had thrown away. The tide was turned against him by the Washington correspondents, who had become estranged from him, and on the second ballot he was defeated by Henry Wilson.

BLAINE'S DEFEAT.

The Republican National Convention which assembled in Cincinnati on June 14, 1876, marked the opening of a new era in the history of the party. It met with an open field, and with a stage filled by men who had become prominent since the Civil War. The most conspicuous candidate was James G. Blaine, who, though still under 50, had already gained a hold upon the masses equaling in warmth and enthusiasm that enjoyed by Henry Clay in earlier years. Other strong candidates were Oliver P. Morton, Roscoe Conkling and Benjamin H. Bristow, who had been Secretary of the Treasury under Grant. Pennsylvania had a candidate in John F. Hartranft, and Ohio offered one in Rutherford B. Hayes. All of the enthusiasm, however, was for Blaine, whose plurality on the first ballot was so great that his friends believed that the victory had been practically won.

Perhaps it might have been had not Blaine been ill in Washington and unable to counsel with his friends, while shrewd enemies were on the field, determined to defeat him. Thus, in the end, a combination was effected looking to the nomination of Hayes, who had the advantage of having entailed no personal enmities and the prestige of having lately defeated Allen G. Thurman in a desperate battle for the Governorship of Ohio. Michigan, on the fifth ballot, set the cue by going over to Hayes. On the seventh ballot the New York delegates agreed to support him, while Pennsylvania split its vote, giving part to Hayes and part to Blaine, and when the result was announced, Hayes had 384 votes—five more than was necessary to a choice.

A MEMORABLE CONFLICT.

The Republican National Convention of 1880 still stands an incomparable one.

Grant and Blaine had divided the Republicans of the country. Both sides awaited the convention impatiently. Hayes's administration had won for him the approval of many good men, but it had not been satisfactory to the politicians. A majority of the old national committee were for Grant. The Grant men had Roscoe Conkling as their leader and manager.

LASTED FOR SEVEN DAYS.

It was a seven-day convention, and an unusual indulgence was allowed to discuss the report of the committee on credentials and for the naming of candidates. Blaine was named first, and the Blaine following in and about the convention devoted a half-hour to frantic demonstrations of approval. When Conkling, standing upon a reporters' table in the center of the middle stage, began, "If you ask what State he hails from," the storm of applause which greeted him as he strode forward had not sufficiently subsided to enable the delegates to know whether he was speaking prose or poetry. But everybody heard before he got through, and all who heard could not fail to remember that fierce challenge, an appeal for loyalty to Grant, mingled with scorn for his detractors and opponents. But neither delays nor sharp admonitions added to the Grant strength. Grant reached his greatest vote, 313, on the thirty-fifth ballot when Blaine had 285. The Blaine men were beaten, but they won a tactical victory on the thirty-sixth ballot by directing the combination on Garfield. The Grant men, to the number of 306, stuck to their man to the last. Going out for luncheon, after the President had been nominated, Howard Carroll, in the midst of the New York delegation, insisted that Arthur should have second place. Conkling alone disapproved, but he yielded when Gov. Dennison, of Ohio, came to New York headquarters to assure New York that Ohio would be glad to support any man New York would decide upon. And then Arthur was selected.

NOMINATION OF HANCOCK.

When the Democratic National Convention of 1880 was about to assemble in Cincinnati it was commonly believed that it would nominate Samuel J. Tilden by acclamation. As usual, the New York City Democrats presented the convention with a case of "dirty linen," and the convention manifested the usual hostility to Tammany Hall in disposing of it. Rufus W. Peckham had been taken along to place Tilden in nomination. He did not enjoy the horribly hot weather, or the playfulness of Apgar and some other delegates, and he was profoundly disgusted when, instead of being called upon to place Mr. Tilden in nomination, he was asked to read the letter brought to Cincinnati by Henry Tilden, in which Mr. Tilden "renounced" the nomination.

That letter spoiled the convention. Having no second choice, the friends of Tilden were subject to be distributed among the fifteen candidates at once announced. Bayard, Thurman, Randall, Morrison, Ewing, Payne, Field, Seymour, McClellan and others, including Gen. Hancock, were presented and voted for. Hancock led on the first ballot. An adjournment afforded an opportunity for agreement, and the second ballot, next morning, as corrected by changes, gave Hancock the nomination. W. H. English of Indiana was chosen to finish the ticket.

BLAINE AT LAST.

The Republicans were backed in Chicago in 1884, this time with a larger Blaine contingent, but also with a very important and influential body of delegates who did not approve Arthur's expectation to be nominated, and yet were not for Blaine. Massachusetts, because Arthur had been friendly to Gen. Butler, transferred to him the hostility it had cherished against Grant, and was for Edmunds. Not one of the New York delegates-at-large—including Theodore Roosevelt—was for Arthur, and he had only thirty-one of seventy-two delegates from the State. The convention met on June 3. The National Committee's nomination of Powell Clayton for temporary chairman was rejected, and John R. Lynch, a Mississippi colored man, was chosen. The opponents of Arthur then selected John B. Henderson of Missouri, an Edmunds man, for permanent chairman. William McKinley reported the platform. Blaine started in the first ballot with 334½ votes to Arthur's 278. Roosevelt and B. B. Odell voted for Edmunds. Foraker tried to induce the convention to nominate Blaine by acclamation, and failed, but on the fourth ballot he had 541 votes, and was winner. Gen. John A. Logan was nominated for Vice-President almost without opposition.

CLEVELAND ATTACKED.

About a month later, in the same hall, a convention largely predisposed to nominate Grover Cleveland, was shocked, almost at the outset, by Thomas F. Grady's savage effort to break the unit rule, backed by W. Bourke Cockran. Daniel Manning, on the call of the roll by States, to determine this very question, cast 72 votes under the unit rule, greatly infuriating the Tammany Hall opposition. When Daniel S. Lockwood nominated Cleveland, and the convention indulged in a prolonged demonstration of its approval, Grady and Cockran, who did not appear to be concerned about nominating an opponent, although Roswell P. Flower was anxious to be nominated, bitterly opposed Cleveland and declared that the Democrats would lose New York if he were nominated.

On the first ballot Cleveland had 329 votes, with Bayard and others running. On the first ballot, taken on the fourth day, Cleveland's vote ran up to 474. He needed 547, and the additional votes necessary were secured by prompt changes. The convention courteously allowed Gen. B. F. Butler to announce his disapproval of the platform and his intention to bolt. He bolted, and received 250,000 votes as an opposition candidate.

The Democratic convention of 1888 was not much more than a love feast. The lack of enthusiasm for Cleveland was probably the first indication of the "machine" dislike for him that was manifested four years later. About the only unreserved and spontaneous enthusiasm was that evinced for Thurman as a candidate for Vice-President. Indiana tried to rush Gray, as it had tried to stampede the 1880 convention for Hendricks for President. The effort was in both instances short-lived and unavailing. Thurman was nominated on the first ballot.

BLAINE LOSES AGAIN.

Again in 1888 the Republicans held their national convention in Chicago, this time in the unfinished auditorium, on June 19. The Republicans had been out of power for nearly four years. Blaine's impaired health had served to diminish his availability and popularity as a candidate, but he still had many admirers and followers. A new movement for Sherman had made some progress, and with a free field Alger, Allison, Depew and Gresham were picking up delegates. But none of these candidates was convincing. Some of them were frankly inadvisable. Into the midst, cautiously, with prudence, plausibility and persistency, came the Harrison boom, with Halford, New, Dudley, Michenor and Wallace to guide its first efforts. When it was a day old the chances of half a dozen other caididates had expired. The Harrison men had the argument with them. They had only to wait for the votes. On the first ballot, on June 22, Sherman had 229 votes, Gresham, 107; Depew, 99; Alger, 84; Harrison, 85; Allison, 72, and Blaine, 35. Depew quit at the evening session, and New York's 72 votes went to Harrison. On the eighth ballot Harrison was nominated.

There was no doubt about what would be done by the Republicans at Minneapolis in 1892. Mr. Clarkson and Mr. Platt declared they believed that Blaine might be nominated, but a canvass of the delegates at any time would have made such an opinion untenable. The badly crowded and rudely fed delegates got to a ballot June 7. On the fourth day the offers of wagers on Blaine were hushed by Harrison's nomination. Harrison had 535⅙ votes, Blaine 182⅙ and Reed 4. Reed's disappointment was keen. He had thought Harrison unpopular, and himself much more popular than his small vote indicated.

CLEVELAND AGAIN.

A clique of silver and radical machine Senators who expected to control the Democratic convention at Chicago in 1892 occupied the ground early and prepared to name anybody except Cleveland. It was the machine against the country, but William C. Whitney and a few other determined and resourceful men were on the popular side, and they won. Once more, as in 1880 and 1884, Tammany Hall was in opposition. The Cleveland men won in the permanent organization, naming Hon. W. L. Wilson to preside, and they got the platform they wanted. Leon Abbett, Jr., of New Jersey nominated Cleveland as "the plain, blunt, honest citizen, the idol of the Democratic masses." A terrific electric storm arose and it interrupted W. H. DeWitt in his effort to nominate David B. Hill. Horace Boise was nominated, and the noise that followed was out of all proportion to the vote he polled. John W. Daniel of Virginia seconded Hill. Then Bourke Cockran got the floor. He begged for an adjournment, which was refused. So he went on to belittle Cleveland and to promise that he would lose New York. Then, when the sun was rising, the convention voted. On the first and last ballot Cleveland had 617⅓ votes, Boise 103⅓ votes, Hill 114 votes—72 of which were from New York.

HANNA AS AN ORGANIZER.

Thanks to the organizing ability and energy of Mr. Hanna, it was accepted as almost certain before the Republican convention met at St. Louis on June 16, 1896, that William McKinley would be its candidate for President. Not until Senator Lodge, Senator Foraker, Gov. Crane and a few other resolute gold men put their heads together was it decided that whoever was nominated should run as a gold-standard man, for McKinley was not there to say he would, and Hanna would not say for him. Before the Committee on Resolutions reported the platform, Teller, Dubois, Pettigrew and the other silver men who bolted knew what was coming and that McKinley would be obliged to run on an unequivocal gold-standard platform, if at all. Allison, Reed, Morton, Quay and McKinley were placed in nomination. McKinley was chosen with a rush on the first ballot by 661½ votes, Reed having only 84½ votes. William J. Bryan, as reporter for the Omaha World-Herald, reported the proceedings from a place among the press seats.

The memorable Democratic convention of 1896 was held at Chicago July 4. A clique or silver and Populist Senators controlled it from the first. Before the convention met Richard P. Bland was a growing favorite. The Credentials Committee unseated some gold men in Nebraska and substituted a delegation including Bryan. New York and Wisconsin would not accept the platform and refused to vote after it had been adopted. In support of it Bryan delivered his celebrated "cross of gold" speech and was at once a preferred candidate. Bland led in the voting until the third ballot, when he had 298 votes. Then his support fell away and Bryan's accumulated. On the fifth ballot Bryan was nominated. The convention had been almost constantly hysterical since Bryan made his "crown of thorns" oration; now it abandoned itself to a very frensy of delight, in which everybody but the silenced gold delegates and alternates participated. The convention nominated Arthur W. Sewall of Maine for Vice-President.

President McKinley was renominated by acclamation by the Republican National Convention which met in Philadelphia on June 19, 1900, but a more important issue of that gathering was the choice of Theodore Roosevelt as the candidate for Vice-President. The friends of McKinley desired the nomination of John D. Long, and it was well known that Roosevelt did not covet it, preferring instead a renomination for Governor of New York, but the argument of certain Republican managers finally decided the action of the convention and gave second place on the ticket to Roosevelt.

BRYAN A SECOND TIME.

The Democrats nominated Mr. Bryan at Kansas City, in 1900. There was no opposition to the "Boy Orator of the Platte." He and his friends dominated the convention. They nominated Adlai E. Stevenson for Vice-President. It was the same Stevenson whom Eastern Democrats gave the spoilsmen of the West as a sop in 1892 after they had named Grover Cleveland for the first place on the ticket. Stevenson went through with Cleveland on the anti-tariff wave.

ROOSEVELT AND PARKER.

The Republican Convention of 1904 met in Chicago and nominated Mr. Roosevelt for President and Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana, for Vice-President.

In 1904 Bryan stepped down and out. His two defeats had convinced him that the country did not demand him as President. He went to the convention as a delegate, however, and he was its central figure from beginning. He was the idol of the galleries, which made business almost impossible at times in their clacquing for their favorite. Judge Parker, of New York, was the nominee. The crucial moment in the convention came when a telegram was read from Judge Parker declining the nomination unless the silver clause in the platform was stricken out. That telegram gave Mr. Bryan his chance.

He had declared four years before that he would not accept the nomination if the silver plank of the platform of 1896 was not retained. He had his way, thought it required the vote of Prince David of Hawaii to secure a majority vote of the Committee on Resolutions. Mr. Bryan was, however, unwilling to give Judge Parker, the gold candidate, the same privilege which he had exacted four years before. He took the platform and claimed that the Democratic party was far superior to the man. For two hours he thrilled but did not convince his audience, and at midnight, when he saw defeat staring him in the face, he dramatically tore up a resolution which he had opposed to offer reaffirming the faith of the Democratic party in its platform.

The sun's rays were peeping through the windows of the big convention hall when the balloting was over and Judge Parker had been nominated.

Mr. Bryan will again be the storm center at the Denver convention—not in person, but through his friends on the floor of the galleries.

THE DOOM OF WEEDS.

Scientists Say a Heretofore Unuse Product of Mills is Death to These Pests.

Death to weeds, but harmless as a kitten to other things that grow! Full many a gardener has longed fo such a discovery to lessen his care and let a few kinks out of his aching back.

Now science steps to the forefro and says that just that discovery ha been made. The magic substance ca be applied to the front yard and th dandelions and other rank growth will shrivel up while the gras thrives. And it can be applied wit proportionately bigger results to th broad acres of the agricultural region where wild mustard, Canada thistle cornflowers and other destructiv weeds wither and curl up, while th oats, or the wheat, or whatever th crop may be, grows more lustily tha ever.

At least all that is claimed for cop peras, otherwise known as iron sul phate or green vitriol, and it has bee tried out in connection with exper ments carried on at a number of agri cultural colleges.

The steel corporation has a fe chuckles coming. At each of its wir mills an acid bath forms a part of th manufacturing process, and after th bath is over it has considerable quan tities of green vitriol on its hand which formerly were cast away.

When some enterprising chemis chanced on the discovery that gree vitroil could be put to some usefu purpose, the steel people immediatel sat up and took notice.

The sulphate, which comes in th form of green crystals, is dissolve in water for application to the perni cious weeds. A couple of pounds t the gallon is said to be about the righ quantity to settle the fate of the mos determined lawn dandelion that grow Wild mustard requires a stronge dose, and the farmer who goes on th warpath after this common destroye is advised to use from seventy-five t 100 pounds of the stuff for each fifty two gallons of water and then go fort for a wholesale slaying.

The solution is not to be applied wit an ordinary sprinkling can. It prob ably would eat the can with mor avidity than it eats weeds even. A spraying machine is necessary. Th introduction of Mr. Sulphate to Mr Weed is performed in the tender yout of the latter when he is unsophisti cated and about four inches high. Th presence of a good bright sun is sai to help the matter along, and if i happens to be in the early mornin when the dew is still on the groun why so much the better.

What the sulphate does to the wee is said to be plenty, and then som It works in a slow and leisurely fash ion and for the first day or so the in truders continue to stand up and pre tend they like it. On the second day however, they lose heart and ambitio They become mourning weeds, th chief mourners at their own funera

The Dream Child.

Through all the lovely summer day,
Like busy honey-bees,
My little girls around me play
And swarm upon my knees;
But when the twilight hour is o'er
And weary eyelids meet,
Along the silent nursery floor
I hear your boyish feet,
My Child of Dreams. The son I neve bore.

And now, while winking fireflies aid
The moon to light the skies,
While peacefully each little maid
In night-long slumber lies,
Alive the empty playroom seems
With merry rolling drums,
And, laughing, down the moon's beams
My tiny warrior comes.
My Fairy Prince! My Darling Son
Dreams!

Oh! lonely moments I shall find
Who now am greatly blessed;
For youthful wings must try the wind
The birds must leave the nest,
But though my house of doll and toy
May long have been bereft,
At night your eager shouts of joy
Will prove my son is left.
My Dearest Child! My little Dreamlan Boy!

Splendid Greeting from Independent Citizens, "Captains of Industry" and Free

THE VOICE OF CITIZENS.

[July 4, 1908.]

It is five years since the subjoined Address of Citizens and the response of Harrison Gray Otis thereto were first made public through these columns. The events which have since intervened, and the status of things in Los Angeles now, fully warrant the republication of the matter at this time. In the interval Los Angeles has enjoyed the benefits of comparative freedom in her industries; the blessings of liberty regulated by law; the prosperity which comes from unhampered industry; the splendid growth which is the direct outcome of right industrial and business conditions; the better fame and brighter name which she has worthily won. Her people, her men of action and affairs, taken as a body, are more profoundly convinced than ever before that their stand for ordered liberty and industrial freedom are absolutely right, and the best possible investment which the city and her people could have made. They believe in the unbroken continuance of a state of things in the community which has resulted in so much substantial good, in such splendid progress, in such benefits to the whole body of citizenship, and in that large measure of happiness which can come only from free conditions, normal and profitable activity in the industries, protection to life and property, and in the well-compensated employment of the largest possible number of the whole body of willing workers. If there was ever any doubt among our thinking people of all classes as to the essential need of freedom in the industries, or as to its accompanying blessings, that doubt was long ago dispelled; and our men of achievement, who best represent the major as well as the minor interests of the city and the South, not to say of the State and nation, are fixed in their purpose to keep Los Angeles a free city industrially—the freest city in the land—and to resist the threatened attempt of the monopolistic industrial gang of Gompers to again raid her industrially, enslave her people, shackle her industries and retard and reverse the splendid prosperity which has made her famous throughout the land and the world.

THE ADDRESS.

To Gen. Harrison Gray Otis,
Editor-in-Chief Los Angeles Times—Greeting:

Your fellow-citizens, with unfeigned admiration for your genius as the editor of a great paper, and appreciation of your worth as a man, desire hereby to assure you of their hearty and cordial support in your battle for individual liberty. Under your leadership the Los Angeles Times has fought and won a great victory for equal rights.

That the City of Los Angeles and environment are free from the tyranny of misguided agitators is chiefly due to the fearless advocacy of the rights of all men and the relentless condemnation of demagogues by The Times.

We are mindful of the fact that the majority of business men and employers of labor have come from the ranks of the common people, inheriting nothing save love of country and willingness and capacity for work.

We believe that the future of this country depends not only upon free schools and a free press, but also freedom of action under the law. The ambitious youth must not, shall not, be dwarfed in his desire or opportunity, or hindered in his effort to reach the goal of success, whether in the workshop, the fields of commerce, or along the highways of professional life. We demand for our fellows and for ourselves the individual freedom that became our heritage upon the Republic's birth.

We congratulate the City of Los Angeles and the State of California that through you the principles of eternal truth and justice are presented daily in the homes of California through the columns of the Los Angeles Times.

Written at Los Angeles this 20th day of June, 1903.

KEY-NOTES: LIBERTY IN LAW—INDUSTRIAL FREEDOM—ALL MUST HAVE THE EQUAL RIGHT TO LABOR—EVILS OF STRIKING, PICKETING AND BOYCOTTING, IDLENESS, VIOLENCE AND INDUSTRIAL TURMOIL.

THE TIMES-MIRROR COMPANY,
OWNERS OF THE LOS ANGELES TIMES,
Office of the General Manager,
Times Building.

LOS ANGELES (Cal.) July 11, 1903.

To Messrs. William H. Holabird, W. C. Patterson, Fred L. Baker, A. B. Cass, O. T. Johnson and J. R. Newberry, Committee of Citizens; and to the other signers of the foregoing address.

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Committee, and Citizens:

At noon on the 4th day of July, 1903, I had the honor to receive from the hands of your committee a numerously-signed address, presented on behalf of the signers and other independent citizens of Los Angeles. I made an informal oral acceptance at the time, and promised a more formal response later on, which I now make.

On behalf of myself and my associates in the conduct of the Los Angeles Times, I acknowledge with high appreciation and unaffected gratitude your handsome and honorable sentiments.

You and your fellow-citizens have seen fit to commend our course in a just battle for liberty regulated by law, for industrial freedom and the equal right of all honest workers, without distinction, to exploit, in a lawful way, every legitimate channel of human activity.

For your voluntary commendation, your substantial support and unexpected praise, I and my co-workers in this field of duty return our best thanks. To be praised by such a body of citizens as the signers of this unique address—fairly representing, as they do, the worth, the strength, the influence and the business solidarity of the city—is an honor indeed. You are our immediate fellow-citizens and close neighbors, and know whereof you speak; you are able to place a correct estimate upon the character and to judge justly the journalistic and personal conduct and career of the citizen whom you address—to estimate them more accurately, perhaps, than can any other equal number of men anywhere.

If I have been so fortunate as to render any valuable service to the people of my city—to the cause of industrial pacification and independence here or in the country at large—I am glad indeed. I have performed no more than my duty as a citizen and journalist. No conspicuous success could have been achieved without your powerful backing and fearless aid.

You exalt me and mine by your high approval of our course in the defense of a principle vital to the welfare of society, business and government; yet I do not fail to recognize the truth that your strong and timely words have an application and a significance far beyond my own personality. I can well understand that among so many good men, scores and hundreds in number, whose names are signed to this striking and beautiful address, embracing both employers and employed, there must be those who do not by any means agree with me in other things, and who are able to give reasons for their faith—reasons that I would not undertake to question here. Therefore I appreciate all the more highly their manly and unselfish action in this behalf. They have generously waived minor difference and joined in commending public utterances and acts demanded by the strenuous needs of the hour, and designed to promote the general welfare.

A Perilous March.

You, citizens of Los Angeles, were among the first to descry the danger signs in the industrial sky. Your far-seeing sagacity has accurately forecasted the logical, the inevitable outcome of the prevailing movement in the perilous direction of industrial usurpation and despotism, unless that movement be firmly checked by the mighty power of an aroused public opinion brought to bear directly against it. For industrial despotism, as we have seen, when once "in the saddle," has no logical halting place; it does not, of its own volition, stay its march; no "labor leader" has the sense or the patriotism to cry "Halt!" to his followers at the supreme moment, namely, before the head of the column has neared the danger line. That perilous march, if not stayed by the power of public opinion, must, in the end, be rudely arrested by the strong arm of the government, in order that no encouragement shall be given in the future to like attempts at yet further aggressions upon the inalienable rights of citizens.

Dangerous Leaders—Deluded Followers.

By far the worst phase of the labor problem lies in the fact that so-called "organized" labor is so often badly advised and ignorantly led. Too many of its leaders have shown, in conspicuous instances, an utter lack of any accurate conception of the true spirit and genius of our republican system—an utter disregard of the lawful rights of that far larger body of workmen who are not lined up in the ranks of the labor leagues. They have shown themselves to be, not true friends of labor, broadly speaking, but its narrow and deluded enemies. They have proved themselves to be blind, unsafe leaders. They have exhibited small knowledge of the true principles of industrial economics. By their course in promoting strikes and consequent idleness, they seem to say to workingmen: "Idleness is better for you than employment; stop work and live off the others." Such advice is folly and madness concentrated. The man who advises another to refuse employment and wages, when he needs them, is a bad counselor.

You have detected the danger that lies in the monstrous doctrine that the inalienable right to labor, and to labor freely, shall be confined to the few and not be open to all; that one class of labor, because it is banded together, possesses superior rights; that it can dominate other and more numerous classes of labor for the reason that they are unorganized; that the right not to organize is less sacred under the Constitution and the law than the right to organize.

The Sacredness of Industrial Freedom.

We oppose these impudent pretensions on the part of those who would establish a labor oligarchy and create an insufferable monopoly in a universal commodity. It is an unjust, an indefensible, a destructive doctrine. Carried to its ultimate conclusion, it would undermine our republican system, sap the foundations of the government, and substitute the uncontrolled will of the few for the lawful rule of the many; for true it is that the great body of labor in this country is unorganized, that it does not seek to organize, and in the very nature of the case must remain unorganized. Even in the ranks of banded labor are countless scores of men who are not there of their own free choice; they are unwilling subjects, and chafe under an insufferable thralldom.

We stand for the better, the more rational and just doctrine that has been repeatedly set forth by me, in the past, in these words:

The lawful right of every citizen to pursue, undisturbed and unhampered, any lawful occupation of his choice in a lawful way, and to be protected in that right by the whole power of the State and of the Nation, if need be.

The right to labor is fundamental and inalienable; it antedates labor leagues and human laws. It is a preeminent right of all American citizens, and can never be taken away without first revolutionizing the government. But there will be no revolution; this sacred right, vital to republican liberty, will be protected, defended and preserved by brave freemen who prize it; and all who dare assail it will be foiled in their wicked attempt.

How to Avert the Impending Peril.

Labor strikes, boycotts and picketing; proscription and abuse of other workmen—all these, with their concomitant evils, are indefensible and dangerous, and when accompanied by violence they become conspiracy. The government, though it may travel with leaden heel, cannot tolerate conspiracy or insurrection. It moves, and must move, when the overt act has been committed. In the last resort, when civic and industrial rights are denied and invaded, when the law is defied, when violence breaks forth, when all other measures have failed, then comes the ultimate resort, military force; for the law must be enforced by whatever effort; the public peace must be preserved at whatever sacrifice; insurrection must be put down at whatever cost. The government of the States and of the United States cannot and will not sit supine and see the edicts of their courts defied, their laws trampled upon, private and public property destroyed, or citizens maimed, murdered and maltreated. If such acts be permitted, anarchy ensues. But there will be no anarchy; ours is a government of law, and in its system resides the power to enforce its decrees.

But how much better it would be could the ultimate resort be averted! How much better for the whole body of law-respecting citizens to so act in such emergencies as we have witnessed, almost without number, within recent years, that the last dread alternative may never become necessary! How much wiser it is to bring to bear, in good time, the tremendous power of a peaceful though terribly earnest public opinion, commanding that law shall have away; that uniform privileges shall prevail in the field of industrial effort; that unjust discriminations shall cease; that all persons, without distinction, shall have the equal right to labor, and to enjoy, without the burden of private tax, the fruits of their labor; that, in short, industrial liberty and industrial equality shall be the rule in the land, as contemplated by the Supreme Law.

How much better would such a line of civic action be than to suffer things to drift along to the verge of a common peril. If by general and concerted action peace-loving citizens are able to stave off the sorry day when the rumble of artillery wagons and the tramp of armed soldiers may fret the air in our streets, should, unhappily, these servants of the Republic ever be called to enter upon the grim work of asserting the national authority and protecting peaceful men and women, who shall say that such citizens are not patriots in the best sense, not the truest supporters of the commonwealth, not the best friends of labor itself?

All these saving measures are within the possibilities, if brave and free citizens throughout the Union will unite, organize and act as they have already begun to do. Distinct progress has been made in many quarters—in New York, Omaha, Kansas City, Los Angeles and other lesser cities. The good work goes forward; it cannot—must not cease till complete safety shall have been secured.

Los Angeles a Free City.

Here in our own city we have seen and felt the good effects of the timely and courageous action taken by yourselves and other fearless employers like you, aided by independent, self-reliant workmen. Strike after strike has failed within the past few months, and none have succeeded. And with every failure a distinct service has been rendered to the general cause of unfettered labor.

The story of the brave work done by unshackled citizens, when widely disseminated, as it is sure to be, will attract, is already attracting countless eyes toward Los Angeles from far and near. The mere knowledge of the truth is in itself a great investment for the city. In time it will be worth millions to her. It is for us who are engaged in this righteous battle for personal rights and business freedom to preserve in the indispensable work of making ours the freest city, industrially, in all the land. It will be a unique distinction achieved, a conspicuous honor won.

I do not need to speak at length here concerning our own immediate labor affairs—the affairs of the LOS ANGELES TIMES. The chief facts are known to you all.

"The Times"—Failure of the Strike and Boycott.

It has now been thirteen years since an unwarranted and senseless strike of printers took place in our establishment. The strike failed, for it had no foundation to stand upon. This truth The Times has demonstrated time and again. The strikers lost their good situations; better, more reliable, more loyal men were employed to take up the tasks recklessly laid down, without adequate reason, by the misguided insurgents, and the union lost its foothold forever.

No question of wages can be raised, for we disburse money liberally in all departments, paying higher rates for like service than are paid in rival newspaper offices. In brief, good pay, good treatment and reasonable hours of labor, coupled with just and undisputed control by the owners, and by loyal service on the part of all—these are the essential conditions prevailing, and which have long prevailed, in the office of the Los Angeles Times. They make us winners, and our people prosperous and contented.

A furious boycott followed the senseless strike. It failed likewise—failed repeatedly and ignominiously. The independence and good judgment of our people, their keen sense of justice, and their knowledge of the truth derived from close contact with the lines of conflict, have made the success of the boycott impossible. The deluded wielders of that lawless and infamous weapon have been thrown back upon themselves and foiled. They persist, but their efforts are impotent for permanent harm; they are destined to meet yet further and more signal defeats. Our assailants come now chiefly from abroad. They rely upon non-resident ignorance of the local situation, coupled with the grossest misrepresentation, to help them in their crusade of lawlessness. They are engaged in a hopeless campaign, at long range. The local combatants, long since overcome, have mainly retired from the field; their exchequer a shrunken wreck and their courage cooled, they are a-weary of the conflict, have raised the despairing cry, "Help me, Cassius, or I sink!" From the very beginning they have steadily kept themselves in the wrong, and cannot even hope to succeed.

This journal is today, thanks to a brave, just and generous community, enjoying unexampled prosperity; it was never so thriving nor so well prepared for battle as it is at this moment. It never before had so wide a paid circulation, so substantial an advertising patronage, or was making such large gross and net earnings. The Los Angeles Times was never destined to go down before the bludgeon of the boycotter. We have steadfastly rejected all demands for surrender or silence, and we stand fast.

The Labor Bogie-Man.

Employers who unduly magnify in their imaginations the power of banded and threatening labor organizations, and the dangers of the boycott, make a mistake, in my opinion. It is a blunder to surrender without a contest. There is virtue in standing fast. Victory cannot be won without battle. Resistance to unjust demands is always justifiable. The threatening striker and boycotter often turn out to be mere bogie-men.

We seek only right and just ends through lawful means. It is not organized labor as such that we antagonize. It is the unreason, the proscriptions, the usurpations, the habitual tyranny and frequent violence, the ever-growing monopolistic tendency and the ever-recurring lawlessness of so many latter-day unions that we have been called upon to antagonize, and to which we are unalterably opposed.

Indescribable Evils of Labor Lawlessness.

Ever since the colossal anthracite coal strike of 1902, the country has stood aghast at the unnumbered acts of oppression, of personal assault and other forms of violence, including even maiming and murder, that have been committed, if not directly in the name of organized labor, at least with its cognizance and by its proved connivance. It is responsible for needless sufferings endured by men, women and children, and for numberless homes blasted. All the berated barons of coal and of capital could not have played such universal havoc had they deliberately tried.

The enormous losses unnecessarily sustained through unwarranted strikes and boycotts; through the reckless destruction of property; through wages not earned and profits not made; through self-chosen idleness and employment refused; through saved-up earnings dissipated and homes abandoned, with all the resultant want, distress and suffering—all these make an appalling record, the direct effects of avoidable labor disturbances—disturbances traceable in nearly every case to that past-master in mischief-making, the walking delegate, who toils not, neither does he operate a spinning-jenny, nor even manipulate a jack-screw, unless it be upon his victims.

Such are the acts that mark the conduct and methods of men who audaciously defy law and deny the rights of their fellows. Acts like these are a reproach to the local civil authorities wherever they have been permitted to occur. Those officials, through timidity, demagoguery, false sympathy, or supineness, have too often failed in their sworn duty when the hour for action has come. That such acts should be permitted in a land of law is a shame to the country and the age—a wrong to the whole body of citizenship—a blot upon our civilization.

The Fairer Picture.

Now look upon the other and better picture, where normal and healthy conditions prevail in the broad fields of labor; where there is industrial activity coupled with industrial repose; where labor is in demand and employment continuous; where good sense, good faith, good will, confidence and friendly relations prevail among employers and their men; where there is in evidence no mischievous and superfluous delegate accredited with pedestrian feats, but who rarely performs any; where unshackled workmen can dispose of their own labor in their own way, contending always, as is their right, for the best obtainable wages, but being able and willing to render good service in return, and abiding by their individual contracts when made; where no trouble-breeding hired union dictator can insolently order men to quit employment that is giving them wages and their families bread.

It must be obvious to practical men like you that these fundamental conditions, among others, are vital to the best interests of all concerned, whether they be workmen or employers of workmen—to wit:

Rational Rules and Conditions.

(1.) The lawful, rightful, necessary and undisputed control and management of his establishment by the employer, with the concurrent right to regulate the force and the output.

(2.) Even opportunities, as nearly as may be, for all workmen, coupled with security and protection for all.

(3.) The careful and just gradation and classification of the different kinds of workmen in each line of skilled employment, so that all may be compensated according to their respective abilities and earning power, and enjoy the nearest practicable equality of rights and privileges according to the individual merits of each.

(4.) The adjustment of differences, whenever they arise between employers and workmen, by direct negotiations between the parties concerned, facing each other, and without the intervention of the walking delegate, the union, or any other pretended authority not directly concerned in the matter at issue.

(5.) The greatest practicable certainty and steadiness of employment on legitimate lines; not employment by spurts and spasms, where avoidable.

(6.) Direct contracts, with fair and agreed hours and wages the year through—wages not so high as to put an embargo upon operations, nor so low as to work injustice to the men; remembering always the inexorable law of supply and demand. If the wage rate be forced by unreasonable demands and unwise combinations to a point abnormally high, the unavoidable effect is to render impossible the successful employment of capital; and whenever capital is forced to withdraw itself from the fields of labor and production, the act is inevitably followed by a period of business depression, bringing with it abnormally low wages, or no wages at all, industrial stagnation, idleness and resultant suffering. If the wage be too low, the workman loses heart, the best skill cannot be secured, and the employer is badly served.

(7.) Hours of labor adapted to the particular business to be done. This should be a simpler matter for adjustment than it is frequently made. When right relations subsist between the employer and his men, with no unwarranted outside or other improper interference, there need be no trouble on the score of hours. Where piecework is impracticable, it is best that the hour be made the unit of labor and pay—so many hours, so much pay at the agreed rate per hour. In active periods of business, more hours for all and more pay for all; in slack times, fewer hours and corresponding pay. Thus may discharges be avoided to a great extent. The rule is simple, flexible, practical and just. The employer has the right to get the best out of his plant, to regulate the output, to increase or decrease it at will, with injustice to none.

These principles and methods, when put into practice, will in the long run produce the best results for all concerned.

The true aim to be kept in view is the largest practicable output at a safe cost of production, in order to give to the employer a just margin of profit and to his men fair wages; for the employer must thrive if his workmen are to thrive; he must be free to conduct operations unhindered, or his ability to supply labor with employment ceases, and all suffer together. The conditions should be such that all may be able to share, according to their respective deserts, as fairly as may be, in the result of operations where capital and experience have been legitimately invested and labor and skill intelligently applied. There must be a fair, free and open field for legitimate enterprise and well-regulated, properly-paid labor, or profitable production becomes impossible. When that result occurs, capital refuses active employment and goes into concealment. Industrial stagnation and paralysis follow. Hence the folly of placing useless shackles upon the employer; the act will surely rebound, in the last analysis, upon the workman.

The wage-earner who would do the best for himself and those dependent upon him cannot safely ignore and discard the old-fashioned, homely virtues of sobriety, steadiness, industry, frugality and faithfulness to the interests of his employer.

Millions Needlessly Lost to Labor.

We have all heard the clamorous cry that labor must organize to protect itself; but, without disputing its right to combine for lawful objects, I make bold to declare, as a studious observer of numberless destructive industrial disturbances in the past, that the better policy of direct contracts with employers, coupled with the absence of strikes, boycotts and long periods of idleness, would have saved millions wantonly thrown away by labor, and averted indescribable distress to workingmen and to the country.

Defense of "Captains of Industry."

We hear the term, "Captains of Industry"—a recent designation. I do not utter these words with an apology. The term has appropriateness. All employers, great and small, are in a sense captains of industry. Every man who gives employment and pays wages to another is a captain of industry. Drive him out of his place as an employer and the great Army of Industry is depleted by just so much. The leaders in the invincible industrial phalanx are the men who, in conjunction with the mobilized hosts of labor, "do things." They supply the indispensable capital which constitutes the tools of Trade and Progress, without which the tools of Industry would lie unused, the wielders thereof be left idle and unpaid, and business inaction ensue. They furnish employment to brains, skill and muscle; they keep business active; they prevent industrial stagnation by making idleness unnecessary in a land of boundless natural resources, with almost illimitable fields for the activity of brain and brawn when enlisted on right lines and under right conditions. They are foremost in the great industrial achievements of the country, leading where others may follow; they sail the seas and traverse the land; they plan, create and build; they exploit the forests, ditch the plains, irrigate the thirsty land, and make the soil fruitful; they delve in the mineral mountains, keep the smelter and the forge going, and cause tell-tale smoke to issue from the stacks of busy factories; they promote exchanges, stimulate trade, increase production and carry on commerce; they make an army of middlemen to operate between the producer and the consumer; they span the continent with bands of steel, and gird our towns, cities and suburban spots with steam and electric lines; they cross the Pacific sea to our distant possessions in the Orient in search of other lands to conquer peacefully by the sword of Industry; they exploit new fields and create a demand for labor where none existed before, adding millions yearly to the national wealth, scattering blessings wide, even despite themselves, and helping mightily to make the name of the Great Republic yet more glorious among the nations of the earth. If "captains of industry" violate or transcend the law, let them be restrained and punished legally; but hamper and harass them unlawfully, and material progress is retarded; labor itself suffers detriment.

True "captains of industry," when acting within the limitations of law and inspired by worthy motives, are not to be condemned, but encouraged; in common with all leaders of honest enterprise and independent labor, they are entitled to protection and deserving of honor.

Organized Labor Has Rights, but no Superior Rights.

We declare with you, and have proved beyond the possibility of successful dispute, our friendship for labor in the larger and truer sense; not for a small, exclusive and monopolistic segment of it merely, but for labor broadly—for all honest toil, without distinction or discrimination. Organized labor is entitled to its rights under the law—no more, no less; but we also declare with you that it shall not ride rough-shod over the people and menace the government itself.

All labor must be free if universal justice is to be done and the law hold its benignant sway.

We would join in the duty of defending the lawful rights of all the good men and good citizens who make up the great body of labor throughout the United States; we would guard the unorganized from the unjust aggressions of the organized. We demand for all an even chance in the race of life. We invoke the Constitution and the law as the true compass, guide and anchor for the protection of all, high or humble, rich or poor. No man, corporation or combination is so high as to be above the law; and no citizen, however

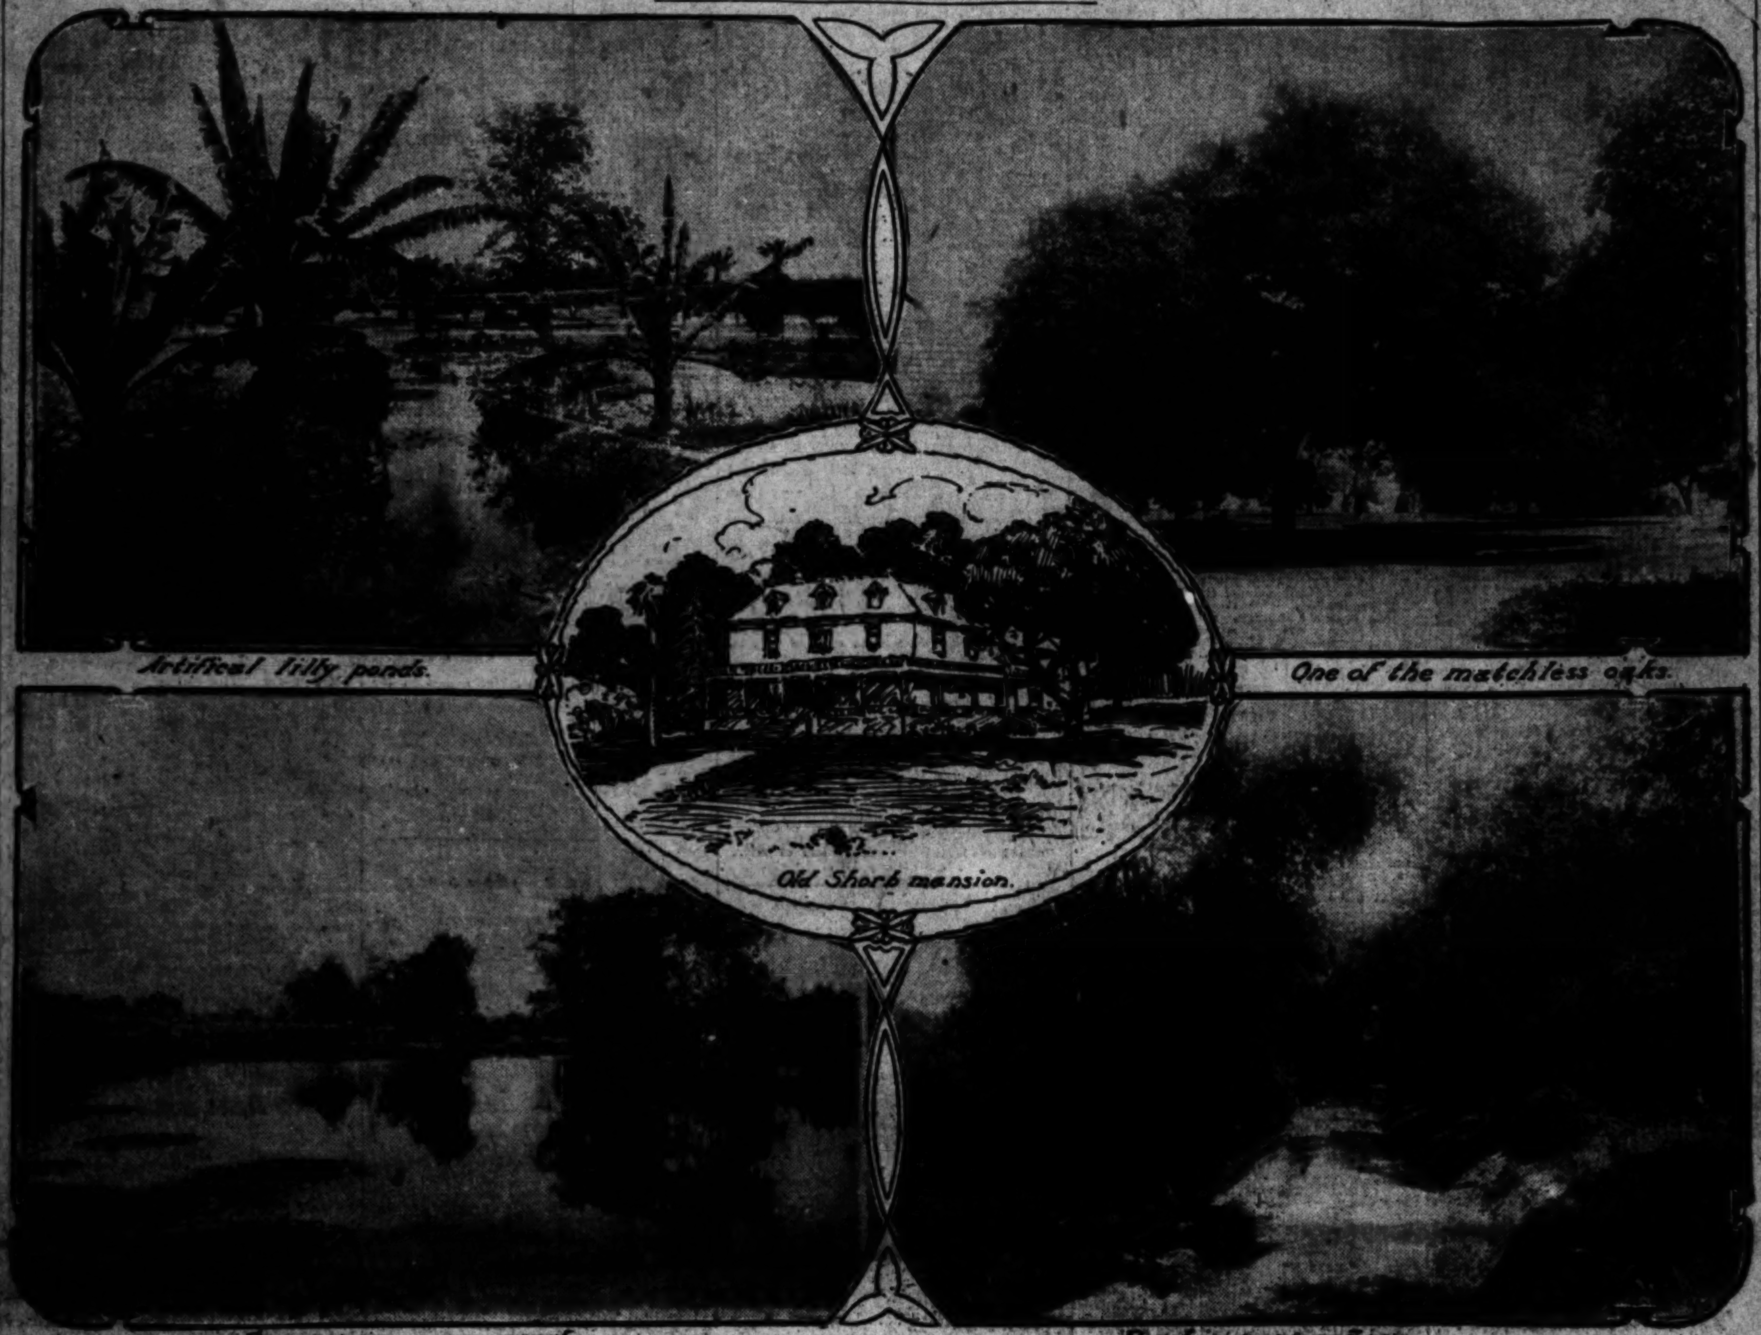
H. E. HUNTINGTON WILL REAR GREAT MANSION AMONG OLD OAKS ON HISTORIC SHORB PLACE.



Views of San Marino Rancho, H. E. Huntington's Estate, at Pasadena, showing diversified nature of the section, which is thickly dotted with huge oak trees, and has an area of 500 acres. Old Shorb mansion, center, demolished to make way for new house.

WORK has been begun at H. E. Huntington's San Gabriel Valley ranch, known as San Marino, formerly the old Shorb homestead. The Shorb house has been torn down, and the engineers have staked out Mr. Huntington's new house, which will occupy the same site, working from the preliminary drawings just completed by Messrs. Myron Hunt and Elmer Grey, architects. This firm is now busy on the working drawings, ready for the active building operations to be begun in September.

Mr. Huntington has added greatly to the original holdings about the old Shorb homestead. He now has inclosed within one fence 500 acres of diversified ranch and park land, taking in cañons in which the trees have never been touched with an ax and which are so full of oaks that they are in dense shade at mid-day, and taking in a stretch of open mesa country dotted with thousands of oaks and also including 200 acres of the finest old orange groves in the San Gabriel Valley. The drives in the new portion of the property, which Mr. Huntington bought from George F. Patton, about a year ago, have been completed during the past season. Mr. Huntington's engineers have gone to great trouble and expense to avoid cutting trees in laying out these new drives through the old Patton Cañon, and they have succeeded in adding a mile and one-half of cañon drive, losing only one tree of any importance.

The entrance to San Marino will be from the east, through the old Palm and Olive avenue, planted years ago by the Shorbs. At the point where this avenue turns to the right about the reservoir, the old roadway will be modified in such a manner as to reduce the grade and improve the curves. It will also lead toward the northeast corner of the new house instead of passing the front, as it did originally. The drive, which crossed the front of the old house, will be abandoned, increasing the size of the lawn and the more private portion of the property on this side of the house. After passing through the porte-cochere, this road will turn upon itself and join one of the old roads leading out through the park.

Three years ago all of the minor outbuildings, such as the greenhouses and the like, were removed from immediately about the house site and some ten acres were changed into lawn. It will not be necessary to materially disturb this lawn or the new water garden, upon which Mr. Huntington has been working for the last two or three years, and which is at present in full bloom. In building this garden, laid out by the famous aquatic expert, Sturtevant, in conjunction with Mr. Huntington's own gardener, the old mixed orange and peach orchard, lying at the foot of the bluff, toward the house, and slightly to the east, was removed.

MORE EARTH, MAKE CANYON.

Two or three thousand yards of soil were shifted about and a natural little cañon was constructed, leading from a point just below the house site off toward the reservoir. This cañon was dammed up in a dozen places, and made into a series of lily ponds, several of which contain aquatic plants from tropical countries. It was necessary to run hot-water pipes through the mud and water at the foot of the two lower ponds in order to carry these tropical plants over the winter. This hot water is pumped from the nearby reservoir station. The scheme has proved most successful, as none of the delicate plants have been lost during the last two winters.

NINE MILES OF DRIVES.

The work of laying out nine miles of drives on a 500-acre estate has been one of Mr. Huntington's principal recreations during the last three or four years. He and Mr. Patton have tramped over every inch of the property with great bundles of lath under their arms, scheming out roads, dodging about trees, Mr. Huntington always jolly, and Mr. Patton complaining that he used up six pairs of shoes. Mr. Huntington's knowledge of good curves on a railroad layout has come into good service in laying out these park roads. They are as natural as though they had been worn by use, as roads are sometimes naturally worn through a woodland. There is nothing forced or set anywhere in the scheme. The roads are not macadamized, and except for one or two principal entrance roads, they never will be. They are kept in good shape, but look wild in the wooded parts of the country through which they run. The work of grading them is perfect, but the grades have been taken care of in so simple and natural a manner that artificial guttering is not necessary; in fact, they seem more like saddle paths than park roads—more like the untouched country through which they run, than like park boulevards. This is their charm.

The new house, for which Messrs. Hunt and Grey will have the drawings ready in a month or two, is being designed with the idea of being built entirely fireproof, of reinforced concrete, with tile roof and tile and grass covered terraces. The patio will not be paved, but will be a fern garden, its only formal ornament being a fountain. This patio opens to the north, there being a broad, old-fashioned hallway extending through the house from north to south, affording a view across the patio, and over a lawn surrounded by a group of perhaps 100 oaks. From there the eye is carried on northward through a natural opening between trees to a group of great trees known as the "Twin Oaks" standing on an eminence near the north side of the property. Just at present there is a beautiful field of golden yellow grain in the valley, which separates the oak surrounded grass plot from this group of trees. Beyond are the mountains looming up in the distance, with apparently neither a town or any vestige of civilization between the observer and their peaks.

The quantity of oaks in the one-quarter-mile stretch from the house to the northerly line of the estate is so great that one feels that the property leads on up to the mountains and is a part of them, although as a matter of fact, there are four miles of Pasadena and Altadena between.

UNOBSTRUCTED VIEWS.

The great hall, extending through the house from north to south, opens into a covered entrance portico as it leads to the south terraces. These terraces are largely grass, surrounded by masonry balustrades. There will be no walks through the lawns immediately surrounding the house, except in such places as will be absolutely necessary. The house itself has been carefully fitted in among the beautiful old group of trees which surrounded the Shorb house. When the location of the new building was finally settled upon, it was found that there was a view from the center of the south doorway at the head of the south terraces, unobstructed, as one looked down over the San Gabriel Valley, notwithstanding the number of trees immediately about the house. It was also found that a direct line projected southward from this point passed through openings in three distinct groups of trees which could hardly have been planted twenty years ago to better advantage, and this projected line of sight even passes down between an eighth of a mile of oranges, the line of sight being parallel with the rows. This is the more interesting because the orange grove and two of the groups of trees which form the picture, are no part of the original Shorb place, and cannot have been planted with the intention to produce this fortunate result. This view from the house to the Monrovia road tracks on Huntington Drive, across the property is 2500 feet, or about one-half mile, and the line projected on through the property at this point gives an over-all dimension of 4800 feet from south to north. The ground rises in the course of this 4800 feet from a point in the San Gabriel Valley, which the surveyor's map shows to be 550 feet above the sea level to a point on East California street, Pasadena, 700 feet above sea level.

HOUSE SITE IS ELEVATED.

A very considerable portion of this rise in the property takes place directly in front of the house, between the groups of orange orchards and the house site. There is a rise of sixty-five feet at this point, all of it coming in the immediate foreground of the house. This is what has always given the Shorb house such a commanding view of the valley, and what has always made it one of the most picturesque objects in the landscape in looking from the valley.

PLANNING HOUSE FOR YEARS.

Mr. Huntington has been working on the plans for this house ever since he acquired the Shorb property in 1903. Drawings were made for a residence to be put here at the same time that the drawings were gotten out for the big Pacific Electric building, in which the offices of the Huntington interests are housed. Mr. Huntington's idea has always been to build a house about his library and his paintings. His rooms in the Jonathan Club in Los Angeles and at the Metropolitan Club in New York have always been a source of amusement to his friends on account of the number of books that were stowed on the floor, under furniture, in the chairs and everywhere about the room. In addition to owning a great many fine old paintings, which he has always dreamed of housing in a proper manner, Mr. Huntington really has a notable collection of books, and the new library, while being in the corner of the house plan, is the center of the house in point of interest to its owner. This room will not be rectangular in shape, because too large to be planned as a simple rectangle, its over-all dimensions being 35x65 feet, about the size of an average suburban house. This room occupies the best corner of the house, its windows looking out to the east. West of it is the great cross hall of the house, to the north is the corridor leading from the east porch all the way across the building to the dining-room.

The feature of the house in which Mr. Huntington seems to be next most interested is the great east porch, or lanai, which, again, is too large to be handled as a mere rectangle, as its over-all dimensions are 45x70 feet.

The southwest corner is occupied by the breakfast room and the dining-room and a portion of the center of the front by the drawing-room. The wings of the house, extending northward from the main body, thus forming the patio, are occupied on the east by a corridor leading to the porte-cohcere, cloak rooms, toilet rooms and a reception room, while the west wing, on the first floor is occupied by the kitchen, and service quarters.

The wing of the building devoted to servants' dormitory extends west from this service wing, and has light on three sides. It also serves to form the service yard, to the north and west of the building.

The second story of the building is reached by a double staircase, which joins in a landing directly over the patio entrance. It is entirely given up to suites of rooms, sitting rooms, bedrooms and baths. There will be no third floor.

All of the rooms in the center portion of the second story open upon a balcony, which looks out over the San Gabriel Valley, while the roof of the porte-cochere, of a portion of the dining-room and the roof of the great east porch will afford similar balconies, opening off other bedrooms. The windows on this floor and on the first floor will open down to the floor line and afford access to the porches or grounds at almost every point.

CLASSICAL STYLE FOLLOWED.

No distinct historical style is being slavishly followed by the architects in designing either the exterior or the interior of the building. Its style will be distinctly classical, and in no sense picturesque. The white plastered exterior, the natural working out of a reinforced concrete, the stone columns and capitals, the masonry balustrades, the grassed and paved terraces, will all give a certain marked character to the building, but in the matter of detail or ornament there will be nothing archeological.

WILL BE FINISHED SIMPLY.

The interior will be finished simply. Mahogany will be used in the library, oak floors will be used throughout, except where in some of the main corridors marble may be used. All of the remainder of the finish will be white.

A great deal of consideration is being given to wall space for hanging a number of pictures. Mr. Huntington is not preparing for an art gallery, but consideration is being given to wall space and proper lighting for his many oils, which have always been kept in New York, mostly at the Metropolitan Club.

DOESN'T KNOW THE COST.

Mr. Huntington was asked how much the building will cost, and he remarked that it looked to him as though it will cost $75,000 at least, perhaps it will cost more. He said he will find out about that later on.

LAKE VIEW RANCH BOUGHT.

Valuable Property and Control of Water Company Secured for $75,000.

S. A. Selover of San Francisco has purchased, through the agency of Strong and Dickinson, the famous Lake View ranch, and the controlling interest in the Casa Loma Water Company, about sixteen miles south of Redlands, for $75,000.

The buyer is planning to subdivide and colonize the tract, which consists of several hundred acres of orchards. The water company is capitalized for $400,000. There are forty-three artesian wells on the property, and more will be developed. It is stated that Mr. Selover will spend about $400,000 in improvements.

STATE HOSPITAL CONTRACT.

F. O. Engstrum Company of this city was awarded the general contract for the construction of two receiving buildings, and one building for the care of demented persons, at Agnews State Hospital, on its bid of $221,999. The buildings will be of brick, and will be located at Agnew, near San José. The buildings will be supplied with steam heating, electrical and modern plumbing specialties. Sellon & Hemmings of San Francisco are the architects.

AWARDED SCHOOL CONTRACT.

George M. Easton was the successful bidder on the Miramonte Grammar School building, plans for which were made by A. C. Smith. The contract was awarded last week on a bid of $13,000. The structure will be of brick, of classic design, and two stories high. There will be eight classrooms, and the necessary adjuncts for offices, library, etc.

gas on land not heretofore known to be in the gas area, and the universally successful development of water, are rapidly making the Corcoran farmer immune from fear of drought.

The finishing touches are being put on the million-dollar beet sugar plant. Farm houses and barns of a substantial character are being built in every direction by the numerous incoming settlers.

The straightforward and reliable methods of the Security Land and Loan Company, the original owners and developers of these lands, has won the confidence of the public, and the liberal inducements which it offers to settlers have resulted in a community of hustling, wide-awake, progressive farmers, whose success in tilling the soil is in a great degree responsible for the ever-increasing interest manifested in this district so rich in opportunity.

The Security Land and Loan Company, and their general agents, Newport & Milner, have moved into their new offices, 204-209 Central Building, and are running weekly, personally conducted excursions to Corcoran, leaving every Wednesday evening.

If you are looking for one of the handsomest bungalows on high ground in the city see this place at once. It is 34x60 ground plan, has 9-foot cement porch running across whole front of house faced with stone. Solid stone chimney; this gives an air of elegance and substantialness to the place, rarely found in bungalows.

The living-room which is 20x14, has beamed ceiling, stone mantel 8 feet in length and is decorated with a frieze of the latest English Block paper. The dining-room, 16x14 is wainscoted 5 feet in height, has one plate glass window over 7 feet in length and a window embrasure with 5 casement windows set in, decorated with the finest tapestry paper.

The den has large bay window, beautifully papered; is 12x14 in size. The bedrooms are white enamel and daintily papered; have French doors opening onto a spacious porch and pergola. The kitchen has over twenty cabinets and places to put things; is white enamel and has every modern convenience. Cellar, furnace and laundry tubs. The electric fixtures are something entirely new and are very effective in design.

The bathroom is the most complete of any we have ever seen, even down to the linoleum on the floor.

This place has just been completed and we don't have to advertise it at a sacrifice or owner leaving town, as it is the best built house, both as to material, workmanship and artistic design in the city. The lot which is an east front on Wilton Place, an 80-foot street, is 50x160, but as good as a 60-foot lot as there is 15 feet between this house and the first house north, and 10 feet left for a driveway on the south.

Let me show you this place and your house-hunting days are over.

Take Hooper ave. car to Vernon ave., where you will find our agent with automobile to drive you around; or take Central ave. car to Vernon ave. and walk two blocks east to our branch office.

Reader, You must realize that now is the time to buy real estate in as prosperous a city as Los Angeles, with an assurance that in five years more our city will double its present population, and all close-in unimproved lots will double the present prices, when the market is quiet and the owners want to sell. Right now is the time. I want to close out

BOWEN'S VERNON AND HOOPER AVE. TRACT.

I have only about 40 lots left out of 275 which we placed on the market about fifteen months ago, and have now about 50 houses on the tract. Yet we have not advanced the prices on the remaining lots, which is customary when the street work and other improvements have been made.

Now, I want to impress upon you that these prices may not much longer remain as low as at the present time, with terms to suit the purchaser. Where can you go in Los Angeles and buy a large sized lot at from $750 up and on terms of $10 monthly with a liberal discount for all cash; within 23 minutes' ride of our office, with all city conveniences right at your door.

You had better think it over and and look the situation over and see if you cannot see the advisability of taking one or more lots and build your home there.

CITY REDEMPTION.

Dr. Henry Tells Hearers It Must Come Through Clean Men, not Through Rascals.

"The history of the cities is the history of the world," said Dr. J. Q. A. Henry, of the First Baptist Church in an interesting address before the City Club at the Westminster yesterday. theme was "The Redemption of the City." The keynote of his address is, "we shall never have clean cities until they are governed and controlled by clean men. Rogues and rascals will never redeem them."

Some of the comments on the present conditions in city life were of a startling nature, they show that the speaker has given the subject deep thought and research before attempting to outline a plan for redemption.

"The city is God's ideal society," said he. "Man is perfected in society, and society is perfected in the city. The sad and sorrowful tales of Memphis, Thebes, Babylon, Nineveh, Tyre, Palmyra, Jerusalem, Athens, Rome and Constantinople epitomize the countries and the civilization to which they belong.

"The growing of the modern city is the most wonderful phenomenon of the past century. In America, within 100 years, the number of people living in cities of more than 8000 has increased from one-thirtieth to more than one-third of the population.

"Chicago has been described as 'composed of wickedness and warehouses,' and London as 'the globe's center of liquor and lust.

"The truth is, our cities are sunken in venality and crime, and the furnace of Divine Wrath is heating seven times hotter than usual to consume its colossal corruption. It is full of violence and blood. Unless they can be redeemed they will inevitably scourge the State and sink the Nation.

"Nation and empires now extinct have been dragged down to destruction by the sins and iniquities of city life. They have gone down under the turpitude of their own wrongdoing.

"Unless these dens of infamy and these hatcheries of crime are closed, organized society will inevitably perish. By giving hospitality and protection to these black rats we are committing moral and political suicide.

"The time has come when all the forces of law, of order, of decency, of morality and of religion must stand solidly together for the right. Peace and security come through conflict, and now that the battle for the control of our cities is on, the sword must flash until the shout of victory rends the air."

THE MARKETS.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

The past week was one of many new arrivals for the produce dealer. Fresh spring fruits began to come in earnest, and peaches, apricots and apples, as well as cantaloupes and watermelons, put in an appearance in such quantities that prices dropped to the point at which they are likely to remain during most of the season. Yesterday there were no special features and business, for the most part, consisted of filling the orders of the day previous. Little stock of any description was forced to hide in cold storage until tomorrow.

Petaluma eggs were received and sold well. A carload for storage, which is on the way, was offered on the exchange but not disposed of. The call for case counts was limited. Dealers appeared to be carrying just enough stock to tide them over the present scarcity. Receipts reported yesterday were only 400 cases.

Creamery extra butter was in excellent demand and 2 cases were traded at a figure indicating the firmness of the market. Receipts 21,760 pounds, of which a considerable amount went into storage. Cooking butter was well called for and ladles were offered.

The cheese market was firm at the reduced prices. Receipts were only 40 pounds, or a single cheese, which evidently went astray and was only found yesterday. The week's receipts were very heavy and were the occasion for the declines. There were no buyers on hand for the northern full cream and eastern brands offered.

Firmness was very apparent in the new potato market. This was caused by the better call and the light receipts of old stock. But 146 sacks of Oregon potatoes arrived yesterday and were immediately sold. A few Highland potatoes are still left, while most popular among the varieties on hand is the Early Rose.

Bermuda onions were in fair demand on 'change, and 10 sacks were sold. The outlook for better prices this coming week is good and will be effected if receipts remain as low as they were during the last few days. Only 56 sacks were reported in yesterday.

Bean arrivals were light—100 sacks. Offerings followed the same trend and no sales were recorded. No sweet potatoes arrived by rail, and the market is at present entirely dependent on the few locals which slip in day after day. The yellow variety sells at $4 per cwt. and promises to remain there for some time.

Meat has been going lower on account of the attempt of farmers to unload stock owing to the lack of sufficient fresh green forage. The retail prices have as yet not been affected seriously, but it is expected that the coming week will see a sharp decline. Fish are plentiful in nearly all varieties. Hay and grain is a trifle easier with the receipts of the new crop.

SAN FRANCISCO LIST.

DAISY FAMILY IN BIG FIGHT.

MEMBERS OF SYNDICATE HAVE FALLING OUT.

Internal Squabble Hurts the Stock. New York Busy Unloading Security—Tonopahs Weak from Top to Bottom—Nothing Doing in Manhattans—Goldfield Unchanged.

(Exclusive service to The Times by The Los Angeles Stock Brokerage Company, Ground Floor, Citizens' Nat'l Bank Bldg.)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—Yesterday's skyrocket performance in Daisy was not repeated today, the stock opening at 92@93, with sales on the curb at 92. There is a big fight on in the Daisy family. It seems Mitchell and Bayly are at loggerheads, and it is also asserted that Posey and Mitchell are in bad shape with their copper company. It looks as though there will be a long fight between these three.

These facts becoming public property have hurt Daisy materially, and Mitchell, always one of the prime buying powers, may have to drop out. A telegram from Goldfield says that Bayly arrived there last night, but things do not look harmonious. New York was a seller of Daisy all day, the stock closing there at 92@94.

There were no changes in Goldfield Consolidated, Florence or Great Bend. Combination Fraction lost a point on the bid, closing at 44.

The Tonopahs were weak from top to bottom, Belmont losing a point, West End closing 44@45, Extension 80 bid. A thousand shares of Montgomery Mountain were bid for at 7. There was nothing doing in the Manhattans. Florence opened and closed at 3.15 bid. Fraction opened at 45@46 and closed 44@45. The rest of the market was about on a parity with last night.

STOCK MARKET AWAITS POLITICS.

APPROACH OF CONVENTIONS DEADENS SPECULATION.

Union Pacific Continues Dominant Leader Throughout Day of Scanty Trading—Professional Operators Wonder if Aggressive Support Is to Carry Over to Bond Sale.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—The scanty dealings in the stock market today showed that speculative interest was decidely less active than in the immediate past. The approach of the period of the national conventions of the great political parties is an influence in this direction. Particular interest attaches to the nature of the platforms to be formulated by the conventions.

The market showed itself unresponsive to suggestions of possible developments in the political field that might prove unsettling to values of securities. The undertone was firm to strong, and substantial progress was made toward the repair of some of the midweek losses on prices.

Union Pacific continued the dominant leader of the market. The evidence of effective support for that stock suppressed the inclination of the bear element to attack values and there was an almost total subsidence of any pressure to liquidate.

The postponement until next week of public offering of the new Union Pacific bonds, subscribed for by bankers, has opened a field for conjecture among professional operators whether the recent aggressive support of that stock is to be carried over into the period of the distribution to investors of the company's bonds.

Some published estimates of the coming wheat crop, giving a flattering promise of the yield, made a sustaining influence on stocks; also did the tone of the commercial reviews of the various mercantile agencies, reporting a more cheerful feeling in various lines of trade. Prices continued to rise without meeting any offerings sufficient to check the advance and the market closed strong in spite of the dullness.

The bank statement did not disclose the expected gain in cash, and the discrepancy was only partly made up by the $3,500,000 gain of the trust companies and other banks. The week's credit demands also centered on the trust companies, clearinghouse bank loans contracting substantially.

Bonds were firm. Total sales (par value) $1,242,000. U. S. 2's have advanced ¼ per cent. on call during the week.

GENERAL EASTERN.

GOOD WEATHER WEAKENS WHEAT.

PRICES DECLINE IN THE CHICAGO MARKET DURING DAY.

Ideal Conditions Reported at Various Sections of Grain Territory, Heavy Rains in Canadian Northwest, Moderate in This Country, and None in Harvesting Districts.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

CHICAGO, June 6.—The wheat market opened weak because of the generally favorable weather conditions and after a brief rally brought about by the covering by shorts, prices declined again and weakened until the close.

The weather reports showed general and heavy rains in the Canadian Northwest, a moderate rainfall with high temperature in the spring wheat States in this country, and little or no rain in the harvesting sections. This was considered as being ideal on all sides for the growing crops.

The holiday season in England and in the continental markets of Monday, it was believed, would further weaken the export demand.

The market closed weak. July opened 1-8@1-4 to 1-4@3-8 lower, at 87 5-8 to 87 3-4. Sold between 86 3-4 and 88 1-4. Closed at 87.

The corn market was irregular. The lack of demand in the cash corn market was a bearish factor. July closed at 67½.

The oats market followed wheat and corn, although the September option was fairly well supported on the soft spots. July closed 45 1-8.

The provisions market was dull all day. The market was inclined to be steady immediately after opening, but the weakness in grain wiped out the bulge and pork, lard and ribs closed unchanged.

Cash quotations were as follows: Flour was steady; winter patents, 4.30@4.85; winter straights, 4.30@4.60; spring patents, 5.20@5.45; spring straights, 3.90@4.75; 3.90@4.75; bakers, 2.65@4.60; No. 3 spring wheat, 95@1.08; No. 2 red, 95; No. 2 corn, 70@70½; No. 2 oats, 52; No. 3 white, 50@54½; fair to choice malting barley, 57@61; No. 1 northwestern flaxseed, 1.24½; short ribs, sides (loose,) 7.00@7.50; mess pork, per bbl., 13.70@13.75; lard, per 100 lbs., 8.45; short clear sides (boxed,) 7.50@7.55; whisky, basis of high wines, 1.35.

New York Cotton Market.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO FRED DORR.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—The market today was a narrow affair. Liverpool was closed for the first of the holidays and the weather map was practically featureless. On further realizing the market ease off to about last night's prices. The traders, while expecting a reaction were not free sellers, as a low barometer in the west of Texas caused some apprehension as to the weather over Sunday. With clear weather over the week-end, we look for rather an easy market on Monday.

Following is the range of prices today:

FIGHT ON LOUD SMELL.

Use of Sewage Near Western and Slauson Avenues Stopped by Court Injunction.

The use of sewage for irrigating on the R. D. List tract on Western, near Slauson avenue, was stopped by an injunction issued by Judge James on Friday afternoon, on complaint of Charles C. Henry, owner of an adjoining tract. Property holders in the vicinity have attempted at various times within the past five weeks to put a stop to the practice which has caused a fearful stench in the neighborhood, but the Board of Public Works would not agree to turn off the sewage for fear they would be forced to pay List indemnity.

One of the chief complaintants has been Lawrence B. Burck, of Burck-Gwynn Company, real estate dealers, who sold a tract in the immediate vicinity of the sewage farm, several years ago. Burck declared that he had no property interests in that section, but that his interest in the matter had been roused by former buyers, who have been greatly alarmed by the noisome odors which have been arising from the plot for several weeks.

"It became so bad," said Burck, "that a number of the people were forced to leave their homes, while others became ill. We approached Mr. List, but he refused to discontinue the use of the water from the sewers. The matter was taken before the Board of Public Works, but they, too, saw fit to allow the flow. Their explanation resolved itself into a few paltry dollars, which a contract with List would have forced them to pay had the sewage been discontinued.

"Our only resource was the courts and Judge James issued the restraining order. The matter will be brought before the Council tomorrow afternoon and if immediate action can be obtained, the use of the sewage as fertilizer will be discontinued entirely within the city limits."

The injunction will hold good only until Friday, after which the atmosphere will again be polluted unless action is taken by the City Council.

Mash both together or run through vegetable grinder; then add seasoning, butter and milk, and well beaten egg, mixing all thoroughly with spoon. Stuff fish, sew up with needle and thread. Skewer head and tail together or tie with twine; lay on earthen platter in which it should be served as it is difficult to remove baked fish without breaking. Flour it well. Put a few thin slices of salt pork on top of fish, with skewers and sprinkle salt over. Baste 10 minutes with liquor which cooks out of it; add a little water if necessary; allow 15 minutes to the pound for baking fish. Oven should be moderately hot, if very hot it will not cook well in the middle; brown well, garnish with slices of lemon.

FISH.—(Alice Reynolds, Long Beach.) Boil 1 pint sweet milk, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, flour to make consistency thick cream, salt and pepper to taste. Boil until thoroughly done, 2 lbs. fish, remove skin and bones and pick to pieces. Put layer of fish in baking dish, then layer of dressing until all is used, having dressing on top. Sprinkle with cracker crumbs. Bake 20 minutes, butter top and serve hot.

BAKED FISH.—(Louise C. Holmes, No. 226 West Jefferson street.) Clean any large firm fish and lay in baking pan with chopped onion, garlic, parsley and carrot; cover fish with layer of toasted bread crumbs and bits of butter. Put a glass of sherry and one of bouillon in bottom of pan to baste fish with. Bake in steady oven from 3-4 to 1 hour and baste often. If stuffing is desired, make a dressing of bread (which has been soaked and water pressed out) onion, garlic, parsley (chopped fine,) salt, red pepper, shake of allspice, 1 egg and generous piece of butter, mix well, stuff and sew up fish neatly.

BAKED FISH WITH OYSTER SAUCE.—(Mrs. M. E. R., Long Beach.) It is not necessary to have a whole fish for baking if some larger sort is preferred for its flavor or because of fewer bones. Get piece as desired, cut from across center of fish. With a sharp knife remove backbone and ribs. This leaves two flat pieces entirely free from bones. Make required amount of dressing in proportion of 2 cups stale bread crumbs, 1 tablespoon butter, 2 tablespoons minced onion, 1 tablespoon minced celery, 1 teaspoon minced parsley, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, and 1 egg. Wring out of water a piece of cheesecloth large enough to wrap around fish after it is stuffed. Rub outside (not inside,) of both pieces with butter and salt. Lay one skin downward, near one end of cloth, pack the dressing onto this; lay other over and press down. Fold over the cloth and sew up ends and side to hold fish firmly. Place in pan with a little hot water. Baste frequently from cup of hot water. Turn carefully once or twice to insure even cooking. Allow about 15 minutes per pound for baking. When done remove to platter; cut threads and draw cloth out carefully. Garnish with lemons and parsley. If desired serve with oyster sauce as follows: Rub together, 2 tablespoons flour and 3 tablespoons butter; put into saucepan and pour over it the liquor from 1 can oysters and enough water to make 1 pint. Stir constantly until it boils; add 1 teaspoon lemon juice and oysters; let come to boil, and serve.

BOILED FISH.—(Louise C. Holmes, No. 226 West Jefferson street.) Any large firm fish will do. Clean and roll in cheesecloth, place in deep pan with a carrot, parsley, thyme, couple of bay leaves and a bag of mixed wholespices, salt; 1 glass white wine, and cover with stock. Let simmer slowly until done. Lift fish on platter and gently unroll cheesecloth, which will leave fish nice and whole. Serve with white sauce and capers, or Hollandaise sauce.

PLAIN BOILED FISH.—(Miss Floretta Hyde, No. 2028 Twenty-third street, Santa Monica.) Place 2 lbs. of fish in piece of cheesecloth. Put into kettle and cover with boiling water. FRIED FISH.—(Babel Wright, No. 968 Hobart boulevard.) With sharp knife remove fins and cut off narrow strip of skin entire length of back. When skin is removed from one side, turn and skin other side. Put flesh from each side of spinal column and cut into pieces suitable for serving. Sprinkle with salt, roll in flour, egg and fry in deep fat, or sprinkle with salt, and roll in corn meal and cook either in salt pork fat or lard in frying pan.

FRIED FISH.—(Mrs. M. D. R., Long Beach.) Have fish sliced at market, or if you use little fish see that they are thoroughly cleaned, and always wash them inside and out before using. Roll fish in yellow corn meal, (this makes them a rich brown and keeps them from sticking to pan.) Place in frying pan containing several tablespoons hot lard; salt and fry very slowly, (the slower the better.) Add lard frequently to prevent burning. When one side is brown, turn carefully and salt again.

FISH PUDDING WITH RICE.—(Bessie M. Bugbee, No. 2915 Figueroa street.) Boil 1 cup rice 10 minutes in plenty of salted boiling water. Set in cold place until partly congealed, then moisten hands with cold water and roll tablespoon of mixture into a ball. Stand these balls aside until hard. At serving time arrange little nest of lettuce leaves; in center of each put a slice of pickled beet and in center place one of the little balls. Make stiff mayonnaise. THE OIL INDUSTRY.

TWENTY-NINE STRINGS BUSY.

AMALGAMATED STARTS SECOND NEAR LAST GUSHER.

Development to Continue West of the Railroad Track—First Well Sands up—Rotary Below Thousand Feet—Midway's Sensational Strike Opens Great Possibilities.

A second well is to be started at once 800 feet west of the Amalgamated's latest producer just beyond the Los Angeles-Pacific track crossing the field to Sherman. The rig was finished last week.

The newly completed well has sanded up after flowing a number of days. Men are cleaning it out and will try to find the source of the inrush of salt water that threatened to play havoc with its output. The gas pressure has been terrific and the trouble impossible to investigate before.

The production has varied. Sometimes it has been three-fourths water and other times more than this proportion has been oil, sometimes scarcely any water being found. The matter may or may not be serious according to developments. Salt water has been found before in wells in this district and has been shut off without doing any damage. With this exception practically all the wells are dry. At no time has this pumped clear water.

Thirty-two strings are working in Sherman district. Of these twenty-two are in the proven belt and certain to get oil; the others are speculations.

A feature that is attracting some attention lately is the tendency of some operators to develop wells close together, a practice followed in the early days of Beaumont. In California very little of this has been done. In the Sherman field the amount of this close drilling is small but noticeable on account of its infrequency in this State. Around the corner where the American Petroleum and Garbutt (Union) are at work, this condition exists and forms a contrast to teh widely separated Amalgamated derricks.

THE ROTARY'S PROGRESS.

After three weeks, less one day, the Amalgamated's rotary had reached 1280 feet depth yesterday morning; rate of progress, 69 feet a day average. This includes several delays, and, if the time thus consumed were deducted, the figures of actual work would be higher. From what is known of the formation further east it is thought likely that the bit will be in the harder shale very soon if it is not at present.

It is the declared intention to carry the rotary down as far as possible so as to make a thorough test.

The Great Midway Strike.

The sensational find of the Knob Hill on section 22 at Midway is the talk of oil men interested in the northern fields. The Midway district has always been held to lie in a line from northwest to southeast, but this discovery points to an entirely new theory, viz: that there is a great belt of very light petroleum underlying the great flat, the western boundary of which is the range of hills in which the older wells have all been drilled. How far to the east and northeast it may extend no one can have any idea, there being no data upon which to base an opinion. It may be but a narrow strip, it may extend east for miles.

The experience in practically all fields is that the heavier oil is found around the edges and the lighter grades in the center. If this holds good at Midway it looks as though all previous development had been confined to the western edge and that there is a vast petroleum basin in the flat. There may be also an eastern edge with heavier oil. All theories get a jolt through this find.

The summer is more than likely to witness very extensive prospecting on the flat. By fall or by 1907 there may be data available upon which to base an intelligent theory to the extent of the Midway district to the east.

To the southwest the Mount Diablo's strike extends the proven area and opens a vista of possibility in that direction. Further west along the county line and over in San Luis Obispo, lying in the West Side districts of Kern and Santa Maria, the Recruit (Associated) some time since found oil, it is well understood, although details are meager.

For any purpose—General Farming, Truck Gardening, Poultry country homes and investment—the Cudahy Ranch leaves nothing to be

A Poultry Paradise

The Cudahy Ranch is fast becoming famous as a peculiarly well favored poultry locality. Some of the country's best known experts are establishing model farms there, among them W. W. Howard, the White Leghorn specialist.

There are good reasons why poultry does well on the Cudahy Ranch. In the first place, the soil is light and sandy, giving the birds opportunity to enjoy the beneficial "dust bath" to the full. The climate is equable—and there is an abundant supply of pure water the year around. You can make no mistake in purchasing Cudahy Ranch lands for poultry raising—it will prove a profitable investment.

$400 to $500 An Acre With Water

Cudahy Ranch lands are selling today at from $400.00 to $500.00 an acre—according to tested productiveness. I predict that it will not be long before these acres will be selling near the thousand dollar mark—everything points that way.

Better go down and see the Cudahy Ranch today. Whittier cars leave on the hour from 6th and Main streets. Our vehicles will meet you at Baker Station and salesmen will be ready to take you over the property. It is not an all-day trip serve the purpose.

One of the numerous flowing water and gas wells at Corcoran—cost complete with gas tanks about $225.

WHY Corcoran Is a Success

Corcoran's success is the result of a wealth of natural resources brought to their present high state of development by an investment of over $2,000,000.00 in the purchase and improvement of lands extending about 22 miles along the main line of the Santa Fe. Nothing of a "boom" nature has entered into its growth. The careful, conservative and reliable methods of its management have won the confidence of the public, and the result is a community of wide-awake, progressive farmers whose success is a living proof of the merits of all the claims made for Corcoran.

CORCORAN LANDS ARE RICH AND PRODUCTIVE

The soil is a rich alluvial deposit, practically level, easily cultivated at all seasons of the year, and among the most productive in the United States. No stones, brush, or cactus.

CORCORAN WATER SUPPLY IS ABUNDANT AND SURE

Over 40 flowing wells developed on lands controlled by this Company prove this to be one of the very best artesian sections.

Sub-irrigated at from 7 to 9 feet.

Pumping water in seemingly inexhaustible quantities can be secured from wells 60 to 200 feet deep, at moderate cost, as the lift is only from 12 to 22 feet.

Many ranchers rely on one deep flowing well to irrigate from 160 to 320 acres.

CORCORAN HAS NATURAL GAS WELLS

On a large portion of the lands at a cost of about $200 can be secured a well which will flow sufficient water to irrigate about 10 acres, together with natural gas for heat, light and fuel. Both flow from the same well without injuring the valuable qualities of either. The gas is odorless, sootless, and non-poisonous. One gas well has been flowing water and gas for 19 years.

CORCORAN HAS EXCEPTIONAL RAILROAD FACILITIES

The transcontinental line of the Santa Fe runs directly through almost the entire length of these lands, and a junction with the Southern Pacific connects at Corcoran. No lands more than 5 miles from a shipping point. About mid-way between Los Angeles and San Francisco, assuring ready, competitive markets.

CORCORAN IS A DAIRY DISTRICT

These lands are unsurpassed for the raising of alfalfa, the basis for the stock, cattle and dairy industry. Level land, rich soil, abundant water supply, and equable climate make the conditions for profitable stock raising and dairying ideal.

CORCORAN SUGAR BEETS

Last year made a world's record. The sugar beet crop in the Corcoran district in 1907 averaged 21.8 per cent. sugar, which is said to be the highest ever known for an entire section.

The Pacific Sugar Co. of Los Angeles is now completing a million dollar beet sugar plant in Corcoran, which will handle the beets from thousands of acres now planted in the vicinity. The factory is reinforced concrete, main portion 4 stories in height, and one of the most complete and up-to-date in the world. It is expected to commence operation about July 1st.

CORCORAN IS A RAISIN DISTRICT

Vineyards near Corcoran which have been heavy and profitable producers for years prove these lands to be as well adapted to raisin grape culture as any in the San Joaquin Valley. Hundreds of acres planted more recently give promise of equal success.

CORCORAN LANDS RAISE ASPARAGUS

The Lewis Asparagus and Fruit Company has a section near Corcoran, a large portion of which is planted to asparagus, which is one of the highest priced and most profitable vegetables in the world. The climatic conditions at Corcoran are pronounced by experts to be exceptionally favorable to the early and prolific culture of asparagus.

Government's Reclamation Work.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

FEW there are in the United States who have not heard of the great Roosevelt dam, which is to store water for the enrichment of the farmers of the Salt River Valley of Arizona. There will be much of the ceremonial when this dam is complete, and there are hopes that the man whose name it bears will honor the dedication with his presence, for the occasion surely will establish a milestone of progress in the Rooseveltian policy of conservation of the nation's resources.

Yet, last week, without ceremony other than the revolving of a sluice-gate wheel, there was inaugurated the usefulness of a public work hardly less important than the Roosevelt dam. The diversion dam across Salt River to Granite Reef, twenty-five miles above Phoenix, has been completed, its waste gates have been closed and its service gates opened and its use begun as the heart of the irrigation system of the Salt River Valley. A long-armed floating dredge has torn away the bank of earth that separated the Arizona canal from a cemented basin behind twelve service gates. Thus a new era most modestly has been opened.

Salt River, like all other southwestern streams, is erratic—sometimes mighty and sometimes almost dry. Past the Roosevelt dam, now acquiring massive loftiness in the mountains to the eastward, it winds for forty miles between deep cañon walls till joined by the Verde, a material tributary, just at the head of the valley proper. A short distance below this junction was placed the wood caisson dam of the Arizona Canal, the largest artificial waterway of the Territory. Below, at irregular intervals, were the dams, of loose rock and of brush, of the valley's other canals. Most of these dams had to be rebuilt at least once a year. When the Arizona dam finally decayed there were several lapses of months between irrigations in the higher-lying parts of the valley. Added to the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent in maintaining dams that were as stable as brush fences, there were losses of even millions of dollars in the way of ruined orchards and of crops that were lost because of broken dams, while the river carried water in plenty.

The north-side sluices.

Granite Reef Dam.

This knowledge, common to all local residents, has caused general expression to the effect that of the two dams the one at Granite Reef is really the more important. Unlike its shorter, but taller, brother at Roosevelt, it will store no water, but it will make certain the diversion of whatever water there may ever be in the river channel, to the extent of the capacity of the canals or the needs of the irrigated lands.

The new dam crosses the channel of Salt River a couple of miles below the old Arizona weir. It has cost $500,000, complete, as nearly as can be figured now. It was begun in December, 1906, and therefore has been construction about eighteen months. This is considered a remarkable record for speed, due, without doubt, to the fact that the Reclamation Service did the work itself, on "force account," probably at lower cost than would have attended contract, and with closer approach toward perfection in the details of construction. All the work along Salt River has been under Supervising Engineer Louis C. Hill. Engineer J. W. artin has been in immediate charge at Granite Reef. The work they have accomplished will not change with the centuries and will remain an enduring monument to a policy of public benefit. Everything about the dam looks everlastingly solid. It should be as solid as it looks, for the material, reinforced in places with steel rods, is concrete, made with cement brought from the government mill at Roosevelt. The only parts that can wear out are in the electrically driven steel and bronze mechanism of wheels, screws and shafts that operates the steel water-gates.

Though of itself a thousand feet long, the dam doesn't loom up very large to the eye. The service works on either side are by far the more imposing. Yet the dam is well worthy of study. A sketch of its cross-section shows an upstream face of twenty feet, set upon an eighteen-foot foundation wall, this foundation wall repeated to the depth of fourteen feet under the curving down-stream side. There is a seventy-five-foot apron of concrete, and, lastly, an independent twelve-foot wall, below the end of the apron, to avoid possible "back-cutting," for all surplus water will go over the crest of the dam.

The head-works on the north side are much the more important, for the Arizona Canal is to be enlarged by dredger to 80,000-inch capacity, while the new head ditch across the river has been designed to carry 10,000 inches. It may be explained that an "inch" means one-fortieth of a cubic foot of flow a second. It is interesting to note in this connection, on the authority of Engineer Hill, that more water will be supplied to the Granite Reef headworks than has been developed in all of Southern California, excepting only the Water for the canals is not drawn Imperial country. directly from the reservoir above the dam, but by means of a secondary diversion scheme, that includes a long, concrete-built jetty, on either side of the stream, parallel with the banks and with the faces of the canal gates. Between the jetties and the gates are sloping, concrete-floored basins, four feet deeper than the gate sills, designed to catch and hold the greater part of the sand washed in, till it can be disposed of through sluice gates provided on both sides, in continuation of the line of the dam. The approaches to the dam have been made doubly secure, with levees that will tower above the marks left by any river flood ever locally known.

Clustered around a tall pole, from which floats "Old Glory," on the south side of the river is a sizable town of temporary wooden buildings and tents. Already its walls are falling, for its residents have "worked themselves out of a job." Some of the Reclamation Service men are being scattered to projects in other States, though a number will remain around Phoenix to complete the arterial system of water distribution that has its supply at Granite Reef. Many new canals and laterals are to be constructed and water power is to be developed along their courses. Wells are to be sunk and are to be harnessed with pumps propelled by electricity developed at Roosevelt and along the near-by canals. It will take years more to do this and years for the gradual repayment by the farmers of the government's enormous expenditures.

When the account has been squared, it is hoped that the men of the Reclamation Service may return, to build upon the Verde storage and diversion dams that will rank only slightly lower in importance than the structures placed across the Salt. Five-twelfths of the total water supply of the valley is from the Verde. While much of this will be saved at Granite Reef, the Verde's storm waters must still escape till an impounding system is created. Then to the wealth of the Salt River Valley will be added at least another 100,000 acres, assured of proper irrigation, of land that will well support a family upon its every ten acres. This valley has been chosen as the testing ground of the Interior Department's ideas of internal development and already there is abundant evidence that the plans have "made good."

JAMES H. M'CLINTOCK.

He Knew What He Wanted.

There are, to be sure, many places where they sell ice cream by the quart, the pint and the half pint, to be carried home by the purchaser, the cream being packed in trim paper boxes of one or another size that are specially designed for the purpose; and then there are places where they will sell you a 5-cent box of ice cream, the little boxes used for such sales being made just like those of larger size, with flaps that tuck in and all that sort of thing.

Into such a place yesterday came a five-year-old boy who was later described by a woman customer who was buying some candy there at the time as the handsomest boy she had ever seen; and this remarkable youngster, who was also very handsomely and becomingly attired, marched up to the ice cream counter and said:

"I want a 5-cent box of ice cream."

"What kind?" said the storekeeper, looking down upon him gravely.

"White," said the boy, with equal gravity.

And in due time he got it and walked away with it calmly, with his 5-cent box of white ice cream.—[New York Sun.

FORGERS CHECKED.

SAFETY PAPER FOILS THIEVES.

CHEMICAL COMPOSITION PREVENTS ANY ERASURES.

An American Manufacturer Leads in the Invention of Paper Believed to Prevent Any Changes Being Made in a Check After It Has Once Been Written.

Newspaper accounts of recent successfully executed forgeries of letters of credit, drafts, certificates of deposit and other documents have created a widespread interest in this subject, one of vital importance to the business community, and the banking world is again discussing, as it does at every recurrence of some cleverly devised scheme by expert criminals to obtain money unlawfully, how to protect itself and the public against this particular form of theft. The police records of all nations bear ample evidence of how skilled artisans, usually expert engravers, lithographers, penmen and others, risk the danger of detection and punishment for the sake of sudden gain. These become professional forgers and counterfeiters, and are not to be confused with the accidental wrongdoer, driven to crime by necessity or tempted by special opportunities, or with those who succeed in obtaining money on checks or negotiable paper drawn on banking institutions where no account exists. The latter named succeed in their fraud by taking advantage of the credulity of their victims, not by forgery.

Most financial institutions have been inclined to rely upon engraved steel plates of complicated design, printed with a non-photographic tint, such as the New York Stock Exchange requires; others pin their faith to the familiar safety punch; others to indelible ink used with another form of bank punch; others, again, make a use of safety tint or safety paper. Those using the latter rely entirely on their lithographers or the various banknote companies to supply them with an acid-proof paper, and the radical and vital difference between safety tint and safety paper is not generally understood. As a matter of fact, safety paper made in this country is used to a great extent in banking circles and employed by many first-class lithographers and general engravers.

It is unquestionably true, however, that it is not generally known that safety paper not only solves the problem at hand, but is also an American invention, and another triumph for American ingenuity and resource, which chiefly accounts for the gradual passing of the forger.

SAFETY PAPER AMERICAN IDEA.

To an American of Scotch descent, George La Monte, whose gallicized spelling of the Scotch Lamont may probably be ascribed to an ancestor's fancy at that period of English history when Scot and Frenchman were allies, belongs the credit of the safety paper principle. To him, also, is justly due credit for devising special machinery and for the discovery of a process, a trade secret, by which safety paper is treated during the course of manufacture. For years the product of Nutley and Brooklyn factories has been considered a standard, like the bond paper from Senator Crane's New England mills, both products being used by the United States government and most banknote companies. Mr. La Monte began to make his safety paper about 1870.

Its basic features are a special secret treatment, a peculiarity in surface designs, and also certain characteristic differences in texture and "feel." The first, for the purpose of preventing acid or mechanical erasure, is based upon the principle that if a piece of paper is treated during the process of manufacture with a combination of chemicals, the basis of which is identical with that of the commercial writing ink, the result, when an erasure is made, of combining the two will be a perfect union. The second feature, in combination with fugitive tints, prevents photographic reproduction as well as the possibility of undetected erasure, while the third is mainly useful in protecting the consumer against imposition, once he becomes familiar with the special qualities of safety paper employed for specific purposes.

"Though widely used by many governments and private institutions," said George M. La Monte, son of the inventor, "the use of safety paper is still in its infancy, if we consider the purposes to which it might wisely be employed as a precautionary measure. Our paper is used by the United States, Canadian, Peruvian and other governments, in Cuba, the Philippines, Panama, Japan, Mexico, England, Sweden and other nations, chiefly by the banks of those countries.

"Safety paper has of late years quietly made its way to the front and solved the problem of protection against fraud. It is a matter of interest to the business public, not merely to the banks or the trade, because it will perform efficient service if called upon by those who need it. The day of the forger is gradually passing away, and he will entirely vanish if good safety paper is universally employed, not only in banking affairs but for important documents of any character. Every sheet or scrap of paper we manufacture is rigidly accounted for and recorded. It is not possible for any outsider to obtain it for any purpose whatsoever, and we offer to give a bond to that effect."

The more one delves into this subject the greater is the conviction that many losses through fraud by forgery might be avoided if safety paper were universally employed whenever the altering of the text of the document might adversely affect some one. Little has been said of the question of expense because, while safety paper costs a trifle more, the percentage is so infinitesimally small in comparison with the amount or interest involved that it is hardly a reasonable factor. It would always be the cheapest form of insurance, in any case. In many countries typewritten contracts and agreements are not legal, but must be written in long hand, on stamped paper—a government revenue. This paper is usually a coarse white rag fabric, on which, however, changes and alterations have and can be readily made by experts.

Thus, when the use of safety paper becomes more general, and not till then, will forgery become a lost art, unless one chooses to ignore opportunities offered, and, like a certain frenzied financier whom the writer interviewed, be willing to "take a chance on the blamed grafters," and, as in the ancient tale, close the stable door after the horse has been stolen.—[New York Tribune.

Bunglers and Lawless.

THE TIMES has always conceded the right of wage-earners to associate themselves together under the laws of our country for their mutual protection and advancement. Our contention has been against the unions as controlled by ignorant and designing leaders who do not know the A, B, C of business, who have no regard for law or the natural rights of their fellows, and whose leadership is always to the disastrous disadvantage of those so foolish as to follow them.

The conflict between The Times and this lawless, selfish and ignorant leadership has on our side been in behalf of the working people of the country, whether organized or not, and for the protection of the rights of employers whose business, property and very lives are often in jeopardy by reason of the tactics inaugurated by the walking delegates and followed out by their dupes.

Our appeal has always been to the wage-earners to conduct their contentions on lines of common sense and in accordance with the laws of political economy and to the administrators of the law to protect the rights of all men when these are threatened by men intent on violence under the improper guidance of the mischief-makers who are prone to stir up strife in order to create the impression that their services are worth the large salaries they draw from the unions.

We have today under our eyes an object lesson showing how contrary to right, reason and economic laws these mischievous leaders act. In the building trades of the whole country there is a falling off of about 40 per cent. from the activity existing a year ago. The economic result is a large number of idle men in all these trades. Here at home while the activity was at white heat, any man who could push a saw or a plane or drive nails could get $3.50 a day, and skilled men $4. With a slack time in building there are hundreds of good mechanics looking for work who would be glad to get $3.00, and rough carpenters can be had for $2.50. In such conditions any leader with a little head and a semblance of a conscience would let things alone.

But these are the conditions which inspire the sending of an emissary all the way from Kansas City and one from San Francisco to Pasadena to tell carpenters not to lift a hammer or a saw unless they get $3.50 a day. The Times' advice to the men is to ignore their rash and foolish leaders, and take thought for their own interests and for those of their wives and children. Our advice to contractors is to withstand the demand for unreasonable wages and hire good men for such wages as independent mechanics are willing to accept. Depend upon it, there are builders who know enough of book-keeping to see that they cannot compete, paying $3.50, with those who pay but $2.50 to $3.00, and that they must conduct their business according to fundamental economic laws or fail in their enterprises.

It remains to be seen how many of them will be dupes enough to follow the impossible orders of the walking delegate from Missouri, who has come here to "show them"—the way to the poorhouse. That the builders will refuse the demands seems a foregone conclusion. If the men go out on strike we call now as heretofore upon the administrators of the fair laws of our country to protect all men in their rights. First protect every independent, sensible, honest man who is wise enough to accept such wages as are going and earn a living for himself and all dependent on him. Then if violence is attempted against any employer of labor, and his property or person is in danger, protect him by every means provided by the strong arm of the law.

To ask this is to ask what is every man's right to expect under a wise government in the hands of honest and courageous men. To ask less would be for this paper to neglect a bounden duty, and we have never asked more or been content with less.

Industrial Independence.

SAMUEL GOMPERS DECLARED THE WORST ENEMY OF AMERICAN LABOR THAT LABORS.

THE Manufacturers' Association is quite right in taking its position candidly and resolutely in favor of the open-shop principle and against class legislation, says the New York Journal of Commerce, but there is little to be gained by the kind of violent denunciation given out in the form of an interview by Mr. Kirby of the Dayton Manufacturing Company. Labor unions have been organized rather hastily in this country on a model borrowed from abroad and have been dominated by a spirit wholly alien to the institutions of a free republic. Those who have been most active in forming and guiding them and have imposed themselves and been accepted as leaders are mostly men of foreign birth or extraction, who have not freed themselves from the traditions of the countries from which they came. What the unions need is not to be broken up but to be Americanized. Men who work for wages and depend for a livelihood upon being employed by others are bound to be associated together and organized in trades unions. It is useless to fight against that, for unions are necessary to the defense of certain rights of labor and may serve various beneficial purposes. What is needed is a correction of mistaken purposes and wrong methods, and toward this organized employers may assist.

Certain fundamental principles will have to be recognized before labor unions can take root and flourish on American soil, unless the character of American institutions is to be changed by a reaction toward older political conditions. First of all, the principle of the equal rights of individuals under the law must be accepted. No member of an organization, social, political, religious or industrial, must be privileged to more favorable consideration or treated with less consideration than another in legislation or the administration of the law, and no combination of men must be permitted to trample upon the rights of those who decline to belong to it. This plainly means that any man who works for a living has a right to choose his trade or occupation without coercion, and has an equal right with all others to be employed at it, whether he joins a union or not. He has the right to work on such terms as he pleases and for whom he pleases, and every employer of labor has the right to exercise a like liberty of choice. These rights may be voluntarily surrendered or curtailed for the advantages of organization and the making of joint contracts, but they cannot be forcibly taken away or restricted without violence to the all-important principle of equality before the law.

This theory of equality of rights, fundamental to our system of government, is the essence of the open shop principle. Workingmen may organize for the protection of their rights and the promotion of their welfare, but not for the destruction or curtailment of the rights of others or injury to their well-being. If the unions cannot demonstrate their benefit sufficiently to attract workmen in their several trades to join them, they should not be permitted to exercise coercion, intimidation or violence to force them in or to keep them out of employment if they refuse to join. A workman is entitled to the same rights as a non-union man that he would have as a union man before the law, and he should be protected in those rights in the one case as in the other. They should be recognized by employers, whose liberty is also assailed by unions that claim superior rights for their members and attempt by combination to enforce them. The most serious mistake of the labor unions is this attack upon equality of rights, which insists upon discrimination in the employment of men in their occupations and leads inevitably to unjustifiable strikes, to boycotts, to threats and intimidation and to assaults upon person and property against which every subject of civilized law is entitled to protection.

Nothing is more inconsistent with this principle of equality than the demand for class legislation, the making of laws to apply to one class of citizens and not to another, or to apply differently to one class than to another. To make one law of conspiracy for organized labor and another for organized capital, to make the judicial power of injunction different in labor disputes than in business disputes or any controversy threatening injury, to permit boycotts by labor unions which would not be tolerated by combinations of employers, would be destructive to free government and lead ultimately to despotism. It is a wholesome thing that manufacturers and other employers of labor are organizing to resist these destructive tendencies and to insist upon the maintenance of the constitutional rights of all. But they need to be considerate of rights also and not go too far in repression. Our workingmen need to be educated to understand their own rights and to respect the rights of others. They should be encouraged to organize and to conduct their organizations on right principles, and help to free themselves from bad leadership. Union workmen are still a small minority in our body politic and not so formidable as their leaders would have us believe. They will not gain strength by striving against the principles of American institutions and fighting against the spirit that created the government of the United States and is essential to its preservation. Samuel Gompers appears to think that he is doing his utmost to promote the well-being of American labor, but he is unwittingly its worst enemy.

Law and Labor.

Anti-trust laws and conspiracy laws, and the use of the judicial power of injunction, are designed to protect rights and prevent wrongs. What the Supreme Court decisions amount to is that such laws and such use of judicial power apply to combinations of labor and capital alike; that labor unions have no more right to destroy the property or business of others, or to injure persons or deprive them of liberty, than "trusts" have; and that the subjects of law are as much entitled to protection for person and property and liberty of action against unions as against trusts. That is simply the foundation principle of our whole system of law and government and ought to be preserved inviolate at all hazards.

It ought to be "impossible for labor unions to enforce their demands" by invading the fundamental rights of citizens and perpetrating wrongs upon them, or by violence, disorder, even dynamiting and assassination, to which lawlessness tends as in the case of the Western Federation of Miners. It is of the utmost importance that the anti-trust law, the conspiracy law, the law defining or limiting the power of injunction, should not be modified in the manner demanded by the "American Federation of Labor." Let that kind of process of disintegration once begin and it would be the beginning of the end of our system of government by liberty under law. These men, led by Gompers, know not what they do in trying to undermine the principle of equal rights and equal

NOTES FROM ABROAD.

Great Britain imports $25,000,000 worth of eggs each year, chiefly in order as named, from Russia, Denmark, Germany, Belgium, France and Canada.

Imports in 1907 by the Commonwealth of Australia amounted in value to $260,000,000, and exports to $265,000,000, a trade gain of $35,000,000. Compared with 1906 the imports increased $35,000,000 and exports $15,000,000. Since federation, in 1901, the Commonwealth's total foreign commerce has grown from $460,000,000 to $625,000,000, an increase of $165,000,000 in six years. The trade is now $150 yearly per head of the population.

The six States of Australia have 1,765,186 horses, 9,349,400 cattle, 83,687,655 sheep and 812,589 pigs; her mineral production is worth $130,000,000 a year, consisting chiefly of gold, copper, silver, lead, tin and coal; her factories number 11,581 men, with $210,000,000 capital invested, says the Canadian Trade Commissioner, at Sydney, New South Wales.

Australia imports chiefly apparel and textiles, iron and steel, jute goods, metal manufactures, timber, machines and machinery, tea, printing paper, drugs and chemicals, hats and caps, sugar, whisky, manures, cordage and twines, agricultural implements, leather, jewelry, glass and glassware, ale and beer, boots and shoes, india-rubber goods, tobacco, cigars and cigarettes, furniture and rice. Her chief exports are wool, wheat, butter, frozen meats, copper, sheep, flour, tallow, timber and tin ingots.

During the ten years ending February of 1899 to 1908, inclusive, the yearly immigration into Canada from Great Britain was (Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce figures:)

1899	27,992	1904	97,780
1900	34,012	1905	92,171
1901	56,950	1906	109,280
1902	42,448	1907	146,981
1903	71,253	1908	179,567

The 1906 figures represent four-fifths British born and one-fifth foreign born.

Comparing 1907 with 1906, calendar years, the imports and exports of British South Africa were:

	Imports.	Exports.
1907	$126,083,714	$231,621,892
1906	145,317,667	226,377,880

Exports exceeded imports by $81,000,000 in 1906, and by $105,000,000 in 1907. British sales to South Africa fell off $9,000,000 in 1907 from 1906. Other decreases were Argentina, $2,200,000; Germany, $1,400,00; United States, $2,200,000, and Sweden, $500,000.

Canada is not making much yet out of her latest trade treaty with France, because, though in 1907 she bought $9,145,000 worth of French goods (increase over 1906, $1,500,000,) France only bought $1,757,000 worth of Canadian products (decrease of $362,000.)

Statistics of Gold Coast for 1906, compared with 1896:

	1906.	1896.
Revenue	$ 1,224,429	$ 1,155,620
Expenditure	3,060,676	1,372,734
Imports	10,020,167	4,430,604
Exports	9,735,870	2,854,340
Total trade	$19,756,037	$7,284,944
Shipping, tons	2,143,865	1,102,352

Those increases in the ten years are satisfactory, except the American share in the trade is but trifling—only $225,000 total exports and imports in 1906.

Consul J. Perry Worden of Bristol, England, writes: "The first American steamer scheduled for Bristol since 1891 (seventeen years ago) sailed from Philadelphia recently with a cargo of oil, arousing no little interest in this old port, which once maintained a brisk shipping trade with the United States. This is coincident with the reestablishment of a special line of freight steamers between Philadelphia and Bristol. Not less than fifty Ameri-

BOYS ACCUSED OF ARSON.

Three in Jail on Suspicion of Having Burned School House at Santa Ynez.

SANTA BARBARA, June 6.—Four little boys, ranging in age from 12 to 17 years, are in the County Jail, charged with setting fire to the Union High School at Santa Ynez, forty miles north of here, on the night of May 27, entailing a loss of $15,000.

The prisoners are Arthur Serrano, "Buck" Lee, Harry Lee and Alberto Cordero. They were arrested last night on complaint of Janitor Coloe, after a detective had worked for a week on the case.

The boys will make no statements. Their hearing is set for Tuesday in Santa Ynez. Hatred of school duties is believed to have led them to destroy the building. A splendid library was also lost.

The youngsters do not seem to appreciate the enormity of the offense with which they are charged.

ELIPTICAL WILL.

In a will filed today, Mrs. Mary Ryon leaves the bulk of a $50,000 estate to three sisters, whose addresses were omitted. Two sisters, Katie Whitney and Annie Boud, are known to live in Brooklyn, N. Y., but the other has not been located.

Spiritualists will hold a series of meetings at Summerland, beginning tomorrow. There will be addresses and dmonstrations by a medium of San Diego.

MONROVIA ACTIVITY.

Work Begun on First National Bank Structure—Total for Last Month Excellent Record.

MONROVIA, June 6.—The total of building investment for the month just ended exceeds that for May, 1907, by $15,000. The major portion of the increase is due to the incentive furnished builders by the lower cost of material.

The realty situation is notable for the entire absence of speculation. Last year the percentage of speculative purchasers of homesite property was very small, this year it is a minus quantity.

The largest building contract for June was let today to F. O. Engstrom & Co., of Los Angeles, for the First National Bank building. The structure will be one story high, 50x70 feet, and will cost, with furnishings and fixtures, $50,000. The site, on Orange and Myrtle avenues, was purchased some months ago for $15,000. The building was designed by Parkinson & Bergstrom of Los Angeles., and will be a modified classic design. The material will be white pressed brick throughout, with terra cotta ornamentations. Floors will be of tile, and corridors and vestibules will be wainscoted with white-veined marble. The building will be occupied solely by the bank. The Monrovia Savings Bank, an affiliated institution, will occupy the First National's present quarters.

Realty transfers for the week ending Thursday, June 4, aggregate $11,000. The market has been characterized by steady buying at seller's prices. Short options on ranch and city homesite property, held at over $20,000, have been taken principally by Los Angeles commuters.

H. T. McCullough sold to J. E. Booker a six-room bungalow and one and one-half acres of land just west of the city limits. The consideration was $5000. A domestic water right in the Santa Anita Cañon system is included with the land.

Robert Manford, acting for J. H. Hill, has sold to James W. Bennet of Los Angeles eleven lots in the southeastern section of the city for a consideration of $2200. The tract is in young orange trees, and there are no other improvements. The same agent also sold for R. Price to Julia Shavey one lot 50x150 feet, on East avenue, for $450. The same agent sold for W. Lyons to Mrs. William Gerham of Los Angeles one lot 50x150 feet, on East Orange avenue, near Shamrock street, for a consideration of $650.

J. E. Bunker sold for Mrs. Cabanis, to W. H. Nichols of Boulder, Colo., a lot and small house on West Orange avenue, near J. I. C. avenue, for $1600.

LOS ANGELES FIRM IN MEXICO.

Contracts for extensive improvement work at Empalme, located about five miles from Guaymas, on the old Sonora Railway, have been awarded Carl Leonardt by the Yaqui River and Pacific Railway Company. The estimated cost of the improvements is $200,000.

The road is to be extended into Old Mexico for a distance of 1000 miles. Mr. Leonardt will erect two reinforced concrete stacks, 138 and 151 feet high, respectively; they will each be 20 feet in diameter at the base, and supported on reinforced concrete piles. A water tower, 105 feet high and 31.8 feet in diameter, will be built. It will hold 500,000 gallons, and will be built on ninety-two concrete piles. A twenty-eight-stall roundhouse, large machine shop, blacksmith shop, storehouse and pumping stations also will be built.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

The review of the real estate and building activity at Oceano Beach for the last year is highly satisfactory to the owners, considering the unsettled conditions that have prevailed throughout the country. A large dancing pavilion enclosed in glass on all sides, a modern beach hotel, pleasure pier and many cozy cottage homes have been built since last year. Besides building up as a seaside resort, the Southern Pacific is handling a heavy tonnage of farm products, lumber and machinery for the oil wells at their Oceano station on the main coast line. The beach, at a low tide, is 700 feet wide and twenty-one miles long, and furnishes the finest automobile racing course in America not excepting even the famous Ormonde Beach in Florida.

Houses, Lots and Lands—Review of Building and Development Co

FOR PROMOTION.

MUCH EXPECTED OF ASSOCIATION.

ORGANIZATION OF A NATIONAL REALTY BODY.

Combine to Exert Influence in Matters Affecting Land and Building Interests of America—Chicago Convention Puts Los Angeles Man on Executive Committee.

Far-reaching results are expected from the convention in Chicago, recently, of 126 delegates from realty organizations of fifteen States, representing twenty cities. Leonard Merrill, an active member of the Los Angeles Realty Board, represented the State Realty Federation, and as he was the only delegate representing an entire State, he was received with marked attention and given an important official position.

"The National Association of Real Estate Exchanges" is the name adopted for the organization. Its object is to unite the real estate men of America for the purpose of exerting an effective influence upon matters affecting real estate interests. Officers elected are: A. H. Fredericks, St. Louis, president; W. W. Hannan, Detroit, vice-president; H. F. Ware, St. Paul, second vice-president; W. A. Greenland, Cleveland, secretary; George Birkhoff, Jr., Chicago, treasurer.

Mr. Merrill's explanation of the formation and methods of the State Realty Federation created especial interest. He was honored with a place on the banquet programme and spoke on California's resources.

The successful advocacy of many useful laws was reported by several organizations from various parts of the country, including improvements in methods of taxation.

The convention discussed such subjects as uniform tax laws, uniform blanks of deed and mortgage, uniform notaries acknowledgment, city government, especially the financial side of it; appraisal of property by assessors, and the proportion of actual value at which it should be assessed, the attitude of one broker toward another, and the large influence of read estate men in securing good local legislation and reform.

Bellingham, Wash., Seattle and Tacoma were the cities of the Pacific Coast represented.

BUILDING IN SOUTHWEST.

Rapid Development of Section at Forty-eight and Wilton Place Feature of City's Growth.

The Los Angeles Investment Company reports a marked increase in its building operations in the College tract, at Forty-eighth street, Gramercy and Wilton Place and Arlington avenue. This eighty-acre subdivision was platted last summer, and the company has built and sold thirty modern homes, averaging in price about $3500 for house and lot. The company reports fourteen cottages and bungalows now under construction, many of which are already sold.

The company is now completing on this tract the following houses, which are being built to suit the purchasers: For A. B. Marshall, a eight-room bungalow, at No. 4812 Gramercy Place, on lot 50x130 feet, at a cost of $5000. For Mrs. Fannettie Cowdrey, a seven-room house at No. 4825 Gramercy Place, on lot 50x130 feet, to cost $4000. For J. Abbott Powel, a seven-room bungalow, at No. 4831 Wilton Place, on lot 50x130 feet, which will cost $3000. For P. I. Murphy, a seven-room house at No. 4810 Gramercy Place, on lot 50x130 feet, which will cost $4500. For A. J. Toolen, a five-room cottage at No. 4521 Wilton Place, on lot 40x130 feet, to cost $2800. For Miss V. M. Robbins, a seven-room bungalow on the corner of Forty-fifth street and Gramercy Place, 50x130 feet, to cost $3800.

The company reports the sale, last week, of a seven-room bungalow at No. 4711 Gramercy Place, to F. W. Grant, lot 50x130 feet, for $3000. Also a five-room bungalow at No. 4527 Gramercy Place, to James Wilson, lot 40x130 feet, for $2500. The above prices include both house and lot.

The company reports a good demand for this property. Many novel features in the way of improvements are being added in the work upon this tract. The officers of the company state that they plan to make this tract one of the best resident sections they have ever improved in the city.

The company also reports the following sales: To John D. Richards, a five-room bungalow, at No. 1601 East Thirty-sixth street, lot 40x140 feet, for $2000. The four-room cottage at No. 1630 East Thirty-sixth street to W. J. Schaefle, for $1600. These are in Deeble tract. The seven-room bungalow at No. 1611 East Fortieth street to P. A. Cassady, for $3400, and a five-room cottage at No. 1630 East Thirty-ninth street, to Elmer Fleming, for $2100, these being located in Elder Place No. 2.

FACT AND COMMENT.

tricts of the city where the great number of sales are recorded. This is really the shifting of the population that is taking place at the present time. These lots can be purchased at as low as $500, and good ones can be had for $1000 to $1500. Adding the average price of a cottage, we have a home for from $1500 to $2500. At 7 per cent. interest this means a rental of $105 a year for the cheapest cottages, and not above $175 for those costing the largest average sum. In the one case the family rent is less than $9 a month, and in the other less than $15 a month. The flats and other classes of rental property being vacated near the center of the city cost rentals of from $20 to $40 a month, according to the closeness to the business center of the city.

What the Agents Report.

All these cottages are not being built by those who inhabit them. A good many are built to rent, and others are built to sell on installments. For both purposes those putting up these dwellings report an excellent demand. A family may secure one of these little homes at a cost of from $1500 to $3000, and pay for it in installments, the money down being often a very small sum, as little as a month's rent for a near-in flat or house. The monthly payments are considerably less than such monthly rent would amount to. The flat may be more pretentious, may possibly have more conveniences than the cottage, but the cottage is on a lot of from twenty-five to fifty feet frontage, with a depth of from 100 to 150 feet. There is room for a graden, and there is a good deal more breathing space about. The family has much more seclusion than in the flat, and the lack of luxuries in the way of modern improvements is not so much as the inexperienced might imagine. They are decidedly artistic little homes, and are supplied with conveniences which Gladys Vanderbilt found wanting in the castle of her noble lord and master in the Hungarian wilderness. Not one of these little American homes but has a pretty bathroom, with enameled bathtub of ample size, furnished with hot and cold water to be had by turning the faucet. There is a heater in the kitchen with a gas appliance connected which, at an expense of 10 or 15 cents for the fuel, and by waiting a period of about ten minutes' time, furnishes a bathtub full of tepid water.

This Indicates a Permanent Population

The fact of this large demand for these small homes out in the outskirts of the city indicates clearly an unusually permanent class of inhabitants. Some purchasers may be disappointed in their expectations to spend the rest of their lives here, but in most cases they weigh the subject very carefully before they decide to invest in a home. The great mass of them will not be transient residents in the city, but will remain here during their natural lives. The fact that they have a little stake in the city makes them much better citizens than the class that is nearly always on the wing, here today and away tomorrow. They will take an interest in schools and churches, in good city government, in clean politics, and everything that goes to make a typical American community.

Won't Be Vacant Long.

Just now it is the period known as "between times" in Los Angeles. The winter tourists from the East who came here to escape the severe cold at their homes have about all returned. The inflow of summer tourists who come from the superheated plains of the Territories and from the hot valleys in the mining sections of the mountain States has not yet begun. It will come in a few weeks now, and doubtless there are today more vacant premises in the city of Los Angeles than there will be again in a year, probably more than in many years. There will be a slackening up now in the construction of flats and apartment house for a while. The population of this city is growing steadily. This has been the case for the last twenty-five years. Not one month in all these years has there been an actual decrease in the population of Los Angeles. It may take a year or so to bring in enough new residents to fill to overflowing all these flats and cottages, new and old, now standing vacant, but it is not likely to require a greater period of time than that. Of course, when there are vacant premises in a city the less well-to-do families who on account of excessively high rents, were crowded out into old, uncomfortable houses, will take advantage of the situation and move up a step or two. With the growth of population and the stiffening of rents every shack will be full again, as it was twelve or fifteen months ago. There will not be a cessation of building at any time. Probably this is as low an ebb now as it will be. But it is likely to be at least a year before we have the rush of new construction that ceased about six months ago.

SALE NEAR SAN DIMAS.

Dr. Rudolph Schiffman Buys Valuable Acreage Near Foothill Town. $60,000 the Price.

PASADENA, June 6.—Dr. Rudolph Schiffman of this city has just purchased over 100 acres near San Dimas, from W. W. Huntington, for a consideration approximating $60,000. The deal was made through the agency of Anderson & Johnson.

The ranch is located about five miles north of San Dimas. Forty acres of the property are set out to oranges, the remainder of the property being in grain. Dr. Schiffman may subdivide some of the property after contemplated improvements have been made. The entire exchange involved the transfer of about $80,000, as Mr. Huntington takes several fine building lots in the Colorado home tract of this city in exchange.

Another sale reported by the firm, is that of a ranch near Anaheim, consisting of ten acres, from E. M. Honsbrough to J. A. Poteet, of Pasadena, for $17,000. The ranch is located northeast of Anaheim, and is improved with house and barns.

One of the small deals reported in this city during the past few days is that of the seven-room house of Mrs. Isabell Bates Winslow, at No. 373 South Los Robles avenue to T. H. McCoy of the William R. Staats Company. The consideration was $5000. Mr. McCoy has occupied the house for the past two years. The property has a frontage on Los Robles avenue of eighty feet and the lot is 260 feet deep. Mrs. Winslow will soon occupy her new home at No. 718 Arroyo Drive, now being built at a cost of $3500. It is one of the smaller and attractive bungalows of the city.

L. P. Pritchard purchased through the B. O. Kendall Company a new seven-room bungalow and lot 60x170 feet, at No. 168 Center street. The property was owned by John Baxter and the consideration was $5000.

BUILD ON KENSINGTON PLACE.

One of the handsome residences now being built in the Briggs company's Kensington Place, in the beautiful Wilshire boulevard section, is that designed for W. S. Bell by Architect Frank M. Tyler. The house occupies a lot 60x150 feet. It is sixty-five feet south of West Sixth street, between Sixth and Wilshire boulevard.

A stone porch extends across the front of the house. Entrance is into a large reception hall, 10x15 feet, finished with mahogany. To the left is the living-room, 16x20 feet, also finished in mahogany, and having beamed ceilings and a large stone fireplace. Behind the living-room is a den 16x10 feet, with built-in book cases and writing desk. This room is finished in weathered oak. French windows open onto a pergola porch in the rear. To the right of the reception hall, a large doorway opens into the dining-room, 17x21 feet. This room is finished in mahogany, and has a 10-foot built-in buffet, paneled side walls, and beamed ceilings. Immediately back of the dining-room is the kitchen 12x14 feet, equipped with large china closets, etc. There is a large screen porch with stationary tubs in the rear.

On the second floor are four bedrooms, finished in white enamel, with large closets, and modern conveniences. The bathroom is exceptionally complete, and has a tile floor.

On the third floor is a magnificent billiard-room and servant's bedroom. The billiard-room is 22½x17½ feet, with a pressed-brick mantel. This room will be finished in the mission style.

SALES AT RIVERA ACRES.

Small Tracts in San Gabriel Valley Attractive to Homeseekers. Other Sales.

The Ackerly Company reports noticeable return of activity in the real estate market. This agency reports several good sales of both farm and city property during the last week. This firm has just acquired 400 acres of the old Santa Gertrudes Rancho, in the San Gabriel Valley, between Rivera and Downey. They have subdivided this into five and ten-acre tracts. The land is in the center of the well-known Rivera walnut and orange district. Although the survey of the land has just been completed the company reports several good sales during the last week and much inquiry from prospective buyers. The land is covered by a cement ditch system, said to be one of the best water systems in Southern California. Owing to the fact that the land is located so near the city, the Ackerly Company feel confident that there will be a most active demand for it. The company has named the tract Rivera Acres.

The following sales were made last week: To W. E. Houp, five acres, including house and barn, for $1875; twelve and one-half acres to L. D. Olds, for $4850; ten acres to W. O. Woodbury, including a house and barn, for $5000.

In addition to these sales at Rivera Acres, the company reports the sale of a twenty-acre ranch by W. G. Hickox to J. C. Alcorn for $5000. This ranch is about three miles west of Santa Ana. Also the sale of a nine-room house at the northeast corner of Fifteenth and Western avenues, by Millard F. Dillon. This residence is one of the finest on Pico Heights and was purchased by Benjamin Sepulveda for a consideration of $9500. The same company also reports the sale of Redondo street bonds amounting to $10,500, showing that the money market is easing up decidedly.

RAILWAY PLANS BRING BUYERS.

Home Builders Buy Along Proposed Line to Burbank—Five Lots Purchased by Naval Officers.

The Erkenbrecher Syndicate, which has made such a success of handling the Glendale Valley View Tract, reports that since the publication in The Times, on May 14th, regarding the construction of an electric road to Burbank via Pacific avenue, the main north and south avenue of the Glendale Valley View Tract, tremendous activity has been evidenced in the inquiry and consequent sales in this tract. Twenty-four lots with a gross valuation of $11,400 have been sold in this time. In the past three months seventy-one lots with a total valuation of about $32,000 have been sold, and a remarkable feature of the whole proposition is the large percentage of home builders who are buying for the purpose of immediate improvement. During the past year nearly eighty houses have been built, a total of 145 being now built and occupied in the tract.

An interesting feature concerning late sales is that no less than five lots have been purchased by officers on board one of the battleships which recently visited San Pedro. This is proof positive that these men know a good thing when they see it, and are laying foundations for future comfort when they eventually retire from the service of Uncle Sam.

WINS SCHOOL COMPETITION.

Plans are being prepared by Norman F. Marsh for a two-story high-school building for the Glendale Union District. Mr. Marsh's plans were selected in a competition with eight other architects. The second prize was awarded C. C. Rittenhouse, and the third prize to W. J. Bliesner.

The accepted design calls for a brick building, 90x120 feet, of classic Ionic architecture. The estimated cost is $50,000, without equipment. The ground floor will be divided into a large gymnasium, shower baths, locker and robing rooms, bicycle and lunch-rooms, toilet-rooms, kitchen and two recitation-rooms.

The manual-training department, domestic-science department, heating plant and storage rooms also will be on the lower floor.

The main floor will consist of the principal's suite, special quarters for men and women teachers, an auditorium to seat 450 people, library, study-room and three large recitation rooms.

The upper floor will contain three laboratory-rooms, a lecture-room in the style of an amphitheater, the commercial department, art department and two recitation-rooms.

The individual locker system will be used throughout the building. Modern plumbing, heating and ventilating systems will be installed and other necessary conveniences will be specified.

NEW RECORD POLE VAULT.

Gilbert of Yale Raises Mark of His Colleague Dray.

Philadelphia Olympic Try-outs Show Fine Results.

Sheppard Makes Fast Time in Distance Race.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PHILADELPHIA, June 6.—A. C. Gilbert of Yale established a new world's record of 12ft. 7 3-4ins. in the pole vault today in the try-outs for the Olympic games. The former record was 12ft. 6½ins., held by his colleague, Dray.

Remarkable performances characterized the entire meet. Time and time again the spectators were electrified by brilliant performances. Cartmell and Rector, the University of Virginia crack, were defeated by Robertson of the Irish-American A.C. in the 100-meter race. The discus throw records were smashed, and W. W. Sheppard took first place in the 800-meter run in the remarkable time of 1m. 54s.

RESULTS OF EVENTS.

The 400-meter run (437.2 yards; Olympic record, 49 1-5s., held by Pillman, America)—Won by J. B. Taylor (university of Pennsylvania;) second, J. C. Atlee (Princeton;) third, W. C. Prout (Boston A. C.;) time, 49 4-5s.

Pole vault (Olympic record, 11ft., 6in., held by Devorak, America, and Goulder, France)—Won by A. C. Gilbert (Yale,) 12ft., 7¾in.; N. D. Nelson (Yale,) and Dray (Yale,) tied for second place, 12ft., 2½in.

THIRD CONTEST.

TARGET MATCH WITH SAILORS.

PICKED TEAM OF RIFLES TO MEET TENNESSEEANS.

Shoot to Be Held at Schuetzen Park at Ten O'clock Today Lasting Into the Afternoon—Crack Shots of the Fleet and of Civilians to Meet in Rifle Practice.

The rifle team from the cruiser Tennessee will meet a picked team from the Southern California Rifles today, beginning at 10 o'clock, at Schuetzen Park. Surgeon M. S. Guest, manager of the team, last night telegraphed that the match would be pulled off as previously arranged.

Among the best shots of the sailors team are Surgeon Guest, Lieut. Meyer, Chief Carpenter Meade and sailors Williams and Smith. The team was to practice at the range Saturday but could not do so because of the accident on board their ship.

Capt. Howard, who was present at the first match held at Redondo will probably not be with the team today.

The Rifles' team will include Neff, Simpson, Wolf, Backus, Andrews, McClellan, Beatty, Ade Orrill, Ostrander and Goldworthy. Substitutes are Hackett, W. E. Harrison and Everhart.

One score of ten shots with two sighting shots will be fired at the 200 and 500 yard ranges. The officers may arrange a rapid fire score of five shots at 200 yards, but the Rifles using lever-action repeaters, have such a big advantage over the bolt action guns used by the sailors that it would be necessary to allow the sailors a handicap if this is done.

REDONDO SHOOT.

RETURN SAILOR MATCH.

The rifle team of the U.S.S. Colorado and the Redondo team of the Southern California Rifles will have a return shoot at the Redondo rifle range, beginning at 10 o'clock this morning and continuing until 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Three sets of matches are arranged, including ten shots off-hand at 200 yards; ten shots kneeling or sitting at 300 yards, and ten shots prone at 600 yards.

The additional range of 600 yards will be available for today's match, and the new distance is expected to add interest to the shoot.

The Redondo aggregation is supplied with 30-40 Winchester military rifles, and the landsmen hope to reverse the scores of a former match two weeks ago, when the sailors won by a safe margin.

Refreshments and lunch will be served to the marksmen by the members of the home team.

Members of the Colorado team are: Capt. D. C. McDougal, Lieut. R. M. Griswald, Capt. M. Dristrop, Capt. J. Kortnick, Corp. K. Goodman, Corp. J. L. Johnson, Coxswain C. Perry, Seaman J. Farrell, Seaman L. J. Walker, Private C. T. Slater. L. J. Norman is captain of the Redondo club, with the following members: L. J. Weddington, R. J. Lechner, O. M. Payne, J. Rush, H. Norton, W. E. Sturgis, C. M. Breeze, F. G. Thompson, W. Feeder.

ROLLER MATCHED AGAINST GOTCH.

TWO GREATEST WRESTLERS TO MEET IN JULY.

Seattle Man Has Never Been Beaten and Has Defeated Fred Beell Twice—The Match With the Champion to Take Place July 1. Game Promises Big Revival.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The next big event in American wrestling will bring together Frank Gotch and Dr. B. F. Roller, the latter a Seattle man, who has vanquished all comers to date, including, at one time, the present champion, Gotch.

The match is to take place in Seattle about July 1, and unusual interest is attached to the affair by reason of the fact that Roller has fully demonstrated that he at least knows how to wrestle, no matter what public opinion may have to say concerning the methods of what has come to be known in sporting circles as "the wrestling trust."

Here at home Roller has a big following, but at that he has never been able to secure recognition in some of the papers. This has been due, in part, to the fact that the wrestling game has been worked often and successfully in the State of Washington, and the tear-off has always left some of its devotees poorer but wiser men, and the general public has grown skeptical of the game.

Roller has been identified with men who have not shed luster on the sport in the past, and this has added to his embarrassment. But Seattle is eager for the match with Gotch, and he will have a big house and a noisy greeting when he makes his appearance on that night. Just now Roller is visiting his mother in Illinois. He is scheduled to appear at a benefit here on June 15, and after that he will go into training for the match of his life.

BEGAN EARLY.

"I have wrestled since I was 5 years old, and have never been thrown, except by my brothers," said Dr. Roller, speaking of his probable match with Gotch.

"I will give Gotch the match of his life, and I guarantee that if I go down I will be looking at the skylights, not down at the mat like Hackenschmidt. I will go into strict training for all comers. I'm out after the championship, and will make a hard fight for it."

Dr. Benjamin Franklin Roller was born in Newman, Ill., thirty-one years ago. He graduated from De Pauw University in '98 and also put in a term at Green Castle, Ind. From there he went to the University of Pennsylvania, where he distinguished himself both in scholarship and athletics. For three years he was president of his class and won the highest honors of his term—the Sanders obstetric prize. While there he compiled a work on anesthetics in coöperation with Dr. J. C. Hirst.

He went to Seattle four years ago,

NORTHWEST.

MULTNOMAH TAKES HONORS.

ANNUAL PACIFIC COAST MEET HELD AT PORTLAND.

Lanagan Attempts to Break Record for the Pole Vault, but Fails. Other Events Are Well Contested but no Phenomenal Work Is Done. Great Finish in the Mile.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

PORTLAND, June 6.—The Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club won the field and track meet of the Pacific Northwest Amateur Association today, taking 53 points. The University of Oregon was its nearest competitor, with 23 points; Olympic of San Francisco, third, with 19, and Seattle fourth with 17.

While Multnomah's athletes accredited themselves in good shape, it is only fair to state that the predominance of the local club's entries had much to do with the result. There were no records broken today; only one attempt was made. This was by Lanagan, of the Olympics, who went after the Northwest record in the pole vault. Lanagan's best performance today was 11 feet.

A curious incident in connection with Lanagan's attempt was that, just as he failed, a telegram was read announcing that A. C. Gilbert of Yale, who is a Multnomah man, and who holds the P.N.A. record for the pole vault, had just broken the world's record at Philadelphia.

The sensation of the afternoon was the finish in the mile run. Devolt of Multnomah, and Clarke of the Seattle Athletic Club, were so close together that both carried the tape with them. The judges were first inclined to declare a dead heat, and it was only after fifteen minutes' discussion that it was finally decided to award the race to Devolt.

Price of the Tacoma High School made a brilliant showing in the 220-yard hurdles, and it was unfortunate that one of his competitors knocked a hurdle under his feet and cut his ankle. The Tacoma boy, notwithstanding he was thrown out of his stride, secured second place in the event.

The summary follows:

Summary:

The 100-yard dash—First heat, Forrest Smithson (Multnomah A. C.,) first; Huston (University of Oregon,) second; Malcomsen (Seattle A. C.,) third; time 10s. Second heat—Gerhardt (Olympic Club,) first; Martin (Multnomah Club,) second; Moon (University of Oregon,) third; time 10 1-5s. Final heat—Huston, first; Smithson, second; Gerhardt, third; time 10 1-5s.

The 880-yard dash—Glarner (Olympic Club,) first; Devolt (Multnomah,) second; Gammie (Multnomah,) third; time 2m. 4s.

Shot put—Wolf (Multnomah,) 41ft. 11in.; Philbrook (Multnomah,) 40ft. ½in.; Lonsbury (Multnomah,) 28ft.

Mile run—Devolt (Multnomah,) first; Clark (Seattle A. C.,) second; Dorris (Lafayette, Or., High School,) third; time 4m. 39s.

MATINEE.

FINE CARD OF SULKY RACES.

Romeo and Hazel Kinney in Sensational Finish.

Salt Lake Horses Do Well in Several Events.

Buck and Alesandra Show Class in Brushes.

Coming down the stretch, hooked up like a team in the final heat of the free-for-all trot, Romeo and Hazel Kinney furnished the sensational finish for the day at the matinée races of the Los Angeles Driving Club held at Agricultural Park yesterday. During that grueling final quarter, first one and then the other would poke its head in front, and at the eighth pole it was either horse's race. From there to the wire, Romeo proved slightly the better stayer, and won a great race by less than half a length.

The card had filled exceptionally well, considering that so many light harness cracks have already been shipped to eastern and other circuits. Five horses faced the starter in both the 2:30 pace and the 2:40 trot, while three fast trotters went in the free-for-all. The 2:15 pace was practically a match race between the gray ghost, Henry N., and the Salt Lake Driving Club representative, Joe McGregor, the visitor having the best of the argument through the many breaks of the Henderson horse. The 2:20 pace, by reason of the scratching of Josh S., had only two starters, and the scratching of Glennetta in the 2:20 trot left three to go in this event. The winners of these two races, Buck and Alesandra, showed real class, and will give a good account of themselves in fair company anywhere.

Another Salt Lake horse, Escoboda, showed a nice turn of speed in spots, but broke so often that he was nearly distanced in the final heat of the 2:20 trot, won by Alesandra. The steadiness of Buck, owned by W. C. Morris and driven by W. A. Clark, Jr., in the 2:20 pace, which he won, was one of the surprises of the afternoon, as this was the first time that this horse had been asked to race at the pacing gait, being formerly a trotter. He acquitted himself admirably, never making a skip in either heat, and will probably make a better pacer than trotter. Mr. Miller of the Denver Driving Club was another visitor who scored a victory during the day, although driving a local horse, by winning the 2:20 trot with W. C. Morris's Alesandra.

Owing to the cutting up of the track at the automobile races held at Agricultural Park a week ago, the time made in some of the events was not quite as fast as usual, the fastest heat of the day, the final of the free-for-all, being trotted in 2:14. Notwithstanding the overhanging clouds, a good crowd filled the stand, and many carriages were lined up along the infield fence on both sides of the timers' stand.

John W. Snowden, vice-president of the Los Angeles Driving Club, was again seen in the judges' stand, having just returned from a long visit in Imperial Valley. He will take an active part in promoting interest in local harness racing at the fall meetings.

It has not yet been decided whether there will be further matinées held before fall. This will be determined at a meeting of the driving club directors to be held next Wednesday. There will be a two days' harness meeting at San Bernardino, July 3 and 4, at which a number of the local horses will be seen in action against those of San Bernardino, Riverside, Santa Ana, and other Southern California towns.

Following is a full summary of the races:

Pacing, 2:30 class, two in three heats:

Maxine, b.m., Lowe, 1, 1.
Gray Bess, gr.m., Went, 3, 2.
Bud B., b.g., Bricker, 2, 3.
Rex, b.g., Moore, 4, 4.
Lady Sefton, b.m., Walker, 5, distanced.
Time, 2:31, 2:31.

Bud B., on the pole, and Gray Bess, next to him, broke before going the first quarter, allowing Rex to take the lead in the first heat. He stayed in front to the last quarter, where he broke, and Maxine assumed command, winning easily by ten lengths from Bud B. Gray Bess snatched third place from Rex in the last stride. Lady Sefton's race was a joke.

In the second and final heat, Maxine assumed command at once, leading all the way. Bud B., although breaking constantly, stayed in close attendance throughout, but, breaking again an eighth from the wire, was passed by Gray Bess in the closing strides. Maxine won, pulled almost to a walk, with Gray Bess a length in front of Bud B. Lady Sefton, palpably unfit, was distanced in this heat.

Trotting, 2:40 class, two in three heats:

Drummer Boy, b.g., Glascock, 1, 1.
Crisis, br.h., Pounder, 2, 2.
Bonnie Crocket, b.m., Pierce, 4, 3.
Impetuoso, b.m., Delorey, 3, 4.
Signet, blk. g., Williams, 5, 5.
Time, 2:38, 2:29.

In the first heat, Drummer Boy and Crisis were the only two steady horses in the race, the balance breaking the very first quarter, and alternately thereafter. It was close between the leaders until the middle of the stretch, where Drummer Boy drew away and won an easy race by five lengths. Impetuoso, which finished third, might have been a contender, but lost a shoe at the start.

The last heat was merely an exercise trot for Drummer Boy, who led all the way. He completely outclassed those opposed to him, and Crisis was as much the best of the remainder. There was a semblance of a brush between them at the head of the stretch, Glascock allowing Crisis to come up close, but Drummer Boy easily drew away and won by several lengths. The other three were practically beaten off.

Free-for-all trot:

Romeo, s.h., Garland, 1, 1.
Hazel Kinney, b.g., Reynolds, 2, 2.
Gold Nut, b.m., Williams, 3, 3.
Time, 2:16, 2:14.

Hazel Kinney took the lead after the first quarter in the first heat, Romeo moving up to her at the half, and the two going around the far turn like a team. From there on, Romeo gradually drew away, Hazel breaking at the eighth, and Romeo winning easily by three lengths. Gold Nut came fast at the end and was going faster than the leaders, when too late.

The second and final heat was a repetition of the first up to the head of TROUBLES CONTINUE.

ONE IN DITCH, OTHER ON WAY.

Contestants in World Race Have Hard Time.

Despite Delay, American Car Is Making Progress.

On Uninhabited Plain, Crew Camps Three Days.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NIKOLSK, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Troubles of the contestants in the New York to Paris automobile race continue unabated. Members of the crews of both the American and German cars in the last week have had more thrills than are accorded to explorers usually in like length of time.

It appears the American car has resumed its journey after nearly a week of trials and tribulations, but at last reports the German car, Protos, lay overturned in a gully near the railroad track.

The Thomas left Pogranitchnaya last Friday via an unballasted railroad track. About fifteen miles out of town the driving gear was stripped off. Fortunately the accident happened near a crossing and the automobile was got off the track before a train approached.

It fell to the lot of George Schuster, driver of the car, to go back for a new gear. He had to walk to Pogranitchnaya in a blazing sun. Arriving there he learned the nearest point at which he could get supplies was Harbin. He took the first train there.

Returning to Pogranitchnaya, he enlisted the aid of the railway officials, who sent him to the scene of the breakdown on a hand car. Coolies were detailed to pump the hand car.

Schuster was gone three days. Meanwhile the stranded automobilists had made camp as best they could. A tent was thrown together by employing pieces of canvas and rubber coats and old railroad ties. Cooking utensils were limited to tomato cans.

The camp was in an uninhabited plain surrounded by mountains. At night a melancholy frog chorus, accompanied by howls of wolves in the mountains, did a little to relieve the loneliness. Added to this disquietude, soldiers from Pogranitchnaya appeared in camp and ordered the fire extinguished, saying it was too good a mark for the Hunhuses.

Thunder storms one day and hailstorms the next rendered the patchwork tent of little benefit. To cap the climax, all baggage save overcoats, tooth brushes and an extra pair of socks around had been sent on to Harbin by train.

When Schuster got back with the gear he learned the officials had forbidden the use of the railway tracks. The car seemed bottled up.

Neuville, the Matin correspondent, appealed to Gen. Horvatt at Harbin, who agreed to allow the use of the tracks if the racers carried a railway official along.

To this end the crew agreed and started on their way again on Wednesday. A hand car followed, carrying a telegrapher, coolies and planks to bridge over unballasted places.

When forbidden the track the Protos took to the road. It had not gone far when it slid off into a gulch and upset. None of the crew were hurt.

ARRIVES BY RAIL.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS—P.M.]

ST. PETERSBURG, June 6.—Bourcier St. Chaffrey, the conductor of the French car in the New York-to-Paris automobile race, arrived here today by rail on his way to Paris. He left his car at Vladivostok.

GREAT PERFORMANCE.

MURDOCK'S TRIP BEST OF YEAR.

ARRIVAL IN NEW YORK CREATES GREAT INTEREST.

At the Wheel Himself the Whole Journey, He Never Drove at Night or on Sunday, and Yet Completed Trip in Thirty-two Days—Entire Log of Run.

The recent trip of J. M. Murdock from Pasadena to New York in thirty-two and a half days elapsed time, and twenty-five and a half days' running time, is the most remarkable performance of the year in the automobile world. His arrival in New York created more interest than anything of like nature since the arrival of the Franklin cross-continent record-breaker. Incidentally Mr. Murdock also broke a record, the transcontinental one for one man driving. The Franklin record was made by crews of drivers.

Perhaps the most remarkable feature was that Mr. Murdock had only one puncture on the whole trip. This occurred in Death Valley. Two sets of tires were used.

The car, a regular thirty-horse power Packard, is of the seven-passenger model, and seven people were carried all the time. These were Mr. and Mrs. Murdock, their daughters, Lillian, 16 years old, and Alice, 14 years old; their son, J. M. Murdock, Jr., 10 years old, a mechanic, Philip de May, and for part of the trip L. L. Whitman and for the rest, P. W. Spalding.

Mr. Murdock used 540 gallons of gasoline for the trip of 3692.8 miles. He lost track of the amount of lubricating oil. On the casualty list there was but one entry, a dog run over in Death Valley. None of the passengers was sick a day.

The log of the trip from Pasadena to New York is as follows: April 24, Garlic Lake, 172 miles; April 25, Resting Spring, Cal., 67 miles; April 26, Sunday; April 27, Goldfield, 174 miles; April 28, Stone Cabin, Nev., 84 miles; April 29, Ely, Nev., 156 miles; April 30, Monticello, 167 miles; May 1, Kelton, Nev., 84 miles; May 2, Ogden, Utah, 98 miles; May 3, Sunday; May 4, Evanston, Wyo., 85 miles; May 5, rain; May 6, Granger, Wyo., 103 miles; May 7, Wamsutter, 125 miles; May 8, Rock River, Wyo., 135 miles; May 9, Cheyenne, 114 miles; May 10, Sunday; May 11, North Platte, Neb., 241 miles; May 12, Columbus, Neb., 235 miles; May 13, Dennison, Iowa, 172 miles; May 14, State Center, Iowa, 134 miles; May 15, Clinton, 161 miles; May 16, Chicago, 141 miles; May 17, Sunday; May 18, Goshen, 163 miles; May 19, Toledo, 150 miles; May 20, Warren, 180 miles; May 21, Pittsburgh, 75 miles; May 22, Johnstown, 79 miles; May 23, home; May 24, Sunday; May 25, Philadelphia, 244 miles; May 26, New York, 104 miles.

Arrival in New York of J. M. Murdock and Family, who started from Pasadena on April 24, and drove across the continent in twenty-five and a half days of actual running time.

MOTORCYCLE GOES UP.

Bairdstown Hill Conquered by Two-Cylinder Machine, Although Surface Is Bad.

The first motorcycle to make the ascent of the now famous Bairdstown Hill is a two-cylinder Merkel, ridden by J. F. Merkel of Milwaukee, the maker of the machine.

Mr. Merkel was showing his machine to a party of local motorists, when he was asked if he had climbed the Bairdstown hill. The surface dirt is so loose now that it was not thought a motorcycle had a chance to get up, but Mr. Merkel said he never saw a hill yet he wouldn't tackle, so the party started for the test, Mr. Merkel on his machine and the motorists in an auto.

The motorcycle proved a surprise. It not only went up the grade, which has proved the Waterloo of many an auto, but hit the top going fully twenty-miles an hour. The young boy who lives on the hill and keeps tab on everybody who attempts to climb it, said several motorcycles had tried, but this was the first to succeed.

The machine was geared at three to one, not an especially good gearing for hill-climbing purposes.

PLEASURE AND BUSINESS.

Paul Renton Leaves for San Francisco Where He Will Open Agency. Will Visit Yosemite.

Paul A. Renton and Joseph Molczer of this city left Saturday morning in a Great Smith roadster for San Francisco. They will visit the Yosemite before their return, and will be absent about two weeks. They will travel over the coast route to San Francisco, and will journey leisurely. Mr. Renton expects to open an agency for Great Smith cars in San Francisco. He is the State agent.

Equipped with the necessities for an extended journey, the car will be sent over the roads at only a fair pace on the up trip. The tourists plan to return by the valley route. They will pick out what Renton believes is an ideal tour, and will take pictures of the beauty spots along the way.

OMNIBUS IN MEXICO.

Roomy Passenger Car Finishes First Month's Trial and Makes Good. Makes Regular Trips.

One of the first automobile omnibuses to be put into commission by the Mexico City Cab and Omnibus Company has just completed its trial month. Officials and the public of the Mexican capital are much pleased with the performance of the car. The omnibus is the first of its kind to enter Mexico.

The big machine was started on a regular schedule from the Zocalo to the Colonia Roma on Friday, April 10. The route is along the San Francisco, Avenida Jaurez, the Paseo and other streets on which there are no street cars. The omnibus seats thirty passengers, and is equipped with drop windows like an electric street car.

It is a 15-horse-power Panhard chassis, with a body twenty-five feet in length, twelve feet high, and eight feet wide. Motor cabs are to be operated by the company later.

NEW AUTO LINE OPEN.

From Mojave to Lone Pine in Nine Hours Is Schedule for One Hundred and Thirty Miles.

From Mojave to Lone Pine, in Inyo county, in nine hours, with one hour at Little Lake for dinner, is the schedule of a new auto stage line, which has just started in business. The distance is about 130 miles. At present two Pierce-Arrow machines are being used, and the drivers make three trips a week.

The auto line is the property of A. F. Hay and E. F. Carter, the latter acting as manager. The machines leave each end of the line on Sundays, Tuesdays and Thursdays at 8 o'clock, arriving at their destination at 6 o'clock. It is the intention of the management to purchase more machines and make daily trips. The fare is $15 for the trip.

Just now the traffic is heavy, and it is expected that there will be a great deal of traffic over the auto line until the new road is completed.

BOOSTING FOR GOOD ROADS.

People of San Bernardino Have Right Idea, Says Forsythe—Bonds Likely to Carry.

"The people of San Bernardino have the right idea," said R. L. Forsythe, the local Auburn agent, yesterday. "I made the run out in my car last week, and was delighted to see how aroused the people are over better streets and improved roads. No matter whether a man owns a motor car or not, he is interested in the improvement of the streets. The people are wearing buttons and holding meetings to boost the improvement of streets and roads in and near San Bernardino. There will be a bond election soon, and I think at least $300,000 will be expended on the streets.

"The road from San Bernardino to Los Angeles is not in any too good shape. It is badly cut up in places, and much improving is needed.

"The roads in the immediate neighborhood of San Bernardino are rough and dusty, and the money could be expended to a good advantage."

TWO-CYLINDER TAXICAB.

Auto Vehicle Company Complete Handsome Model Passenger Cab Which Is Attractive.

Preparing to supply the demand for taxicabs the Auto Vehicle Company has completed a handsome model two-cylinder cab, which appeared on the streets for the first time yesterday. The car was built entirely at the local factory, and is nobby and stylish. It is adapted for use on the paved streets.

When the taxicabs began to become popular in the East, the local concern designed the model which has just been finished. The cab will carry four passengers, is of twenty-four-horsepower, and has speed enough for city travel, but is also easily controlled.

The tourist taxicab is finished with a Brewster-green body, and running gears of lake maroon. It has a wheel base of 102 inches. The price of the cab is not prohibitive, and there is every likelihood that a ready market for the car will be found here in Los Angeles.

CALL OF YOSEMITE.

Motor Cars Will Carry Hundreds of Visitors from Los Angeles to Beautiful Valley.

This week will see many touring parties leaving for the Yosemite Valley. Already the inrush of visitors is on and automobiles are being prepared for the interesting journey. Hugh McDowell and family will be among the first to leave. They will start Tuesday morning in a two-cylinder Tourist. McDowell will drive to Merced, where he will leave his car.

Almost all those who have planned to visit the valley expect to drive only as far as Merced, as the tolls along the roads beyond are excessive. Parties who have returned tell of being obliged to pay $70 for tolls over the roads approaching the Yosemite. The auto is not welcomed in the valley, and the advice to those who are planning to see the wonders of the natural park is that they leave their cars at some small town this side of the toll roads.

H. E. Woolner and family have returned from a few weeks spent among the beauties of Yosemite. The party, besides Mr. Woolner, consisted of Mrs. Woolner, Mrs. M. N. Newmark, Miss Newmark and her brother, Roy Newmark. They made the journey in Mr. Newmark's four-cylinder Great Smith touring car.

The popularity of the Yosemite trip is attested by the scores of others who are planning to make the journey this year. Leon T. Shettler expects to leave in a short time with a party. Two weeks will be spent in the valley. On his return H. O. Harrison plans to make the trip.

BLOW HARD ON TIRES.

When Six Hundred-Pound Pressure Mark Is Reached Pneumatic Casing Fails to Explode.

An experiment recently conducted by the testing department of the Pennsylvania Rubber Company will be of interest to automobile men. A tire was mounted on an ordinary clincher rim, and then subjected to a constantly-rising pressure until the gauge showed 600 pounds to the square inch. At this pressure a slight expansion of the tire was noticed, while the walls were so hard that they resounded like wood to the touch.

Showing that a well-constructed pneumatic tire will stand a pressure of 600 pounds, the bond of the casing was blown out of the clinch of the rim for about six inches. This test is contrary to the ideas of many motorists who fear that if they blow their tires beyond a certain pressure they are apt to cause a blowout.

When examined the walls of the tire were found to be slightly stretched, as a result of the severe experiment, but neither the fabric nor the rubber were broken. Could the tire have been held to the rim an even higher pressure would have been used. It is the opinion of an expert that a pressure of from 1200 to 2000 pounds can be applied to a tire without the tire reaching the bursting point.

WHY NOT?

ROAD RACE ON LOCAL COURSE?

SUCCESS OF PORTLAND POINTS POSSIBILITY.

In Southern California There Are at Least Six Locations Where a Circuit Longer Than Vanderbilt Cup Course Could Be Provided at Remarkably Small Expense.

The automobile races on the road at Portland on June 5 brings again to the attention of the motorists of Southern California the possibility of such racing in Southern California.

The Southwest was, of course, the first part of the West to run an actual automobile road race in the case of the 100-mile contest of August 15, 1906, from this city to North Baldy Peak, originated and carried out by Col. F. C. Fenner, the mining man, who won the race with his White runabout driven by Capt. H. D. Ryus.

For five years past C. F. Gates and others have agitated a road race for Southern California like the Vanderbilt Cup event, but all the time the cry has been that we have no proper roads.

Santa Cruz has found roads in that county to hold a road race and other parts of the country like Denver have held road races, so that Los Angeles has successful examples before her on this matter. Surely so large an area as Los Angeles county can contain a variety of courses for this kind of racing, which is the best real test of automobiles.

When Southern California does conduct one of these big cup races, the contest should be for 250 miles and open to the world, following the international rules and customs in conducting the event, which should be under the sanction and support of both the national body and the Automobile Club of Southern California.

Persons interested have always favored a course far enough away from Los Angeles city to avoid trolley crossings and big crowds and if possible, without any railroad grade crossings. One such course is in the Elsinore Valley with Temecula at one corner and Elsinore at another and probably San Jacinto as the third corner of a triangle.

Another course that would be acceptable would be with start near Riverside, using the roads on the mesa beyond Box Springs Mountain grade, going to Hemet and back, returning possibly through Elsinore.

These Riverside county courses would each be longer than the Vanderbilt and have easier turns and corners.

In Kern county there have been found ideal courses for automobile road racing, but far from Los Angeles or any town, where there are no trolley or railroad lines. One of these courses is on the great Tejon ranch, and mostly composed of natural roads. Another to the north of Bakersfield, is on the great mesa north of the oil fields, where a thirty-mile circuit could be laid out so that the whole course could be seen from one spot.

Delano, at the north line of Kern county, is about thirty-two miles from Bakersfield, with a very smooth road already there, on which can be maintained safely at present an average speed of forty miles. With a start and finish just at the edge of the oil fields, some three miles north of the river and about four miles out of Bakersfield, at a point reached by the Southern Pacific on two sides, the main valley line and the oil-field branch, the course could be laid out over a twenty-five or thirty-mile circuit, using more than half of the present road, and the rest made of up of trails of little used roads. A few thousand dollars spent in improving the road would supply the best possible course in America for these international races. It could be reached by the Santa Fe line as well as the Southern Pacific and would be handy to all Southern California and the central part of the State.

Near Fresno are natural courses for one of these big events. All that is necessary to get the roads in shape is some systematic road work, managed by a business man, instead of tax eaters.

Coming near home for a course, an ideal one could be laid out in the San Fernando Valley, by making a few miles of new roads. Such a course could be built almost entirely from virgin soil at an expense almost unbelievably inexpensive. For less than $2000 a mile a decomposed granite surface could be applied to the graded form of a road, and if no heavy vehicles were allowed upon it the road would remain good and fast. Such road as this has been built by E. W. Scripps in San Diego county at his own expense and has stood several years of constant use without showing any injury.

If a course in the San Fernando Valley was decided upon a fifteen-mile course, which is longer than either the Savannah or the Portland course, could be laid out, using present roads part of which are already fast and good. But there would be some railroad crossings, which would necessitate slowing down for each and careful flagging.

A year or more ago when the Vanderbilt cup committee was looking for a course, such a route was proposed and examined by Capt. Ryus and other Los Angeles enthusiasts, and the matter was then dropped.

Out in the San Gabriel Valley there is a checkerboard of parallel roads and south of Los Angeles toward the ocean is another big checkerboard of parallel roads running both ways. On either of these great squares of valley courses could be chosen, corners trimmed off and road surface smoothed in a short time.

If a great road race was decided upon by Los Angeles civic bodies, to advertise Southern California, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the Automobile Club of Southern California and the Auto Dealers' Association, could raise enough money in an afternoon to put the great event through with flying colors. The Governor would probably be as enthusiastic as was the Governor of Georgia and the whole thing would go through with as much success as our fiestas do, when we decide to have one.

GOSSIP ALONG GASOLINE ROW.

The Renton-Williams Motor Car Company report the following sales to date: W. B. Scott, fully equipped Great Smith touring car; R. T. Harris, Santa Ana, touring car; Joseph Molczer, touring car; W. D. Woolridge, Escondido, Great Smith touring car.

Leon T. Shettler and Frederic Pabst enjoyed an automobile tour last week around the roads which follow the Kite track. They left Los Angeles Thursday night and returned Friday evening.

H. O. Harrison, who went to Portland a week ago to drive in the road races there, will visit the East before returning to Los Angeles. He will be absent about ten days longer.

E. A. Huene, formerly of New York, will open an agency for Corbin cars in this city. He will handle both air and water-cooled cars and expects a shipment about June 15. He has already sold cars to Richard Rice of No. 2215 West Twenty-fourth street, and to Harry Norhis of Lordsburg.

The Western Motor Car Company reports the following sales for the past week: Buick touring cars to the Home Telephone Company; P. J. Weisel of Anaheim; Ewing Bros., Orange. The last of the season's Packards was delivered to Harvey Cox.

There has been such a demand for the new four-cylinder Buick runabouts that the Western Motor Car Company has disposed of its demonstrator, and prospective purchasers must wait around the salesroom until some owner comes in if they desire to see the little car. Ten of these cars are on the road and Manager Earle Anthony says he has sixteen orders in advance.

George Boland, general sales manager for the Auburn Motor Car Company, who is here visiting R. L. Forsyht, the Southern California representative, says the demand for roadsters this year has been greater than any of the factories had prepared for. The Auburn company is almost entirely sold out of roadsters, and but five more will be received in Los Angeles.

A. P. Worthington of the firm of Oller & Worthington, returned yesterday from New York.

Guy West made the run to Bakersfield Friday in his Cadillac.

Ralph Hamlin has sold Franklin cars to the following named persons: A. G. Hutchins, a runabout; William Mackie of this city and S. E. Patterson of San Diego, touring cars.

Thomas O. Fewell has placed an Auburn in the stage service between San Diego and Warner Hot Springs. The car has many stiff grades to top but is showing up in good style, according to a letter received from Mr. Fewell.

BEATS HORSE RECORD.

Record Run of a Motor Car Rouses Interest of Man Who Made Same Trip Once in Twenty Days.

R. L. Forsythe, the local Auburn agent, received a peculiar letter from the vicinity of Tulare last week. A "live one" wrote as follows:

"Mr. Auburn agent: I just heard about your Auburn which went from San Francisco to Los Angeles in twenty hours. That was certainly buzzing some. Thirty years ago I drove a horse down in twenty days and I thought I was moving. Twenty hours beats my record and after a long talk with my old lady we have decided to buy one of these up-to-date motor cars if you will teach my boy to run it as easy as he drives a horse."

Mr. Forsythe will undertake to teach the boy if he will come to Los Angeles.

Luxurious 'Buses.

The most luxurious motor omnibuses in the world are now running in London. They have no outside accommodations, but inside the cars are nine large and comfortable armchairs. There are electric lights and heating apparatus—yet the fare is only sixpence.

Another Party of Transcontinental Motorists.

J. B. Andrews, Mrs. Andrews and Harvey Ruth of Anaheim, who have just left Los Angeles for Fargo, N. D., in a two-cylinder Buick.

"(3.) A long-distance touring car contest.

"(4.) A hill-climbing contest."

The announcement contained absolutely no reference to the Vanderbilt cup, nor to the action of A.A.A. on the previous day, and no mention was made of the circuit on which the race will be run.

The last move in the struggle was when Thomas Henderson, president of the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, authorized yesterday a statement of the position of his association. He supported the A.A.A. and the Vanderbilt Cup Commission. He was in attendance at the meeting of the racing board of the A.A.A. when it passed its now famous set of resolutions, and his action appears to array the manufacturers on the side of the A.A.A.

Nevertheless, it is prophesied freely that all of the importers and many of the best-known American makers will brave the wrath of the A.A.A. and give their support to the A.C.A., if the latter body promotes a suitable international contest.

OFF ON LONG RUN.

INTO UNKNOWN IN MOTOR CAR.

LOS ANGELES PARTY STARTS FOR FARGO.

As Far as Portland, Route to Be Traversed Is Known to Motorists, but Beyond There Are Roads Never Touched by an Automobile Tire. Will Use Small Car.

Hardly a day passes that a party of Los Angeles motorists do not start on a long tour which a few years ago would have been considered little less than marvelous. Friday J. B. Andrews, with Mrs. Andrews and Harvey Ruth of Anaheim, left here in a two-cylinder Buick to make the long run to Fargo, N. D.

While long tours are not uncommon, this party will be pioneers over a large territory, and will travel roads which will feel the surface of an automobile tire for the first time. Although the route will lead through a country of rough mountains and sandy road, Mr. Andrews has confidence in his little car.

"If larger cars can make these long tours," said Mr. Andrews, "there is no reason why I should not do the same with my little one. I know there will be hard hills to climb, but I have climbed hard hills before, and will be prepared for the hardest kind of a trip."

Mr. Andrews will drive the car. The route will lead from here over the coast road to San Francisco. Stops will be made wherever the party fancies, a full outfit having been taken for any emergency. The car carries all the necessary tools and parts for such a long run, with extra tires and a reserve gasoline tank.

The hardest part of the journey will be after leaving San Francisco. From there the route will lead through Portland and Spokane. This will not be the first car to make the run north to Portland, but from there to Fargo many strange roads will be seen.

First Vanderbilt Entry.

The first entry in the 1908 Vanderbilt Cup race has been recorded. A six-cylinder Mora is the candidate for first honors. The car was entered by W. W. Burke, and the signed entry blank was accompanied by a check for $500. The Mora factory is located at Newark, N. Y., and the present entry marks an epoch in the history of the concern, which is entering a great road race for the first time. A Mora car that made a perfect score in the sealed bonnet contest of the A.C.A. last year ran for several thousand more miles wihtout having the seals removed.

First Arrest for Speeding.

The first arrest for speeding an automobile in the country, so far as known, occurred in New York City on May 30, 1899, when the driver of a public electric hansom was held for rounding a busy corner "at the fearful speed of twelve miles an hour," to quote a newspaper of that date.

MATINEE RACES.

the stretch, where Hazel Kinney and Romeo hooked up like a team. It was a fierce duel down the stretch, but, notwithstanding the efforts of Driver Reynolds, Romeo drew away and won a splendid race by half a length. Gold Nut was again close up, from his usual slow beginning.

Pacing, 2:15 class, two in three heats:

Joe McGregor, b. h.(Williams)	1	1
Henry N., Gr.g. (Delorey)	2	2

Time—2:17, 2:16.

The gray horse Henry N. led at half the distance in the first heat, with the Salt Lake horse, Joe McGregor, only a neck behind. Around the turn they swept, and it looked like a hard fight, but the gray ghost went up in the air just before reaching the three-quarter pole and could never make up the ground, finishing three lengths behind Joe McGregor.

They raced as a team for three-quarters of a mile in the second and final heat, but Henry N. was evidently under pressure with Joe McGregor going easy. Just before entering the stretch, the latter drew away fast, and coming along nicely, won by three open lengths. The Salt Lake representative showed steadiness and a fine burst of speed throughout, and was well driven by Frank Williams.

Pacing, 2:20 class, two in three heats:

Buck, b.g. (W. A. Clark, Jr.)	1	1
Isabella, s.ém. (P. B. Lowe)	2	2

Time—2:18, 2:18.

It was a beautiful race, between the two horses in the first heat of this race, up to the three-quarter pole, where Buck gradually wore Isabella down and assumed the lead. W. C. Morris's horse pulled away rapidly going down the stretch, and won easily at the end. This was Buck's maiden race at the racking gait, being formerly a trotter, and he made good I sensational manner, never coming near a break at any time.

Buck, with W. A. Clark, Jr., driving, made a runaway race of the final heat. He took the track at once, and drawing further away at every stride, won by over one hundred yards. Lowe's horse, Isabella, although clearly outpaced all the way, lost much ground through a bad break after passing the half-mile pole, or would have been closer up.

Trotting, 2:20 class, two in three heats:

Alesandra, b.h., (Miller)	1	1
Escoboda, b.h., (Williams)	2	2
Sadie McKinney, br. m. (Garland)	3	3

Time—2:19, 2:17.

Alesandra trotted a splendid race in the first heat, going at an even, steady gait throughout. Momentarily threatened by Sadie McKinney at the half, and again by Escoboda at the three-quarters, he drew away easily both ties under a skillful drive by Miller of the Denver Driving Club, and won easily by three lengths. Sadie McGregor broke at the far turn and Escoboda ran all the last eighth in an effort to keep up to the flying leader.

Sadie McKinney broke so badly on the first turn in the second and final heat that she fell an eighth of a mile behind, leaving Alesandra and Escoboda to fight it out. The latter kept close to the Morris horse to the far turn, where he went to a bad break, leaving Alesandra to come home alone. There was nearly an eighth of a mile between each horse at the finish.

Many Municipal Cars.

Milwaukee has gone in rather heavily for motor vehicles for the use of its various city departments in addition to being one of the first cities in America to have its postoffice institute an automobile mail collection service. The Council has recently decided to purchase a motor-driven Black Maria, and it has been recommended that a car be purchased for the use of the police department telegraph alarm system. The chief of the fire department, the head of the police force, the Park Superintendent and the Sheriff of Milwaukee county all have official automobiles, and the city is ready to adopt motor-driven fire apparatus as soon as a reliable type of vehicle can prove its ability to replace the horses.

Make Fast Run.

B. S. Kerby's Great Smith touring car made a fast run from San Diego the early part of the week, coming over the coast route in 6h. 20m. The car carried four people and was driven by William Cook. There were several stops en route, but none of long duration. In the car besides Cook was Mr. Kerby, A. B. Schular and W. H. Wilson.

ROLLER MATCHED.

where he has an extensive practice.

In Seattle Dr Roller has participated in many wrestling matches and has always come out a winner. His first professional match was with Jack Carkeek, then champion heavyweight of England, Canada and Australia, and who was for several years champion of the world. He brought Carkeek to the mat twice in seventeen minutes.

Gotch then challenged Roller and undertook to throw him twice in an hour for $1000. The match was made for $500, the winner to take 75 per cent. of the gate receipts. Gotch failed to throw him, and never even got him to a bridge.

His next match was with Emil Klank. The bout lasted but twenty monutes, two falls in favor of Roller being recorded in that time.

Victor McLaglan of South Africa was Roller's next opponent. He was the most powerfully built man Roller had ever met. Again Roller won in less than forty minutes. Farmer Burns then threw down the gauntlet, and the Seattle man hal two falls out of him in less than an hour.

Jesse Westergaarde then came to the front. He is better known as "Doc" Rymer, and is at the present time on the road with Gotch. Roller says he was one of the toughest propositions he ever met. They had two matches and Roller put him on the mat for the second time in less than an hour in both bouts. Victor McLaglan sent another challenge to Roller and they met again. Roller won again in ten minutes.

CHAMPIONSHIP.

TENNIS HONORS ARE DIVIDED.

L. A. HIGH AND POLYTECHNIC BREAK EVEN.

Little Miss Browne of Polytechnic Is the Star in the Tournament for County Championship—All Matches Are Closely Contested and Excellent Work Results.

Polytechnic and L. A. High broke even in the final rounds of the Southern California Interscholastic tennis championships played on the U.S.C. courts yesterday, Ward Dawson, Miss Mary Brown and Smith of the former school annexing the ladies' singles and mixed doubles, and Ward Dawson and Charlie Rogers taking the men's singles and doubles event.

Agnes Yoch and Elsa Parker, representing Santa Ana, of the Orange High School League, won the ladies' doubles.

The matches, with the exception of the singles events, were all closely contested, and brought out the best playing seen on the 'varsity courts this year. Play began at 10 o'clock in the morning, with the rounds of the men's and ladies' singles. Little Mary Browne of Polytechnic displayed her unusual ability in the first match played with Mildred Taft of Hollywood, which she won in two straight sets, 6-2, 6-4. In the second match, Agnes Yoch of Santa Ana fell before the swift volleying and strong serving of the Polytechnic player, Mary Browne winning in two sets, 6-3, 6-2.

Ward Dawson had little trouble in retaining his championship honor in the men's singles, winning two matches in straight sets from Baker of Santa Ana by the score of 6-0, 6-1, and from Douglas of Hollywood in two sets, 6-2, 6-1. Dawson's serving was efficient during all his playing, and his work at the net proved too strong for the opposing players.

The men's doubles brought forth some great playing between Douglas and Ferguson of Hollywood and Dawson and Rogers of L. A. High. The Hollywood players took the preliminary match from Whelan and Baker of Santa Ana in two sets by superior team work, with a count of 6-4, 6-3. In the deciding match with the blue and white experts, Douglas and his team-mate rallied, and, after giving their opponents the first set at 6-3, took the second round by the score of 8-6. The L. A. players finally took the third set, 6-4, with Hollywood fighting for every point.

Polytechnic, L. A. High, Hollywood and Santa Ana entered teams in the ladies' doubles, with Mary Brown and Laura Nelson of Polytechnic and Agnes Yoch and Elsa Parker meeting in the finals. The play went to three sets, the Santa Ana players winning by determined team work, which overcame the handicap of individual starring by Mary Browne of "Poly." Miss Browne and Smith proved the stronger combination in the mixed doubles, easily defeating Mildred Taft and Ferguson of Hollywood in two sets, 6-1, 6-0.

Summary:

Ladies' singles—Mary Browne (Poly) beat Mildred Taft (Hollywood,) 6-2, 6-4; Mary Browne (Poly) beat Agnes Yoch (Santa Ana,) 6-3, 6-2.

Men's singles—Dawson (L. A.) beat Baker (Santa Ana,) 6-0, 6-1; Dawson (L. A.) beat Douglas (Hollywood,) 6-2, 6-1.

Ladies' doubles—Agnes Yoch and Elsa Parker (Santa Ana) beat Mildred Taft and Margaret Maple (Hollywood,) 3-6, 6-2, 6-4; Mary Browne and Laura Nelson (Poly) beat Dora Rogers and Corrine Stanton (L. A.,) 6-1, 6-4; Agnes Yoch and Elsa Parker (Santa Ana) beat Mary Browne and Laura Nelson (Poly,) 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

Mixed doubles—Mildred Taft and Ferguson (Hollywood) beat Elsa Parker and Whalen (Santa Ana,) 7-5, 6-2; Mary Browne and Smith (Poly) beat Mildred Taft and Ferguson (Hollywood,) 6-1, 6-0.

A 140-horse-power engine, using kerosene instead of gasoline, has proven successful for motorboats, after experiments by the British Admiralty.

The great annual race of the circuit of Ardennes has been fixed for August 12, and will take place at Bastogne instead of in the vicinity of Spa.

In a single week Berlin's new fire engine, which is propelled by an electric motor, covered 600 miles. So successful has it proved that others have been ordered.

BLASTS RIGHT OF WAY.

Electric Button, Pressed by Vanderbilt, Fires Heavy Charge of Giant Powder, Which Clears Way.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] When W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., pressed an electric button at Plainview this afternoon, a battery of thirty charges of giant powder was discharged, tearing up about fifty trees by the roots and hurling them high in the air along the right of way of the projected Long Island motor parkway—a booming inauguration of the construction of that forty-five-mile road for automobiles.

Mr. Vanderbilt, who is the president of the company, had previously turned the first spadeful of earth, and immediately after the roar of the explosion had died away, the quiet landscape lost its aspect of rustic repose and became a busy scene, overrun with 200 laberers, who rushed like ants into the breach with spades, stump-pullers and scoops, giving a realistic demonstration in advance of the rapidity with which the right of way will be cleared.

Vacation in Auto.

R. L. Forsythe has received a letter from Nathan W. Tarr, who is touring the State in an Auburn. Writing from Ballard, Cal., Mr. Tarr says he and his party are having a grand time. They carry a full camping outfit and are enjoying hunting and fishing in the mountains north of Santa Barbara. They will probably tour as far north as San Francisco, but have not outlined a course, going and stoping wherever they desire.

Rush for Taxicab Positions.

The announcement in The Times last Sunday that several taxicabs would be running on the streets of Los Angeles within a short time, resulted in a rush of chauffeurs to secure positions on the front seats of these cabs. The Western Motor Car Company has placed on file enough applications to run a service of over a hundred cabs. The men will wear uniforms in service. The cabs are now en route and should be here soon.

Motorists' Novelties.

Among the novelties of this season in motorists' wear are pongee silk dusters, so light in texture that they may be folded and carried in an ordinary coat pocket. Another is a waterproof coat with a leather lining, that is removable should the coat be too warm in summer.

PILGRIMS MOURN.

SANTA MONICA WINS AT LAST.

WALKER CARRIES OUT HIS BAT FOR FORTY-ONE.

Packman, Bhumgara and Heavens Try to Save Game but Pilgrims' Tail Fared Disastrously at Hands of Hunt and Lee—Robertson Makes Good Stand.

Santa Monica won its match with the Pilgrims at Vineyard Station, yesterday afternoon, by twenty runs. Up to the fall of the eighth wicket it was a very evenly contested game, but the tail of the Pilgrims could do nothing with Lee and Hunt, three wickets falling for only an additional two runs.

The batting honors were carried off by Walker, who made his first appearance in first-class cricket yesterday. His 41 not out were compiled by sterling play, and he will be a great acquisition to Santa Monica in the coming test matches. Backed by Robertson, who made 13 before being caught and bowled by Bhumgara, this pair between them out on 54 runs. Heavens and Bhumgara both bowled with effect, and as none of the other beach players reached double figures, the innings closed for 101.

C. E. Packman for the Pilgrims made a great effort to save the game, and in this he was ably supported by Bhumgara and Heavens, but as the other players found Hunt and Lee too difficult to play they collapsed when in a position to win.

Following is the full score and fall of wickets:

Santa Ana Wins.

SANTA ANA, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Santa Ana High School baseball team defeated the Long Beach High School today by a 5 to 4 score. This is the second defeat administered to the beach team by Santa Ana this season, the last score being 3 to 2. Long Beach led out with three runs in the first and added a fourth in the fifth inning. In the sixth inning the Long Beach boys went up in the air. Santa Ana scored four runs and got the fifth tally in the seventh. Doyle, pitcher for Long Beach, dropped a pop-up in the sixth that scored two runs for his opponents. The batteries were: Long Beach, Doyle and Frasier; Santa Ana, Dubois and Tedford.

CHESS NOTES.

The following interesting game was contested between Leo Rosen of New York City, from whom the gambit takes its name, and the well-known German chess master, Jacques Mieses, during the latter's visit to this country, last January. The annotations are those of Dr. Lasker:

ROSEN GAMBIT.

White.	Black.
L. Rosen.	J. Mieses.
1. P to K 4	P to Q 4
2. P x P	Q x P
3. Kt to Q B 3	Q to Q R 4
4. P to Q Kt 4

This move has been made before, but never under the responsibility imposed by the conditions of an important match game. Thus to employ it accentuates the conviction of its value.

4. Q to Kt 3

The idea of this retreat is to capture the P later with the KB or QKt, or to attack it with the QRP, and thus to obtain some advantage in position. But the game proves that Black is not sufficiently developed to defer the capture of the P. Black must seek compensation for his relative lack of activity. Had Black played Q x KtP, the game might have proceeded: 5 Kt to B 3, P to K 3; 6 B to Q 3, Kt to KB 3; 7 Castles, Kt to B 3; 8 R to K, B to K 2; 9 R to QKt, Q to Q 3; 10 Kt to KKt 5, whereupon Kt to K 4; followed by B to Kt 2 is threatened, and Black is hampered on both the Q and the K sides.

5. Kt to B 3	Kt to B 3
6. B to K 2	B to Kt 5
7. Castles	Q Kt to Q 2
8. R to Kt	P to K 4
9. P to K R 3	B to K B 4
10. P to Q 4	P to K 5
11. Kt to K 5	Kt x Kt
12. P x Kt	Kt to Q 2
13. Kt to Q 5	Q to K Kt 3
14. B to R 5	Q to Q B 3
15. P to Kt 5	Q to B 5
16. B to K 2	Q x R P
17. R to R	Q x R
18. Kt x P (ch)	K to Q
19. B to Kt 5	K x Kt
20. Q x Q	B to B 4

Black has a R and a minor piece for the Q, and would, with this material, have a fair chance in the struggle were it not for the insecure position of his K.

21. B to K B 4	B to K 2
22. Q to R 5 (ch)	Kt to Kt 3
23. B to K 3	B x B
24. Q to B 3 (ch)	K to Q 2
25. R to Q (ch)	B to Q 4
26. Q x B	K to K 3
27. P to Q B 4	B x P
28. R to Q 6 (ch)	K to K 2
29. Q to Kt 5 (ch)

And Black resigns.

The continuation might be: K to K; 30 Q x KtP, R to KB; to K 6, B x P; 32 R x B.

And White mates in two.

In the second game Black varied his move 13, and the game then continued:

BRIEFS.

The fourth tournament of the Polytechnic Chess Club ended on Friday, when the final round between H. L. Stuart and F. G. Maus terminated in a win for Stuart, with a score of 2½ to 1½. The three preceding tourneys were won, in order, by Homer Hough, H. L. Stuart and F. G. Maus.

The quality of play of the members is constantly improving, though on Friday Maus was evidently out of his usual form. The club will meet for a social meeting about the end of the school year.

The international tournament at Prague began on May 17, with a list of twenty competitors, including the French champion, Janowski, who did not play at Vienna, and whose games always enrich the literature of a contest in which he participates. Of the ten rounds played, full reports are not at hand, owing to the number of adjourned games, but Schlechter has maintained a slight lead during most of the play. Of the two masters who tied with him for first prize at Vienna, Juras is holding his own, but Maroczy is well down the list, alongside Marshall, the only American entry.

Baron Albert de Rothschild has presented two special prizes of 300 and 200 crowns, respectively, for the brilliancy games of the tournament.

Champion Lasker intimates that the proposed match with Tanasch may be brought about if various cities of Germany will provide compensation for certain games of the match to be played in their clubs. Such an arrangement for the Steinitz-Zukertort match was easily made in this country.

George H. Wolbrecht, the well-known chess champion of the Middle West, has been called to Panama for two months' expert engineering work on the Panama Canal.

The chess club of the University of Wisconsin is engaged in two correspondence matches with the universities of Chicago and Michigan.

An amateur tournament of ten entrants is conducted at Prague concurrently with the masters' tourney.

FOOD FOR FANS.

Manager Henry Berry of the Los Angeles team intends to surprise the local fans and the visiting teams next season with a real grass diamond. There is such a thing as the Chutes grounds being passed up next year but no matter where the park is, it will have a green carpet. This may necessitate the sinking of a well to supply the water, but Berry says he will have the grass.

Jess Tannehill, the Boston American pitcher, has been indefinitely suspended without pay until he gets into condition. He is very sore over the package handed him and says he is not to blame.

Friends of Cravath may well feel proud over his good showing in the Boston American team. There are few games in which he does not baste the ball to the fence for a double or a triple and of course he holds his own in the fielding and base running.

Carlisle should be able to hold a job on the Kansas City team of the American Association. It contains such old Coast Leaguers as Kihm, Kreuger, Leahy, Lister, Stovall and Dunleavy among others, and Carlisle is surely as good a any of thee.

A rumor comes floating out from Chicago that Nick Altrock is to be given a rest on the bench that may possibly lead up to a release. He has not been working up to his last year's form and Comisky intends to give some of his young pitchers a chance.

Manuel seems to be the best of the new ones and he and Olmstead will have the opportunity to make good.

The old Coast Leaguers in the American Association are doing fairly well in hitting but Kittie Brashear's brother is the only one that is above the .300 mark. Up to the end of last week when the averages were made up the batting was as follows: Brashear, .318; Jackson, .298; Kihm, .280; Kreuger, .250; Flood, .247; Lister, .228; Stovall, .224; Leahy, .216; Dunleavy, .203; Essick, .111 and Druhot, .100.

The success of the Los Angeles team on its long trip away from home this time is little less than remarkable, considering the fact that the team has been on foreign grounds for five weeks and has been in a crippled condition in many games. Of the twenty-eight games played up to yesterday morning, Los Angeles had won sixteen and lost twelve and as it left home five weeks ago in first place it will undoubtedly return home next week in the front rank.

Bigbee, who played first base for Oakland last season, is out of the game at Lynn, Mass., for some time, owing to an injury received by being spiked in the foot last week.

Pitcher Hartman, who was with the Portland team last year, is now with the Boston Americans, but was left at home with McHale and others on last week's trip away from home.

For the week ending last Sunday Cravath hit .274 and McHale .227 for the Boston Americans. For the same week Chase banged the ball for .312 for the New York Americans. To the same date Burns had pitched seven games and won four. He had averaged four strike-outs and one and one-half bases on balls per game.

From all the big cities in the East comes the news that baseball this year is having the biggest boom of its history and that the various club owners are laying awake at night trying to scheme out how they can increase the capacity of their grounds. Week-day crowds are now as large as former Saturday crowds and the average Saturday attendance is as large as the Sunday crowds were two years ago.

It is reported that Umpire Jack O'Connell is thinking of jumping his job because he has had trouble with so many of the players on decisions. Jack is a fairly good one when he is right and his work in Los Angeles has been generally satisfactory.

SEASON BOOMING.

ANGLERS BUY PARAPHERNALIA.

If the demand for fishing paraphernalia is a criterion of the season's outlook the present summer period promises to be a notable one in the records of Coast casting. Nearly all the local outfitters were pushed to the limit to supply the demand of a horde of anglers, who are preparing for a long session of sport.

Fishing parties hailing from all points of Southern California are preparing to pass a portion of the vacation months at their favorite camping grounds, and from early indications every good fishing resort from Point Concepcion and the Channel Island extending southward to the renowned banks off San Diego, will be visited by numerous fishermen.

Fresh-water fishing will also divert the attention of a large number of rodsters. The sport to be obtained with the fresh water bass is unexcelled in the line of small fry. The small-mouthed variety has been planted quite extensively in a number of the large mountain lakes, particularly in Glen Avon Lake, near Newhall, and Big Bear Lake, in the San Bernardino Mountains, and the reported increase in the number of bass by those fishermen who have tried the grounds this year is favorable to some fine catches.

A party of Angeleños, consisting of Louis Breer, Maj. Klokke, E. B. Tufts, Karl Klokke, F. W. Flint, F. O. Johnson, A. L. Schwarz and Henry Rowe, enjoyed some great black bass fishing Monday at Glen Avon Lake. Each member of the party averaged about twenty-five fine specimens, weighing from three to four pounds. Leaving the city early Monday morning, the party went via an automobile to the fishing grounds on the southern side of the lake, and spent about three hours during the morning and afternoon casting for the fresh-water bass, which is noted as a fine game fish. The anglers used four-ounce rods and six-strand enamel silk lines, casting with spinners and flies.

The bass appeared unusually plentiful in the lake, and were brought to gaff with little difficulty. But four years ago some 200 bass were planted in the lake, and Ed Tufts reports the water fairly alive with the small-mouthed variety.

CATALINA FISHING.

From Catalina Island stories of exceptional luck with the big fish frequenting the channel waters were brought in this week by visiting parties of Angeleños. Barracuda, albicore, yellowtail, sculpin and rock bass are running strong, and although the fish are not of the largest size, the sport to be obtained is well worth the trip.

Extra good fishing is the word from Balboa and all southerly resorts. Charles Luckenbach, last season's champion angler, was on hand early in the week, and in accordance with his usual run of luck caught the biggest string of the week, mainly surf fish ranging from four to six pounds. Coomber of Los Angeles landed a fine creel of halibut, and J. A. Liegely made the record haul of striped bass at the rocky point pier.

A black bass weighing sixty pounds was brought to gaff Tuesday evening off the floats at the pavilion by Capt. Jackson. With the exception of seals, which come as far up the inner waters as Bay Island, Jackson's capture registers the largest fish seen in the bay for years. Croakers are plentiful in the bay, and quite a number of halibut of a good size were caught b ythe midweekers.

Long Beach has furnished excellent returns in the jack smelt, yellowfin, pompano and herring, with a sprinkling of Spanish mackerel. A number of local parties were on hand during the week, and came home with satisfying strings of the small fry.

Redondo, as last week, gave the hand-liners an unusual run for their efforts, yellowtail and bass being taken in large numbers all during the week. A run of mackerel brought a crowd of rodsters to the wharves Thursday morning, over 200 pounds being hauled in within a few hours.

The piscatorial menu at the Santa Monica Bay piers included pompano, surf, yellowfin, croaker, smelt, green back mackerel and sea trout. Manhattan gave probably the best returns to the midweek anglers, and extra good catches of croaker and surf were recorded.

Trolling is again becoming popular off San Pedro and today a large number of deep-water fishermen will take launches from the harbor point. Barracuda, sculpin, bonita and yellowtail are again quite plentiful in the vicinity of the kelp beds off Point Firmin.

Hueston Posts Forfeits.

Kid Hueston, former king of the pool world, and an all around cueist, has posted forfeits at St. Louis to play the winner of the Alfredo De Oro-Johnny Allen world's championship pool match, scheduled for October, and John Daly, holder of the national three-cushion championship. Pool originally was Hueston's game. He ruled as champion throughout the year 1907.

OLDEST POLO PONY ON THE COAST BECOMES A MOTHER.

Santa Clara and Her Foal, a Few Days Old, which is the second the grand old mare has dropped in her career, her first coming when she was two years old, both rare instances.

Santa Clara, aged queen of the polo ponies, has just given birth to a foal, the second in twenty-three years of her life. Twenty-one years ago, when she was a two-year-old, she foaled her first-born, begat by a colt of the same age, a rare instance for animals so young. The foal grew to a horse sixteen hands high. The aged mare is doing nicely and her foal is well-formed and good-spirited.

Santa Clara is a thoroughbred mare by Sacramento out of Clara, by Rifleman, out of Queen, by Lexington. She is thus inbred, as Sacramento was by Rifleman. She was bred and is owned by G. L. Waring of Riverside, and is only fourteen hands high. She commenced to play polo at Santa Monica, where polo was first started west of the Rockies, when she was 3 years old, and has played continuously since, up to two years ago. She has never been sick, sorry or lame, looks like a three-year-old today, has won forty-four pony races under all kinds of heavy weights, including several jumping races, and is still sound and ready to start again when her maternity duties have been accomplished.

The foal—which is a filly—is by Star Bright (a good race horse) and he was by Aintree, which was by Sefton, an English Derby winner.

Polo players consider the mare is one of the best that ever looked through a bridle. She is fourteen hands high, a fine hack and tandem leader, can jump anything, and once got over 6 feet 3 inches with her present owner, G. L. Waring, on her back, carrying about 190 pounds.

JONES THE VICTIM.

OAKLAND SLUGS THE BALL.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Oscar Jones was the victim today. The heavy slugging artillery corps of the Commuters was working full blast and what they didn't do to the ex-Brooklyn wonder in the third and eighth inning of the one-sided game would be a shame to tell. They cannonaded him all over the field, and but for an overthrow of Pitcher Hardy to the second bag, the Seals would once more have suffered a shutout. As things stood they were mighty lucky to put one run across, the final score standing 9 to 1 against them.

Although the Seals managed to get two more hits than on the previous afternoon, they were a long ways shy of getting enough bingles to do them any good. After the Commuters had given Jones a taste in the third of the way they could hit, they finished up in grand style in the eighth and mixed up enough singles and doubles, with an error and a walk, to produce six tallies.

The locals put their one run around the circuit in the first inning, when Williams, who had doubled and was on third after Curtis and Mohler in advance of him, had been retired, came home as Hardy tried to head off Melchoir's steal to second. The throw was bad and accounts for the run.

Oakland divided its efforts. In the third, Lewis opened with a single, was advanced on Dan Haltren's hit to right, and scored on a wild pitch. Haley fanned and Heitmuller walked, Eagan scoring both of them by planting the ball against the right field fence.

The real heavy work of the afternoon came in the eighth. Van Haltren opened proceedings with a double to right field. Haley attempted a sacrifice that was poorly handled by Williams and Heitmuller drew his third pass of the afternoon.

Eagan's single over short scored Van. Cook drove Haley home with a safety and Hogan's double into left scored both Heitmuller and Eagan. Altman tallied Cook and Hogan with a long single and it finally took a double-play to put the Oakland team out of commission.

FRESHMEN WIN.

POMONA CLASS CONTEST.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, June 6.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The freshmen baseball team beat the sophomores in the interclass series this afternoon at Pomona College by the score of 3 to 1.

The game was full of excitement and was one of the best exhibitions seen on the campus this year. The score was tied at 1 to 1 for four innings, when a lucky hit and an error by the "sophs" gave the freshmen a lead which they kept until the end of the game. In the first of the ninth the sophomores got three men on bases and it looked as if they would score; but Gally, the freshman pitcher, pulled out of a tight place and struck out two men, thus winning the game.

The freshmen will now have to play the seniors for the college championship.

The line-up:

ON THE COURTS.

VENICE TENNIS TOURNAMENT.

Country Club Prepares for July Contests.

Cream of Southern Players Are to Enter.

Big Dance to Open the Week of Activities.

The cream of Southern California's tennis players are preparing to enter the games to be played on the courts of the Country Club at Venice during the midsummer tournament that is to open July 1 and continue throughout the remainder of that week.

The tournament this year will be the second annual affair given by the Country Club. In former years the tournaments on July 4 were held under the auspices of the Ocean Park Country Club, but last year the Country Club at Venice took over the tourney and the players were well pleased with the new arrangement.

The tournament this year will open with a dance at Venice, Tuesday, June 30. Last year the opening ball was one of the features of the conference and the management expects to conduct it on a more elaborate scale. The other entertainments given last year probably will be repeated.

H. L. Blackmore, chairman; Abbot Kinney, and J. W. Lawrence, Jr., form the committee that is making arrangements for the tournament, which they announce will be the most interesting tournament yet held on the Fourth of July. The trophies and prizes are to be costlier and more numerous than those offered last year.

All the winners in last year's tournament are expected to participate this year. Nat Browne first came to the front at Venice last July, when he defeated the veterans, Sinsabaugh and Bundy, thereby carrying off first honors in the men's singles.

Hal Braly, the Southern California champion in the men's singles, did not compete in the Venice tournament last year, but it is expected that he will enter for the coming tourney. His absence from the courts last year caused considerable regret, as the followers of the sport were anxious to see him and Browne meet in the men's singles while Browne was at the height of his winning streak. However, the two men probably will meet at Venice this year. Sinsabaugh and Bundy will also be on edge to regain their lost laurels from Browne, and a fine exhibition is expected.

Nearly fifty players competed in the tourney last year, and while few entries have been made to date, the managing committee expects that fully this number will register before July 1.

The junior events, which were an innovation last year, will again be held. This new arrangement was a great success. The events under this classification were open to all comers who passed the age requirement, and all the best junior players in the South competed.

The winners in the men's doubles last year, A. E. Bell and A. C. Way, are preparing to defend their laurels. Florence Sutton and S. M. Sinsabaugh carried off first honors in the mixed doubles in the last tourney and will meet all comers this year. Miss Florence Sutton and Miss Alice Scott were easily the best woman players, Miss Sutton taking the open ladies' singles, Miss Scott the special singles, and together winning the trophy in the ladies' doubles.

In the consolation singles, Will Bacon, the former Occidental College player, beat Winne Mace of the same school for the prize. Mace has improved greatly during the past year, and in the junior events should rank high. Ward Dawson, won the junior singles.

Play in the tournament will begin Wednesday, July 1, at 9:30 o'clock, when the junior events will be started. The ladies' events will be started at o'clock the same day, and the doubles will begin at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning. It is expected that the preliminaries can be so arranged that all the finals may be played off on July 4.

BEACH SPORTS.

SANTA MONICA, June 6.—The first real baseball game ever played at Venice is to take place tomorrow for the Venetian city now has for the first time a regulation diamond, enclosed with a tight board fence and provided with seating accommodations for the fans. James McCormick has taken charge of affairs on the team and the nine that that was formerly known as the McCormicks will play with the Summer league as the Venice nine.

Boxing matches and other athletic sports are promised to be added to the list of seaside attractions at the athletic park and several bouts are on the card for July 4, in connection with the celebration on the strand.

The game tomorrow will be between the Venice and Pasadena nines. The other teams of the league are the Hoegees and the Edisons, and it will be so arranged that there will be a league game played here every Sunday and an amateur game each Saturday.

Manager McCormick says he will enter into the sport game with much vigor and he sees no good reason why Venice should not have lively baseball and other events regularly during all seasons of the year.

While Santa Monica, Ocean Park and Venice have provided elegantly oiled, tamped and asphalted boulevards and roadways for the accommodation of automobilists, many drivers seem to be speed mad. For the purpose of protecting pedestrians and those who drive horses and frequent the public streets, the two cities of the bay have enacted ordinances regulating the speed at which automobiles should be driven through the streets. These regulations having been utterly overlooked by many drivers and motorcyclists, and police officers during the past week have made ten arrests for exceeding the speed limit. The uniform penalty has been $10 for each violation.

There have been no second offenders, but it is believed the driver who is called to account for a second violation of the very liberal ordinances will be more heavily fined. Several of those who were arrested deposited $10 bail but neglected to appear in court for trial.

During the week along the bay, fishing has been good at all the piers from Playa del Rey northward, although the best preserves at the end of the long wharf of Port Los Angeles are not open to the public. However, it is promised by the Los Angeles-Pacific Electric line that this favorite resort of the fisherman will soon be thrown open to the public. Electric cars direct from Los Angeles, via the new Ivy short line, will travel to the end of the pier.

Santa Monica will soon have a new pier from which to fish, at the foot of Colorado avenue, and when completed will extend into the water for a distance of 1600 feet. It will be thirty feet wide, and will have several landings. The piles of this structure are of reinforced concrete, being the first ocean pier of this description to be constructed in the West, and the second in the United States.

On June 16, daily trips from the Venice breakwater will be made to Catalina. The start from the landing will be made at 9 in the morning, and the vessel will arrive on the return trip at 6 in the evening, the trip each way to be made in about three hours. If the patronage justifies it, a second steamer will be placed on the run.

The Santa Monica polo grounds will be the scene tomorrow afternoon of a lively baseball game. The contest will be between the Santa Monica nine and a team from one of the battleships that will be at anchor off the Venice pier. During the Sunday visits of the ships during the next month it is being arranged so that there may be a baseball game every week.

With a view to the encouragement of legitimate sports and athletics at the beach, the Los Angeles Athletic Club has secured a lease of auxiliary quarters in the new Venice bath-house now nearing completion. Athletic carnivals are to be held at intervals during the season, and for this purpose the auditorium on the pier will be available. The athletic quarters in the bath-house will be equipped with all paraphernalia required in a gymnasium. There will be a commodious sitting and lounging-room, Turkish bath and buffet.

The Crescent Bay Gun Club, with grounds and traps at Venice, is endeavoring to arrange dates for a three days' shooting tournament to be held during the month of July. The plan is to have the attraction so scheduled that the crack shots who participate in the San Francisco, Monterey, Los Angeles, Redlands, Riverside and San Diego tournaments may also compete here. It is proposed to hang up such attractive purses and prizes as will bring together the best shots of the State.

SPORTING NOTES.

They are playing a combination game in Milwaukee called baseball cricket.

The Canadian Olympic team of track and field athletes will sail from Montreal June 12, accompanied by manager J. H. Crocker and Coach William Sherring.

Frank Erne has branched out as a prize ring referee. Erne has acted as the third man in the ring in connection with all the big boxing matches held recently in Paris, France.

Champion May Sutton is expected to take part in the woman's national tennis championship, which will be played at Philadelphia again this year, starting June 22.

The plan of the Chicago Motor Club to sign board 1000 miles of roads leading in eleven different directions from that city this year will cost that organization from $8000 to $10,000.

It is highly probable that the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen will send over Harry S. Bennett of Springfield, Mass., the present champion single sculler, to represent the United States in the Olympic singles.

Discus throwers of a national reputation, like Sheridan, Garrels and Burroughs, will have to look out for their honors, if the schoolboy, Griffin, of Joliet, Ill., continues in the sport. At the Illinois interscholastic meet, held at Champaign, Ill., the youngster hurled the plate-shaped weight 129ft., 11in.

It is doubtful whether Kelly, the man whom Lou Scholes of Toronto defeated for the diamond sculls, will scull at the Olympic regatta. Kelly was looked upon as one of the most formidable opponents which Canadian scullers would meet.

The White Sox Rooters' Association of Chicago has been incorporated. The object of the association, as set forth by the "incorporation" papers, is to promote an interest in baseball, and in the White Sox in particular. The members of the association plan a monster celebration for September 5, which will be in honor of the only honorary member of the association, President Charles A. Comiskey of the White Sox. The celebration will be known as Comiskey day.

SAGEBRUSHERS.

POMONA SEASON IS SUCCESSFUL.

Baseball Team Leads in the Standing of Teams.

Occidental Accomplishes the Only Reverse.

Most of Players Expect to Return Next Year.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, June 6.—With a technical championship, but defeated by their old rival, Occidental College, the Pomona College baseball team has broken training, after the shortest intercollegiate baseball season ever known here. Only five games were played, two with Whittier and three with Occidental. The first two contests resulted in Pomona victories, but two of the three matches with Occidental were defeats.

While the Claremonters finished winners with .600 per cent. in the conference games, the loss of the series to the Presbyterians is a dark spot on the season's work.

The season begun brilliantly, but ended in defeat. The two Whittier games were easy victories, as was the first contest with Occidental, but a loss of form by Gally, a change on first base, and a general going to pieces of the infield gave the Claremonters a losing streak in the last two and most important games.

Metcalf, who subbed for Prizer in right field the latter part of the season, leads the team in batting with .500 per cent., and Gally, Pomona's pitcher, leads in fielding, and follows "Met" in batting with .363. Gally really proved the star of the nine this year. He pitched every game, with .600 victories, fielded without an error, and leads in extra base hits with a home run and three two-base hits.

Pomona has four men, Prizer, Neuls, Metcalf and Gally, who played errorless games all season, and six players, Metcalf, Gally, Graf, Mahoney, Rogers and Craig who batted over .250. Mahoney, Gally and Metcalf each scored with a home run.

Practically, with the exception of Metcalf, the entire squad will be in college in 1909. Several promising additions are already in sight. Canterbury of Redlands High School will try out for catcher. This will give Craig a chance to develop his pitching arm and alternate with Gally in the box. Clendening of Pomona High is another catcher who expects to come here next year. Brown, a Pomona High third baseman, is also a plum for Pierce's pie next season. He will likely be used at second, and Birdsall will be relegated to the outfield. Richards and Rogers expect to be back to try for first and Graf for third base. The same bunch of outfielders will be in the game.

GALLY'S PITCHING.

A mixture of tennis with baseball weakened Gally's pitching arm toward the end of this season, and his twirling lacked the class shown before he began his work on the courts. Craig caught throughout the season in a creditable manner. Had there been any one else to use behind the bat, Craig would have been given a chance to alternate with Gally in the box.

Rogers started in playing a consistent game at first, and batted well, but an over press of college work forced him from the game, and Richards was drawn in from left field to hold down the initial bag. Birdsall at second made only one error during the entire season, and fielded his territory in a clean manner. Mahoney at shortstop did the most brilliant playing at times on the team, but at either times his erratic misplays were costly to the 'varsity. Graf put up a star game on third all season and fielded his position splendidly. In the field a number of men were given chances—Neuls, Prizer, Hitchcock, McDermitt, Panhoe, Metcalf and Richards. By the survival of the fittest, Neuls, Prizer and Panhoe made good until the last two games, when Metcalf supplanted Prizer. The averages for the season were:

WATER POLO SEASON.

Redondo Surprises Critics Who Did not Expect Beach Team to Win Against Veterans.

The first season of the Southern California Water Polo League, which has just closed, demonstrated that this sport is making a strong bid for popularity in the South. It was the first organization of its kind ever formed in California, and the contests were well attended.

The winning of the championship by Redondo was not expected at the beginning of the season, but the crippled condition of the L.A.A.C. team in the final games of the season put the Los Angeles men out of the running and left a clear field for the beach town sextette. The Redondo team was a new organization this year, while the Bimini and L.A.A.C. teams were formed last year. Venice finished at the bottom, only winning one game out of the six played.

Les Henry, secretary of the league, has practically made arrangements for another season of play, beginning about July 1. A team representing Avalon will be taken in, and the intention is to so arrange the schedule that a game will be played at the Catalina resort every Sunday during the summer months. All the games will be played in open water under the new schedule.

The absence of Whelan and Watlington in the final game of the season was largely responsible for the defeat of the L.A.A.C. team and the annexing of the championship by Redondo. Both men were out of the game on account of sickness, and the substitutes who filled their places were not strong enough to help the team win.

The final standing of the teams follows:

	Played.	Won.	Tied.	Lost.
Redondo A.C.	6	3	3	0
L.A.A.C.	6	2	2	2
Bimini A.C.	6	2	2	2
Venice A.A.	6	1	2	3

Sullivan's Offers.

John L. Sullivan has received tempting offers from Lord Beresford, of England, who is interested in theaters all over that country and the continent. He has offers to show in Cuba in November and December, and has also been asked to appear in a number of cities in Mexico and Texas. If he decides to accept the English offer, and he most likely will, he will go to South Africa after filling those engagements, and on his way back will go to Cuba and then to Mexico and Texas. Sullivan is enjoying excellent health, and he looks to be in fine condition. He still does the monologue and boxes with Jake Kilrain and Cutler.

ELECT HAMILTON NEW PRESIDENT.

ANNUAL MEETING OF COUNTY LEAGUE DIRECTORS.

Classification of Schools Into Leagues for Better Results—Former Students Ineligible to Act as Officials for Their Schools—Other Plans Discussed.

Kinter Hamilton of Harvard School was elected president of the Los Angeles County High School League to succeed O. S. Lowsley, at the annual meeting of the Polytechnic High School, yesterday morning. H. L. Howe of Glendale was chosen secretary, and Leonard Wachtel of Polytechnic High, treasurer.

In the consideration of interscholastic athletic relations, particularly regarding the classification of schools in the arrangement of schedules, the board decided to place all schools with an enrollment of less than 200 students in co-educational institutions, and segregating schools with an enrollment of less than 100 students, in the suburban section of the league, and all schools with an enrollment exceeding the 200 mark in the city section. Each school is to determine at its regular spring meeting to which section it belongs.

Officers were elected to govern the two sections as follows:

City section—Chairman, George Van Patten of South Pasadena High; first vice-president, Eugene Kern, Pasadena High; second vice-president, Ned Manning, Polytechnic High; secretary, J. B. Lillard, Los Angeles High; treasurer, H. Redman of Whittier High.

Suburban section—Chairman, H. L. Howe, Glendale; first vice-president Hipple, San Pedro; second vice-president, Will Sheldon, Azusa High; treasurer, George Welsh, Compton High. Covina will also elect a representative to serve on the board.

The Los Angeles county board of control will also act as a court of appeals between the executive committees of the respective sectional boards. Referring to the selection of officials a ruling was passed making all faculty members, former students, and alumni students ineligible to act in the capacity of officials for interscholastic contests. A ruling was also put forth placing all games, either practice or according to schedule, under the rules of the league.

Regarding questional rulings of the past season in basketball, amendments were added to the league rules making a foul committed in case a player overguards an opponent including the arms, interference with the progress of a player not having the ball, and stepping over the boundary lines, but not on the line.

The city section will include the following schools for next year: Los Angeles High, Polytechnic High, Pasadena, South Pasadena, Harvard School, Whittier, Hollywood, and Long Beach. In the suburban section are Covina, San Pedro, Glendale, Monrovia, Compton, Azusa, Alhambra, Santa Monica, Bonita and Downey.

An adjourned session of the Los Angeles county league will be held at Polytechnic High School next Saturday morning to further consider important matters arising in the interests of the schools.

Good to Coaches.

The senior class at Cornell has paid an unusual honor to John F. Moakley, the coach of the track team. The senior class book is ordinarily dedicated to some prominent alumnus or public man friendly to Cornell. This year's book is dedicated to Moakley. It contains his picture and a flattering biographical sketch. Jack has been paid his meed of honors at Cornell. The students there have been raising money for a house for him on a lot they already have bought. When a man is successful there the students are willing to do a great deal.

An unbroken record of cures during all these years is positive proof of the value of my Direct Method Treatment. For 25 years I have specialized in treating the diseases of men only.

A great many people do not seem to understand the difference between the regular practitioner and the medical expert who has devoted his life study to say, three or four complicated diseases. They seem to be under the impression that any physician cures any disease with equal success. It is an everyday experience to have a patient say: "I have tried nearly every remedy sold by druggists for my trouble," and the invariable verdict is "No benefit." Another will say: "I have been treated by several family physicians in my neighborhood who thought they could cure me, but the results proved otherwise."

BEAR INVADES CAMP IN YOSEMITE VALLEY.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CAMP YOSEMITE (Yosemite Valley,) June 5.—Exciting things have been happening in the valley ever since the Native Sons have been here, but the climax was reached recently when a real live wild bear strolled into camp to view proceedings on his own hook.

Camp Yosemite had just breakfasted, and was taking its ease and comfort in the chairs and hammocks beneath the massive oaks and pines, when Mr. Bear ambled serenely from the trees and got well into the clearing in front of the camp beofre he was noticed—also apparently before he took notice.

He was only a small bear and he was bewildered—probably scared. So he dropped back upon his haunches for a moment to think about it. He presented a very waggish appearance, his head cocked slightly to one side, his eyes twinkling, as he sized up the crowd.

The Times correspondent got out the camera for a snapshot, but simultaneously the crowd caught sight of the bear. They started for him in one grand, concerted rush. It was the first time the majority of them had ever seen a wild animal in his native haunts, and with shrieks and cries men and women alike bore down upon poor Bruin as though he were their dearest enemy. What they intended to do with him if he had waited to receive them is hard to tell. But Bruin didn't wait. He regarded them, startled, for a brief second, then with a little grunt got up steam and turned his prow toward the trees from which he had come.

Whooping and yelling, in went the horde after him. They scrambled over boulders, tripped in the wild vines, vaulted over fallen trees. Women tore shirt waists to shreds in the brambles, scratched their faces and lost their hat pins, many of them out of breath and half crying with excitement. Men lost their hats and their tempers and nearly broke their necks, but they kept up the chase.

Then one by one they dropped out until there were only a few left on his trail. The bear had loped along in pretty good shape so far, but plenty of acorns and wild honey made him a very fat bear, and his few remaining pursuers kept him well in sight.

Finally at the bottom of a hill Bruin sat down; but he got on his feet, panting, as his enemies came closer, and turned on them with a look that said: "Well, you've got me! What are you going to do about it?"

The Times correspondent had the only camera in the bunch, and as Bruin stood in a patch of sunlight got one good shot at him—the only shooting that is allowed in the Yosemite—and the accompanying photo is the only trophy of the morning hunt.

POMONA LOSES HER BEST MEN.

Graduating Class Strips the Athletic Fields.

Himrod, Metcalf, Spurgeon and Others Out.

Coaches Must Depend on the Incoming Classes.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES.]

CLAREMONT, June 6.—When the present senior class graduates from Pomona next month it will take with it a score of athletes, who have won their letters in every branch of sport during their college career.

The class of 1908 has always been noted for its husky bunch of athletes, who have made 'varsity teams and their graduation will mean quite a blow to Pomona unless a big bunch of good new material comes to college next September.

In football their absence will be most strongly felt, for during the last four years '08 has always been well represented on the 'varsity gridiron. Perhaps the greatest loss will be Metcalf, last season's captain, who has done all goal kicking and punting for the sagebrushers since McCormick's graduation in 1905. With the exception of end and quarterback, "Met" has played every position on the team. As a center he was useful, as fullback strong, but his most consistent work was done at guard and tackle.

Spurgeon, Baird and Culver are a strong trio of halves, who will graduate. Spurgeon was used at fullback this year, but his best work was done at half, where his end runs gained him many yards. Baird and Culver were the consistent line buckers of the team, and in the old days, when hurdling was allowed, Baird was the spectacular player on the Claremont eleven. Culver's best efforts were made this year, when his offense found many a hole to dodge through and his defensive work was brilliant.

Smith at end is another serious loss. For four years he held his position because of his speed and sure tackling. Halladay at tackle was one of the strongest men in the line for the last two years.

Bryant and Himrod were line subs this year, while Ranney, who played a fair game at center, is another.

Capt. Taylor at guard, Valle for quarterback, Parker for end, Rogers for fullback, Lorbeer and Mahoney for halves and Williamson, Crawford and Gore for line positions will form the nucleus of next year's team.

It is rumored that Kerfoot of St. Vincent's will come to Pomona next year.

On the cinder path the loss will be felt less than on the gridiron. Himrod and Spurgeon will be the two great stars to receive their sheepskin. Himrod has invariably won the mile and two-mile for Pomona in southern meets and frequently against California and Stanford. He may be styled the premier distance runner of the south. Where Spurgeon shone was in the hurdles and also as a placer in the sprints and as a crack relay man. Noble developed Spurgeon into a hurdler after Hempel had taught the Santa Anan to sprint.

Metcalf's hammer throwing and shot putting brought many points to the Blue and White, while Bryant is another hammer thrower of mediocre ability who is also in the class. Ranney represented the college in th eshot put. Baird won points in the broad jump, and Munger, until the arrival of Merriam, was Pomona's star high jumper, never stopping below six feet.

Leeke is another valuable distance man who will leave college this year. The two-mile was his strong hold. McKee, half and quarter miler, also graduates. His best form was shown in underclass days, but this year he ran splendid relay laps.

Although a goodly bunch of material remains, the class of 1908 will take out the most promising and tried track veterans, holding Southern California and a few Coast records.

In baseball their graduates will be least felt. Metcalf, Spurgeon and MacDermitt are the only players who go out, and the trio did not try out for baseball this year. Spurgeon alternated between the field and the box, Metcalf tried his hand behind the bat and in the field and MacDermitt played on third base and in the outfield.

McKee and Metcalf will be missed from the boys' basketball five, while from the girls' team four-fifths of the team graduate, Misses Abbott and Root, the brilliant forwards, Miss Davis at center and Miss Squier at guard.

In tennis, Harold Bryant, last year's champion, and intercollegiate racquet wielder, is a member of the outgoing class.

Roque Games Postponed.

Owing to the absence of several experts the annual tournament of the Southern California Roque Association scheduled for this week has been postponed for a date which will enable a larger number to participate in the contests. Eastern men express the hope that they may be provided for in this, or an extra event, in the early autumn, and while local players prefer the summer season, they wish to favor the visitors. The committee in charge will endeavor to find a date which will be convenient for all, and will announce it in time for the attendance of experts from any part of the country. At the present time Los Angeles seems to be in the lead for place of meeting.

Boston Cup Defender.

Work is being rushed on the Boston defender of the British International Challenge Trophy for motorboats at Lawley's yard, and it is expected that she will be finished in time to be well tested before the trial races July 11. Edwin B. Webster, who has ordered the boat from designs by Swasey, Raymond & Page, will spare no expense to get the fastest craft possible for her length.

Will Become Heavy.

Stanley Ketchel says: "The talk of me as an opponent for Burns, and a heavyweight challenger is correct. Just one or two more fights as a middleweight, then I shall leave the class, fight heavies, and go after Burns. Why not? He was a middleweight, also, and grew bigger. So will I."

PERFECT MANHOOD

Weakness--Its Cause and Cure

DR. HARRISON
The Leading Specialist

Almost every case of weakness is due directly or indirectly to some abnormal local condition existing at some vital point in the pelvic region. The common causes of weakness are, in the first place, a congested, inflamed or enlarged prostate gland; in the second place, uncured cases of contracted disorders; in the third place, stricture; in the fourth place, varicocele, and in the fifth place, irritation or hyperesthesia of the veru montanum. All these conditions may, of course, be aggravated by excesses and abuses, and complicated by general debility and neurasthenia.

Over ten years ago (as reference to the columns of The Los Angeles Times of that period will prove) we first elaborated and subsequently demonstrated the truth of these theories. Since that time we have cured completely hundreds of the most stubborn cases that ever baffled medical science. Each succeeding year has witnessed still further improvements in our method of treatment and has been marked by still greater triumphs in the completeness and permanency of the cures.

The old adage reads: "Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery," and it is positively amusing to notice how nonchalantly some physicians who have only been practicing in Los Angeles a couple of years calmly appropriate our theories and our style of advertising. The time to consult us is now. Don't wait until you have wasted time and money on ineffectual treatment, administered by inexperienced men, who make extra charges for medicines and seek to foist on an unsuspecting public worthless appliances.

The Only Cure For Weakness

It is a well-known fact that Dr. Harrison & Co. are the only specialists on the Coast curing all forms of weakness with celerity and certainty. Theory and practice are different propositions. Only the legitimate specialist, with a wide experience and exact practical knowledge, gained by many years of hard study and research, can effect the cure. Sixteen years of eminently successful practice, right here in Los Angeles, is our best recommendation.

We will cheerfully pay One Thousand Dollars to any physician or layman who can produce a case of weakness occurring in any man of good habits under the age of 65, not complicated by an organic disease of the heart, liver or kidneys, or by the sequelae of chronic disease, that we cannot completely cure in from four to six weeks by our painless and improved method of local treatment. The local treatment is entirely painless and does not involve the use of "instillations, suppositories," etc. We will effect the cure without prescribing a single drop of medicine and without using a single pill, tablet or granule.

Specific Blood Poison

Our treatment for this affection is thoroughly scientific and curative and precisely similar to that in vogue at the famous Hot Springs of Arkansas. Mistakes in diagnosis are frequently made by inexperienced physicians, and it is of the utmost importance that the unfortunate victim of this malady treat with a reputable and skillful specialist.

Each case of specific blood poison coming to us for consultation is carefully and thoroughly examined and the exact nature of the disease and its probable duration patiently explained. We never try to scare our patients, but extend to each and all our sympathetic aid and advice, and do all in our power to effect a speedy and permanent cure.

Varicocele

No case of varicocele ever was or ever can be cured without an operation, notwithstanding the bombastic statements of would-be specialists to the contrary. For the last ten years we have had a standing offer of one thousand dollars to be awarded to any specialist who would cure a case of varicocele without operation. Our operation is painless and devoid of all danger, and we only require our patients to lay off work for one week. By permission, we can refer any one interested to any number of prominent business men whom we have cured. Before paying out your hard-earned money to any doctor or specialist, interview a few of their cured patients. We defy any one to produce a single case treated by us that is not completely and permanently cured and thoroughly satisfied.

Stricture

Pain is entirely eliminated in our treatment for stricture. Our equipment is immeasurably superior to that of the ordinary specialist. We cure with celerity and certainty the cases that baffle the skill of others.

Contracted Disorders

Neglect or improper treatment may involve irreparable injury to the organs involved. Our modern methods prevent complications and speedily effect complete and permanent cures.

Our equipment for treating successfully the most complex and complicated ailments peculiar to men is the finest in the city. Sixteen years of eminently successful and honorable practice right here in Los Angeles is our best recommendation. Consultation, examination and expert diagnosis are free in all cases.

Free Treatment.

Until June 15th, we will treat any simple, uncomplicated case free and furnish all medicines free. We make this generous offer to meet the exigencies of the times, and with the assurance that the patients suffering from simple, uncomplicated ailments who avail themselves of this offer will be glad to recommend others, including cases of complicated chronic ailments for the cure of which we will receive a reasonable fee.

We cordially invite ailing men to call and inspect our superb office equipment, also our private sanitarium, fitted with every modern appliance for high-class, aseptic surgery, including operations for circumcision, varicocele, rupture, piles, stone in the bladder, urethral obstruction, and prostatic enlargement.

MEN'S DISEASES

DR. MILES
The Master Specialist.

There is no ailment peculiar to men that I cannot cure. For twenty years I have devoted my entire time and energy to the treatment of men's diseases.

My methods have been perfected by actual experience, with a thoroughly theoretical knowledge as a basis. I am the only physicion thoroughly and permanently curing those functional derangements commonly classed as "Weakness," and my success in overcoming such cases has placed me foremost among specialists in treating men's diseaseses, and has brought me the largest practice of its kind in the West.

My Fee for a Thorough and Lasting Cure of any Ailment is Only $10 In Any Uncomplicated Case

Pay Me After I Have Cured You

I Cure All Diseases of Men

I have treated hundreds of men who have long suffered a gradual decline of physical and mental energy as a result of ailments, and have been interested in noting the marked general improvement that follows a thorough cure of the chief disorder. My success in curing difficult cases of long standing has made me the foremost specialist treating men's diseases. This success is due to several things. It is due to the original, distinctive and thoroughly scientific methods of treatment I employ.

To those in doubt as to their true condition, and who wish to avoid the serious results that may follow neglect, I offer free consultation and advice, either at my office or through correspondence. If your case is one of the few that have reached an incurable stage, I will not accept it for treatment, nor will I urge my services upon any one. I treat curable cases only, and cure all cases I treat.

Scientific Treatment for "Weakness"

Dosing the system with powerful stimulants and tonics in an effort to restore functional vigor can have but one final result, the condition is rendered worse than before. Few doctors know of any other method than stomach drugging, and when this does no good, they say: "There is no cure for Weakness." I have often made strong statements to the effect that the ailment must be thoroughly understood before it could be remedied. I have proved it beyond dispute that so-called "Weakness" is merely an indication of the existence of a low form of inflammation in the Prostate Gland, which is usually aggravated and made worse by stimulating medicine, electricity or any other agent that excites temporary activity. The Prostate is a nerve center and therefore very sensitive to treatment—the right kind quickly helps, while the wrong kind can cause great harm and sometimes irreparable damage.

I employ the only scientific and full effective treatment for "Weakness," which is almost entirely local, by which I mean that the medication is applied directly to parts. Medicines containing poisons are entirely excluded. I obtain the most desirable results in every case undertaken, and the cure is permanent and complete.

Varicocele

I cure any case that I accept in one week's time. My treatment is a painless one, and in most instances the patient need not be detained a single day from business. There is no doubt or guesswork, but absolute certainty of a thorough and lasting cure, with complete return to that degree of health and vigor that existed before the disease began.

Contracted Disorders

Every case of Contracted Disease I treat is cured thoroughly. My patients have no relapses. When I pronounce a case cured there is not a particle of infection or inflammation remaining and there isn't the slightest danger that the disease will return in its original form or work its way into the general system. Some contracted diseases are less serious than others, but none are too trivial to warrant uncertain methods of treatment. I especially solicit those cases that other doctors have been unable to cure.

Gentlemen:

My Buick Runabout is a fine machine, and everybody is stuck on it. I think you can sell two or three here very easily.

I suppose you heard of my flying from one hill to another and landing in the gulch upside down, and not damaging the machine except the lamps and fenders. It turned over twice, and went 60 feet down. Got it up on the road and turned the crank and it went right off. It is a winning machine, and I am learning to run it all right and am more careful. Please send me directions if you have any, as I lost the others in the wreck.

GOOD ONES CLINCHED.

BROCK SIGNS WITH UNHOLZ.

McCarey Has Lightweights for Last Week in June.

Berger Gets Walsh and Gardner for 'Frisco.

Bubbles Robinson in Prelim of Van Doozer Contest.

Phil Brock and Boer Unholz were matched yesterday to fight before the Pacific Athletic Club in this city on the night of Friday, June 26, and in getting these boys together, Manager McCarey has signed what looks to be a real main-event card. The match has been talked of for several months, and the boys finally settled it yesterday.

They are to get 50 per cent. of the gate receipts; agree to fight at catch weights, and will divide the money 60 and 40 per cent. Brock wanted the battle at catch weights, and while Unholz could not see any particular reason why it should not be at 133 pounds, he consented to the "catch" proposition when he realized that this would practically mean 133 pounds, for both make that weight easily and naturally.

If Unholz wins he will probably go after Bat Nelson for his next fight, and these two would draw a good house in any city. It would surely furnish an exciting battle, for Nelson has made Unholz very angry by declaring that Rudy "quit" to Gans. He undoubtedly did quit, but it was because Gans had him badly beaten. Unholz happened to go against Gans when the black wonder was in the best possible condition, and if the champion is the same way when he meets Nelson, there will be curtains for Bat in short order. Rudy promises to attend to Nelson if he ever gets him into the ring, and as he beat him here some months ago, he can doubtless do it again just as easily.

Sam Berger formally closed up with Manager Eddie Keevin yesterday for Jimmy Walsh and Jimmy Gardner to fight in San Francisco on the night of June 24. It is understood that Walsh will fight Carroll, and that Gardner will meet Kyle Whitney, the crack negro welterweight. This will make a fine double bill for Berger's club, and while he did not get Welsh and McFarland by coming to Los Angeles, he picked up what looks llek a very good substitute.

This will be the last Sunday's work for Van Doozer, who is to meet Battling Johnson at the McCarey pavilion next Friday night, and to give the local fight bugs a chance to see him work in public, he will do his training stunts today at the Naud Junction pavilion, and will box in the wind-up with Jack (Twin) Sullivan. There is no missing the fact that Van thinks he will beat Johnson, and if he does, he should be able to made a stack of money in the ring.

Manager McCarey yesterday arranged his curtain-raiser for the Van Doozer-Battling Johnson fight by signing Bubbles Robinson and Young Fitzgerald, who will box six rounds at about 130 pounds. Fitzgerald is from San Francisco, and is said to be a good one.

BOXING BIFFS.

Faker Jack O'Brien and Jack Blackburn are supposed to box next Wednesday night in Philadelphia, but as the match has been postponed twice it may not come off at all. O'Brien declared he had a sore foot and he will probably have a very sore body when the negro finishes with him.

The Jimmy Walsh-Carroll fight at San Francisco on June 24 looks like a lot of easy money for Walsh, for Young McGovern held his own with Carroll here and little Mac in no demon. Both Walsh and Carroll are fancy boxers and should put up a pretty fight.

The scheme of admitting women to the Jeffries prize fight last week has caused a lot of very unfavorable comment on the management and it certainly did the game more harm than anything else that has happened here for a long time. Jeff has wisely barred all women from future bouts and has expressed his regret that he allowed any to attend the last one.

While Tommy Burns is not the greatest fighter in the world, he is the real champion of all of them for getting the money easily and that is all any one is in the business for. Since going to England he has made about $75,000, and all from beating big dubs that Sam Langford and Jack Johnson and probably Jim Flynn could beat as easily as Burns beat them. One can hardly blame Burns for side-stepping Johnson, whom the majority of the sports think would thrash him without much effort. In fact, Burns made the statement here in Los Angeles that he would not fight the black.

The recent decision of the courts in Delaware county, Pa., that virtually declares boxing legal, will boom the sport in that State. There is apparently no limit on the number of rounds, as long as the fights are "kept within the bounds of safety to the contestants." While the decision on the case at issue is not a great victory for the pug sport, the various promoters are happy over the result and look for a more open policy in the future.

A member of the Paris Municipal Council recently wrote a letter to the Prefect of Police in which he asked for the immediate suppression of the boxing matches that appear to be in store for the Parisians. The Councilman says it is disgraceful that such exhibitions are allowed and declared that if the police did not act, he would bring the matter up in the Municipal Council. The encouragement of the sport would certainly do away with the national pastime of fighting with swords.

Boxing seems to be taking on a new lease of life in New York and it is stated that two or three new clubs will be organized this week. One already has over 2000 members and another will occupy a new building that will seat more than Madison Square Garden. This latter club is called the Coliseum and is equipped with as fine a gymnasium as there is in the country. There are about one dozen clubs in New York now and the organization of new ones shows the sport is to the good in the big city.

If McFarland is figuring on fighting Gans after he finishes with Welsh, he should wait until he finishes Welsh. Freddie is getting the worst of the cut of the money in their coming fight, but declares he will meet McFarland under any old conditions.

The Reliance Club of Eureka has matched Jack Clifford and Rufe Turner to box twenty rounds on the night of June 20. They will fight at 135 pounds at 6 o'clock for 50 per cent. of the gross receipts, which they are to split 75 and 25.

BICYCLE RIDERS SIGN.

Thirty-five Professional Riders Promise to Take in Saucer Track Races.

Thirty-five professional bicyclists, comprising the entire Utah Cycle Fraternity, will enter the contests on the new saucer track at Seal Gardens, between July 4 and September 15. E. C. Pickering, manager of Seal Gardens, yesterday received a telegram from H. W. Heagren, manager of the Ogden saucer track, stating that the entire bunch of riders have signed for California.

This aggregation of speeders of the sharp angles will include Samuelson, Lawson and Jack Burris. All have made prominent records over the Salt Palace, Salt Air Beach and Ogden tracks.

Mr. Pickering expects, inside of the next few days, to sign up eight professionals of this city, and looks for daily entries.

A big try-out of the new track by many of the local men is to take place today.

Sculling Champions.

Professional sculling is to be revived in England next fall unless all indicatoins fail. The attempt to bring England's most promising sculler, Ernest Barry, and George Towns, the retired world's champion, together last fall, has been revived, this time by the New Zealander, who having won the Sportsman Cup and English championship twice, now signifies his willingness to take Barry on for a race next September, to be rowed on the Thames.

ON THE LONG RANGES.

NEW SKIRMISH SYSTEM FOR TARGET PRACTICE.

AMERICAN military riflemen are to secure a new target practice should the new board on revision of the firing regulations for small arms adopt the skirmish system which has been so successfully tested at the school of musketry at Monterey, Cal., and in the Philippines, or the Australian skirmish system.

Capt. R. H. Allen of the Twenty-seventh Infantry, who is stationed in the Philippines, is one of the officers ordered to America to compete for a place on the army teams to shoot in the great national matches to be held at Camp Perry, O., in August. Last year the navy carried off the national trophy, so this year the War Department called on the Philippines to send their most expert marksmen to the United States to try for places on the infantry and cavalry and two officers and three enlisted men were sent from the cavalry and six officers and one enlisted man from the infantry. The trip will take from six to eight months and all to compete for places on teams which will meet the teams from the navy and marine corps and forty States and Territories in the greatest rifle match America has yet seen.

Capt. Allen holds the records for shooting under the Australian skirmish system. Beginning at 600 yards he fired forty shots at the silhouette target, stopping at 200 yards. Out of these forty shots he made thirty hits. The total exposure of the silhouette was sixty seconds, but allowance must be made for the time it takes a bullet to cover the distance. This allowance is eight-tenths of a second at 600 yards and for the five halts amounts to about ten seconds. Therefore, Capt. Allen fired a shot every second and a quarter that the target was exposed and firing was possible and three out of every four shots found their lodgment in the head and shoulders of an "enemy" peering over an embankment.

LOTS OF AMMUNITION.

In the Australian skirmish unlimited ammunition is allowed. The firing is at unknown distances and the "enemy" appears only long enough to fire a shot and exposes nothing but the head and shoulders, as would probably be the case in actual warfare. He is dressed in olive drab or khaki and his clothes mingle with the landscape and background so as to make him almost invisible at 600 yards. The men fire and he "ducks." They advance and the same maneuver takes place. By the time they have reached 200 yards it is safe to say that every man of the enemy who has poked his head above the embankment has been killed or disabled and the subsequent charge is attended with little danger. When the Philippine sharpshooters started this practice a total of fifteen shots on a figure was a big record. After several weeks of practice the team averaged twenty-five hits per man. No enemy could expose themselves over breastworks long enough to fire shots and live in the face of an attack by such sharpshooters.

The team also tried the "moving targets" in the Philippines, both in the division competition, where it was made a special feature, and in the practice for the international match. The moving targets are placed on a track and run back and forth across the range. The track undulates and by means of a drumhead and an engine the targets move at various rates of speed at the will of the officer in charge. They were colored black, khaki and green olive drab down to a dark green, the color of the grass. At the division competition they were the dark green, but olive drab was used on the skirmish run because of the difficulty in seeing the khaki figures at 600 yards. The moving targets are the head and shoulders as in the Australian skirmish, but are slightly enlarged. The kneeling figure of the ordinary silhouette is omitted.

When the team first began firing at the moving targets two hits in ten shots was considered good, but at the end from 50 to 70 per cent. of the shots told.

DISAPPEARING TARGETS.

They also use the disappearing targets on a system slightly different from the Australian skirmish. They are mounted on gas pipe with a handle at the end turned by a man with a stop watch in his hand. Starting at 600 yards the team advances on the double-quick until the targets flash up. Then the men drop, wherever they may be, and fire as fast as they can. Suddenly the targets drop and the men make another advance. Altogether there are seven halts, the targets being exposed forty seconds at 500 and 600 yards and thirty seconds at the other stops. They come up at unknown times and the men have to load while advancing at double time instead of quick time, as in the ordinary skirmish.

There is no question that for service

American roads are rough.

The Mitchell Automobile, for 10 years has been built for these roads.

On these roads it has won its way until now it has the largest sale in its class.

2200 Mitchells were sold this season.

600 men are employed in the Mitchell factory.

You will get better results on rough roads or smooth, from a car such as ours, which is light.

Some people pay fabulous prices for cars made in Europe—but that is all wrong.

The roads of Europe are the finest on earth.

So the Automobiles made there are built more for speed than endurance, and many high-powered American cars are built along the same lines.

They carry big motors of very high power.

The frames of these cars must be heavily made to support the great weight of the engines.

Their bodies are hung very close to the ground. Road clearance is little. Such cars are not made for rough roads.

And then there is cost to consider.

Cars of great weight cause a great deal of tire expense.

They need more fuel and more oil.

The friction is greater—bearings wear quicker. Repairs are many. And in the case of the foreign car, new parts are hard to get quickly.

The Mitchell has power enough for all hills and some speed.

The Mitchell is built for rough roads, with plenty of clearance.

The frame stands the wrenching and twisting it gets on rough roads.

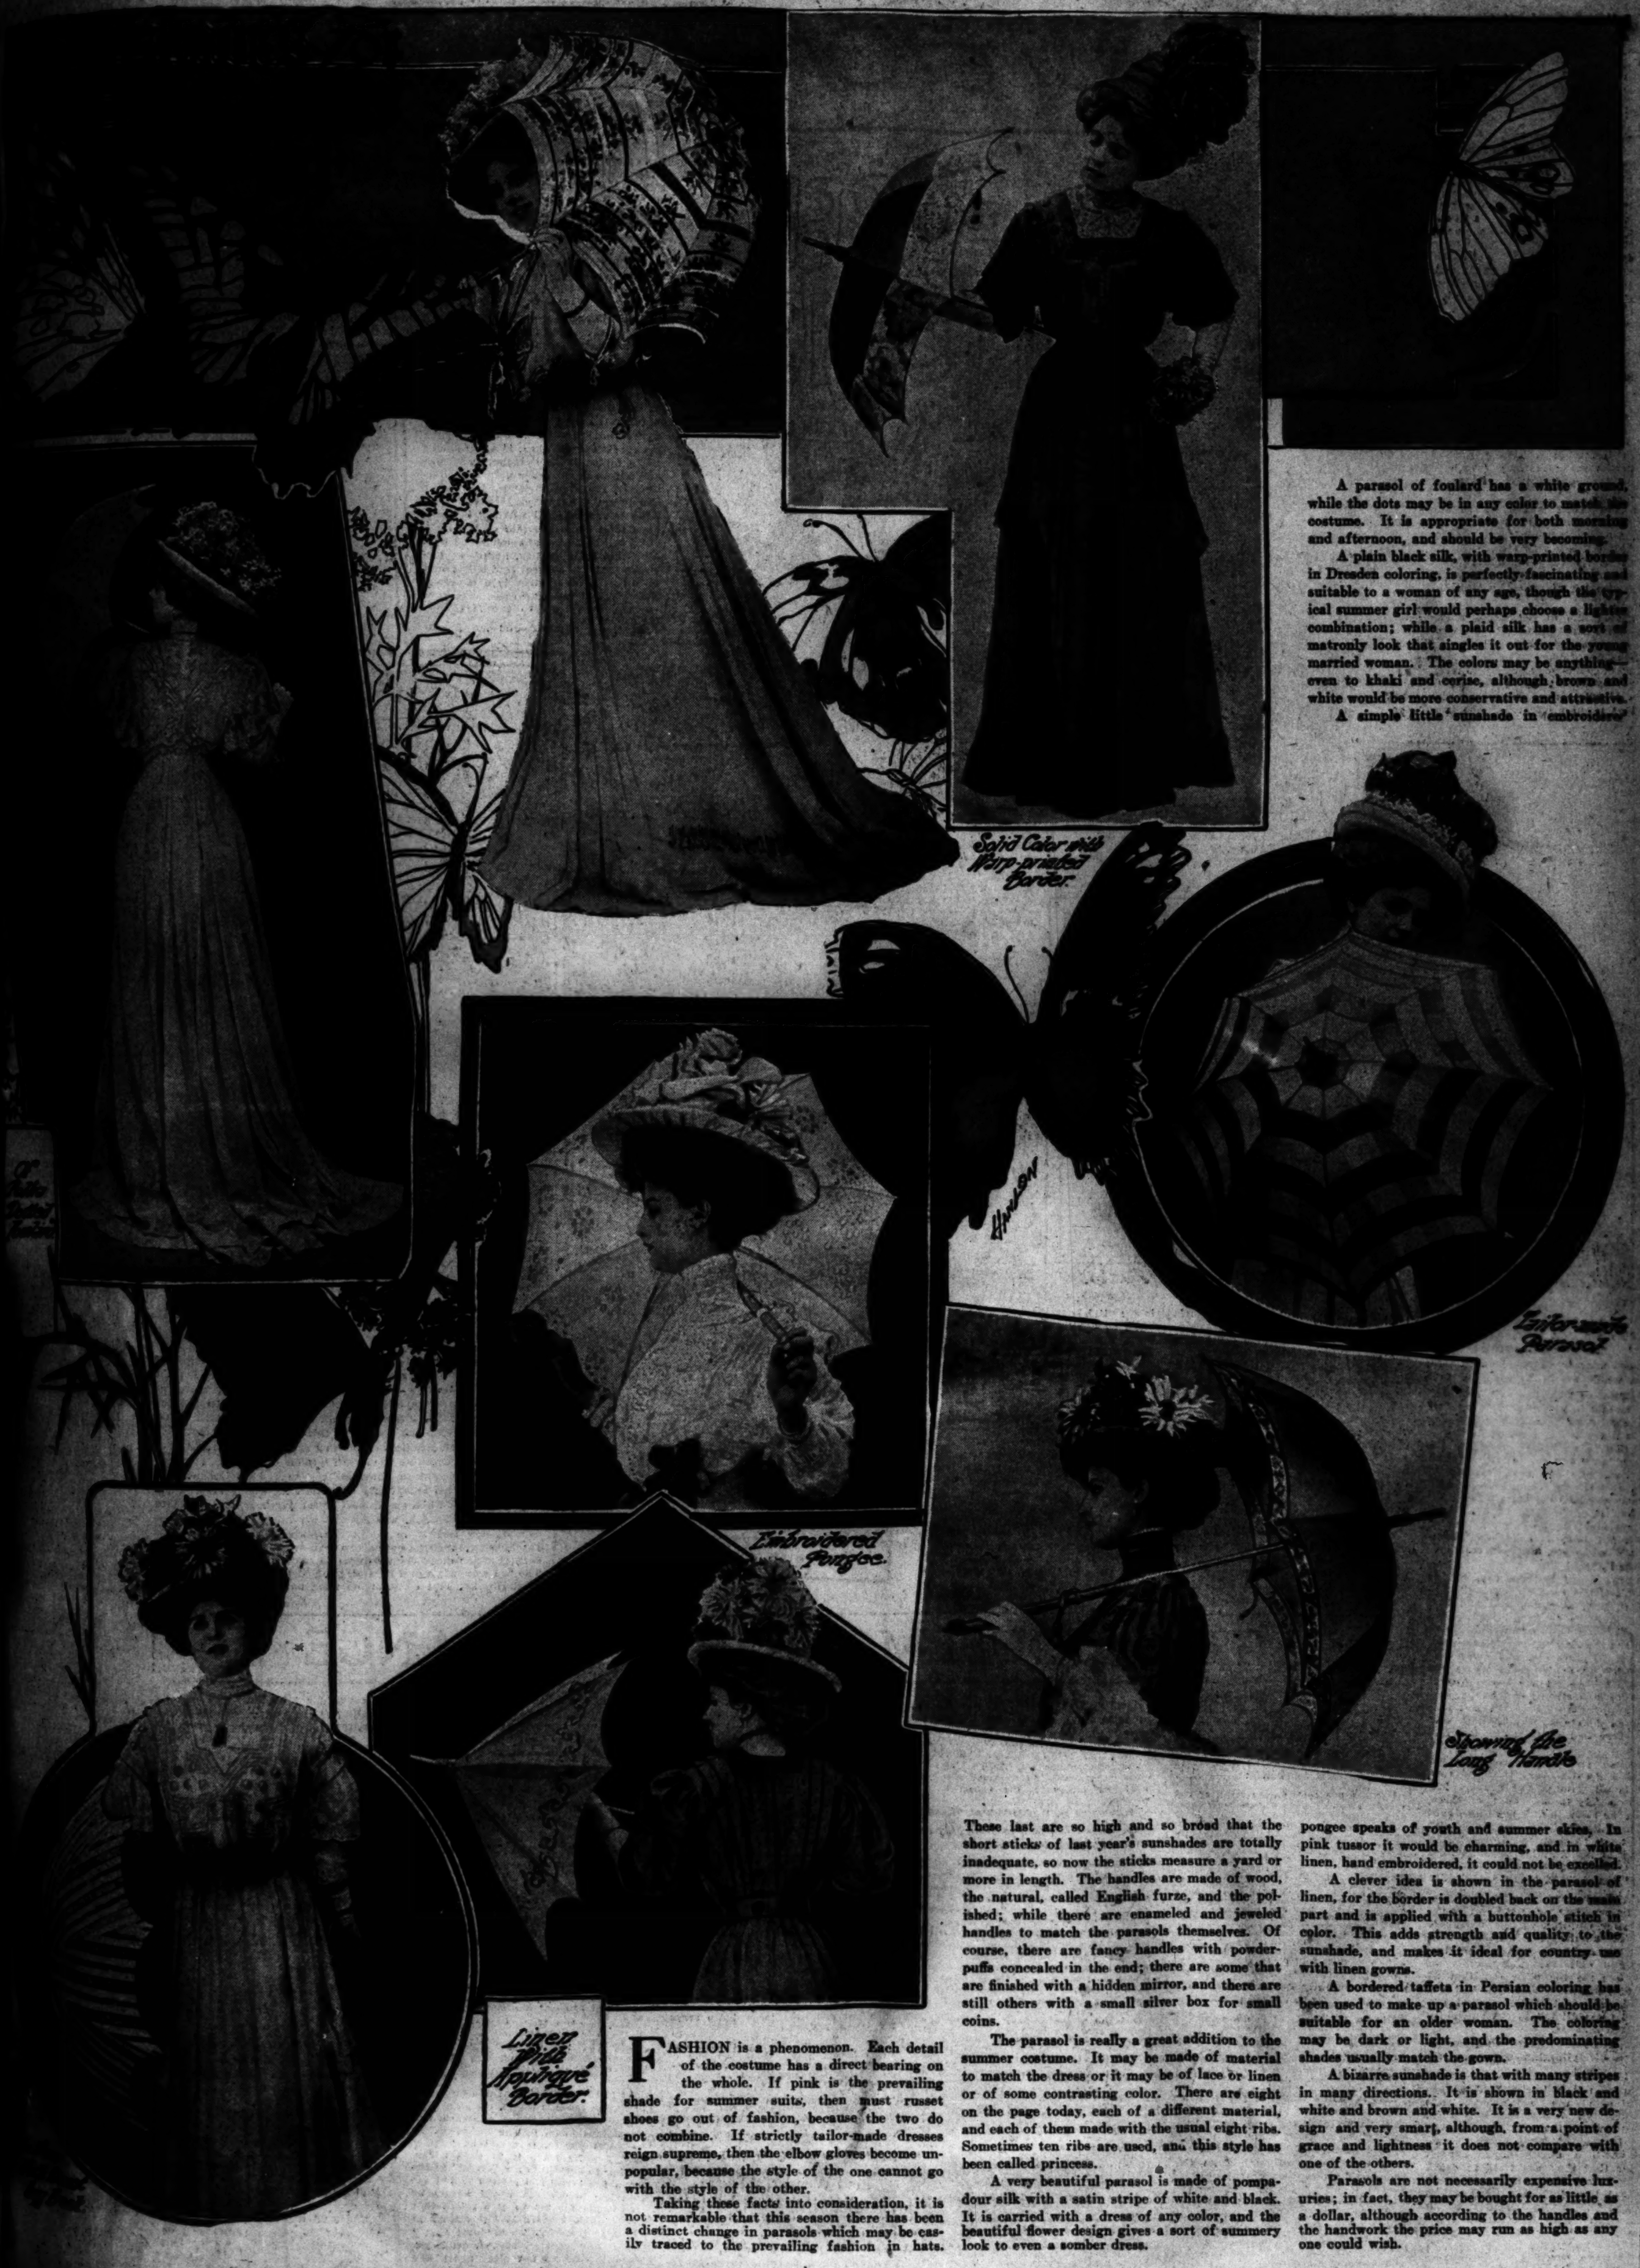
BUSTER BROWN -



Of Polka Dotted Foulard

Solid Color with Warp-printed Border.

Tailor-made Parasol

Embroidered Pongee.

Showing the Long Handle

Linen with Appliqué Border.

FASHION is a phenomenon. Each detail of the costume has a direct bearing on the whole. If pink is the prevailing shade for summer suits, then must russet shoes go out of fashion, because the two do not combine. If strictly tailor-made dresses reign supreme, then the elbow gloves become unpopular, because the style of the one cannot go with the style of the other.

Taking these facts into consideration, it is not remarkable that this season there has been a distinct change in parasols which may be easily traced to the prevailing fashion in hats. These last are so high and so broad that the short sticks of last year's sunshades are totally inadequate, so now the sticks measure a yard or more in length. The handles are made of wood, the natural, called English furze, and the polished; while there are enameled and jeweled handles to match the parasols themselves. Of course, there are fancy handles with powder-puffs concealed in the end; there are some that are finished with a hidden mirror, and there are still others with a small silver box for small coins.

The parasol is really a great addition to the summer costume. It may be made of material to match the dress or it may be of lace or linen or of some contrasting color. There are eight on the page today, each of a different material, and each of them made with the usual eight ribs. Sometimes ten ribs are used, and this style has been called princess.

A very beautiful parasol is made of pompadour silk with a satin stripe of white and black. It is carried with a dress of any color, and the beautiful flower design gives a sort of summery look to even a somber dress.

A parasol of foulard has a white ground, while the dots may be in any color to match the costume. It is appropriate for both morning and afternoon, and should be very becoming.

A plain black silk, with warp-printed border in Dresden coloring, is perfectly fascinating and suitable to a woman of any age, though the typical summer girl would perhaps choose a lighter combination; while a plaid silk has a sort of matronly look that singles it out for the young married woman. The colors may be anything—even to khaki and cerise, although brown and white would be more conservative and attractive.

A simple little sunshade in embroidered pongee speaks of youth and summer skies. In pink tussor it would be charming, and in white linen, hand embroidered, it could not be excelled.

A clever idea is shown in the parasol of linen, for the border is doubled back on the main part and is applied with a buttonhole stitch in color. This adds strength and quality to the sunshade, and makes it ideal for country use with linen gowns.

A bordered taffeta in Persian coloring has been used to make up a parasol which should be suitable for an older woman. The coloring may be dark or light, and the predominating shades usually match the gown.

A bizarre sunshade is that with many stripes in many directions. It is shown in black and white and brown and white. It is a very new design and very smart, although, from a point of grace and lightness it does not compare with one of the others.

Parasols are not necessarily expensive luxuries; in fact, they may be bought for as little as a dollar, although according to the handles and the handwork the price may run as high as any one could wish.

TIRED MOTHERS

"Her Baby Will Not Sleep When He Ought."

UCH a "stack" of letters as I received in answer to one poor little woman's tale of woe with regard to her baby, who will not p when he ought and won't lie still his crib when his tired mother would recoup the energies exhausted by day-long services in his behalf, aroused me to a sense of the emi- t propriety, if not the necessity, of ing action on the burning subject ve quoted.

rom the aforementioned "stack" I w one written by a woman younger than the worn-down sister who ered the complaint. The experience details is, therefore, fresh in her d, and better worth the hearing mine would be. I had my sys. and it worked passably well—he I flattered myself by believing. e then I have had so much to do h children of a larger growth earlier memories may have been ewhat affected by the tramp of rs.

If 'Tired Mother' would me have that baby for a week engage to break him into regular its, or know the reason why. I always had a heap of respect Susanna Wesley, the mother of rles and John and seventeen other dren. (But wouldn't she delight Roosevelt's inmost soul? He would have given her the Victoria Cross or its equivalent.)

"Susanna Wesley trained her babies not to cry by the time they were a year old. After that not one of them ever so much as whimpered.

"'I taught each not to cry,' she says, 'mostly by fear.'

"Wasn't it better for child and for mother for her to inculcate that fear (I call it a wholesome sentiment, myself!) than to let him be a terror to the neighborhood and to wear her down to skin and bones?

"The greatest good to the greatest number! say I. I'm free to confess—and I'm not ashamed of it—that when my babies (I have raised six) wouldn't hush crying when I knew they were well and comfortable, I gave them something to cry for. They know the sight of a little willow switch cut from a tree at the back door by the time they were 6 months old. After that all I had to do was to shake it, and the bellow was smothered into a whimper, and the whimper into a sob.

"Don't talk to me about the danger of 'breaking a child's spirit and checking the growth of its individuality'! That's the cant of the new school of wives and mothers. I say that a spoiled child is a curse to itself, to its parents and to the world. Some mothers don't seem to mind being disobeyed and defied and made doormats of in general. I do! I don't call myself a bad-tempered woman, but this I will say: I never had patience enough to submit to having a disobedient child.

"My baby is now 17, and a finer lad of his age never stepped. Three of the others are married, and, I am proud to say, bringing up their children as they themselves were trained—to be a joy, and not a torment, to their parents. They are healthy and strong and happy, with more than enough spirits and individuality to go around. I never have a cross word or unkind look from one of them. I have kept on with them as I began. If one of us had to have his or her own way when they were little, I made up my mind who it should be—and I stuck to it!

"'Tired Mother' will think me a virago, and I have no expectation of ever seeing this in print. Such ideas are clean behind the age. But I just had to speak—or die!

"MARIA M. C. (Pensacola, Fla.)."

I should not venture to print my contemporary's letter, word for word, as she wrote it, if I had enjoyed her frankness and whole-souled indignation one whit less than I have. I know the type, and I respect it when I reflect upon the fine men and women trained up under hands at once vigorous and tender. I may not believe in whipping a 6-month-old baby. I never felt called upon to do it. I do agree heartily with our southern member's opinion that, if a woman of 25 is pitted in knowledge, judgment and will against a baby of five months' or five years' experience, the latter should go (figuratively) to the wall. Always supposing the parent is not a born idiot. The twaddle of letting a child retain a rampant spirit and preserve his individuality, before he has been taught to control that spirit, and to direct individuality into decorous channels and gracious lines, is as abhorrent to me as to the strenuous mother of six.

"I Gave Them Something to Cry For."

"All Around the Top I Sewed a Soft Roll of Cloth."

And be it observed—and not forgotten—that the children whose personality has been allowed to grow unchecked by parental restraint or pruning, are not the most affectionate and dutiful in youth or in maturity. The spoiled favorite of injudicious mother or father is not the one of all the flock who loves the parent most fondly in after years.

If I let my pen run further in this channel I shall not have room for a brief, practical letter from a Chicago woman. I have chosen a representative from each quarter of our vast territory.

"Might I suggest to 'Tired Mother' that she holds and dandles her baby too much? By the time each of my three was 2 months old I had him spend most of the day in a wadded clothes basket, which, I think, was my own invention. I folded a small comfort and laid it in the bottom, covering it with a rubber sheet, and this with a cotton one. All around the top I sewed a soft, stuffed roll of cloth covered to match the cretonne lining. The bed was soft, warm in winter and cool in summer. The sides of the basket kept off draughts from baby while he slept, and

THE HOUSEMOTHERS' EXCHANGE

A MASCULINE member of the Exchange (and one who is kindly appreciative of our means and ends) is our first visitor today. His communication touches upon a matter of great and growing interest to egg raisers and consumers:

I should like to have you speak of the various approved ways of preserving eggs, particularly that by liquid glass. I have but a vague idea as to the modus operandi of this process. I was told to dissolve the liquid glass in the proportion of one pint of it to eight pints of water, then to dip the eggs in this and let them drain. I do not know whether or not these are the right proportions and if this is the proper method. I am seeking enlightenment from the Exchange on this head. I wish, also, to hear of other ways of keeping eggs; and does the government issue any literature on the subject? We have a good many of our own eggs, and wish to preserve them against the time when they will be scarce and high.

GEORGE K. H. (Maywood, Ill.).

Instructions for preserving eggs in liquid glass (silicate of soda) have appeared frequently in our Corner. The rules given may be thus condensed:

Mix the "liquid glass" in the proportion of one part of silicate to fourteen parts of water; put into a crockery jar and shake well; cover and let it stand all night. When fully dissolved it is ready for use. Pack the eggs in a crock, small ends downward, and cover well with the mixture. Fit on a cover and keep in a cool, dry place.

This is the substance of the formulas received in answer to other querists. I do not now recall the exact title of the sub-division of the Department of Agriculture that would take cognizance of your request for information on this point. I imagine that "the bureau of animal industry" should comprise the work of such diligent industrial agents as the hens, ducks, etc. Somebody else will give you more definite directions when this has been published. Meanwhile, avail yourself of my snapshot and write to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., for circulars and reports pertaining to the egg industry.

Historic Recipe for Whitewash

I think it must have been five years since you published, by request, "Government Recipe for Whitewash." We are building, and have not a little whitewashing to do indoors and out. Am I asking too much in requesting for a republication of what we considered the nonpareil of washes?

HERBERT M. R. (Marblehead, Mass.).

We reprint the "nonpareil" exactly as it was given in a former issue:

Half a bushel unslaked lime; slake with warm water; cover it during the process to keep the steam; strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer; add a peck of salt, previously well dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice, boiled to a thin paste, and stir in boiling hot; half pound of powdered Spanish whiting and a pound of glue which has been previously dissolved over a slow fire; add five gallons hot water to the mixture; stir well and let it stand a few days; cover up from the dirt. It should be put on hot.

One pint of the mixture will cover one square yard, properly applied. Small brushes are best. There is nothing to compare with it for outside or inside work, and it retains its brilliancy for many years. Coloring matter may be put in, and made of any shade—Spanish brown, yellow ocher or common clay, etc.

The principal point in preparing lime whitewash is to have the lime well slaked. Select good builders' lime, soak it with warm water and allow it to fall into fine powder in the open air. Then, if wanted for inside and so prepared that it will not rub off, make it very thin with water, and to every pail add a pint of flour, previously made into starch or paste; or, better still, dissolve two pounds of ordinary alum in boiling water and add this solution to every two-gallon pail of whitewash.

Apply the first coat very thin, so as to bind it on the wall, and the addition of alum will prevent the second coat from rubbing up the first coat, thereby making a more uniform surface.

For outdoor work, slake one pound of lime as above. Then take one-quarter pound Burgundy pitch and dissolve by gentle heat in a pint of linseed oil; now add to the hot lime one gallon skimmed milk, then the mixture of pitch and oil a little at a time, stirring all the while. Finally add three pounds of bolted whiting. If too stout to work evenly, add more skimmed milk. The addition of one part of salt to three parts by weight of lime, or thinning the unslaked lime with the brine of a mackerel or salt herring barrel, will also make a whitewash with enough "binder" to stand the weather.

The original recipe was signed by General Grant and dated "Washington, December 1, 1871."

At the bottom of the page was written: "To my dear friend, J. Bulson, San Francisco.

"P. S.—I whitewashed the White House all over with it. Yours,

"U. S. G."

Your nonpareil is, therefore, a historical relic.

As I have had three other requests for the formula, will applicants clip this copy out and preserve it safely, that I may not have to repeat it for another five years?

A Tiptop Recipe

Can you find room for a tiptop recipe for lemon pudding?

Lemon Pudding.

One lemon, sliced thin; one cup of sugar; one cup of boiling water, poured over these ingredients and set on the stove to keep hot.

Second part:

Butter, the size of an egg; one cup of sugar; one egg; one and a half cups of flour; half a teaspoonful of baking powder. Mix and pour over the first part in pan. Bake half an hour. Beat the white of one egg to a meringue with white sugar, and spread over the pudding when it is done.

E. K. (Steger, Ill.).

Had Wonderful Success

I should like to say to "Housemother" of Philadelphia that I tried her suggestion about crumbling the compressed yeast cake dry into the flour, and had wonderful success. It rose quickly and was much nicer in every respect than when added in the old way.

Mrs. J. M. P. (Charlotte, N. C.).

You do us a genuine favor in reporting your test and success. When one says, "Try my way, and let me hear how it turns out!" then gets no reply, it is like calling into the dark to a friend and hearing nothing except the dreary echo of one's own voice. You have done a gracious and a just thing in saying to a fellow-housemother, "You have helped me." If only so many of us did not trample on the daisies while straining our eyes toward the stars, the world would be a happier place to live in.

Wants Prices and Particulars

I wish more housekeepers would submit us menus within the means of those who, like myself, are in limited circumstances. I would likewise suggest that they state the price of each article used in each meal. It might be well for them to mention the quantity also needed for the individual eater.

I notice in your menus that "a cereal" has place every day at breakfast. Please say just what is meant. Of course "cereal" is edible grain. But "cereal" must have something to go with it. Won't you, in future, tell us what particular cereal you mean?

I hope "A Little Mother" (Chicago) will come again soon, for I am interested in the bread making. She must tells us all about it.

And, dear Mrs. Harland, don't you think if the illustrations were omitted, it would be to our advantage? It would give that much more space for letters and the exchange of ideas. I trust this will meet with your approval.

MRS. A. E. A. (Columbus, Ga.).

As to the cereal—the name of patented breakfast foods is legion. And the mention of any proprietary preparation is sternly forbidden in The Exchange. In technical phrase, it would be "a free ad." I must leave it to each housemother to substitute for "cereal" in the menu the brand she prefers to put before her brood. It would hardly be practicable for me to give prices that would guide readers in all sections of our wide territory. In my own city, I find a difference of several cents per pound in avenues one block apart, and even on different sides of the same street.

If the constituency at large did not demand an "illustrated" page, the pictures would not be there. In this, as in all else pertaining to newspaper work, the will of the majority prevails.

Another Way to Make Goulash

In reply to repeated and vehement calls for Hungarian goulash, an esteemed contributor favors us with the recipe printed below. May I ask—almost as vehemently—that those who covet the national dish will file or paste away this formula so safely that I shall not be compelled to repeat it for a year to come? Time is short and space is scanty.

Hungarian Goulash.

Saute a large onion cut in slices in two tablespoonfuls of salt pork fat. Add one and a half pounds of lean veal cut into inch cubes, and cook until slightly browned. Add to this two cups of boiling water, a pepper pod cut fine and three-quarters of a teaspoonful of caraway seed. Let all simmer two hours, adding more boiling water if necessary. There should be at least one cupful of liquid in the saucepan when the cooking is complete. Stir in half a teaspoonful of salt and thicken with a tablespoonful of flour blended smoothly with two of cold water.

I cut this recipe from your paper some time ago and have it pasted with others in a blank book.

E. L. T. (La Grange, Ill.).

It would save me a deal of trouble if other housewives would imitate you in this particular.

I have set down the recipe just as you give it. But should not the flour used for thickening be browned? The practice of thickening savory dishes with uncooked flour is characterised by a French chef as "barbarous, unskilful and—English"!

Friendly Suggestions

Do you know that a tablespoonful of vinegar poured over meat just before putting it on to cook will make it tender?

To keep silverware from becoming dull, always add a little ammonia to the water and never use soap.

FRIENDLY (Chicago).

Thank you for the kindly lift!

But [illegible] he was loath to begin [illegible] slowly he squeezed the [illegible] tubes and began mix- [illegible] upon his palette. A sudden [illegible] to him. [illegible]," said he to himself, [illegible] the first time I am to use [illegible] palette. It was a queer old [illegible] told me its story when I [illegible] other day in a curio shop. He told me that whatever colors were mixed upon it acquired magic properties. A magic palette! What an odd conceit!

"In any event, I hope the palette brings good luck to my painting," and the artist laughed whimsically.

But all at once he paused in his laughter. He sat for a moment looking thoughtfully before him, then, very absent-mindedly, he picked up a scallop shell that lay beside his camp stool. Still without seeming to observe what he was doing, he placed the shell upon his canvas, to which, strange to say, it firmly adhered. Its regular convolutions made the daintiest kind of a bonnet. With a pencil, he lightly sketched the figure of a woman below it. Then he carefully painted the figure in grey, adding a touch of bright color for the bow on the bonnet.

Again he paused, reached for another shell, and laid it upon his canvas. The umbo, or crook of the shell, he turned upward; and, rapidly sketching, soon he had a jolly old man in a bathing suit. A dab of color transformed the bathing suit into a beautiful dark red.

The artist leaned back to admire his work, when, to his great astonishment, the little figures before him leaped from the canvas and scurried away over the sand. The colors from his magic palette had brought the drawings to life.

Now that the canvas was perfectly clean, the artist might readily have begun his painting. But all desire for work had left him. He could think of nothing but his magic palette and the remarkable creation of Mr. and Mrs. Sea-Shell, as he had already christened them.

His train of thought was broken by a series of squeaks coming, apparently, from the ground. Looking downward, the painter saw Mr. and Mrs. Sea-Shell, both of whom seemed to be violently agitated.

"Oh, Mr. Artist," squeaked Mr. Sea-Shell, "we have had a terrible adventure. A horrid creature tried to seize us in his big claws, and it was only by running as fast as ever we could that we managed to escape."

"I suppose it was a lobster," commented the artist.

Here Mrs. Sea-Shell began to scream and weep anew at the recollection. "Mr. Artist," pleaded she, "if we poor Sea-Shells are to be exposed to such frightful dangers, there really should be more of us, so that we may band together for strength. Won't you add a few members to the Sea-Shell family?"

"I shall see what I can do," replied the painter, kindly.

Under the Spell of a Mummy Sorcerer

Synopsis of Previous Instalments.

RAY AND RAYMOND, twins, visit a natural history museum to inspect the fossil collection. They are locked in. During the night a mummy high priest of the Egyptians, angry at their intrusion, sends them back millions of years to live with the animals whose bones they have been examining. They attend a meeting of the toothed birds, but this gathering is dispersed by two great monsters. Fleeing toward the sea, the twins encounter the jovial Zeuglodon, who invites them to ride upon his back. They witness a battle of sea monsters and make the acquaintance of the witty Cuttlefish. Mrs. Hoppy Dromatherium saves them from the Saber-toothed Tiger, but she leaps with them over a high cliff. The twins awake to find themselves in the Tertiary Age. A reunion of different families of animals is to be held in the forest. Raymond is promised by the Mastodon that there shall be a circus as soon as the other families arrive.

Chapter VI

IN THE POWER OF THE MEGATHERIUM.

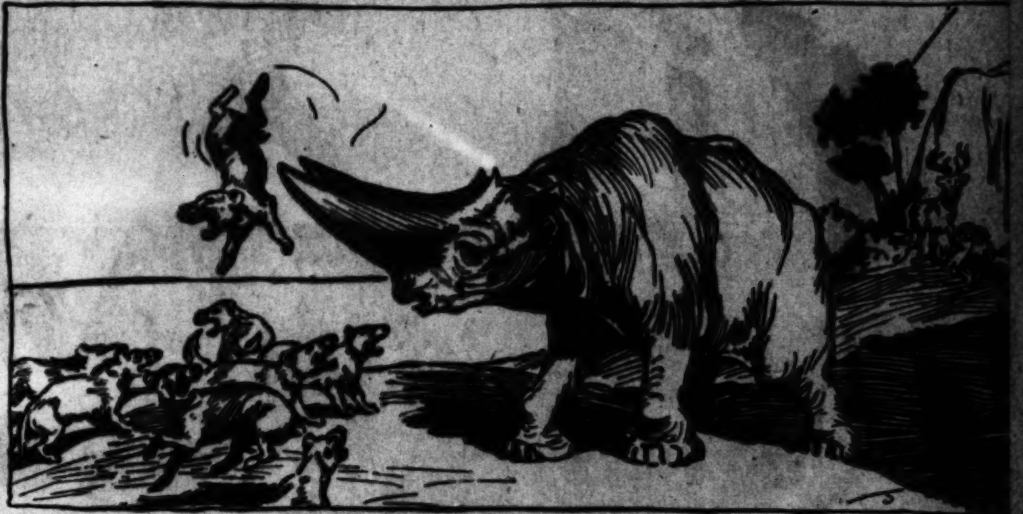
WHILE Raymond and his sister were discussing with delightful anticipation the circus which was shortly to be given, another "family" approached tumultuously through the forest. Soon the Woolly Rhinoceros, with his ancestors, entered the open space which the Mastodon had cleared of trees and underbrush. He was a terrible looking fellow. His massive limbs were covered with hair like that of the Mastodon, although the shaggy mane of the Mastodon was lacking. Upon his nose were double horns and he possessed chambered nostrils.

But in spite of his terrifying appearance, the Woolly Rhinoceros proved himself a very agreeable companion.

"Would you not like to walk with me for a while?" asked he of the twins. "It will be some time, you know, before arrangements for the circus can be completed," he added.

The Mastodon good-naturedly offered to lift them to their friend's back. Soon they were moving rapidly through the forest, the Rhinoceros beguiling the time with pleasing conversation.

Hardly had they emerged from the forest when the twins felt their blood curdle at the horrible snarls and shrieks that greeted them.



"CATCHING THEM UPON HIS HORNS AND TOSSING THEM IN THE AIR"

"The Hyenadonts!" angrily exclaimed the Rhinoceros.

"I'm inclined to give the pesky little brutes a lesson in minding their own business," continued he, "and if you children won't mind standing to one side, I'll attend very shortly to the whole pack."

Ray and Raymond hastily scrambled from the huge animal's back while he was in a kneeling position and ran quickly to the rocky wall behind them.

Thereupon the Rhinoceros waded into the midst of the snapping Hyenadonts, catching them upon his horns and tossing them high in the air.

"Interesting, isn't it?" observed some one at the side of the twins.

They turned, in surprise, to see a creature with the head and body of a giant dog and the scaly tail of a reptile. Antlers like those of a deer spread from his forehead.

"My name is Tony Megatherium," said the animal, "and I beg your pardon for having frightened you so."

After the twins replied that they were only too glad to make his acquaintance, the three silently watched the Rhinoceros giving his "lesson" to the Hyenadonts.

Presently Tony betrayed much uneasiness. He murmured anxiously to the twins:

"Your friend, in his zeal, has put too great a space between himself and you. These little brutes are as savage as can be, and should they observe you here, unprotected, they would rend you to pieces before the Rhinoceros could come to the rescue. Suppose you climb upon my back. We'll go to a place of safety, and when your murderous friend is disengaged we can return."

Acting upon this suggestion, the twins found themselves speeding through the forest. Several miles had Tony traveled before he paused in a sheltered hollow of the wood.

"How do you like this place?" he asked.

Ray and Raymond could not see very far, for the great trees, covered with foliage, interfered with their view on every side. But they admitted it was a very nice spot, indeed.

"I'm glad you like it, because I want you to stay here with me always," responded Tony.

"Always!" exclaimed the twins.

"Yes," replied Tony, passionately; "won't you give me a little happiness? I haven't one friend among all the animals. They abuse me; they make life miserable for me. And I'm so lonely! Won't you stay and play with me?"

Then he added, fiercely, with a wicked gleam in his eyes:

"You can't escape, anyhow. I have you in my power. So you'd better stay and make the best of it."

At first Ray and Raymond felt very sorry for poor Tony, who was so sad in his loneliness. But when his melancholy mood changed to that of ferocity, they became frightened. Certainly they desired to remain with him no longer than they could help.

For many hours the Megatherium watched the two closely. Then he sank to the ground, and as though overcome by his own misery, sank his head upon the ground and sobbed, apparently unaware of the twins' presence.

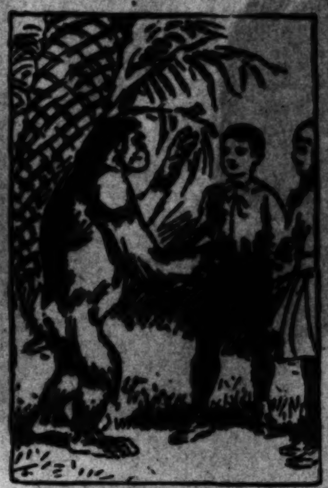
Grasping his sister's arm, Raymond pulled her away. Together they tiptoed further into the forest, breaking into a run when they were out of the Megatherium's sight.

Chapter VII

DISCOVERY OF THE MISSING LINK.

LONG time the boy and girl journeyed through the forest, starting at every shadow that lay in their path, in fear lest the malignant Tony be disclosed lurking behind bush or tree.

Ray affrightedly clutched the arm of her brother. "I am sure I heard something following us," whispered she.



THE LINK APPEARS

Both stopped and listened intently. Yes, that soft, rustling tread was unmistakable. Occasionally it would pause; then again they would hear it, coming directly toward them. When it would seem that their visitor must be almost upon them, the sound ceased altogether. Then the twins felt a creepy sensation, as though some one were watching them.

"It's no use to hide; because I'm positive he sees us, whoever he is," gasped Ray.

For answer, Raymond pointed to a screening of vines and underbrush, from the midst of which a pair of fierce eyes glared balefully. Observing that he had been discovered, the owner of the eyes straightway made his appearance.

Ray and Raymond were almost overcome with astonishment, for the creature more nearly resembled a human being than a beast. It is true he was covered with hair, and had the long, overdeveloped arms of the ape; but the face itself bore no hair and the skin, although bronzed to a dark brown, was of the texture of man's.

Very cautiously their visitor advanced. When he was within a few paces of them he came to a halt.

"Who are you?" he growled.

"We are two human beings on a visit here," replied Raymond. "May we ask whom we have the privilege of addressing?"

"I'm not quite sure that I myself know," was the response. "All the animals disown me, and either flee from me or slyly try to kill me. Not so very far from here, in caves, there live creatures who call themselves human beings; but, although they look very much like me, except they have not so much hair upon their bodies, they, too, deny me the right to call myself one of them. So I am named the Link, or the Pith-e-can-thro-pus; nor can I tell whether I am man or beast. What I do know is that every living creature is against me."

Here Raymond advanced, and, impulsively seizing the hand of the Link, cried:

"No, every one is not against you. We are your friends."

Whereupon the look of gloom which had settled upon the face of the Link disappeared. Smiles of gratitude flitted across his countenance as he murmured his thanks.

"You are so different from t cave men," said he; "you seem to u derstand me as no one else does, a you are so nice and kind that I lo you."

A troop of monkeys, which had be swinging their way from one tree another, now chattered and jabber louder. But immediately they s the Link they took a hurried dep ture, screaming in fright.

"Even the apes and the monke and the gorillas hold me their e emy," muttered the Link, sadly.

The twins were endeavoring to co fort their friend, when they heard tearing of tree limbs in front of th and the ground began to shake und heavy footfalls.

"Get out of the way of Big-Tusk roared the Link. Suiting the action the word, he fled without a sin look behind him.

"Why, it's our acquaintance, t Mammoth!" exclaimed Ray, in gr relief, as that member of the M todon's family came into view, sha ing his black mane and trumpeti his joy at meeting the twins agai

"We've been scouring the count for you," said the Mammoth, af greetings had been exchanged. " Woolly Rhinoceros was hopping m when he learned that the crab Tony had run away with you. I p the wretch if Rhiney gets hold him."

"But what about the circu eagerly asked Raymond.

"I'm sorry, indeed, to disappo you, children; but, you see, we c make the different families stay gether for only a short time to h the reunion, and as nobody except two knew anything about circus all the animals have separated this time. In truth, a great many them have been helping search you."

The twins were sorry, of cou that there would be no circus. they were pleased to find what fav ites of the animals they had beco They assured the Mammoth that t appreciated this kindness more th words could express.

"Pshaw, don't mention it! We ca help being fond of you," and Mammoth beamed in the jolliest w imaginable. Without another w he picked them from the grou with his trunk and seated them u his back. Marching through the f est, soon they came on a broad pa made, as the Mammoth explained, the progress of the Mammoths their drinking places. Trees had be uprooted and scattered by the w side. The ground had been pound hard and flat.

All at once a rumbling sound ca from behind.

"Ah! here comes the herd now," s the Mammoth. He walked very slo ly until the rumbling grew into veritable thunderstorm, and the r of the herd, amid clouds of dust, ca bellowing and trumpeting up them.

Ray and Raymond fairly tingl with excitement. They shouted a jested with the Mammoths as the h continued its way toward the riv But they were not to reach that de tination before another adventu overtook them. The leader of Mammoths trumpeted a shrill, war ing note. Instantly every Mamm stood stock still for a moment. Th with the quickness of well-train soldiers, the females, young Ma moths and the aged were huddled gether, while the bull warriors for ed a circle about them. Raising th trunks, they presented their lo curved tusks and bellowed defiance the enemy.

The twins awaited the outcome anxious suspense, not knowing wh danger threatened.

MYSTERIOUS PELLETS

AGES ago there lived in Italy a young physician named Gallio. Among this doctor's treasures was a huge volume containing recipes for wonderful potions and medicines used by the Arabs.

One day he conceived the idea of making a pill after one of the Arabian formulas and of painting in prominent places this inscription:

THE PILLS OF DOCTOR GALLIO
RESTORE HEALTH

Now, at this time, such signs—or, indeed, advertising of any sort—was entirely unknown. Therefore, no sooner had the notice appeared than the physician was besieged with patients. They came to him in flocks; fees poured in.

A poor, ignorant countryman passing a sign, asked a bystander for the meaning of these words, for he himself could not read. He went on his way reflecting.

"If the pills of the doctor will bring back one's health, perhaps they will also restore to me the donkey which has strayed from my field," thought he.

So the peasant bought several of the pills. Returning home, he swallowed the pills. Then he lay under a tree in his pasture for a nap.

When he awoke, there stood the donkey beside him!

"Most wonderful doctor!" cried the delighted countryman; "your pills have brought back my donkey!"

The truth of the matter was, that the donkey had broken through a gap in the hedge and had started to explore the country round about; but, growing tired of wandering, it had returned to its pasture.

LUCY'S GIFT TO THE BIRDIES

[illegible] placed herself beside Lucy and whispered reproachfully into the tot's ear:

"Why didn't you bring something, Lucy, as you promised?"

"I did bring something," said Lucy in a voice loud enough for all to hear. "I wanted to bring something different from the rest, so I thought I would bring toothpicks for the birdies to use after their meal."

It was all so very funny that no one could help but laugh, though they wouldn't for the world hurt the feelings of their tiny chum. Seeing how disappointed Lucy was when it was explained to her that the birdies would have no use for her gifts, the bigger girl gave the toothpicks to the birds, anyway. And Lucy was overjoyed to see some of the birds take the toothpicks in their bills and fly away with them to their nests.

"I really do think birdies use toothpicks, after all," said she; "only they're too polite to do it before us. I s'pose that's why they're going to their nests."

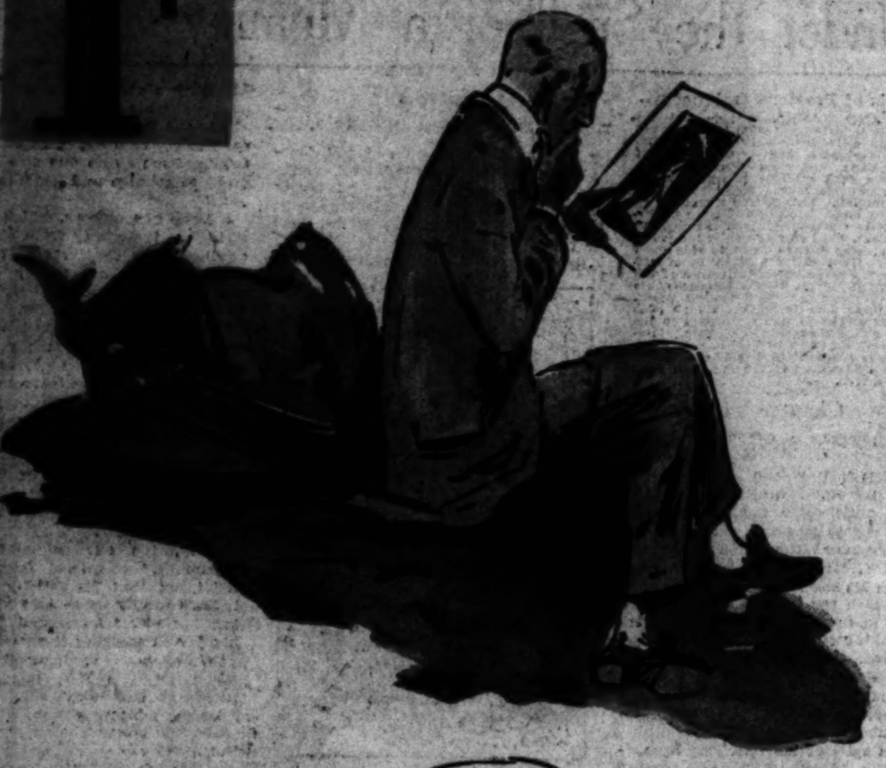
FLUFFY RUFFLES

Drawings by Wallace Mo



A JUNE WEDDING.

When June, the month of weddings, came, poor Traddles heaved a sigh
"If Fluffy'd only answer Yes I'd like to make a try
Of pacing down the aisle with her within a church's arch
"And lis'ning to the organ play the Wagner wedding march."

His chance soon came (poor luckless wight), but not the way he wished
(It really seems that, come what will, his plans are always dished);
For though an aisle they both did pace and though the organ played,
He paced it as an awkward usher, she as bridal maid.

Twas Stuyvesant Van Nostrand Smythe who wedded Ellen Noyes,
And Traddles had known Stuyvie Smythe since both of them were boys,
While Ellen Noyes and Fluffy had been chums at boarding school
And never since that time had they allowed their love to cool.

Dear Fluffy as a bridesmaid looked quite sweet enough to eat
And Traddles as an usher would have passed—through any street.
But aisles are not as wide as streets and, bravely though he tried,
Poor Traddles wasn't a success while acting as a guide.

Now, though 'twas not her wedding, Fluffy Ruffles was the star,
The church was filled with people who had come from near and far
To see the famous maiden who had such magnetic charm,
And as she neared the church's porch a boor put out his arm

And offered it to Fluffy with a very foolish grin.
She shrank from him in great alarm: then Traddles waded in;
He caught the fellow round the waist in spite of drunken lurch
And ran him through the vestibule and threw him out of church.

Then, coming back, he walked with her beneath the church's arch
And heard the strains of "Lohengrin"—the Wagner wedding march.
"Some time," thought Traddles, "if I'm good perhaps I'll have the pride
"Of marching out of this same church with Fluffy for my bride."

have to go far away from the "choice of the city" to find broad stretches or mountain slope that still preserve the California type of landscape, which, fifty years ago, was as wide as the boundaries of the State. The argonauts who "came the plains across, or the Horn around" in the pioneer days, were bewildered as they looked upon the plains and hillsides of this State in the midwinter days, in spring and in early summer. The pioneer's wagon or the stage coach was the only express train the first comers had to travel in. Let one of them tell you of a night ride through the mountains, or over the plains, and the breaking of day from the first gray streaks of light until the sun rode high above the horizon. The dead level tone of the landscape beneath the stars or the ghostlike shadows cast by the pale moonbeams slowly gave way to faint gray of the early dawn, the trees rose to view, and giant cactus like a Briareus or a fiend stretched out snake-like arms as if to grapple you and carry you to the lower world. The hair of Medusa never looked so demon-like. Then the trees took on a hue of dark green, color after color was brought out, as if thousands of unseen hands, with an artistic skill more than human, were at work with brushes wide as the horizon, laying on a thousand colors at each stroke. The sun shot out over a mountain peak, and there lay the trackless, houseless expanse far as vision could descry, a covering of lacework and tapestry finer than weaver ever turned off of a loom, and gorgeous as the brightest bow the sunbeams ever painted in the sky.

The California of fifty years ago with its small population, all delving in mines, gathered in a few embryo cities or scattered widely over the State in sheep camps, with all this abandon of floral beauty, may still be seen by those who in May or June will venture into the mountains or face a long wagon ride over some still uninhabited plain known as a desert. Put to rout before the relentless forces of civilization with its bank-books, profit-and-loss ledgers and modern improvements, the artists of the sun and showers who made the California of the argonauts still linger lovingly in these out-of-the-way places, and as the sun creeps up from his annual visit to the southern hemisphere, and as the south winds come laden from broad leagues of seas with moisture in their heart, these unseen artists mingle the morning sunbeams with the crystal drops of rain and dew, and still paint what is left to Flora of her ancient domain with the same artistic enthusiasm as of old.

Here a great yucca, or Spanish bayonet, shoots two to ten feet from the white sands of a wash, in a week, and breaks out into a thousand broad petals white as the most spotless lily in the garden. He seems to be a sentinel sent out to watch for the approach of civilization, with plowshare, hoe and spade, coming to wrest another league of land from the poor remains of the domain of the goddess of the flowers. Half a mile farther in is the picket line, and then behind the whole army of beauties stretch along the hills, cumber the plains, lie in security up the cañons, or spread in wild profusion over what we call the desert. In a bed of white sand where civilization with all its art could not make one blade of grass grow these caretakers of the goddess of the flowers cause broad green leaves to spread saucer-like a half a foot in a circle and in the heart of this spring up half a dozen petals broad as a hand, white as light and streaked with pinks, or purples, scarlets, or blues, that put to the blush the cunningest handiwork of a Millais, a Daubigny, a Claude Lorraine or a Constable. Where the hard rock presents a brow of flint to the sun's hot rays these artists of the sun and showers spread leaves like emeralds and then paint in between tiny petals red as rubies, as if they were eyes of fire looking out from the heart of nature.

Here in the valley subdued by cultivation we see only straggling monuments of the work of these lace weavers and color mixers of nature. The broadest expanse of poppies we ever see here is only a handbreadth to the square miles of these golden cups that crowd thick as grass in some spot far away from the reach of the hands of the vandals who despoil Flora of her treasures. The pioneer of the old days knows this, and delights in a day or two free from care to go far from the sound of the busy city, from the shriek of a locomotive whistle, where he can forget the "progress" of half a century and go back in spirit to the "brave days of old" when he and California were young together, and when the queen of the flowers held her court all over the State and reigned in undisturbed serenity, monarch of all she surveyed.

"FORGIVE."

When real or fancied wrong has stung
The hearts that should in love abide,
When hate its galling taunt has flung
Till anger in revenge has cried,
The surest power to break the spell,
And waken love where love should
Or ring revenge its funeral knell,
Is the entreating word "Forgive."

"Forgive!" oh! if we would forgive
As oft we pray to be forgiven,
We then would prove it sweet to live
And make our earth another heaven.
Anger and malice, pride and hate,
And every sin o'er which we pray,
Would at the contrite word "Forgive"
In dire confusion haste away.

ALZENA PERRON.

KNOW THYSELF.

WHEN life's experiences seem to go awry, we have tried placing the blame on fate, on chance, Providence, the evil one and others, but the trouble continues. Let us, then, examine ourselves and see if we cannot find the real cause.

Know yourself, and you will know the source of all your sorrow and all your joy. Before one can be true to self, he must make the acquaintance of the real, the higher self. To pay homage to any other than his better nature is to play to selfishness and selfish ambitions.

The human craves its own, and is determined to have it, though others suffer. We see this destructive principle working throughout our beloved land today. Seek to know thyself, and as the individual gets his release from the lesser, environed self, so society and nations will become molded into final, universal emancipation.

It is the outer, the human, which makes this unreasonable, self-important demand; the higher, or the divine in us, works to just the opposite, on the grand and noble principle, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." In following out this principle, we are not shorn of life's joys, pleasures, and satisfaction; but instead, the blessing we receive is the highest realization of true happiness, freed from sting of any kind.

Any one who lives his life at his best is a lovable person just so long as he holds to this high ideal of action. Let him depart from it, and he is at once confronted by his own shortcomings and defects which call for another conflict with self that he may overcome the inherent weakness still resident within, ere he can recognize his greatness as dictator of his own life and creator of his own world.

"Ye who suffer, know ye suffer from yourselves;
None else compels; none other holds you that ye live or die."

Search earnestly and long, if need be, but find the real self, and to that self be true. The outer, the mortal, suffers; the inner, the real, cannot suffer any more than love is pain. It is when we get beyond the breakers of life that we may know the calm. Then when the storms of experience break upon us we understand, and use our power to still the troubled waters and speak the words, "Be still."

LAURA CAMPBELL GLEAVES.

"FAREWELL."

Farewell, my bonnie, sweet-faced girl, adieu,
Farewell to days gone by, farewell to you;
'Round thy lone path may blessings rich unfold,
And dark regrets be changed to purest gold.
Sweet be thy dreams, thy skies serene and fair;
Rest crown thy years untouched with grief or care,
And if betimes thy heart in softest tone
Calls for thy lover, wandering and alone
In distant lands beyond the wide, wide sea,
Remember, still, his heart is true to thee,
Thy kiss more sweet than fairest honeyed flower
In memory enshrined shall gladden every hour.

When friends surround thee, loving, kind and true,
Bow to thy genius, for thy favors sue,
Then shall my heart beat with a happy thrill,
For I shall know that thou art worshiped still.
And when they bring thee flowers rich and rare
Think of the roses 'twas our joy to share.
Rarest of flowers, eloquently red,
Gone is their fragrance now, their beauty dead,
And though we smile, down in our hearts are tears,
And sad sweet songs of half-forgotten years.
But still thy kiss more sweet than honeyed flower
In memory enshrined shall gladden every hour.

Farewell, dear one, our homes must ever be
On widely-distant shores of the dividing sea.
But in the twilight soft of every closing day
(Since we our plighted vows shall keep for aye and aye)
My soul shall come and in your sacred bower
'Twill lay upon your couch a fair and fragrant flower,
A rare, red rose my offering shall be,
An emblem of the love my heart would give to thee.
And while the roses bloom you shall forever know
My heart's true love for thee shall ever fonder grow,
And still thy kiss more sweet than fairest honeyed flower
In memory enshrined shall gladden every hour.

An American Boss in Africa. By Frank G. Carpenter

UKEREWE ISLAND.

THE BIGGEST IN VICTORIA NYANZA AND BOSSED BY AN AMERICAN.

From Our Own Correspondent.

UKEREWE ISLAND (Lake Victoria.)—Away out here in the heart of East Africa, 100 miles below the equator, on the biggest island in Victoria Nyanza, I find an American acting as boss. He is the only white man on the island, and he has surrounding him something like 25,000 natives. He came out to Africa expecting to make a fortune in gold mining and ivory, but the mines did not pay, and the elephants were scarce, and so he settled down out here in the wilds. His business is that of a woodcutter, and he has a concession to furnish fuel for the lake steamers. Ukerewe is densely wooded, and this man has a big gang of blacks cutting down trees and carrying the wood to the shore. His home is a double hut away off by itself, a half-mile from the nearest village, and not far from the little wooden pier at which our steamer is lying. It is made of cane and thatch and has only two rooms, with a passageway through the center. There are several other huts at the back which are occupied by his servants. The villages in which his men live are not far away. This man's name is Henry Seifert. He is about 30 years of age and is well-dressed and good-looking. He is very intelligent, but he seems to like his life out here among the savage people. He tells me he is paid so much for every hundred cubic feet of wood furnished, and that his job is a profitable one. He says that he has had but little trouble with the natives, and as I went about with him over the island I could see that they bowed down to him everywhere.

On Ukerewe Island.

A grave in Uganda.

The Island of Ukerewe.

The island of Ukerewe is the largest in Lake Victoria. The lake is spotted with islands. They run all around the shores, and there are several large archipelagoes. One of these is the Buvuma Islands, which fringe Napoleon Gulf, out of which flows the great River Nile. Another is the Sesse group at the northwest, lying south of Entebbe and running south and almost to German East Africa, and a third is this Ukerewe group away down at the southeast in the German territory.

I came here from Mwanza, the chief fortified station of the German government in this part of the world, and our steamer coasted the island for a long distance before we landed. Ukerewe is more tropical than any other part of the lake. The island is fringed with banana plantations and dense forests cover its hills. There are many villages along the shores, and I am told that the population all told is about 25,000. The people are blacks, who go naked. They wear nothing but goatskins or bits of bark cloth, which are tied over their shoulders and around the waist. Some have a heart-shaped apron of goatskin in front and behind, and others wear aprons of whole skins which fall to the knees. The men sometimes pull such aprons around behind them when they sit so that they serve as cushions.

Mr. Seifert calls these natives the Wakerewe. As we went about together among them we were everywhere well treated. The people seemed quiet and they allowed me to go into their huts and make photographs. They have pronounced negro features, with thick lips and flat noses. Their hair is woolly where it is left to grow, but in most cases a part of the head is shaved close. Some of the men cut off all the wool excepting a lock on the crown, which they tie up in banana fibers so that it stands like a horn, straight up on the head. Others shave the head in spots. Only a few of the people have jewelry. They are too poor to buy the costly brass and iron wire which are so much worn on the mainland. I saw one woman who had on an ivory bracelet, and a man who wore an anklet composed of a section of ivory tusk hollowed out. Others had bits of bones and glass beads tied to their hair. Nearly all were smeared over with grease, and such as had hair had so covered it with oil that the smell was pronounced.

Wakerewe Villages.

The villages are composed of rude huts made of cane and poles and covered with grass. They have doors at the front so low that one has to stoop to go in. Over some of the doors are iron bells, which are hung there so that if an evil spirit comes in it will bump its head against the bell and warn the owners and perhaps be scared away. The people are superstitious. They believe in devils of all kinds and witch doctors. They have little idols before which they pray, and a part of their religion is a worship of snakes. There are many poisonous reptiles here, but the natives will not kill them nor drive them out of their huts; and they are said to consider death by the bite of a snake a sure passport to heaven.

They dress in goatskins.

A lady of the Sesse Arc

Ukerewe Island has dense forests, which are filled with monkeys. They chattered at us out of the branches as we walked through the woods, scampering away as we pointed our guns at them. There are also many hippopotami here. They live all along the shores, and go from there back into the country. They are sometimes trapped in pitfalls and then harpooned by the natives. Mr. Seifert tells me that there is a herd of eleven elephants in this part of the island, but that the German government has made it a penalty to shoot them ,and they are not molested.

During our stay here the steamer has taken on a dozen cords or so of Ukerewe wood. This was brought on board by a gang of black natives who carried it on their heads from the place where they were chopping the trees. The distance is, I judge, at least a mile from the landing. Both men and women are engaged in the work, and their wages are about 4 or 5 cents a day. They are all under this American, who is just one foreigner among 25,000 blacks, and notwithstanding this, bosses them all.

The Graves of the Baganda.

I saw graves everywhere during my travels in Uganda. The people bury the dead in their gardens, and a common place of burial is at the corner or in front of the hut. Sometimes a house is built for the mourners, outside the family of the deceased. The mourning usually lasts a month, and the end of that time all disperse and go to their homes.

Graves of this kind are usually in the banana bushes, and they are often covered with dried grass or banana fibers. The corpse is washed with banana pulp squeezed from the stem of the plant and is wrapped up in bark cloth.

The Buvuma Islanders bury their dead in much the same way, and they also erect shelters over them. These are baby huts in which the spirits are supposed to live; they are renewed from time to time when in need of repairs. The graves are often marked by planting trees over them.

The Basukumas, among whom I traveled about the lower part of Lake Victoria, bury their dead in cattle hides. The body is wrapped up in the skin of an animal just killed, and the grave is dug right in the center of the cow yard. The poor men, who have no cattle, and women and boys are often buried in leaves in the same locality. At the same time the meat of the slaughtered beast is roasted and eaten at the wake; and the funeral, if that of a big man, ends in all growing drunk over banana beer, which they suck through straws from gourd steins.

A TRAMP'S EXPERIENCE NEAR A GARDEN WALL.

By a Special Contributor.

IN a half-doze, Idaho Shorty lay astretch in the shadow of a honeysuckled wall, his paunch filled with the generous hand-out from the villa on the other side, his nostrils drinking in the heavy perfume of the vines over his head, and his face and brow cooled in the morning breezes.

Life was so full of sweetness to him now that he even forgot that there was no sign of male humanity about the beautiful summer residence on the other side of the low wall.

Occasionally, through the intoxicating and languorous odor of the honeysuckle there crept the faint, sweet breath of distant pines, for there had been a rain during the night and the trees were breathing freely and living with a fullness of sweetness equal only to that the sybaritic soul of Shorty was reveling in.

From the open, wide windows of the drawing-room of the house came the sounds of music. The young mistress was playing a strange melody, one that changed suddenly and surprisingly from brilliance to sadness. Shorty did not know it, but he was listening to an admirable performance of Reinhold's "Impromptu," and his half-doze was rapidly becoming a stupor when he heard yet sweeter music and nearer—the voices of two women just on the other side of the low wall.

"Don't you fear the nearness of that tramp?" asked one voice.

"Dear me, mother," was the reply, "the poor fellow was hungry, and we couldn't send him away without breakfast. John has a pipe he always lends the tramps when they have finished eating."

"But all the menservants are off on a holiday."

"The coachman will be back from the station in an hour."

Shorty nodded benevolently. He was right. He could carry off the grand piano if he only felt equal to the exertion. But he could hardly exert himself to hearken to these soft and low voices so near him or to the melody, the strange melody, coming from the open, wide windows.

Shorty's soul was steeped in ethereal and perfumed waves, and it seemed as if the melody lingering in the air came from the rich greensward which cushioned his huge body.

Very dim and distant sounded the music, and dimmer yet seemed the chattering of the women's voices.

Surely he was dreaming.

At his hand was a fortune in unset pearls. Some one seemed to be offering them to him. They were of exquisite form, perfect maiden jewels, untouched by setting of gold.

Shorty moved an arm and stretched it. His red eyelids uplifted.

He saw no pearls, but he heard, as it seemed to him, repeated constantly the words: "Precious pearls! Pearls! Pearls! Priceless pearls!"

"Six of them, mother," came from a woman's voice across the wall.

"Beautiful! Beautiful!"

"Look, mother, how perfect! No woman ever had the like of these!"

Shorty sat up and looked up and down the road and then at the honeysuckled top of the wall.

"I can't help but feel a fear that the tramp may be near us."

"Don't worry, mother. The poor fellow is trudging along far away from here now, and William will be back in a half-hour."

"But he could take everything we have and escape."

"The only thing I'd mind losing would be these precious pearls, and they are safe."

Shorty had digested his breakfast and had worn off the edge of his sybaritic snooze. The strange melody had ceased and the sun's rays were causing the honeysuckles to shrink. There was only increasing heat and the familiar smell of the pines. Shorty was himself again. He looked again up and down the road and whispered to himself:

"It's a shame! It's too easy!"

"Look, mother, they are the most beautiful jewels the good God ever let mortal possess!" exclaimed the sweet voice on the other side.

There was another agreeable sound in the dim distance—the whistle of a freight—and Shorty knew just how long it would take him to finish his job and catch it.

The long and strong fingers of the tramp clutched the top of the wall through the vines, and in a second he had drawn his head and shoulders to the top.

Another and nearer shriek of the freight bade Shorty hurry. He gave a twist to his arms and was immediately balanced on the wall so that he could throw himself into the garden easily and quickly.

"I'll count the precious things again, mother," said a radiant young woman, speaking to her mother.

"One, two, three, four, five, six!" she said. "But there's another coming."

And as the tramp lowered himself quietly to the road, the tiny white teeth of the baby in the young woman's lap closed on her finger, and Idaho Shorty said:

"Gee!" and smiled as he hurried for the freight.

VIRGINIA OSBORNE MOROSO.

A THOUSAND MILES OF BOYS.

Next July a message is to be carried afoot from the Mayor of New York to the Mayor of Chicago. The carriers will ~~be several~~ hundred boys between 15 and 17 years old. For a week or so, during the night as well as the day, some lad will be speeding across the country at the rate of a mile run. The first will start from the City Hall in New York and run northward. At the end of a mile a second will be awaiting him, and on his arrival will seize the message and carry it to the next mile post. There is probably but one organization that could select these carriers solely from its own membership along the route, and, by representatives already on the line of the race, arrange for all details and guard the race as it occurs. That organization is the Young Men's Christian Association. Each city association along the line will have charge of a certain section. The New York association, for example, will have charge of the route which extends through the city until it touches the territory assigned to Yonkers. The stretch over which Buffalo has jurisdiction is the longest in charge of any one association. Inasmuch as the Young Men's Christian Associations have about a hundred thousand boys under the care of physical directors, the material for such a relay run is ample. The boys selected for this event will be under special training. No boy will have any other competitor than time, or receive any prize other than the honor of wearing his association's colors. A generation ago no religious organization could have attempted anything of this sort. What the Young Men's Christian Association has accomplished in uniting with the Hebrew the Greek ideal in religion, interpreting Christianity as a force for the welfare of the whole man, body as well as mind and spirit, is dramatically embodied in this picturesque undertaking.—[The Outlook.

EUROPE.

Europe is a place where all good Americans can go. It came into prominence shortly after the Civil War.

The only palm first rose in Europe and was imported to this country by Sir Walter Raleigh. Hence Palm Beach and palm rooms.

Europe raises for our use counts, princes and dukes, ruins and old masters. It also furnishes new styles and diseases. From it we receive the most lasting forms of drunkenness.

Europe is used for honeymoon purposes, and for those who are used to American hotels it is a form of penance.

Its importance as a topic of conversation can hardly be overestimated. It makes more talk than any other product.

Europe is also useful as a means of getting acquainted with your next-door neighbor. While traveling with him on the other side there is usually time between stations to ascertain his name and business.

As a place of refuge for our principal millionaires, it is becoming more and more useful every year, and more affectionately regarded by all patriotic Americans.—[Success.

NATIONAL CAMPAIGN PLANNED BY BUREAU OF INSECTS.

By a Special Contributor.

A NATIONAL campaign against the house fly and the mosquito has been planned, and is about to bo begun by the government Bureau of Insects. It will cover the entire country, and in its prosecution measures are to be urged by which not only communities, but whole States, will be enabled to rid themselves of these deadly enemies of mankind.

In order to attain this end, it is necessary merely to adopt a few simple and well-understood methods, the application of which may be entrusted to local boards of health. Where the mosquito is concerned, however, it is deemed advisable that there should be a general control by the State, because of the fact that certain species of these tuneful marauders are migratory and liable to appear suddenly in multitudinous swarms in places far from their breeding areas, giving profound discouragement to local efforts toward extermination.

This point has become particularly manifest in New Jersey, where satisfactory plans have already been made, under the authority of the Legislature (which appropriated money for a special investigation a while ago,) for ridding the entire State of mosquitoes. It is a very interesting matter, inasmuch as New Jersey is supposed to be worse afflicted than any other State in the Union. If it can be freed of the winged plague, there could be no better encouragement for efforts elsewhere. But in New Jersey the coast is fringed with salt marshes, of vast area in the aggregate, which produce countless millions of mosquitoes of the migratory type. It is these insects that, leaving the marshes, fly to the uplands, thirty or even fifty miles away, and make life miserable for dwellers in the Oranges and other towns.

In New Jersey alone there are more than a dozen species of mosquitoes. Some of them, such as Culex pipiens, are a merely local pest, never going far from the place where they are bred, and these, of course, can easily be disposed of by the simplest means. But when it comes to migratory mosquitoes, such as Culex sollicitans and Culex cantator, from the salt marshes, it is only under State authority that they can be effectively dealt with. It would cost more in most instances to ditch and drain the marshes than the areas covered by the latter are worth, and so it could not be expected that the owners would undertake the task.

At the same time, wherever a district otherwise desirable is mosquito-infested, the removal of the nuisance, as shown by experience already gained, increases the value of real estate enormously. Thus in many parts of the country the extermination of the pest would in this way repay many fold the cost involved. For example, in the pines region of New Jersey many square miles of territory now worth only 50 cents or $1 an acre would at once become exceedingly valuable for summer and winter-resort purposes, owing to the far-famed healthfulness of those piney woods, if the mosquitoes were removed.

To exterminate mosquitoes is not possible, but they can be controlled. They multiply with such rapidity, and so easily find places in which to breed—any still water, however foul, serving their purpose—that it will never be practicable to wipe them out altogether. But they can be prevented from propagating their species over extensive breeding areas, and in this and other ways may be reduced in numbers to a point where they will cease to be obnoxious.

The house fly is strictly local; it never goes far from the place where it was hatched. Furthermore, practically all house flies are bred in stables. Hence it is a simple matter to exterminate them absolutely. All that is necessary is to compel every stable-keeper, under periodical inspection by the Board of Health, to put all refuse into a tight rainproof bin (to be emptied once a week,) and there will soon be not a single fly left. Such a measure will absolutely put a stop to their reproduction, and after a short time flies will be so seldom seen as to be regarded as curiosities.

Such is the method which will be urged by the Bureau of Insects for adoption by committees all over the country. But in the case of the mosquito the problem is made much more difficult by the migratory habits of certain species. It is requisite, therefore, not only to adopt means to prevent local breeding, such as the covering of rain barrels and planting fish in ponds, but to drain the marshes, both salt and fresh-water, wherever practicable. The salt marshes of New Jersey are mainly accountable for the curse of mosquitoes in that State—recognition of which fact has already prompted the authorities to undertake the ditching and draining of such offending areas in the neighborhood of Atlantic City, near Cape May, and elsewhere, on an extensive scale.

A great deal has been published about the effectiveness of kerosene or crude petroleum as a remedy for mosquitoes. There is no question of the fact that by the use of oil the winged nuisances may be prevented from breeding in any pond or pool. One ounce of the fluid for each fifteen square feet of water space will suffice for the purpose, forming a thin film over the surface and smothering to death all wrigglers. Unfortunately, however, the cure is only temporary; the application of oil has to be renewed every three or four weeks, and no lasting benefit is obtained.

It is likely, therefore, that this means for disposing of mosquitoes will be practically abandoned in favor of methods which, once adopted, are of permanent effect and final. Where salt marshes or fresh-water swamps are concerned, they should be ditched and drained—a process which renders them forever unavailable as breeding areas. As for ponds and pools, it is merely necessary to clean up their edges and plant fish in them. Many kinds of small fishes are fond of mosquitoe wrigglers, and none more so than goldfish, which, by the way, have the advantage of

The Hotel Clerk.

"WHEN TEDDY PLAYS POLITICS, IT'S A GAME OF SOLITAIRE."

By a Special Contributor.

"I S'POSE Teddy'll be the whole works out at Chicago durin' the convention," remarked the House Detective.

"Not at all," said the Hotel Clerk of the St. Reckless, "not at all. All Teddy wants to be is the full-jeweled movements and the hour hand and the minute hand and the split-second attachment and the gold-filled case, warranted for four years more, and the correct likeness of a true friend pasted to the back lid, and the little dingus you wind her up by. That's all Teddy wants to be. Big Bill can be everything else. He can be the gun-metal charm that hangs down on the outside of the fob pocket.

"No, sir, Larry, on this occasion the President is in the background. He has taken a place in the background, and moved it well up front so that it lops over the footlights and entirely obscures the leader of the orchestra, which is where it properly belongs under such circumstances and where it will remain as long as he's occupying it.

"He says to the leaders of the party, or to the men who would be the leaders if all the leaders' jobs were not completely filled by himself, he says: 'Gentlemen, I don't ask much. I'm a man of simple tastes and many of them. About all I expect to do is to choose your standard bearer in the person of one who will be acceptable to all factions, the name being Taft, and I'll make it my business to see to it that you have a nice, neat platform all written out by the time you convene, and I'll personally select the presiding officers and the key-noters for your convention and, when I get 'round to it, I'll decide on a campaign manager and a national chairman for you, and some evening after dinner I'll think up a few good, strong campaign policies for you, and I'll probably let you establish your campaign headquarters on the back porch of my place down at Oyster Bay. I'd give you the front porch, but Kermit will be needing it for his pet snake. You gentlemen may look after everything else with the exception of these few details I have mentioned.'

"'And what will that be?' timidly inquires one of the chaps who would be a sub-leader, if there were any sub-leaders.

"'Why, let me see,' says the President, 'surely there's something else. Yes, now I have it—you boys shall pick out the candidate for Vice-President. While we're on the subject, I might suggest, merely in passing, that the party now holding the job would give reasonable satisfaction. True, he's not what you'd call a fancy Vice-President. He has a figure like two sections of a split-bamboo fish pole and he combs his hair from under the left shoulder blade, and he'll never be a really stylish dresser until the new sheath skirt comes into general use for male wear, but, when all's said and done, he's a good, faithful creature and understands general work and the care of the young, and brought good references from his former employés in Indianapolis when he first came to us, and never has any stubborn opinions of his own, or any other kind, so far as I've noticed, and on the whole I think we might go a good deal further and do worse. Oh, yes, I know he has his vice, but I'm given to understand that he can drink or he can leave it alone.'

"'Thank you,' says the spokesman of the delegation in a tone in which gratitude and admiration conflict with several other emotions. 'Thank you, sir,' he says, 'Was there anything else, sir?'

"'Well,' says the President in a kind voice, 'I don't think of anything more at this time, but if I do, I'll drop you a postal. And in the meanwhile, let us all remember, gentlemen, that we have the destinies of a great party in our keeping. It had to be a great party or it never could have produced Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, McKinley and Me, especially the last-named. As an added starter, we might include Mr. Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, my son-in-law, who properly belongs in this illustrious category, having, as you might say, been married into it. 'Tis, as I say, a great party, and amply able to manage its own affairs, it competently directed. So, with these few words I guess you had better be running along out to Chicago and rolling your own little whoops and not bother me any more, because I have on my mind several affairs of state and an engagement to take Elihu Root out for a walk and tell him a few helpful things about the practice of law. Gentlemen, good day; here's your hats; kindly close the door firmly on the outside as you go out."

"That's the way it is, Larry. The President is taking no active hand in the convention because he had so many other matters to engage his mind. For instance, there's the case of Col. Stewart of the regular army, which is so called because it's not. The President did everything to keep him quiet short of strangling him with a plow line. As long ago as last fall he sent the colonel out to Fort Grant, which is in a desirable section of Arizona to any one desiring alkali, and commands an uninterrupted view of a stretch of country greatly resembling Death Valley, only perhaps not so densely populated. It was generally believed at the White House that the colonel should have been happy and contented with his new post. He had absolute control over a garrison consisting of a sick teamster and a deaf cook, and in his leisure hours he could go out and sit on the borax and tame the winsome Gila monsters, which abound freely in the vicinity. The Gila monster ought to make a fine pet, Larry, being far more intelligent than the stinging lizard and so much more sociable than the black-banded ground rattler that he often crawls into bed with a person who's asleep and nestles up, not to say cuddles."

"Well, all I can say is, I don't blame him for kickin' if that's the way it wuz," commented the House Detective. "Any time I ketched one of them things pervading my boudoir, one of us would be leavin' purty soon."

"That's the way Col. Stewart felt," said the Hotel Clerk, "and the President said if it'd ease the colonel's feelings any, he'd transfer him down to Florida. The Florida location was right in the heart of a lovely swamp having a clustering population of microbes big enough to eat off the hand, and coming readily when called Ponto, Rab, Towser, or by other suitable names. Out in Arizona he didn't have any water at all, and down in Florida he didn't have anything else, and still he wasn't satisfied. So now, I don't know what they'll do with him, unless they get an army mule to kick him to death."

"Wot had this here Col. Stewart been doin' to get hisself so unpopular?" asked the House Detective.

"The way the President explains it, he must be a perfectly impossible person," said the Hotel Clerk. "Col. Stewart quarrels with civilians and he calls people names and he talks all the time.

"So it looks like professional jealousy to me, Larry. You know Teddy never could stand opposition.

"The President had other things in his mind, too. There was that conference of the Governors of all the States the other day. Anyway, that's what they called it—a conference—but it seemed to me it sounded more like a monologue. Although the President advised them about nearly everything, many of the Governors went away disappointed. You see, they'd come to Washington full of speeches, and there they sat with all that language bottled up in their systems perfectly silent except for the low, seething sounds where it was 'scaping from their ears."

"Why didn't some of 'em git up and say somethin'?" asked the House Detective.

"They didn't want to interrupt," said the Hotel Clerk. "The only one that seemed to break in was James J. Hill. I guess maybe Hill has a loud voice and no manners, and that's the way he got his chance to be heard. He talked about our resources, Larry.

"After reading what he said about the waste of the forests, I feel that I will never be able to look a plank walk in the face again. And I've cut out using wooden toothpicks. Hereafter the quill kind for mine. From what Hill says, we're liable to run out of standing timber before we run out of gander feathers. He spoke of the failing coal supply, too. With tears in his eyes, he said that in less than 11,000 years our coal will be exhausted. So it looks almost as gloomy for the coal business as it does for the manufacture of tenpins and hickory hoe handles. In those days Tiffany will be selling anthracite by the carat, and pine laths will be accepted as legal currency, in amounts up to ten laths. Yet in the face of the danger, Mr. Hill says he sees men using as many as four matches lighting one cigar, and mothers wearing out poplar shingles to spank their children with, when corrugated roofing would do just as well. So far as he knows, there's nobody trying to husband our coal supply and save it up. But he's wrong there, Larry. I know of one conscientious guy who was trying all last winter to save it, and he did."

"Who wuz that?" asked the House Detective.

"The janitor of the flat house where I live," said the Hotel Clerk. "I think maybe I'll send his name to Mr. Hill."

"D'ye think the convention will be purty lively?" asked the House Detective.

"Well, I don't know," said the Hotel Clerk. "Most of the young Presidential booms of the early spring have become reasonably quiet. If the Joe Cannon boom was properly embalmed, it will probably not attract any undue attention unless the weather should turn unseasonably warm at Chicago. The Philander Knox boom has done as well as any boom could be expected to do that had a first name like Philander, but I look for it to go down for the last time with a low, gurgling cry when the roll-call gets as far as Pennsylvania. Nothing remains visible of the Hughes boom at this time except a fringe of whiskers protruding from beneath the cone that was used in administering the ether. The Fairbanks boom was last seen alive in the vicinity of Laporte, Ind., and the parties engaged in digging up the cosy farmyard of the late Mrs. Gunness have been asked to keep a sharp lookout. But Teddy is taking no active hand. Bear that in mind."

"When Teddy plays politics, it's a great game," said the House Detective.

"Yes," said the Hotel Clerk, "a game of solitaire."

HARD TO ANSWER.

"Why do the beautiful young wives of millionaires like to appear in tableaux as 'Thais?' Have they seen the opera? Have they read the book?"

The speaker, a visiting French editor, frowned and resumed:

"The 'Thais' of Anatole France is unspeakable. At the Alexandrian theater she appeared in scenes of a depravity that you cannot imagine. That 'Little Egypt' beside her was Puritanical.

"Then why do the beautiful wives of distinguished men appear as 'Thais' in theatricals? Above all, why do they appear as 'Thais' at the height of her depravity when they might equally well portray her—as she is in the last part of the book and opera—repentant and modest?"

"I had forgotten that," said his friend.

AMERICAN DISTRIBUTING CENTERS OF BOGUS WORKS OF ART AND ANTIQUITY—MICHIGAN PLANT PRODUCING RELICS OF LOST ASIATIC PEOPLES—MEXICAN PLANTS PRODUCING WORKS OF "AZTEC ART"—MANUFACTURERS OF "INDIAN" PIPES, AXES AND SLATE CARVINGS.

By a Special Contributor.

THE present scandal anent the withdrawal of the two paintings, "Old Mill at St. Cloud" and "Near Newport," from the Smithsonian's National Gallery, by William T. Evans, the donor (who has caused the arrest of the art dealer who sold these alleged forgeries as works of the late Homer D. Martin) recalls numerous enterprises in forged and spurious art works and antiquities which have been exposed by the scholars of the Smithsonian and of our other noted institutions.

Some time ago a man tried to sell the Smithsonian's Bureau of American Ethnology an elaborate collection of alleged idols, tablets and caskets said to have been dug out of no less than 162 Michigan mounds. They bore a jumble of oriental hieroglyphics explained as having been probably employed by a mixed colony of Egyptians, Phoenicians and Assyrians who in the remote past found their way from the cradle of the human race, in Asia, across the seas, up the St. Lawrence and the lakes to Michigan. Some months ago Prof. F. W. Kelsey of the University of Michigan found that one large private collector had purchased fifty specimens coming from this same forger. These included tablets bearing rudely executed scenes from the Biblical story of the Deluge and a copper crown alleged to have been found on a skull. These pictures and the forger's inevitable oriental hieroglyphics, always turned upside down, at once called to Prof. Kelsey's mind a call which he received in 1898 from a dilapidated man with two trunks and a huge box containing a few human bones and a miscellaneous collection of clay idols, tablets, etc., bearing similar scenes from the "Deluge" and the same reversed hieroglyphics; also a large seated idol of baked clay holding a tablet. The mysterious stranger, after showing certificates signed by persons claiming to have seen these articles dug out of mounds in Michigan, asked $1000 for the lot, and, being laughed at, came down to $100. Being assured that they were spurious, he asked to be allowed to leave them temporarily, but he has never yet returned to claim them. The professor also found in the trunks show tickets and handbills advertising "The Finest Collection of Prehistoric Relics Ever Exhibited in the United States." Upon examination he found the same reversed hieroglyphics which had appeared upon a lot of alleged antiquities said to have been excavated in Montcalm county, Michigan, in 1890, and which he had investigated at the time. Great excitement reigned in that county when these "finds" were announced, and people were making the dirt fly in every direction over a wide area. One man dug so deep that a cave-in swallowed him up and snuffed out his life.

Among the specimens exhibited were thirty caskets a foot to a yard long, with covers ornamented with grotesque figures in relief and the sides with the inverted hieroglyphics which, for the saving of time, the forger

A spirit of reverence enwrapped visitors once they were inside the tent. They hardly spoke above a whisper. The good country people found corroboration of the Biblical text, "There were giants in those days." The admission fees soon netted Newell $150,000, and a joint stock company was formed to exhibit the giant about the country. Among the leading spirits in this enterprise was the original of Westcott's character, "David Harum." "Colonel" Wood, an eminent showman, was engaged to exploit the "Cardiff Giant," as it was called, and it was exhibited in New York City and in other centers. Barnum tried to purchase it, and finally had a copy made which he exhibited as the "Cardiff Giant." Prof. James Hall, the State geologist, examined the original and gave a favorable opinion, but Prof. Marsh of Yale pronounced it a fake. The more skeptical people of the neighborhood watched Newell's movements, and he was detected in sending considerable sums to one Hull, his brother-in-law in the West. At length Hull confessed that he got his inspiration of the fraud while listening to a revivalist who insisted that "there were giants in those days." A huge piece of gypsum was found by Hull near Fort Dodge, Ia. This he had transported to Chicago, where a German stone carver wrought the giant, its pores being made with a leaden mallet faced with steel needles. After being stained with an aging preparation, the giant was transported to a town in New York State whence Hull hauled it to Newell's farm at Cardiff, by team.

Newell sent his family on a trip covering the time of the giant's arrival and burial. Hull, who was a religionus skeptic, was undaunted by the exposure, and felt that he had gotten even with the revivalist who preached the giant doctrine. Even after his confession, the Rev. Alexander McWhorter and Prof. White, both of Yale, continued to believe in the giant's antiquity, the former announcing that it was a Phenician idol upon which he had found an important inscription. One of those who from the first branded the giant as a hoax was Andrew D. White, president of Cornell University.

Colorado "Petrified Missing Link."

Shortly afterward a petrified "missing link" was alleged to have been dug up in Colorado. It had a tail and ape-like legs and feet. Prof. Marsh went to see it and it was discovered to be the work of the same Hull, promoter of the Cardiff Giant hoax. The present specimen was of clay baked in a furnace and containing human bones. This he had buried and "discovered" in Colorado.

Another petrified man was alleged to have been found in the Pine River region of Michigan, in 1876, by one William Ruddock of St. Clair county, that State. This was found to be of cement. It was an echo of the Cardiff Giant, as was another "petrified man" alleged to have been found near Bathurst, Australia, and taken to Sydney, where it was exhibited in 1889.

Our Desert Folk.

MAMMAL, BIRD AND REPTILE LIFE OF THE DEAD LANDS.

By a Special Contributor.

TO the most of us unappreciative human beings our desert lands are a mere car-window incident of a journey overland, but there are countless other creatures both small and great to whom this wilderness country is home, the speeding train a curiosity of the passing moment.

No easy, flower-garden life is the struggle for existence of reptile, bird, and mammal in the desert home. Heat, sandstorms, long stretches of alkali soil and scarcity of water must be reckoned with—as compensation prizes oases, mountain slopes, wooded cañons with tinkling streams. The survival of the fittest for governing law, the denizens of the desert have attained as distinct an individuality as its yuccas, its cacti, and its sage brush.

The largest, the most picturesque, of its mammals is the mountain lion, sometimes weighing as much as 300 pounds, measuring eleven feet from head to tip of tail, and capable of a fifty-foot jump. This is now seldom seen in the ordinary level stretches, but still prowls remote forest trails in the mountainous regions on the desert's edge, crouching over a precipice, spying down on deer in the valley below that it may later sneak upon them and silently spring on a chosen victim's back.

Tracks of wild cats have been seen in the sand, but these animals, like the lions, stay back in the mountains or wander along the wooded banks of the Colorado River. In 1906, however, one was caught at Mecca, a poacher no doubt on chicken preserves, for a wild cat's favorite stunt is to pull off the shingles from a hen-house roof and help himself from the roost.

On these same mountain slopes not only are deer found, but a few antelope. Less than twenty years ago these prong horns abounded, large herds being hunted for sport over a wide region, men on horseback running them down or shooting them from the saddle; the fear of the chase instinctive, at the first sign of danger young, helpless antelope only a few days old stretching out on the ground so absolutely motionless as often to be passed by for a stone or bush.

A rare variety of mountain sheep amble along the desert slope of the San Jacinto range. They are smaller than those we are familiar with and have shorter hair—in color "a softened peachblow."

In the days of old, the days of gold, when there were many white men with whom to trade, the Indians killed many of these sheep with bows and arrows, but now, little hunted, they have grown quite tame.

All night the desert howls with the cry of coyotes. If the opportunity offers, the coyote—a Spanish name for prairie wolf—gets even with civilization by picking and stealing sheep, pigs, calves, but when outside markets fail, he falls back with good grace upon gophers, rats, ground squirrels, and rabbits, all of which abound in that congenial clime, while by way of after-dinner sweets he nibbles at juniper berries, mesquite beans and the delectable fruit of prickly pear.

The so-called trade rat is very much at his ease in a land where young leaves and shoots of cactus pleasantly tickle the appetite. It builds its nest at the foot of a tree or under rocks, a series of arched galleries made of sticks and twigs terminating in a bed of moss.

There is an amusing popular notion that this rat "trades" a stick for every article it takes, hence if it steals your handkerchief, watch, and match safe, it is no robbery, but a fair exchange since it leaves three sticks in their place.

But the most interesting of all desert inhabitants is the multitudinous reptilian family.

Here, rattlesnakes, however repulsive in their wriggling nature, are at least exquisitely beautiful in coloring. A common one is the diamond-backed, a reddish-cinnamon with a row of diamonds down its back—"dark blotches edged with black markings." Perhaps the most curious is the horned rattlesnake, or side-winder. This has scales like horns protruding over each eye, and instead of being direct in movement, it winds to such an extent that its track is much like the letter S.

The Gila monster is seldom seen, but still exists—a large, clumsy lizard from one to two feet long. He is generally too lazy to be pugnacious, but if his anger is once aroused, he will grip you with a clutch of a bull-dog, turning over as he bites so that the venom—which is secreted in a gland in the lower jaw instead of the upper, like the rattlesnake—is pretty sure to mix well with his saliva and so make his attack fatally effective. His five-toed hands and feet render him an adept at bush climbing. In his wild estate he lives on young rabbits and birds' eggs; when captured, he eats only eggs or a little chopped meat mixed with them.

A great variety of lizards bask in the desert sunshine, noted not only for their coloring, but also for the wonderful and beautiful patterns marked on their graceful bodies.

The alderman lizard is the best-known—a consequential being, we would have you to understand, thirteen and one-half inches long, the covering of his body like exquisite beadwork. When angry, he opens his mouth and displays two rows of saw teeth that have been likened to small fish bones, but as a rule he is a sociable, cuddly creature who likes to be stroked and petted. A strict vegetarian, he is a sweet and dainty enough morsel of food when properly prepared, but the Indian of the desert is quite satisfied to forego preliminaries, and flings him into the pot unskinned, head, tail, and all.

The whip-tail or snake lizard has been described as "not unlike a snake with four legs added as an afterthought."

A blood-curdling creature one would take the leopard, man-eater lizard to be, but he is meekly explained away when we learn that he is so called because his marking resembles the man-eating leopards of India.

The Mexicans call the horned toads of the desert "sacred toads" because they are said to weep tears of blood. It is really a disputed question whether their eyes can do more than fill with blood, but some claim that when angry they eject three or four drops of blood, the acrid nature of which poisons one's hand if there is any abrasion of the skin.

A desert tortoise in spite of his impedimenta of armor can walk twelve miles in as many hours, while the dispatch with which he can burrow out a hole in the ground is remarkable.

An amusing story is told of a tortoise taken from his desert home to a Pasadena household and his subsequent annoyance when walking on the front lawn from a bothersome fly on his nose which he finally succeeded in rubbing by a laughable manipulation of his "elbow."

The tarantula, that skillful nest builder of the trap-door-spider family, is occasionally seen out for an airing on the desert sands. His chief enemy is a hornet called the tarantula hawk. When the female is ready to lay eggs she pounces upon a tarantula and injects a sting. Not only is this fatal, but also has some mysterious embalming quality, for the dead body does not decompose. The little hawk, having dug a grave five inches deep, rolls the tarantula into it, lays its eggs on the body, and fills the hole with earth, thus guaranteeing the larvae sufficient food until full grown.

A like provision is made by the desert dinapote, one of the largest and quite the rarest beetle in the world. Its female cuts into the trunk of a giant palm and lays its eggs, the larvae remaining in the trunk for one, two, possibly three years before they have their coming-out party as full-grown society beetles, their school-day seclusion industriously spent in tunneling the palms in a series of marvelous galleries.

Red ants, caterpillars, centipedes and scorpions are other members of the cosmopolitan population of the sage-brush country.

A large number of birds dart through the hot air and cast their shadows upon the sand glare.

Hawks, eagles, the giant condor, the carrion crow all love its wild, free life, and last but by no means least, the little elf owl, the smallest in the world, a Tom Thumb five and one-half inches tall, lives a life of pleasantness and plenty, guzzling insects and small snakes to his heart's content.

Tolstoi Interviewed.

THE COUNT TALKS OF ANARCHY AND SOCIALISM.

By Countess Nastaja Tolstoi.*

THE recent reports in European newspapers from New York that the late anarchistic outbreaks in America had been laid at the door of my uncle, Count Leo Tolstoi, suggested the thought that he would be willing to make some statement of his position in regard to the anarchistic and socialistic propaganda. Accordingly I wrote asking for an appointment for an interview, a formality he requires even from his journalistic relatives.

His daughter, Countess Vera, replied by letter: "In spite of some ill-health, father will be glad to welcome you at any time and have a long talk on the subject, which interests him greatly." Accordingly I made preparations for a journey to his estate, Jasnaja Poljana.

I reached the home of my uncle very early on a cold March morning. The sun was just rising behind the trees, which glittered with heavy frost. All at the estate seemed still sleeping except two great wolf hounds who met us with loud barking. I drove into the yard with much embarrassment at disturbing the house so early, especially as it was Sunday, when what was my astonishment to find my uncle up and, despite his seventy years, attacking a great knotted piece of cordwood with vigorous blows of an ax.

On seeing us, he stopped, shook hands cordially with both myself and my izoostchick (coachman) and said to me half-jokingly:

"You have come at just the right moment to help me. I have been trying for half an hour to split this wood. You are younger and stronger than I, so take the ax and help me out. The room is very cold, and I would not invite you in until there was a fire. I know you will enjoy the work."

He smiled and handed me the ax, and I had to obey. I went to work, and, having more success than he, he was soon carrying an armful of fagots into the house. The servants were all still sleeping, so, rather than disturb them, he built the fire himself and soon, with my assistance, the samovar was steaming and we began our interview over grateful cups of steaming tea.

"I have read," said the Count, "that some of the American newspapers have blamed me for inciting the anarchists to the recent violent outbreaks over there. Such assertions are exactly what one would expect from the American press."

His eyes flashed as he warmed to a denunciation of the press.

"The Russian newspapers write of me as a fool and a reactionary, the French papers call me a religious fanatic, and now the American press seems to be accusing me of promoting anarchy. I am accustomed to lying attacks from the newspapers, but it is getting beyond a joke.

"The trouble with the modern newspaper is that it cares little for the truth and a great deal for the profits. It is either a money-making machine or a political propagandist organ. It has no ideals. Its praise is for those who buy it or curry political favor, and its attacks for those who are independent. It is because I have stood out uncompromisingly for the truth that I have been the most bitterly-attacked of contemporary writers. The novelist who glorifies the life and deeds of the rich, of kings and all the 'upper crust of society,' is called by them a great man and idolized in the newspapers owned and written by their hirelings and friends. See how all the drawing-room writers and novelists have their 'ideas,' which are really worth nothing, boomed in the contemporary press? So why should I pay any attention to what the newspapers write for or against me and my ideas? They are inconsequential.

"Today, the great question in the minds of upper society is anarchism. When I say that all the enormous wealth is accumulated in a criminal way and call the people whom the rich are abusing and robbing to protest and call them anarchists, they in their turn call me an anarchist.

"It is odd that there is so much excitement when a crazy man resorts to violence and assaults somebody, but that when the autocrat millionaires and their trusts evade the law, kill thousands and cause hundreds of thousands to suffer, there is no protest and no excitement. I doubt if there is either in America or in this country a more dangerous anarchist than our Czar or an American Rockefeller, Morgan or Carnegie. Society says that I am a fool because I oppose the modern tendencies in art expression. But look to whom belongs modern art expression! Practically to the possessors of predatory wealth to whom it is merely a stimulant or pastime while he has nothing for the poor.

"I cannot pass over the retrogression of morality and conscience under the bad influence of a false civilization based on money and materialism. All the rulers and plutocrats of Europe and America claim to be the followers of Christ and worshipers of a God in heaven, but that can be nothing but a lie. While they pray with their lips they slay and kill with their hands. Take any one of those claiming to be 'Christians' or 'religious' men and bring the Christ really to them, and what will happen? You need not be surprised to see that in a few days they will call Him an anarchist and again cry: 'Crucify Him!' It is simply disgusting how hypocritical are most men and women who are called Christians, educated people of the leading classes. It is not right that modern education does not educate the heart and morality of a man, but trains him only to make money and enslave his neighbors."

The Count's talk had made him very excited, and he began to walk up and down the room. His dog followed his every step and brought back his lost sense of humor. The servants and the rest of the family had awakened in the meantime. His daughter, Vera, joined us in our conversation.

"is it true that a woman in New York City is used to exhibit the wealth of her husband or father?" asked the Countess. "I have heard that an American society woman of Newport or some other fashionable resort spends $20,000 a year for her dresses. The Grand Duchess Elizabeth, the sister of the Czarina, told me once in Moscow that she never had been as elaborately dressed as any shop girl in New York."

"Much more amusing than this spending of enormous sums for dresses and diamonds by these degenerated daughters of American multi-millionaires is their mania aristocratia or snobbery," remarked Count Tolstoi. "I have been told that the daughters of successful American money-makers often deliberately sell themselves to European princes, counts and other real or pretending title bearers. I remember an amusing conversation with our grand Count Alexis, who once visited America, in which he told how the wealthy society people ran after him as a wonder merely to get the opportunity to touch his clothing or shake his hand. It is ridiculous even in Europe to see the people kneeling and bowing before persons of title, but we have an excuse in our old aristocratic customs and traditions. I cannot understand it in an American, who is born to democratic ideals."

Our conversation turned to literature and topics of the day. My uncle criticised severely Shakespeare and his habit of stealing the ideas for his dramas. More severe still was he on Maxim Gorky and his "childish socialism," which the Count despised utterly. In his opinion there would soon begin a fierce fight between the capitalistic class and the laboring class in America.

Jem Peace, Outlaw.

HOW HE BEAT THE SHERIFF BY A REMARKABLE COUP.

By a Special Contributor.

THE Sheriff of Mudge Creek threw back his head and raised his corded arms in the luxury of relaxation. It had been a trying day, and his small office with its sparkling fire seemed good. His eyes were drowsy with content as he slowly brought his fists to his shoulders, but even while he was twisting his bearded face into a mighty yawn his gaze flamed fire at hearing a staccato voice advise:

"I kind o' like ye that way. Keep 'em up."

The Sheriff was standing, back to the speaker, and at the first word he stiffened. Beyond this sudden rigidity his square form evidenced nothing to show he was aware of any intrusion; nor did he turn for several seconds, and then very deliberately. His steady eyes beheld an old man, white-bearded and with shoulders that stooped. What focused the Sheriff's attention, however, was a limp, scrawny hand, holding a blue-steel Colt's, whose menacing muzzle never wavered a hair's breadth.

"Jem Peace, eh?" murmured the Sheriff, the veins on his tanned forehead standing out like whipcords as he endeavored to eradicate any semblance of interest from his voice; but he could not quench his eyes, which blazed in the thin, weak light of the one kerosene lamp.

"Ya-as," admitted Mr. Peace, slowly advancing. Then sharply, "Turn 'round. Easy! Stand still!" And his left hand deftly encircled the other's waist and removed the belt and its sagging holster. "Now, if ye'll condescend t' take a chair at this leetle table ye kin lower yer hands, while we gossip a bit, jest like ol' neighbors. Tut! tut! keep 'em on th' table. An' mebbe, ye'd better kind o' clasp 'em. That's better."

"Wa'al, Jem; what's th' game?' inquired the Sheriff gently, his eyes never leaving the dark barrel of the 38 now resting at a slight slant on the table.

"I got th idee from promiscus circus posters 'round th' settlement that I'm wanted," began Mr. Peace.

"Five hundred, dead or alive, no particular difference which; an' we a-hankerin' fer ye," confirmed the Sheriff. "But what's th' game? Me?"

"I hope not," sighed Mr. Peace. "I hope I aint got t' make it a thousan' fer my ol' hide. But it all depends on how ye take a leetle proposition I've come t' make. ye jest brought in a prisoner, unbeknownst ter any body—Fred Turner. Ye fetched him in sly-like, so's there 'u'd be no premachoor hangin'."

"Ye're gittin' t' be a truthful man in yer ol' age," admitted the Sheriff. "Yep; he's th' man that shot my deputy through th' arm. So, ye've come fer him, eh?"

"In a way I have," mildly confessed Mr. Peace; "but not in a rough, onlawful way. Fer I opine ye're goin' t' help me."

"Ye might as well crook yer finger an' be done with it," growled the Sheriff, his beard bristling. "That's th' only way ye kin git th' key."

"Softly, softly," soothed Mr. Peace, stiffening his arm a trifle. "Hear me out afore ye think o' tryin' t' tip th' table. Now, what man of all others had ye ruther jam inter that jail in his place?"

"Jem Peace, th' worst ol' sinner that ever fretted Wyomin," declared the Sheriff, without a second's hesitation.

"It does me good t' hear ye say it," purred Mr. Peace, his eyes beaming with pride. "An' ye'd be keen t' swap a dozen calves like yer prisoner, fer jest one ol' steer like me, eh?"

"I'd swap a hundred," readily assured the Sheriff.

"Now that's kind o' ye, an' it makes tippin' tables onnecessary," cried Mr. Peace, heartily. "I've come t' take his place; him t' go free."

"What!" gasped the Sheriff, jolted out of his composure; and his hands unclasped and rested on the table as he made to rise.

"Slump back in yer chair," commanded Mr. Peace, in a low, even tone, while his words were accentuated by the elevated muzzle of his gun. "Please don't fergit ag'in an' make me nervous. . . . Ya-as, I've come t' take his place; th' place of a fool young man, who never did nuthin' worse'n lick up cheap whisky, in which ye could count th' fine-cut terbacker. Arter roundin' up a heap o' that stuff, it seems he went on a rampage an' spiled yer deputy's gun arm fer a while. But he ain't bad. He jest strayed onter th' wrong range. I'll swap myself fer him. No one knows he shot yer man; no one, but ye an yer deputy, knows he's corralled. What d'ye say?"

The Sheriff's eyes were now glistening with a half-hope his whimsical visitor meant what he said. To bring old Jem Peace to justice would fill his official career with glory, and would insure him another term. For Mr. Peace was the most wanted man in all North Wyoming.

"Jest explain a bit more," begged the Sheriff, earnestly. "Lead yer ace. Why d'ye do it?"

The old man bowed his head a notch and scrutinized his gun thoughtfully. He seemed hesitant, but at last laughed awkwardly, and asked: "Did ye know Turner's mother once lived out here, 'way back in '67? She was one o' th' first women in th' first settlement, I reckon. Wyomin' was a maverick then; hadn't even been branded as a Territory. I knew her in them days."

"I don't know her, or of her," said the Sheriff.

"Ye missed a heap," sighed the old man, reminiscently. "She was Kate Connolly then; th' fetchin'est bit o' woman gear in th' whole West. She sent her boy out here t' round up health an' muscle, an' she don't know he's been runnin' wild."

"Go on,' encouraged the Sheriff, now studying his visitor with new interest. "Yer reason fer chippin' in?"

"Wa-al," confessed Mr. Peace, sheepishly, "I reckon I thought a heap o' Kate Connolly." And he lowered his eyes so completely as to render his position hazardous had the man across the table been less curious. "She seemed t' take t' me, too," he continued proudly.

"An' then?" prompted the Sheriff.

"An' then her pa took her ter lowy, an' she grew t' fergit me an' married a dude what prob'ly wore galluses. An' I turned maverick an' ain't been nobody's darlin' since. But I'm here t' give her son suthin' more of a square deal than she ever give me. He looks like his ma, ye know."

"I'll be dam'd!" ejaculated the Sheriff.

"Ye will be if ye don't keep them fins clustered in front o' ye," growled Mr. Peace resenting the other's surprise.

"But such a kantankerous ol' whelp as Jem Peace ever bein' in love," remonstrated the Sheriff, hardly heeding the warning. "That gits me."

"Be ye game, or not?" barked Mr. Peace, angrily, and tapping the table with his gun.

"I be," cried the Sheriff, warmly. "An' it speaks well fer ye, Jem, t' have these soft feelin's. I'll be hanged if ye ain't almost human. Come right back t' th' younker's room, an' in ye go, an' out he comes. Ye kin trust me t' keep my word, I reckon."

"I never asked or give much credit," demurred Mr. Peace. "Besides, there's a leetle more t' th' game. Th' next p'int is this: On th' 9-o'clock stage termorrer, Kate Connolly arrives t' visit her son an' t' take him back home with her. Her dude husband is dead an' she's lonely. She's writ him several letters which he didn't git, as he was hidin' up, until twenty-four hours ago, when he rode inter Searsville. Ye nabbed him there a hour arter he showed me th' last letter, what said she'll be here termorrer. He'd 'a' jumped a train an' cut her out from th' Crick, only it was too late."

"An' ye're wantin', Mr. Peace?"

"I want him free from sunup termorrer, t' meet his ma an' spend th' day with her. I want her t' find him a high respected citizen. What's more, she must find me a highly respected citizen. He'll take her away on th' arternoon stage; then ye kin have my gun."

The Sheriff gazed long and earnestly at the blue circle across the table and then stared intently into the old man's narrowed eyes. At last he suddenly decided: "I'm game. I'll do it."

Mr. Peace slipped his weapon into the holster under his left arm and rose and said: "Lemme see th' younker alone fer a minute, t' explain things t' him. Then if ye'll kindly have yer deputy take down all decorations from th' street, where I'm branded as wurth 500, I'll drop inter Big Mike's place early in th' mornin' an' mention I'd like t' have th posters removed from th' barroom. Not that she's likely t' go in there, but I'm keen t' have th' whole town play my game fer a few hours. Ye see," and he smiled, whimsically, "I'm jumpin' back forty years t' pick up th' good names I had when a kid an when she was Kate Connolly."

. . . .

"We shall not meet again, Jem," she said, as they stood waiting for the stage, a little later. "We are near the grave."

"Huh! Give me a good hoss—Wa-al, there's a heap of truth in what ye say, ma'am," he stumbled.

And as the stage swung down the rough road that evening with Fred Turner and his mother, Mr. Peace removed his old hat and stood staring after it, while a drop of moisture on his hand burned like a bit of fire. As the vehicle swayed around a curve he sighed heavily.

"Up with yer hands," broke in the Sheriff's metallic voice. "Th' game's over, an' we're takin' no chances. Take his gun, Mike."

But that night, just as the snow-laden wind succeeded in jamming the moon behind a rack of clouds, the settlement was aroused by a volley of pistol shots. An investigation revealed the coatless Sheriff dancing madly in front of the jail and emptying his second gun at the sound of clattering hoofs somewhere ahead. Occasionally a spurt of flame answered back from the darkness.

"Th' ol' pirut," raged the infuriated officer. "He's off on my best hoss." Then to himself: 'An' I let him enter that cell an' hide a gun an' tools when he said he wanted t' chin th' younker!"

MOSQUES IN AMERICA.

A Shinto priest from Japan, openly performing miracles in Boston, walking over burning coals and climbing a ladder of swords, suggests changes that are sure to come, and will raise anew the question whether legally and officially this is a Christian nation. It was made plain enough in the early days of the republic that the national government maintained a position of neutrality, and guaranteed religious liberty to every citizen. If oriental Confucians, Buddhists and Brahmans, with their colored skins, were allowed free entrance into the country, the temples and rites of their respective religions would quickly become common. But we have, besides these, devotees of other religions, Arabs, Assyrians, and other Mohammedans, who escape the curse pronounced upon brown and yellow races. They are beginning to set up their mosques, and in time their tribes may greatly increase, so that we may have upon American soil not only an occasional joss house, but numerous Mohammedan places of worship.—[Unidentified.

ON HIS WAY.

A gentleman who hailed from Australia came to St. Andrew's for a three months' holiday. He had a very faint idea how to play golf. Engaging a caddie, he proceeded to go around the course. When driving the first tee he knocked his ball about five yards, and after this he could not take a drive without lifting turf.

His caddie became irritated and said: "Hi, sir, whar did ye learn to play golf?"

The gentleman said: "In Australia."

"Weel, sir, if ye gang on in the way ye're daoin' ye'll soon be hame."—[Tit-Bits.

San Diego's "Men."

WHITE-ROBED LOVERS OF SUNSHINE AND FRESH AIR.

By a Special Contributor.

IF Switzerland has her colony of Adamites, who have reverted to the life and habits of Adamic, or primitive man, San Diego can boast of a similar attraction, fostered by the perennial sunshine of California.

There is nothing repellant or gross about San Diego's "Natural Men." They dress in white, like the ancient Essenes of Palestine, only they wear pants, instead of white robes, along with a white jacket or plain shirt. They go either barefoot or sandaled, while their heads have no covering save that which Nature provides. Thus attired, they believe that they are closer to nature than their fellow-men of the common run, and are consequently much stronger and healthier than the latter. Summer and winter their dress is the same, and underclothing is something quite unknown to them. They never become bald-headed, since the constant exposure of the head to air and sunshine fosters a continued and luxurious growth of hair. Their everyday life is about the same as other people's.

When the eastern tourist alights in the Bay City, one of his first sights on the streets is a "man in white," rushing along on his bicycle, or driving his horse and wagon, with his long hair streaming in the wind, or gathered together and bound around the head like an Arab's. All sorts of fallacious opinions are current regarding these men in white. By some they are thought to be crazy, and by others they are looked upon as poor imitations of Christ, on account of the long hair and beard. But the fact is, these men are nothing if not intelligent and practical, and no moment of the day is without its allotted duties. As monastic community life is not encouraged, it leaves each individual free to work just as he chooses, and equally at liberty to live wherever he elects.

One of these barefooted "nature men" works at hard labor, at times, in a lumber yard, where he is respected by both employers and fellow-workmen, and among whom his capacity for endurance is acknowledged to be considerably beyond their own. At other times he works in the shipyard, or on the marine ways, as an experienced and skilled shipbuilder. He is now building a sea-going vessel 43 feet long and 16 feet beam. He has built it of Oregon fir, and every inch of wood was earned by himself by hard work in the lumber yard. An examination of the boat proves it to be the staunchest, if not the fanciest, sailing vessel ever built in San Diego. It is still on the ways in the builder's back yard, on San Diego's bayfront, lacking only masts, sails and rigging to enable it to be launched. It will be yawl-rigged, with one jib, while its cabin arrangements provide for the accommodation of six people. Its owner will use it as a pleasure craft along the Pacific Coast, with an occasional voyage to Honolulu. Like others of his kind, he believes in getting away from the haunts of men for a while to commune with the Unseen, and in the absence of forests he would choose the broad ocean as the next best place in which to get into closer contact with the divine.

In early summer he goes to his bee ranch back in the mountains, and remains there several weeks. He owns one of the best and most productive bee ranches in California. His San Diego home on the bay is a large, two-storied building. Its furnishings are the work of his own hands. No carpets cover the floors, and chairs, tables, settees, all in plain, unpainted Oregon fir, lend a rustic charm that is very attractive. Even the door fastenings are home-made, being of wood, with no flavor of the hardware shop. One room is furnished with a flour mill of the owner's own making. Here it is that he grinds his wheat, and sells it in homely packages to private customers. Out of this little hand mill he has ground several thousand dollars' worth of wheat during the last few years. He also has a winnower, or fanner, and no grain goes into the mill except what is absolutely pure and thoroughly winnowed.

Bread-baking is carried on by means of a solar stove, a very simple affair, much after the plan of a miniature hot house for plants. It is a wooden case covered by a hinged glass cover. Between the cover and the bottom is stretched a network for holding the dough. The solar stove with its contents is set out in the full sunshine for a whole day, which is sufficient time for the baking of the bread. The latter is always unleavened and very coarse-grained. It is baked in little round cake-like forms, an inch or so in thickness, and three inches in diameter. The dough is generally mixed first with chopped fruit, so that the bread has a sweetish fruit-like taste. This habit of mixing fruits with the dough is due to the fact that these nature devotees are vegetarians, meat of all kinds, and also everything coming from meat, being barred from the menu, fruits and cereals being their regular articles of diet, together with vegetables. Even milk, butter, cheese and eggs are tabooed, as being products of animal life. It is also against the principles of these nature worshipers to take the life of any living thing for sport or for any other object than self-defense.

While they profess no religious creed, and have no communal organization or specified religious tenets, still it is evident that all these so-called "nature worshipers" profess almost identical views on religious, social and moral questions. Their main object is to get closer and closer to nature in thought and in daily life. The principal one in San Diego was brought up as an orthodox Christian and continued as such until nine years ago, when he claims that he suddenly "woke up" while living in a tent near the city. This awakening, he avers, consisted in rising suddenly out of the dead past, with all its ecclesiastical and moral hedges, to a higher and more natural view of things, resulting in a more natural way of living and eating.

These modern Essenes are not really "nature worshipers," yet perhaps this term might explain their religious attitude better than anything else. They believe in a supreme governing, first cause, or controlling power, call it God, or anything else one may choose. While rejecting Christianity as a distinct religion, they claim to accept and practice anything good found in the life and teachings of the Nazarene, whom they believe to have been initiated into the mysteries of the Hindoos before he began his teaching. They do not believe in salvation through any Savior's sufferings, but rather in a redemption that results from one's own endeavors in mastering oneself, and thus rising superior to all material surroundings. They are, in short, rather mystic in their tendencies, and are inclined to asceticism. Fasting is one of their practices, not at stated times, or on any specified days, but whenever, and to such an extent, as is best suited to their physical or spiritual betterment.

With respect to marriage, these "men in white," while rigorously moral in their daily life and personal habits, hold extreme views. They relegate marriage to the dark ages of the past as one of the enslaving features of a lower form of society by which both men and women are still in social and moral bondage. These men who affect to live so close to nature are generally single, though some have been married, and claim to have graduated out of matrimony into their present full and untrammeled existence. When the writer raised the objection that the race would die out if their principles were to be carried to their logical extent, it was met by the answer that such extinguishing of the human race would only be apparent, since it would mean the resurrection of all mankind to a higher plane of existence, free from all materialistic conditions. Men would still live on without the incarnation of their souls in earthly bodies. The idea is that, if race propagation were to be abrogated, the incarnation of the soul would cease, without destroying humanity in its higher conception. In other words, most of these "nature men" believe in the preexistence of the soul and think it would be best for us if we never had come to earth in material form.

NATURAL MAN AND HIS SOLAR OVEN.

One of the San Diego devotees has set up a kind of tent house on Coronado Beach, in the tent city. It is open at the top to receive the full force of the sunshine, and on its side he has printed:

Let The SUNSHINE INN.

This is typical of the man and his philosophy, for if he and his fellows be noted for anything, it is their love of the sunshine. Several times a week they take their sun baths at home, generally in a place arranged out of doors. The sun bath is taken at about mid-day, and is immediately followed by a cold-water bath. Very little of the lives of these men is spent indoors, and from their devotion to the sunshine has arisen the popular idea that they are sun worshipers, when in reality they have no creed or order of worship of any kind. Sunshine and fresh air might be said to be the cardinal doctrines of the "men in white," and their sun-browned faces and bodies bear constant testimony to their close contact with nature.

San Diego's "nature worshipers," if we may so call them, are men of some mental caliber and education, leading happy, independent lives, and at peace with all men. All they ask of the world is permission to live according to their own ideas, and San Diego is quite disposed to grant them these simple rights. Unlike the crazy Russian Doukhobars of Canada, who force their unholy rites upon the public, even to the extent of going naked, these San Diego nature devotees are refined, retiring and well-read men, who never obtrude anything offensive upon the community in their attempt to live closer to nature. One of them is a Free Mason of high degree.

A Flag With a History.

UNION EMBLEM SECRETED IN THE SOUTH DURING CIVIL WAR.

By a Special Contributor.

THE stars in our flag correspond to the number of States in the Union, and when a new State is admitted to the Union a star is added to the flag, necessitating a rearrangement of the stars on all the official flags.

The little flag here pictured—about 12 by 18 inches—is one with which my brother and I, two tiny tots, living in Clarksville, Tenn., played soldier, and marched and "celebrated" in various ways, following in the footsteps of the grown people on important occasions. The thirty-three stars prove it the "official" flag of 1860, when we children first proudly owned it, for from 1859 to 1861 there were thirty-three States, then Kansas was admitted, increasing the number to thirty-four.

During the war our flag disappeared. We hunted for it diligently, and wondered what could have become of it, but by and by gave it up as one of those mysterious things that happen to playthings.

For more than three long years we did not see our flag, nor did we have another like it, but were fully as content with the "stars and bars," though I can remember times when we put that one away for a while.

My mother, a southern woman bred and born, inherited from a long line of colonial and revolutionary ancestors a large measure of the spirit of courage and intrepidity which prompted them to sail out upon the scarcely-known waters for the far-away land, years before 1700 dawned, and which stood them in such good stead in the new land. She did not think secession right, and though living in the South with loved kindred and friends all against her, had the "courage of her convictions" and remained loyal to the Union. In the light of mature years I can place a truer value upon her heroic conduct. All during that heartbreaking time she was impartial and untiring in her ministrations to the sick and wounded of both armies, as each in turn had possession of Clarksville. She was well beloved by all, and many were the grateful, loving words and letters received from distant mothers, wives, sisters and sweethearts of soldiers to whom she had given a mother's loving care, for whom she had written the last sad letters of farewell to accompany the sacred keepsakes to the saddened homes, or for whom she had obtained furloughs that they might go home to be nursed to health, or be with loved ones at the last.

When peace was declared, my mother, "little brother" and myself were on the point of returning from New Orleans, where we had been on the initial trip of the steamer Ruth, by special invitation of our uncle, George Pegram, who was the owner and captain of that newest, largest and most exquisitely-furnished of all the "floating palaces" on the Mississippi, running between St. Louis and New Orleans.

Speaking of the return from New Orleans reminds me of another prized relic—a prison ring—and an incident connected with it.

On board the Ruth were seventy soldiers returning to their homes, some from prison, some mustered out.

Just at 8 o'clock one night there was a terrible shock which shook the boat from stem to stern, followed by crashing glass. We had struck a snag in the river, and the next thought was that the boilers would burst, for there had been several recent appalling disasters of this kind. Then came the sound of rushing feet to the stern of the boat, and in a few seconds the ladies' cabin was filled with men, some with life preservers, but more without, intent on jumping into the river which was full of floating ice, to escape the expected explosion. We two little ones stood with arms around each other, waiting, but uttered no sound. On the second, my mother seeing their object, and knowing that terrible loss of life would follow in the icy river, jumped upon a sofa and appealed to tnem as men and soldiers to stop. Hearing a woman's voice stopped their rush, then they listened to her words of appeal and reassurance, then they cheered her, and the panic was over. Next morning she was publicly thanked, and assured that her presence of mind had undoubtedly saved many lives. In recognition of this act the seventy soldiers presented her with the "prison ring" as a token of their appreciation of her bravery, and said many things in her praise. It is a little black ring with a gold heart on one side, on the other a hand, and a piece of mother-of-pearl in the center.

After a visit in St. Louis we returned to our home in Clarksville, and one day, from the very bottom of a large cedar chest, our mother took the flag, on which she had written before putting away, "Tennessee, Feb., 1861." The almost-forgotten mystery of its whereabouts was explained!

CEMENT ARMOR FOR BATTLESHIPS.

Cement may take the place of steel plates as armor on French battleships in the near future, as exhaustive experiments have shown that a certain cement of French invention, the formula of which is kept secret, shows a remarkable resistance to shells fired from the heaviest naval guns. It is stated, however, that the weight of the cement armor on a vessel would be much less than the steel plates now in use.

The idea of using cement as armor is not new, but heretofore it has not been regarded as practicable on account of the cracking of the cement when struck by a heavy shell. It is to be inferred that the French process renders the cement more elastic.

During the Russo-Japanese war in March, 1904, the Russian warship Sebastopol was accidently rammed by the Peresviea, a leak seven meters long being made. This leak was repaired with cement. Later the Sebastopol saw most active service, being hit once by a torpedo, and battered by many shells. After her last fight it was found that she had been hit by six torpedoes, but the cement used in repairing the leak first mentioned was found to be practically undamaged.

The French naval architects declare that their cement-protected battleships of the future will be invulnerable.—[Harper's Weekly.

WOMAN AND COLLEGE EDUCATION.

The main object of the higher education of women has not been kept sufficiently in view. Of course, there are other objects, plenty of them—training for the professions; training for all the varieties of work that women are now engaging in; training for all that enjoyment and usefulness that comes with knowledge of the fine arts, and with appreciation of the artistic spirit, and of what the artistic spirit can do for the activities of a nation. It is woman to whom falls in greater part the training of the population in the sense of beauty and in appreciation of the worth of beauty. Who keeps the flowers blooming in the average house lot? Who fills the one southern window with plants in tin cans and broken pieces of crockery? Who engages the florist to keep the rich house filled with flowers through all the seasons? For whom are all the beautiful objects in the rich home procured and set forth? Always by and for the woman. Who teaches the little children to enjoy the beauties of nature and of art? Always, or almost always, the woman.

I look forward, therefore, to the future of the higher education for women as a great influence in the perfecting of family life, of civic life, of household joy and good.—[President Eliot of Harvard, in Harper's Bazar.

Profitable Game of Tag.

PHILADELPHIA ADOPTS A NOVEL WAY TO RAISE MONEY.

By a Special Contributor.

A WHOLE town reverted to childhood, and took a day off to play tag recently when Philadelphia put into execution the most novel of all plans to raise money for charity.

Everybody in the city played the game, from the Mayor and leaders of society, all the way down to the poorest mechanic whose outlay for charity is limited to pennies.

The motive for the novel expedient was the desire to get more lots and parks for children's playgrounds. This is a matter that had until lately been neglected in the Quaker City.

Possessing in Fairmount Park one of the finest natural pleasure spots in the world, the sentiment of the lawmakers has been that it was needless to invest any more cash in breathing spaces.

But the growth of the city has steadily increased, thickly populated sections, far from the main park, near which are no places where the youngsters can get that play which is not only entertainment, but which is essential to future health.

Educators finally roused the town to the need of more lots and parks throughout the city, but unfortunately there was no cash available to be spent in this way.

But the leaders in the plan to help the poor were not to be discouraged. Councils might not have any money, but the good people of the city had, and were willing to give if only a means of rousing their interest be found.

"Let's have a municipal game of tag," some one suggested.

It sounded like a joke at first, but when the details were worked out it developed that the plan was feasible, and the one most likely to bring a popular response.

The money to be raised was to be used for a playground. Why not let the kind of appeal have some bearing on the games likely to be played when the open spaces had been obtained?

Tag, popular among all the youngsters, was a catchy suggestion. Hence this formula was worked out: Everybody interested in the work should be supplied with a liberal quantity of tags. Then every passer-by who had not already purchased a tag was to be greeted with this formula:

"Tag, you're it. Buy one, and help the children of the poor to get parks."

It was a simple device, but it worked like a charm.

Prof. Brumbaugh, superintendent of the Philadelphia public schools, took charge of the game and promptly in the morning, so early in the day that business men had not yet had a chance to get to their offices, an army of children took the streets, and began their appeal.

The tags were made of green pasteboard, with a little cord attached, so that the purchaser could display his tag on his coat, in symbol that he had already made good, and had a right to immunity from further molestation.

A central office in the heart of the city was the distributing point for the tags, and before noon, officials of the Philadelphia Playgrounds Association had given out 800,000 tags to the army of helpers that had enlisted in the work of selling them.

Nobody seemed able to resist the catchy appeal, and as there was no fixed price per tag money fairly poured into the pockets of the workers representing the fund.

Many a tag sold for a penny, and some brought as high as $10, but a nickel was the most popular price, and at this figure thousands on thousands were disposed of in city streets.

The most systematic campaign was conducted in the center of the city, under the direction of Mary B. Kirkbride, chairman of the Eighth Ward Association. Her volunteers included boys from the fashionable private schools to which the wealth and social elect send their children. Though these youngsters were not in need of playgrounds, they went into their task with the greatest enthusiasm, and proved to be among the most successful of those who enlisted.

Some of the youngsters were given tin banks in which to keep their receipts safely, and when they came to headquarters it was a frequent experience to find the bank so well filled that it would have been out of question to force any more money into it.

"Tag, you're it. Give up."

This variation of the appeal made a great hit around the railway stations. The shortened form was adopted in deference to the need of walking fast. It was found out of question to take time for a long talk with a man who was rushing up steps to get his train.

Youngsters were distributed around the ticket offices, where they received liberally of the change left after the purchase of tickets, in the waiting-rooms, and by the entrances of the cars. Most of the collecting was done before the passenger reached his train, but even inside the car no one was safe. Some bold solicitors invested the price of a ride to the next station, and went up and down the aisles selling their tags with marked success. Conductors entered into the spirit of the day so heartily that no protest was made against this enterprise. It was probably the first time that anything of the kind has ever been permitted in public conveyances.

Politicians, far more noted for receiving than giving, had to bear their share of the expenses of tag day.

The City Hall was guarded, and with fine discrimination the officers of the association had picked out a bevy of beautiful young ladies to take care of this branch of the collection. It was felt that many a city father would be able to turn down the request of a ragged youngster, but would find himself helpless against a well-dressed and charming girl.

Mayor Reyburn was an especial target. A dozen girls were on guard in front of the main entrance to his office, and a relay guarded the only other door by which he could gain entrance.

But the chief executive of the city was too much in sympathy with the occasion to attempt to evade his share.

When they surrounded him, he laughed cheerfully, and said:

"Yes, I'm it. How much do you want per tag?"

Some one suggested that about a dollar apiece was the proper caper. The Mayor laughingly paid the tribute, and the girls insisted on fastening to his coat the twelve tags he had purchased at this liberal figure. All day long they adorned the coat of His Honor, and profiting by his example, other politicians dug into their coffers to get tags.

Still remarkable was the scene at Rittenhouse Square. This is the stronghold of society, the center of the homes of the city's wealth. Here a skirmish line of young débutantes, under the direction of Mrs. Edward Wain, was planted in front of all the fashionable clubs that border on the beautiful square.

Every man as he came from his club was importuned to buy a tag, and the prices these charming young ladies asked were not in the class where a little change would do. Anything less than a $5 note was looked upon with some surprise.

The crustiest of old bachelors could not say no to the pleadings of these beautiful young American girls, and shouts of joy constantly greeted the liberal donation of some millionaire.

Many wealthy ladies bought tags for their dogs, and these canine contributors walked proudly off with green tags dangling from their aristocratic necks, little knowing that their new decorations meant a help to a worthy cause.

With variations these scenes were repeated at the ball grounds, on street cars, in stores, in libraries, in fact everywhere that a number of people could with any confidence be looked for.

When the fund had been completed it was taken to the center of the city to the society's main office. Counting it was no small job, for the larger part was in currency.

"I'm real glad to meet you," she responded promptly, remembering her simple code of good manners; "an' I'm Mis' Bell—Abbie Bell. Fred lifted his hat. "I'm glad to know you, Mrs. Bell," he said, with entire truth. "And now, if you'll say which way, I'll see you safely home."

"'Tain't much o' a place,' Mrs. Bell laughed, as they paused at the door of her little cottage, "but you're welcome's ken be to step in. I was in such a fuss to git off tonight," she explained, as she led the way into the house and lighted the lamp on the table, "that I couldn't eat no supper, so now, if you don't mind, mebbe you'll stay fur a bite with me—if 'tis only bread an' butter an' cold beans. I'd be jest real glad to have you!"

Her hospitality was without question, following the old rule for the entertainment of strangers. Fred accepted her invitation in the spirit of its offer, and enjoyed the plain food she set before him. "It tastes like home," he explained, "and you can't imagine what that means to me."

"When I saw you first tonight I thought you was homesick—or somethin'——" She paused, then showed her sympathetic interest by filling his plate with crisp, nut-brown beans.

"I was mad," Fred said abruptly, "fighting mad, and I didn't know which way to turn for satisfaction."

"Mercy on us! you was hard up. I'm glad you wasn't mad at me." Mrs. Bell's laugh was merry. "Don't let it spoil your ap'tite," she urged, with a cheerful nod, passing him the bread.

Fred waved back the plate. "No; I can't take any more. I was mean to eat a mouthful before I told you that I was mad at you at first."

Mrs. Bell pushed her chair away from the table. "Flag o' Liberty! what was you mad at me fur?" she cried in amazement. "I ain't ever done one thing to hurt you. How could I, when I never saw you 'fore tonight?"

"I'm sure you're not to blame. I know that now." Fred's face was earnest. "And I believe you'll help me all you can, so I'm going to tell you the whole of the miserable story. Some one who works for the Tower Company's a thief," he began, with angry vehemence. "I'm sure of that. They've missed a lot of things out of my department lately, and this morning they came to me from the office about it. Now, I could see—I'm almost a stranger, for I haven't been with them long—that they questioned me a little. It hurt me. It made me sore. And yet they didn't say a word I could answer—it is just the feeling that I'm under suspicion."

"But you must 'a' told 'em you didn't know 'bout the things they missed—how could they think 'twas you, after that?" Mrs. Bell questioned eagerly, taking a chair nearer her guest.

"Perhaps they thought they'd give me a good chance to confess; that's often done." Fred went on. "But I had nothing to confess. Still, I made up my mind I'd have to find the real thief before I could clear myself, and that stumped me. I hadn't an idea where to begin. It looked awful black. I was thinking about it when I missed a little memorandum book of my own, and like a flash it came to me that I had a ticket for 'Peter Pan' in it. I thought I was extravagant when I bought that ticket, but I didn't stop for that when I lost it, I just hurried to the ticket office, and felt real lucky when I got a seat next to my first one, and——"

"Glory!" Mrs. Bell interrupted, with a wide sweep of her arm, "you can't mean me! The ticket I had was give to me, an' I——"

"I soon saw you were all right—but who gave that ticket to you?" Fred laid his hand on her shoulder, his face twitching with excitement. "Who gave it to you?" he repeated. "Oh! don't you see how it will help me to find that out? Where did you get your ticket?"

"I got it at Sikes's loan office. But wait!" She answered Fred's look of dismay with an encouraging nod. "Some o' the neighbors calls me 'Mis' Bell, providence agent,' an' mebbe I ken be one fur you. Yesterday mornin' the lady next door give me a pawn ticket an' some money, an' asked me to go to Sikes's an' git her breastpin; she was awful 'fraid to go herself fur fear her husband might find out that she took things there when she was hard up fur a little money. I don't hold to no such ways myself, but I felt sorry fur her—so I said I'd go. It was early—'fore I went to work—an' there was nobody in the place but a go-between of a slick old Jew. He tried every way to git rid o' me, but I soon told him I was goin' to have that pin—I knew it as well's my own—if I had to stay all day an' see old man Sikes himself. That bothered the old man, an' he tried to put me off by goin' in the back room, but I was too quick fur him an' got in there 'fore he could shut the door on me, an' there—mercy to me! was old Sikes talkin' to a man I knew, an' he had a big leather bag full o' things all spread out, an'——"

Fred sprang to his feet. "What did he have? Who was he?" he asked, his face white.

"The man, he grabbed up his things awful quick an' tried to stuff 'em in his bag." Mrs. Bell had no intention of forestalling her climax. "But I saw 'em! Old Sikes got me that breastpin in a big hurry, an' jest's I was goin' out, the man pulled that ticket to 'Peter Pan' out of his pocket an' give it to me, an' he told me 'twas a fine play an' I should go an' enjoy myself. Merciful goodness! jest think o' it! Why, 'tain't safe to breathe!" She gasped in excitement. "I never heard tell——"

"Who gave you the ticket?" Fred's patience had reached its limit. His voice shrilled with eagerness.

"It was the man who sits in the glass box 'bout the middle o' Tower's store. He's been there a long time, an' they all call him Mr. Webb." Mrs. Bell was positive. "An' I ken point my finger right straight at him now."

"I'll get you to do that the very first thing in the morning. Great heavens! I felt like sneaking off to the Never Never Land, but now——" Fred vented his delight in a boyish caper, ending by trying to shake off Mrs. Bell's hands.

"If you hadn't got that ticket, things would never straightened out for me," Fred Hyde said soberly, as he left the office of the Tower Company with Mrs. Bell the next morning; "and now everything's all right—thanks to your help."

"Well, I'm right glad my conscience's settled 'bout goin' to the operyhouse," Mrs. Bell laughed. "If it hadn't turned out that my goin' helped you, I might been teased by thinkin' I'd done somethin' wrong."

Fred's laugh was jolly. "You're goin' to let me have that little room I slept in last night—for I'm coming to take the place of the boarder you were so sorry to lose. Now, I want you to keep your conscience settled," he went on smilingly, without waiting for her words of delight, "for I'm not going out alone evenings after this when I can have your good company."

"Then I better go home an' make this fine dress that Mr. Tower jest give me!" Mrs. Bell's face was a study of happiness. "Glory!" she exclaimed, "it's turned out wonderful 'nough to make a person believe in——"

Fred's eyes twinkled. "Good fairies and providence agents," he interrupted promptly. "I believe in both."

THE MARTIAN ATMOSPHERE.

One of the most telling arguments which has been used against the possibility of the planet Mars being habitable has been that spectroscopists have failed to detect with certainty the presence of water vapor in the planet's atmosphere. It now seems probable that this objection will have to be abandoned, for, in a telegram recently received by Sir Norman Lockyer, Prof. Lowell announces that Mr. Slipher has got on repeated plates—specially prepared for this research—the water vapor bands stronger in the spectrum of Mars than in that of the moon at the same altitude.

Should Prof. Lowell's further researches confirm it, this result is one of the most important links in the remarkable chain of evidence for a habitable Mars. The photography of the canals was a great step forward, but the presence of these features was unconvincing unless it could be proved that the water to fill them in their proper seasons was available. Similarly, the seasonal increase and decrease in the dimensions of the snowcaps were thought to be conclusive evidence for the presence of water until the frozen carbon dioxide theory was advanced, although this theory left unexplained the ill-defined edges of the disappearing snow fields. But, so far as our present knowledge goes, it is difficult to see how carbon dioxide is able to produce the intensification of the water vapor bands in the spectrum of the planet's atmosphere.

For many years, in fact since the actual existence of permanent features on the planet's surface was established, this question of water vapor—of the existence of a substance capable of producing clouds and mists—has been one of the chief points of contention among areographers. So far back as 1863 Sir Norman Lockyer, in a communication to the Royal Astronomical Society, describing his observations of Mars during the opposition of 1862, stated that "although the complete fixity of the main features of the planet has been thus placed beyond all doubt, daily—nay, hourly—changes in the detail and in the tones of the different parts of the planet, both light and dark, occur. These changes are, I doubt not, caused by the transit of clouds over the different features." The drawings accompanying the memoir illustrated the changes mentioned, and confirmed the suspicions of cloud effects noticed by Secchi in 1858. But the assumption that these effects were caused by clouds and mists entailed the assumption of the presence of water vapor in the planet's atmosphere, and the spectroscopic evidence for this has hitherto been too indefinite. Suspected by Huggins and Vogel in 1867 and 1873 respectively, its presence was negatived by the subsequent spectroscopic researches of Campbell and Keeler, but now it appears certain, from this latest result from the Lowell observatory, that water vapor is one of the concomitants of the Martian atmosphere.—[Natu

THE PINE TREE.

There's a pine tree on a hilltop
  In a country far away,
Where all the breezes rise and drop
  In the rhythm of their play.

And a streamlet winding slowly
  In the valley just below
Lends its measures sweet and lowly
  To the tall pine's statelier flow.

Whether skies of winter darkened,
  Or the brooding summer smiled,
Came a little maid who hearkened
  By those mingled strains beguiled.

All that worldly lore has brought her
  May evanish—may decay—
But the songs the pine tree taught her,
  These shall never pass away.

The Pueblo of Picuris.

MOST INTERESTING OF INDIAN SETTLEMENTS OF NEW MEXICO.

By a Special Contributor.

IF Superintendent Clinton J. Crandall of the United States Indian Industrial School at Santa Fé, N. M., be not mistaken, the solution of the vexatious "Indian question" is now fairly in sight—at least in so far as it relates to the Pueblo Indians. Measured by any standard that can fitly be employed in gauging the lifetime of a race of men, it will not be long until the last leaf upon the withering tree of the Pueblos will have fallen, and this once numerous and powerful people will have become but a memory and a tradition.

This does not mean that famine, pestilence or senility will blot out the Pueblos within a decade or two, or that the duty of begetting children is neglected. It is true that the custom that prevails in every community, of each one of the several clans intermarrying only among its own members, tends to result in mental and physical weakness, and that ultimate extinction might result from this cause alone. But the extinction of the Pueblos by the decay and degradation of the race from this practice would doubtless require centuries of time. The younger generation is committing "race suicide" in a far more rapid manner. Despite the protests of their elders, and the anathemas of the native pagan priesthood, they intermarry with the Mexicans, losing their language, their religion, their traditions and their racial identity by amalgamation with a stronger and more numerous people. The ultimate fate of the Pueblos, therefore, appears to be the ignoble one of propagating the Greaser stock of the Southwest. A melancholy prediction this may be—but nature has nevr been a sentimentalist. It was by this means that the great and powerful community of Pecos was blotted out some sixty years ago; and at later dates the communities of Galisteo, Abiquiu, Cuyamonge and Pojoaque followed, owing to the same cause. Picuris and Nambe will not be long behind them; and probably Santa Clara, San Ildefonso, Tesuque, Jemes, Santa Ana and Zia will be almost as short-lived.

If one wishes to see the oldest of existing Pueblo towns, therefore, he must needs make haste. This is Picuris (also spelled Picuries,) the least known and least visited of the Indian villages of Northern New Mexico, probably for the reason that it is some distance off the beaten paths followed by the tourist. Yet Picuris has a long and interesting history, and a wealth of tradition that extends back into memorial antiquity. Owing to the fact that it is little visited, the primitive customs and habits of the people have been little spoiled, and not at all commercialized. Scenically, the surroundings are more attractive than those of any of the towns in the valley of the Rio Grande. To the west are the Picuris Mountains, and on the east are the towering Truchas Peaks and Jicarita Mountains, among the highest in New Mexico, while the broad and fertile valley of Peñasco spreads out below.

Tradition and research both indicate that Picuris is the most ancient of existing Pueblo villages. There are not more than a dozen occupied dwellings, standing some distance apart, and mostly but one story in height, so that architecturally this is one of the least imposing of the communities. Yet all around are the ruins of buildings that must have compared favorably with the casas grandes of Taos. The largest of these is well enough preserved to indicate that it must have been at least four stories in height, built of adobe, in the pyramidal style characteristic of ancient Pueblo architecture. Altogether there are more than a score of extensive ruins in the neighborhood, some of prehistoric origin, and others of comparatively recent date. Three centuries ago, according to the most reliable of the Spanish chroniclers, the population was about 1000. Farther back than that, if the dumb testimony of the piles of crumbling and disintegrating ruins counts for anything, it must have been at least 3000. No longer ago than 1905, it is stated to have been 205. Today it is less than 100.

The best way of reaching Picuris is to ride or drive from Taos, a distance of thirty-five miles. Most of the way the road is good, but for a part of the distance it lies across a range of mountains that has not yet received a distinctive name. The most difficult part of the road crosses "U. S. Hill," so named on account of a well-authenticated tradition that the United States government built a military road over it in the early days of the American occupation. Through the summer months heavy clouds gather around the crown of the hill almost every afternoon, and the rains have washed the boulders bare, so that the road is now but a memory. Should any one want to visit Picuris without taking in Taos on the same itinerary, the drive may be made from Embudo Station, on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad. The distance is only fifteen miles, but the road is even worse than that over "U. S. Hill," requiring full four hours to traverse it. There are no accommodations whatever for travelers at the pueblo; but three miles farther on, at Peñasco, one may find lodging with Hon. Ramon Sanchez, a true Spanish gentleman of the old school; or a mile farther up the valley he will be given a genuine American welcome by Abe Smith, one of the Anglo-Saxon pioneers of that part of the country.

A number of authorities on Indian crafts and industries (among them Dr. Charles Eastman, the educated Sioux) have made the statement that the making of arrowheads is a lost art, many asserting that no living Indian knows how to manufacture flint or obsidian arrow points or spear points from the raw materials as they exist in nature. Eastman has even stated it as his belief that the Indians never made these implements, but that all now in existence, or formerly used by the Indians, were relics left by a prehistoric race. Any one visiting Picuris can prove these assertions to be mistaken by the investment of half a dollar. It is well worth the price—particularly as the arrowhead will be the only souvenir obtainable. Any of the older men will chip a perfectly-formed arrow or spear point in half an hour or less. The apparatus necessary consists of fire, water, an assortment of straws of various sizes, and a piece of flint or obsidian. The obsidian is heated to a dull red in the fire. Then it is withdrawn and a drop of water applied to it with one of the straws. Immediately a flake chips off. The size of the chip is proportioned exactly to the size of the drop of water. By using very fine straws exceedingly minute drops of water may be applied, chipping off flakes no larger than a pinhead, while larger drops from coarser

Buttoo, Famous Archer.

TALE OF AN ANCIENT INDIAN RETOLD FOR AMERICAN PEOPLE.

By a Special Contributor.

WHEN I was, some years back, studying the ancient classics of India I lighted on a pathetic story of a young archer, named Buttoo, which I consider well worth reproducing. Apart from its interest as a human document, it affords a beautiful illustration of those three very desirable virtues—self-help, truth, and modesty.

Buttoo, who played his part so nobly for a brief space of time, was born in far-off days, and belonged to the lowest of the mixed orders of human kind in India.

Then, as now, existed the hateful system of caste, which legally as well as socially separates the different classes of Hindu society. Originally there were four great castes, which can be described briefly as the priestly, the soldier, the merchant, and the servant castes. These four classes, the law says, cannot eat or drink together, cannot intermarry, and cannot even touch each other accidentally without defilement.

Caste has been the curse of India. It has dried up the wells of human sympathy, separated man from man, and opposed itself to everything approaching wide brotherly love, leading men to say one to another, "Between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, so that they which would pass from hence to you cannot, neither can they pass to us that would come from thence."

Buttoo, the hero of our story, was of the lowest caste, and consequently to all who were not of the same caste he was an object to be looked upon with not a little scorn, a being to be crushed and trampled upon by proud Brahmins. From his earliest years, according to the chronicles, Buttoo had been thoughtful and rather reserved, and seemed very different from the majority of the boys who were his playmates. And when he had passed the age of 14 the difference became more marked. His friends could see that he was a boy who thought much, who had within him a noble soul, and who was evidently seeking earnestly the highest and the best.

The grand ambition of youth at the time Buttoo lived was to be skillful in all warlike pursuits. The state of the country was very unsettled, and men were suspicious of their neighbors, and safety for life and property lay in being able to defend them. And the road to wealth and fame was the trade of war.

Now Buttoo, though different from most youths in many things, was at one with them in desiring to be a mighty warrior, whose name should be known far and wide. Only he desired that his path to glory might not be sullied with any cruelty or any crime. As a hunter's son, of course, he was early trained in the use of various weapons, and especially in the use of the bow, with which he became exceedingly skillful. Among his companions few could equal him in skill in archery, and none could excel him.

But skillful as the young man became he was not satisfied, for stories reached him of still more marvelous skill to which many youths of the higher castes had attained. From one quarter in particular news came which set his heart on fire, and which made him long to leave his home that he might see, and if possible imitate, the exploits of others.

Of all the great teachers of archery of whom Buttoo could hear anything, the mighty Orona, teacher of the Bharata princes, was the acknowledged head and chief. And of the princes, Arjuna eclipsed his brethren, and was the joy of the old teacher's heart, and the latter swore by all the gods that no living being should ever surpass his favorite pupil in skill.

Wonderful deeds of archery performed by those great ones of the earth reached the ears of the low-born Buttoo, and he said to himself that what man had done man could do; and one day he left his home and his father and his friends, and went forth to visit the city of Hastinapore, to pray the mighty Drona to become his instructor also.

Arrived at the capital he strode boldly into the presence of the preceptor, who sat surrounded by the princes, and declared in reverent yet manly words that he had come to do him homage and to invoke his aid.

"And who art thou?" the teacher asked.

"My name is Buttoo," replied the youth, "a hunter's son."

And then a laugh of scorn broke on his ears. The great preceptor was laughing, and the princes were laughing; all were laughing together to think that such a low-born churl should come into their city and presence with such a request. And with biting words of sarcasm they bade him begone, and not show his face to them again. And the lad made reverent obeisance to the teacher and turned with flushed cheeks, yet with calm dignity, away.

And lo! a single, single tear
  Dropped from his eyelash as he passed;
"My place, I gather, is not here;
  No matter! What is rank or caste?
In us is honor, or disgrace,
  Not out of us"—'twas thus he mused.
"The question is—not wealth or place,
  But gifts well used, or gifts abused.
And I shall do my best to gain
  The science that man will not teach;
For life is as a shadow vain
  Until the utmost goal we reach
To which the soul points."

Brave and noble words, and who could doubt that such a youth would become famous? And famous Buttoo did become, though not just in the way that one might have expected. From the presence of Drona and the scoffing princes the low-born but high-souled Buttoo passed into the priest. Of home he did not think for a moment, for he had resolved that he would not return thither until his name was honored even by the great ones of the earth.

In the forest he built himself a little hut in which to dwell, and near the hut he carved out for himself an image of the great teacher who had cast him off, yet whom he still reverenced. And the image was so skillfully wrought that any one seeing it might have thought for a moment that the teacher in his flesh was there. And when Buttoo had completed his task he knelt down before the figure, and in his zeal hailed it as his master.

And from that hour he devoted himself to archery, and archery alone. Day by day he practiced with his bow at marks set up by himself, and at birds and animals in the forest; and with such enthusiasm, perseverance and patience did he labor that in the course of time he attained unheard-of and almost undreamt-of skill. Even high-caste Arjuna could not now hope to hold his own in archery against low-born Buttoo.

There came a day when as fate would have it the princes of Hastinapore went into the wood where Buttoo dwelt, on a hunting expedition. With them they took a beautiful and favorite dog; and ere the day declined this dog had found out the presence of Buttoo, and thereupon set up a most terrific barking. It may be that even the aristocratic dog, learning evil from its masters, was offended at the sight of the low-caste youth.

Be that as it may, it barked so loudly and so fiercely that Buttoo was well-nigh distracted, and the princes just then appearing on the scene, he resolved to show his skill and to obtain quiet by shooting an arrow from his bow into the mouth of the dog. In a moment the deed was done, and before the dog could close its mouth six other arrows were sent with such speed that they also entered. And the tongue of the dog was fastened to its jaw; and the story adds, though the seven arrows remained in its mouth, no pain was felt, but perfect silence was obtained.

Struck with astonishment at such marvelous shooting, the princes were speechless, and turned away with haste and dismay. All felt that Buttoo was their superior, and they were angry and envious. Arjuna in particular was white with rage, and hurried home to find his teacher, that he might tell him what had happened, and reproach him with breaking the promise he had once made him, that no one living should excel him in the use of the bow.

Drona quieted the envious and enraged Arjuna with the words: "What I said still holds good; let us go and see this wonderful youth in the forest." And soon they stood before the statue which adjoined the hut; and from the lowly dwelling-place stepped forth Buttoo with a smile of welcome on his face.

"What means this statue?" asked the teacher. And the youth explained that, not being permitted to have the living person as his master, he had carved out his image, that by looking at it he might obtain inspiration.

Drona listened well pleased, for the homage was flattering, but yet he was troubled, as he thought of Buttoo's skill and his one promise to Arjuna. Meditating for some time, he saw only one way out of the difficulty, and a very painful way. Turning then to Buttoo, he said: "If I am thy master, now thou hast finished thy course, give me my fee, and let all the past be dead and passed, and thenceforth let us make fresh ties."

And the youth answered:

"All that I have, O master mine,
  All I shall conquer by my skill,
Gladly shall I to thee resign;
  Let me but know thy gracious will.

"Beware! Beware!" exclaimed the teacher, "rash promises often end in strife."

But Buttoo in his great generosity protested his sincerity, and his willingness to do anything.

"Then listen," said Drona, "thou seest this prince, Arjuna. I promised him once that no other archer should be so great as he. Thou art already greater, and only by thine own act can thy skill be spoiled. Thou hast promised to give me as my fee anything I choose to ask. I ask thee, O Buttoo! for thy right-hand thumb, that thumb whose light touch enabled thee to shoot so wonderfully. Canst thou keep thy word? What sayest thou?"

Buttoo answered not by words, but by deeds:

"Glanced the sharp knife one moment high,
  The severed thumb was on the sod;
There was no tear in Buttoo's eyes;
  He left the matter with his god."

And thus the story ends. Doubtless the poor lad went back to his home and to his father and kindred, but he went not back a great archer, for his right hand had lost its cunning.

EDITION: TWELVE BILLION COPIES.

It is estimated that the annual aggregation of the circulation of the newspapers of the world is some 12,000,000,000 copies. To grasp an idea of what these figures mean one should be told that these papers would cover no fewer than 10,450 square miles of surface; that they are printed on 781,250 tons of paper; and, further, that if the number (12,000,000,000) represented, instead of copies, seconds of time it would take more than 333 years for them to elapse. In lieu of this arrangement, we might press and pile them vertically upward to reach our highest mountains.

Topping all these and even the highest Alps, the pile would reach the magnificent altitude of, in round numbers, 500 miles. Calculating that the average man spends five minutes in the day reading his paper (a very low estimate,) we find that the people of the world altogether annually consume in the reading of their papers an amount of time equivalent to 100,000 years.—Harper's Weekly.

The Affair at the Gap.

SHOWING WHERE WOMEN SOMETIMES PLACE THEIR LOVE.

By a Special Contributor.

LAWTON'S pony had gone lame. Lawton was pushing on doggedly ahead of his horse, the animal nosing his shoulder in pitiful docility and breathing heavily with the pain of the wrenched tendon. The man swore mildly and without blasphemous intent as the whips of the young spruces lashed his face, and, after plodding wearily for a while over the sliding shale, paused to tighten the rough bandage, made of a scarlet handkerchief, that he had bound about the pony's ankle.

As the range rider emerged into the lower firepath of the government reservation, he threw a glance over the valley below for signs of grazing sheep, and noted with satisfaction that the Basque Indian in charge of the Puente band was conscientiously herding his charges outside of prohibited Federal territory. From the spur of gravel and shifting shale rock where he stood, the great, half-uprooted pine, his own landmark for the boundary of government land, was easily discernible.

Lawton turned and spoke encouragingly to his horse, and started down the steep slide toward the floor of Foxtail Valley and the village. For two days the range rider had been seeking an easier method of ascent to the danger zone of his section, the well-nigh inaccessible point of forest where so many fires mysteriously originated, and his quest had been a temporary failure. His horse was lame. He must hunt a new pony, and horses fitted for the mountain tangles were not easily obtainable, at least such as the one now following him with unquestioning faith.

Safely off the mountain, he was making his way slowly through Dennison's Gap in the direction of the settlement, when his ear caught the sound of galloping horses and the rattle of a heavy wagon. In the narrow gap it meant that he and his pony must seek one of the many niches cut in the clay at the side of the trail, and wait for the team to pass.

As he reached the nearest passing-point, a half loaded lumber wagon approached, the horses running under the frenzied lashing of a boy on the seat. Lawton stepped into the trail to stop what he immediately concluded was a drunken driver, when the boy saw him, and pulling his team up suddenly, jumped from the seat and came to him. Lawton realized two things at once—that the boy was Chris Harkness, who lived several miles out of the settlement, and that the lad's face was ashen with terror. Young Harkness sank sobbing at the range rider's feet.

"I been held up by a gun man up the trail. Jumped on me from the chaparral—an' he says: 'Gi' me that team to git up into the mountain with, an'——'"

"Wait a minute, boy," broke in the ranger, shortly; "you been drinkin', Chris?"

"No, God, no! I been held up. He killed a feller up there—he says he did, and his face was cut and bleedin', and he pushed the gun plumb in my face and swore he'd send me to hell if I didn't gi' him the team. 'You see that two-horse hitch up the trail?' he says. 'Well, there's a deputy in that team, an' I killed him! You hear me?' he says. 'Git out, damn you, an' gi' me one o' them horses,' he says. An' I tol' him both my horses was too heavy for the mountain trail. I guess he seen I was right, 'cause he swore at me an' started off through the brush toward the reservation. Then I seen you comin'."

Lawton told the trembling boy to drive his team into the cut and unhitch, and, still leading his crippled pony, went on in the direction the boy had come, at the same time slipping his big Colt revolver from its holster, and examining its load.

Lawton had gone but a half-mile when he came upon two horses on the edge of the trail, grazing the foxtail still green from the late rains. Flecks of foam were yet undried on the animal's flanks, and attached to them was a light buggy, such as is more often seen in the fruit belt below this wild country. The top of the vehicle was smashed back and splintered, and, lying in a suggestive huddle across the seat, with his knee-lace boots still braced against the dashboard and his head lolling back over the seat top, was a man whose veins had been opened by swift violence, a man who was dead, and on whose breast gleamed the nickel badge of a deputy sheriff.

Once before, far up in the reservation, Lawton had come upon a camp where murder had been done, and he recognized the expressionless calm on the face, so that he barely touched the wrist of the still form. He cast his eyes up the trail toward the settlement, filled with indecision for the moment, and terribly troubled by the tragedy he had found. Then his attention came back to the crushed buggy top, to the heaving flanks of the horses, and again to the dead man's face.

"Galen Rivers," he said, reflectively; "Deputy Sheriff Galen Rivers from the county seat. I'd know that big gun fighter if I saw him——" The common expression died on the ranger's lips as he shot one more comprehensive glance at the form on the seat. Then the nerveless stupor caused by the shock of the discovery passed from the ranger.

"Plain case o' murder," he shouted to young Harkness, who approached and stood at a distance, staring dumbly; "murdered by some prisoner." Lawton stooped and picked up some pieces of tie rope from the bottom of the buggy, pieces which had been severed by some sharp instrument.

Lawton's searching in the deputy's buggy caused him to miss the advent of another person on the scene, a man who came from the settlement on a gray horse, riding bareback and with leisure. He was nearly upon them before Harkness noticed him. It was Saunders, foreman of the Puente sheep ranch. As he saw the group by the roadside he urged his mount to a trot and drew up abruptly before Lawton and the boy.

"Smashup?" he inquired. "Where's the deputy?"

"One o' hell's damnable smash-ups," replied the ranger. "An' that's Rivers in the buggy. He's dead. Knife wound through the jugular. Know anything about where he's been, Saunders?"

But Saunders's eyes had brought him proof of the tragedy before Lawton's words reached him, and the color left his face.

"I was with him this afternoon," cried the foreman, his voice breaking into a sob. "He arrested a horse thief for me, an' got this horse back that I am ridin'. We was up to the Wild Rose rancho, an' he got young Haines, the —— —— who did the stealin'. Haines come near gettin' the deputy at the rancho. Snapped a gun five times in the deputy's face, but the cartridges was old and didn't explode. By God! Oh, by——"

"Well, never mind about them swear words, Saunders. You turn round and ride to the postoffice at the settlement an' telephone the Sheriff at the county seat. Double-one-five's the number. Move, now, an' I'll stay here with the—Chris, you hike, too. I don't need you."

For those who dwell in Foxtail Valley there is little twilight. The foothills of the Sierra Madre are enveloped in streamers of light haze all during the summer afternoons. Here and there a young sequoia, spared because of its youth by the timber cutters, towers above the stunted spruce like a signal station. The struggle of the vegetable growth to renew itself from the blight of the ax is a heroic one, like the rising of a flame-destroyed city. The rank, wild foxtail grows brown in the parch of summer days, and over the floor of the plain move the eternally-grazing sheep, their cries bringing forth the feeling of desolation to all that hear them, leaving always trodden and cropped desolation in their wake.

Lawton watched the sun go down. It neared the topmost point of the hills and disappeared as a flag flutters down from its staff. He was grateful for the gloom that encompassed him, a gloom which fitted the unwelcome task before him. The shadows closed about the form in the buggy until the horses, the equipage and its burden were blended into an indistinguishable mass of gray-black. Alone he watched and strained his eyes toward the trail on the south, toward the great Puente Valley, where the acres of golden fruit slept in the evening dew, waiting for the first signs of the Sheriff and his posse from the city beyond. As the hours wore on he at times challenged the coming of excited dwellers in the settlement, until a group of whispering men surrounded the boulder where the ranger sat. With his eyes on the trail to the south, Lawton was first to see the spurt of flame shoot heavenward, followed immediately by the gunshot report, and he answered with all five chambers of his gun. Shortly after the signal the Sheriff and his men were in their midst.

Men who are constantly associated with violence and sudden death have, as a rule, little comment to make when standing in the presence of tragedy, but the tough, bronzed deputies of the county who gathered around the buggy that night saw by the lantern rays the work of a felon who had practiced his trade upon one of their members, a fearless deputy who had worked with them in many perilous undertakings. Their grief was silent, and their rage clamored for activity.

"I offer, in the name of the county, $1000 for the apprehension of the person who did this dirty work," stated the Sheriff. "And the boys need not be particular how they get him, so long as they get him," he finished. Then he proceeded to organize several posses. Lawton, the range rider, took the oath and was deputized, the Sheriff putting under his command a small band of efficient men from the immediate neighborhood. Through the remainder of the night the hills were scoured, but any one who has ever climbed up the slopes of the Sierra Madre in the daylight knows well the futility of carrying on a pursuit in the darkness.

From Saunders and the natives of the settlement the authorities gathered the story which led up to the tragedy in Dennison's Gap. Saunders's story was brief, but was an unbroken chain of the events happening until Haines, the fugitive, was taken out of the yard of the Wild Rose rancho by Deputy Sheriff Rivers. Saunders had told the deputy that he suspected the presence of Haines at the hillside ranch. Rivers and the sheep foreman had gone there together. Haines was met in the yard. Haines told the deputy he knew of no stolen goods on the ranch. Rivers said he had a warrant to search the house and the premises, and young Haines accompanied the deputy when he entered the small, two-roomed shack which served as a dwelling-house, Saunders following. While in the dwelling, Saunders identified a blanket and some small bundles of provisions, which had been in his team at the time the horse was stolen. When discovery became inevitable, Haines had slipped unobserved into an adjoining room, and returning, had attempted to kill the deputy, and in turn been overpowered, the desperate man in the meantime begging for his life. It was then that Deputy Sheriff Rivers discovered the loss of his handcuffs, which had evidently dropped from his pocket during his journey to the rancho. Saunders bound Haines while the deputy covered him with a revolver, using strong tie ropes. In a corral on the ranch Saunders's missing gray mare was found. The deputy started ahead in the buggy with his prisoner fast bound, and Saunders followed on his recovered property. There had been no other person on the ranch, Saunders said, save a girl, perhaps 17 years old, who assisted the deputy in his search of the ranch house, and who told Saunders that she had been in fear of Haines, suspecting that he had done something for which he had fled from justice, and that she was glad to see him go. The girl's name was Anita Graves, he said, the daughter of one of his own sheep herders, and she explained her presence at the Wild Rose rancho. She was cooking provisions for the herders of the upper Puente band of sheep, and went to her own home each night in company with her father. Haines had been

The kindly matron at the jail, who had grown to believe that nothing new in crime could shock her, shuddered from the force of Anita Graves's vocabulary, as she accompanied her to a cell in the woman's department. In her savage anger, Anita had told Lawton of her share in the killing of Deputy Sheriff Rivers. She had overtaken the buggy by a shorter trail through the foothills, and creeping up behind with a clasp knife, had severed her lover's bonds and handed him the knife, fleeing to the underbrush. And she had subjected Carson to brutal, humiliating badinage about his courtship of her. But the girl quailed before her lover's anger. Haines blamed her for his capture.

"If you hadn't fed me so many hard-boiled eggs that I had to pitch them away I never would have been found," he told her savagely. "I stayed in the mountains till I nearly starved, but I was all right in that stack. The hay was thrown over an old grain wagon, and I had a fine roomy house in there."

"This is not the pretty wild-flower girl you spoke of having found in the hills, is it Carson?" one of the deputies asked.

"No," said Carson, shortly.

Lawton, the ranger, made no remarks. But to the Sheriff he spoke of giving his share of the reward to the Widow Rivers, Galen's aged mother.

"Galen told me quite a while ago that there was a little balance due on their house," he said.

HENRY L. MARSHALL.

Robert Burns.

A Talk With a Grandson of the Great Scotch Poet.

From London Chronicle.

A FAMILIAR song of Burns has a curiously personal message for a delightful old gentleman, who lives by the green slopes of Camp Hill, in Glasgow. His name, to the world, is James Glencairn Thomson, but his heart owns just as true a kinship as any church register can prove with no less a man than the poet himself. He is, in fact, Robert Burns's only surviving grandson. His grandmother was "gowden-locked Anna," for whom Robbie was prepared to flout both "kirk and state," and to exchange moon, stars, and everything for "the sunshine of her e'e."

Only recently—and thanks largely to the efforts of Mr. J. K. McDowell, the energetic secretary of the Scottish Football Association—the government has learned of Mr. Thomson's existence and claims. Having been for some years in straitened circumstances, he is probably to receive soon some slight official assistance, though there seem to be difficulties, quite unconnected with Mr. Thomson himself, in the way of a regular civil-list pension.

Anyhow, in a long talk with a Daily Chronicle representative, the old gentleman left no possible doubt as to the authenticity of his descent. One glance, indeed, was enough. Though once black as a raven's wing, his hair is snow-white now—for he is already in his 81st year. But about that "frosty pow" there is an unmistakable suggestion of the brow and profile that Nasmyth's portrait has immortalized.

In younger days the likeness was yet more striking. Once, for instance, Mr. Thomson was visiting Burns's own Tarbolton, while "Granny" Hey, one of the original "Tarbolton lassies," who remembered the poet in the flesh, was still hostess at the local inn. In a moment "Granny" recognized the newcomer as a genuine "Burns."

Above all, the story that Mr. Thomson had to tell—sitting in the little flap "up two stairs" where he has lived for forty years, and where his mother, Burns's own daughter, died—has a romance about it that will bring him closer to the hearts of those who love Burns than any pedigree could do.

Its circumstances are saddening enough. The "gowden-locked Anna" of the song was, it seems, niece of the proprietor of the Globe Tavern at Dumfries. At that time Burns was seeking to drown remorse and disappointment in only too many of those "pints o' wine" he celebrated so melodiously. Alas! while faithful Jean was away at Mauchline, "gowden-locked Anna" proved all too fond.

Finding herself about to become a mother, Anna fled to Leith, and there gave birth to a daughter, Bettie Burns. What became of Anna after that no one knows. It is believed that she died soon after. Anyhow, she fades out of the story—poor foolish little heart, "gowden-locks," "melting form," "hinny lips," and all.

Perhaps the baby, destined to become Mr. Thomson's mother, might have disappeared, too, from the scene had it not been for a noble act on the part of Jean Armour—one that is little celebrated, but deserves to be remembered forever to her credit. Quietly, without protest, without telling even her father, Jean Armour adopted the little one, rocking it to sleep in the same cradle as her own child William, who was born only a few days before. From that time forth Betty was brought up as a member of the Burns household, not the faintest difference being made between her and the others. She grew to woman's estate in the little home in Dumfries. She was married at Jean Armour's house, and in Jean Armour's presence.

It is possible that the truest tribute that could be paid alike to the character of Burns himself and to that of Jean Armour is Mr. Thomson's memory of his mother, to whom he was passionately devoted, and of her talks about the poet and his "bonny Jean." "Though she was but 6 when he died," said Mr. Thomson, "my mother minded Burns well. She minded him taking her on his knee and teaching her to sing 'Ye banks and braes o' bonnie Doon.' She had a beautiful voice, had my mother, and she and Jean Armour would sing together.

"Then my mother minded him coming home from Brow in the last days, when he was dying. She never forgot the sight of him sitting huddled up in the cart, his face buried in his hands. The next thing she minded was his funeral. She was at the graveside with the rest.

"Always," the old man went on, "my mother taught me to love and be proud of my grandfather. Jean Armour had taught her the same. Ye ken he was a very lovable man; and if he did wrong the lassies were partly to blame. Never an unkind word did Jean Armour speak to my mother. She taught her to read scripture, and every New Year's Day Jean Armour would open the 'big ha' Bible' and choose a text haphazard for the year. My mother, like Jean Armour, became a very religious woman, and to us eight children she was the model of what a mother should be. She had my grandfather's poetic spirit in her, but she could not express it, save in singing her songs.

"She had a terrible struggle to make both ends meet both at Langside, where I was born, and at Pollockshaws, where we lived afterward. My father was a weaver, and for some years a soldier, and courted my mother when he was stationed at Dumfries. Afterward he went back to weaving. He was a good father to us in many ways, but sometimes stern, and I mind well what happy Sundays we used to spend all alone with our mother, when he was out seeing an old soldier friend of his. Then she used to blossom out, and tell us all sorts of stories and sing to us. But it must have been a hard time for her. I used to greet sometimes when there were lumps in my porridge, but she used to say: 'You'd better eat it, Jamie; there's naething else the day.' "

Such were some of Mr. Thomson's memories of the two noble women whose heroism illumines the sorry tale of Bettie Burns's birth even more, perhaps, than Burns's own lyric ecstasies. It may be noted that they who suffered more for Robbie's faults than any other, forgave and loved him. After that, does there not seem an impertinence about the strictures of little prating moralists! When he had finished, Mr. Thomson showed some precious portraits and other treasures, lovingly preserved in the pretty parlor, or "ben."

One was a portrait of his mother—Bettie Burns herself. It was an oil painting by John Kelso Hunter, and showed, in an old-fashioned mob cap, an exceedingly pretty woman with Robbie's own dark, lustrous eyes, full of intelligence and character and humor, but with a firmness of purpose about the slightly pursed mouth that Robbie lacked. Can this have been an inheritance from "gowden-locked Anna?" One fears not! Betty lived, anyhow, to be 84, and a fine old lady she must have been. There were other keepsakes, too—a scrap of Robbie's manuscript, in the familiar bold, clear, characteristic handwriting, pictures of scenes from his poems, given to Mr. Thomson by friends, old editions, engravings, and what not.

It is not only, however, as a repository of memories that Mr. Thomson has proved himself a worthy grandson of Robbie Burns. In his own personality he is a grandson of whom any poet might be proud—full of racy humor and enthusiasm, and one who "keenly feels the friendly glow." So far as the "softer flame" is concerned, he has never married, having spent his whole life in touching devotion to his mother, whom he kept, and with whom he lived in this very house until her death.

Since then he has stayed on alone, "contented with little and canty with mair," a well-known Glasgow figure, respected by all who meet him. Though failing eyesight forbids him to follow his profession as an engraver, he can still walk his ten miles a day, and jump on a tram while it is going, and is a great player of bowls. He confessed, indeed, that throughout the winter he has been "just wearying for a game." Till lately, too, Mr. Thomson could sing a good song, and "Duncan Gray" from him on a "Burns night" was always a great event.

Though the only surviving grandson, Mr. Thomson is not, of course, the only grandchild. Three granddaughters still survive—Mrs. Brown, of Dumfries (a natural daughter of Robert Burns, junior,) and Mrs. Hutchinson and Miss Annie Beckett Burns of Cheltenham, daughters of James Glencairn Burns. Mr. Thomson believes there may be other children of Robert Burns, Jr., in Belfast, but they have not been traced.

As to the younger generation, there are plenty of great-grandchildren, great-great-grandchildren, and—in Chicago—some grandchildren of Mrs. Hutchinson. A particularly remarkable instance, however, of the survival of ancestral traits occurs in the family of Mr. William Thomson, manager of Glasgow Baths and a son of Bettie Burns's eldest child, Robert. By some mysterious disposition of destiny, though no others of Mr. Thomson's family show much likeness to the poet, his youngest daughter is "the living image." Indeed, it is almost startling to recognize in this young lady, who is a beautiful young brunette, and of an exceedingly bright disposition, the very eyes of Robbie himself looking out from a face that might well have inspired the ever-susceptible poet to yet more immortal rhyme!

NO STREET RAILWAY IN WYOMING.

"In all our State there is not one mile of street railway nor any paved streets," said Prof. Frederick C. Beeler, the State geologist of Wyoming, who was in Kansas City recently.

"There is a population of 16,000 in Cheyenne, but being a very compact town, it has not needed street cars. As for pavements, nature provides them. There is a gravel that washes down from the mountains and overspreads the thoroughfares, making an excellent roadbed. Over this there forms a fine white dust. It is sometimes annoying, so I am investigating Kansas City's system of oiling boulevards."—[Kansas City Star.

RUBE WADDELL, at a banquet in his honor in St. Louis, said of pitching:

"The secret of winning pitching is trickery. I once knew a Nicetown drummer named Horton who would have made a fine pitcher. I found Horton one day writing in a red book.

" 'A diary?' said I. 'I didn't know you kept a diary, Horton.'

" 'It is only a fake one,' he replied. 'I make out in it that I lead the life of a saint. Then I leave it lying around for my wife to read.' "

"The Irish and the Dutch."

THE young doctor was forced to admit that there seemed to be no hope of old Hans Schmidt's recovery from typhoid. Everything he knew—and more—had been tried, but Hans grew steadily worse. He had only one desire—to taste his beloved sauerkraut once more before he died, which, of course, the doctor sternly forbade. However, old Hans eluded his nurses in the night, made his way to the kraut keg, and, as he expected to die anyway, ate his fill. He was surprisingly better next day, and finally told the doctor what he had done. The doctor immediately gave him permission to eat plenty of sauerkraut, and Hans's recovery was rapid.

The young doctor made the following entry in his book:

"Sauerkraut cured the Dutchman."

His next case of typhoid was an Irishman, and he also was desperately sick. Recalling the remarkable recovery of Hans, the physician suggested trying Pat with a little well-cooked sauerkraut. When he came back in the morning, poor Pat had succumbed, and the next entry under the "Typhoid" list read:

"But killed the Irishman." A. W. F.

THEY were walking under a very little umbrella, and she liked it well enough not to want a large spread of alpaca. He was modest and seemed to be nervous, and she finally remarked, very softly, and with a note of interrogation:

"Charlie, I'll carry the umbrella, if you will let me?"

"Oh, no! I can carry it."

"Yes, Charlie, but, you see, your arm takes up so much room that one side of me is out in the wet."

"I know, Fanny; but what will I do with my arm? Won't it be in the way all the same?"

"I don't know, Charlie; Tom Clark always knows what to do with his arm when he is under an umbrella with Mary Martin, because Mary told me so."—[Tit-Bits.

Real Poverty.

TWO old Jewish beggars were traveling together through the residence section of Pittsburgh not long ago, in quest of contributions toward their joint capital.

Presently they passed a handsome residence, from where sweet sounds of music issued. It was Ike's turn, and hopefully he ascended the steps to the front door, eagerly watched by Jake, who expected quite a handsome addition to their funds.

His consternation was great consequently when he beheld Ike returning crestfallen and empty-handed.

Anxiously running to meet him, he said: "Vell, Ikey, how did you make out with the good people?"

"Ach, Jakey," replied Ike, "there was no use asking in there, because they are very poor people themselves. Just think—two lovely ladies playing on one piano!"—[Judge's Library.

BUFFALO BILL, who says that with hard work a man should live to be a centenarian, talked, at a reunion of Kansas cavalrymen, about straight shooting.

"It is hard work to learn to be a good shot," he said. "We Americans are better shots than most," he said. "A French prince visited me on my ranch once, and we went out after birds.

"I came back with a full bag, but when I asked the prince what he had killed, he said proudly:

" 'Of ze bairds, none; zey are too difficile; but, of ze vild calves and calves, I 'ave nine ovair ze 'ill.' "

OTTO E. SCHAAR, president of a club of New York waiters, said the other day of a parsimonious young man: "He resembles a chap they tell about in Bucks county. This chap lived alone with his father. On the old man's death he would inherit the farm. Finally, the old man took sick. His end drew near. The son sat up with him a night or two, expecting him to pass away. But he lingered on.

"On the fifth or sixth night the son, instead of sitting up, put a lamp, turned very, very low, on a table by the bed, and went off to his own room with the caution:

" 'When you feel that it is all over with you, father, don't forget to blow out the lamp.' "

"A CORRUPTIONIST," said Senator Depew, "once entered a voter's house. In the voter's absence he pleaded his cause to the man's wife. Finally, spying a wretched kitten on the floor, he said:

" 'I'll give you $25 for that animal, ma'am.'

"She accepted those terms.

"The corruptionist, thrusting the kitten in his overcoat pocket, rose to go. At the door he said:

" 'I do hope you can persuade your husband to vote for me, ma'am.'

" 'I'll try to,' said the woman, 'though Jim's a hard one to move when his mind's made up; but anyhow, you've got a real cheap kitten there. Your opponent was in yesterday and gave me $50 for its brother.' "

"A MARTINET," said Gen. F. D. Grant at a Memorial Day banquet, "is generally a fool.

"They tell a story of a martinet of the Civil War, a captain. He got orders from headquarters one day that his men were to change their undershirts.

" 'But captain,' said a sergeant to whom this order was communicated, 'the men have only one undershirt each.'

"The captain frowned. Then he said:

" 'No matter. Military commands must be obeyed. Let them change undershirts with one another.' "

Particular on That Head.

AN American, while visiting Kingston, Canada, recently saw flames issuing from a house he chanced to be passing at noontime. Rushing round the corner, he burst into a fire-engine station, shouting "Fire!"

At his entrance and cry, an old man, the only occupant of the station, who sat reading a newspaper, slowly rose, carefully deposited his paper on the chair, and hobbled over to a desk, on which was a large book. "Now," said he, taking up a pencil and opening this volume, while the American stared in amazement, "wot's the street and number?"

"I don't know, but it's just around the corner!"

"Well, you'd better go back and find out the number," advised the old man, shutting the book. "When the boys git back from dinner and hear there's a fire, they'll be pretty anxious to know just where it is!"—[Judge.

PROF. KUHNEMANN, of the University of Berlin was tremendously impressed on his recent visit to Boston, with the learning of Boston's women.

"From the highest to the lowest class," Prof. Kuhnemann said at a dinner at the Lorraine, "I find the women of Boston marvelously learned. To find a scholar's daughter learned is not surprising, but when one finds learning in a hodcarrier's daughter, one can't but be impressed."

Prof. Kuhnemann smiled thoughtfully.

"How different things are in London," he said. "There I once overheard a cook correcting the grammar of a housemaid.

MRS. ELINOR GLYN, the brilliant author of "Three Weeks," compared the American with the English summer.

"Here it is always fine," she said, "but your summers in the East are cruel. Tropical countries, such as India or Arabia, have no worse heat. On a summer day in New York I said to a dripping and scarlet urchin:

" 'How hot you are, aren't you? Your blouse is wet through.'

" 'I can't help it,' said the urchin, fretfully. 'This here heat makes me cry all over.' "

"What is that woman in cell 77 howling and shrieking about?" he asked impatiently.

"She objects to her strait jacket, sir," the keeper answered.

"No, it isn't that, sir," the keeper interrupted. "She wants it changed for one with the fashionable long sleeves that have come in this spring."

"I had forgotten that," said his friend.

THE DAHLIAS.

SOME PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS AS TO THEIR CULTURE.

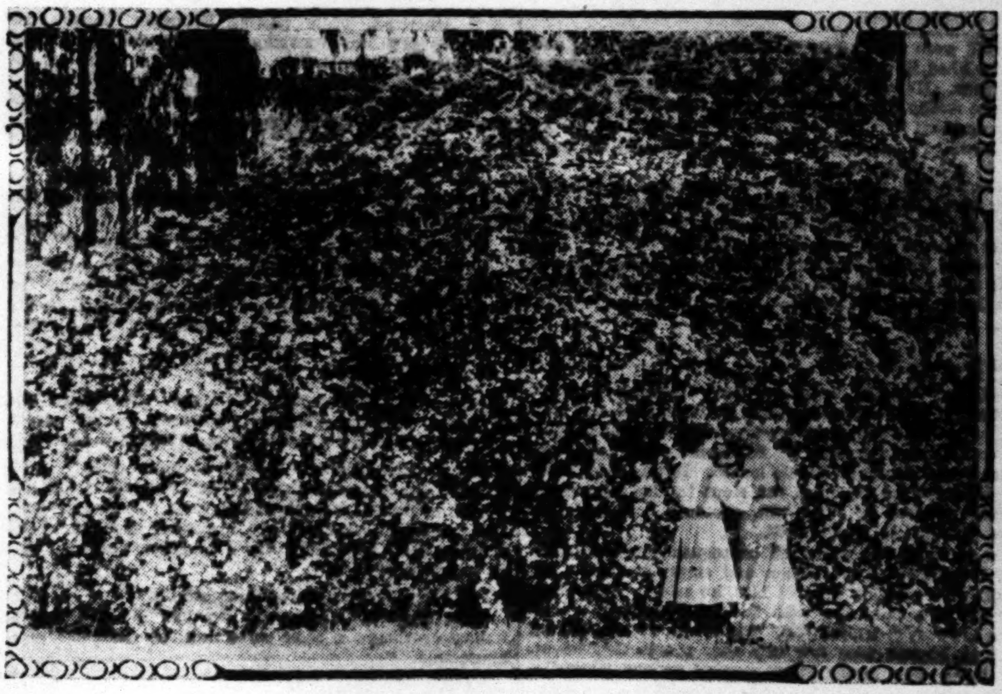
By Ernest Braunton.

JUST now is a splendid time to plant out dahlias, there being plenty of time to develop the very best in all classes; in fact, they may even be planted in July and come to perfection. With the constant introduction of new strains, and even classes, the dahlia fancier has his interest and enthusiasm kept up to the highest pitch. During the past year the writer has seen some new kinds which far surpass in beauty any of those really fine types so much admired in late years.

In planting dahlias do not crowd them, but give plenty of room. If you have many and grow them in rows for cut flowers, have the rows four feet apart and the plants two feet apart in the row. If planted in an unconventional grouping, give approximately the same space to each plant. Keep the soil well and deeply stirred and most thoroughly watered at least once a week, no ordinary sprinkling will do. When the flowers appear stop deep cultivation, but keep the surface stirred all the time till the blooming season is over. Dahlias are gross feeders, and need heavy fertilization, especially in the height of the season when the drain of the blossom crop is very heavy. Many fine and distinct types of doubles may be had, but have two or three plants of the best singles; they are the more beautiful by reason of their simplicity.

The Wonderful Banksia Roses.

One of the showiest mantles for hiding unsightly objects is the Banksia rose, either white or yellow. In addition to a fine foliage and a gorgeous annual crop of grower and having very few thorns. Though but an annual bloomer, it is one of our grandest roses during flowering season, and no climber we grow attains a greater size.



THE BANKSIA ROSE.

The Garden Beautiful.

The beautiful garden—the one by all admired, may be built of rich or the simplest material, the expression—the character of the place is what makes it lovable. The beauty of the wild rose has never been surpassed or even rivalled by the skill of the horticulturist. Though he may breed a rose with a thousand petals, the simple grace and beauty of the single Cherokee far outshines this product of a century's toil and study. So it is with a garden, man's greatest triumphs have been where he has reproduced amid artificial surroundings the charming grace and beauty of the wildwood.

When you have builded a picture so perfect that the artist comes to paint it on canvas and the visitor calls again and again to admire, then do you possess the garden beautiful. Such a garden is not filled with iron dogs, deer, hideous fountains, masses of various and inharmonious colors, accessories or buildings of the look-at-me-type; but all is quiet, restful, simple, snug, secluded; all of which means home-like—simple yet comfortable. Have no ornaments or features that are not founded in utility; if it be a pond, grow plants and fish therein—do not be satisfied with a cement basin filled with water and having a squirt pipe in the center. Let border and water plants hide masonry and shore lines—nature unrestrained.

Misuse of Vines.

We have all too many houses in Southern California shrouded in vines. No country or section of a country can surpass ours in beauty and variety of vines, but too many mistake their mission or use. Some houses and other structures are so inexpressibly ugly that one is forgiven, even commended, for completely hiding them under a mantle of vines, but not all are so distasteful to the masses, but we must take it for granted that if one hides his house completely it is unworthy of admiration.

The mission of the vine is to enhance the beauty of buildings by a delicate tracery so artistic that the builder is powerless to construct anything that at all rivals it in detail of effectiveness. Too many buildings pleasing to the eye in both detail and entirety are wrapped in a shroud of solid, uninteresting and somber green. If one desires a heavy foliage mass there should be trained out from the blanket of green a few delicate sprays so that the bewitching tracery may show upon a contrasting background. To state the matter again, the vine should be but an accessory or incidental to that which is already beautiful and the combination should prove the very height of art, a combination of beauty and effectiveness impossible of improvement.

Profitable Observation.

Those garden owners who enjoy the greatest measure of success are the ones who most closely observe the work and methods of others. When one sees any specific flower or plant brought to more than ordinary excellence, it behooves him to observe what methods of care and cultivation are apparent and then follow the "go thou and do likewise" rule as closely as possible. How often does one coddle a plant without success only to find that a neighbor grows it to perfection almost without care. Too often the garden owner blames the dealer for selling inferior plants when his own rank ignorance is wholly responsible for failure. Any dealer may supply you with plants, but none with common sense, even granting they have a surplus, which is seldom the case. The best teacher is experience, but the experience gained by others is often less costly than would be your own; therefore observe others' gardens and profit by their success in plant culture. If too late for trial this year, make a note, mentally or in a garden record, that success may be your portion next year. A garden of fine plants and flowers is a joy to all, but a poor garden is a reproach to the owner.

Crinums or Spider-Lilies.

One of the most effective plants that go to make up the tropical garden is the crinum, often dubbed "spider lily" because in many species the petals are long and slender, giving the flower a slight resmblance to a huge spider. Not all, however, have these attenuated blossoms; some species have flowers of a shape similar to those of the Amaryllis or Belladonna lily, being members of the same family. Crinums are fond of a very rich and deep soil, and some enthusiastic and successful growers dig holes (for some of the giant species) three or four feet deep, fill them with a soil composed of about one-half well-rotted manure or compost and place the young plants on top of this. When hot weather comes and they are plentifully supplied with water they develop so fast that one may almost see them grow. Some of the giant species have leaves six inches wide and six feet long, with flower stems three inches in diameter.

Plant Dahlias.

If roots of dahlias have not been planted, do not longer delay; the time is with us when the work may be done with most assurance of good results. We have more distinct and worthy types today than ever before; even the single types have been greatly improved of late, in color, form, and size. Plant a variety of types, and next year weed out those you do not fancy.

of Boulevards or Avenues.

Los Angeles needs a systematic rebuilding of her , no one will deny. Quick transportation de a system of wide streets radiating from one chief and several local business centers. A system of boulevards should also connect all the parks in the city and extend by one or more great broad highways to Griffith Park. While cities are comparatively small it is easy to bring about these changes. Los Angeles may never carry out in full the recommendations of Charles Mulford Robinson, but in the near future we shall be forced to adopt some of his suggested changes, or similar ones, to relieve congestion already oppressive.

Playgrounds a Protection to Parks.

In enlisting the services of the children in the care and preservation of their playgrounds we unconsciously educate them to a sense of responsibility regarding public property and generate an appreciation of parks and recreation spots other than the playgrounds specially provided for them. Some children seem by nature to be imbued with the idea that adults build parks for boys to desecrate, but in cities having ample, well-managed playgrounds, all the children come to learn early in life that they are part owners in municipal property, and therefore are interested in its preservation.

Value of Small Parks.

While large outlying parks are among the most priceless possessions of a municipality they are by no means the most valuable. Los Angeles, for instance, has too few small parks close in. Small parks should be common in the more congested parts of the city, so as to be within walking distance from the homes of the working classes. A man, wife, and several children will cost in street-car fare from 50 to 80 cents for the round trip to one of our recreation grounds when one should be within easy reach by a walk of ten or fifteen minutes. Hundreds of families spend these small amounts, each Sunday during summer, for transportation when both themselves and the general public would be more benefited by the investment of a like sum in the purchase of food, clothing or some of the comforts of life. Every citizen has a right to the enjoyment of one or more breathing spots without paying tribute to the street railways. Large parks are at all times desirable, but unless within easy reach are of little benefit to the poorer classes. Small parks may be obtained in the city proper at comparatively small cost.

Value of Fine Grounds to Cities.

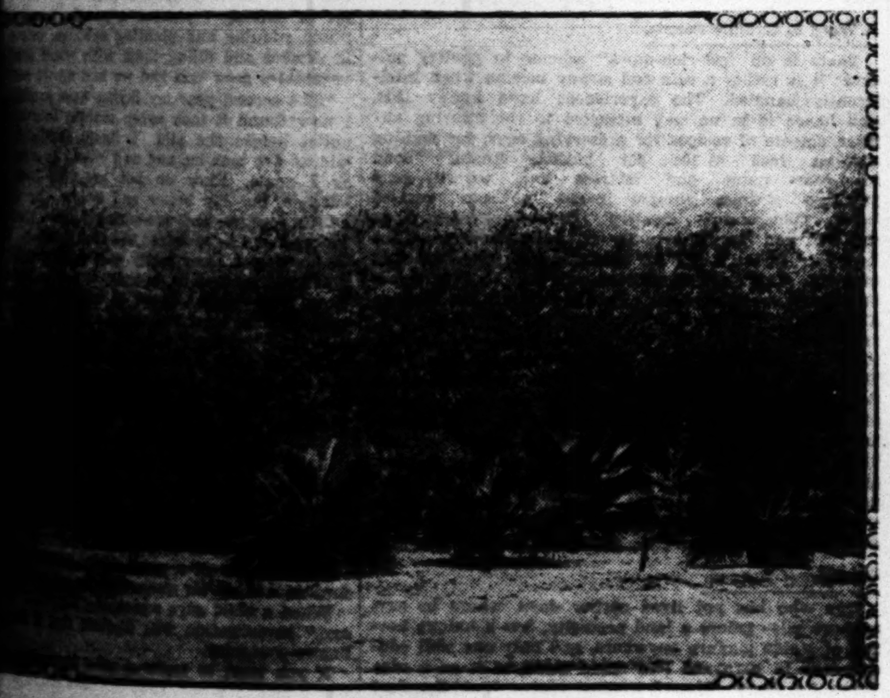
A noted landscape designer who has much to do with "city beautiful" planning has said that Los Angeles is not a beautiful city because we have little good landscape work in our private grounds. The rules concerning open lawn centers and massed borders are almost entirely ignored. We do have masses of vegetation, all wrongly placed, which is really overplanting and too many of our lawn areas are dotted over with plants, almost in orchard style, thereby losing in grand and dignified effect of broad expanses of greensward.

Automobiles and Good Roads.

The automobile has become the most important factor in the upbuilding of our public highways and has led to the reconstruction of more miles of good roads than any other conveyance ever introduced. While it may be true that it is more destructive of highways than any other vehicle, it is equally true that automobiling is only pleasurable upon the best roads man can construct. Thus it must and shall be that the more automobiles we use the better will our roads become for all classes of vehicles and traffic.

Planting Railway Station Grounds.

The custom of planting station grounds is each year becoming more widespread, and the observant traveling public is making its approval of the same so manifest that all lines must eventually take up this work of aiding in the city beautiful movement. If the plant-loving traveler will but commend the railway officials for their enterprise and foresight in embellishing their lines of travel all will quickly join in the work of beautifying these places. Spacious, well-planned depot grounds are as much capital to the cities in which they are situate as to the corporation to which they belong, so that municipalities should encourage and aid them in every way possible.



TEMPORARY PARK PLANTING—THREE YEARS' GROWTH.

A CLOCK ON THE EIFFEL TOWER.

The Eiffel Tower in Paris is now being used for another practical purpose. Not long ago a wireless telegraph station was installed, and now on the sides of the second section, hundreds of feet above the ground, a luminous clock warns the gay Parisians of the passing span of life. The apparatus flashes forth every minute in huge figures, visible at a great distance. This system was found the only practical one, as the ordinary clock dial would be indistinguishable at such a height.—[Unidentified.

Practical Poultry Culture in the Southwest.

DEVOTED TO THE INTERESTS OF STANDARD-BRED POULTRY AND THE PEOPLE WHO GROW IT.

FAMILY POULTRY.

PROBLEM OF MAKING IT PAY NOT ENTIRELY A FINANCIAL ONE.

By Henry W. Kruckeberg.

NOTE.—Short articles of a practical nature are cordially solicited from breeders and fanciers, relating their experiences with poultry, giving their successes as well as failures. The writer will be glad, in so far as lies in his power, to answer inquiries of public interest bearing on any phase of an enlightened poultry culture, such as feeding and management, disease and its prevention, market conditions, fancy points, etc. The co-operation of utility breeders and fanciers is cordially solicited, to the end that the best thought and practice in an enlightened poultry culture may find a healthy expression in these columns.

MANY a fellow says it does not pay to keep poultry in close confinement on a home lot in the city; and many a fellow is not making it pay, as one man sees it, while another thinks he is. What pays one man for service does not pay another, and he who finds himself poorly paid made a mistake when he started in. If a man spends $25 putting a home flock on the back of his home lot, expecting to make a hundred dollars the first year, he may get left, probably will. He has to work with his flock a little night and morning, and so is justified in wanting more than savings-bank interest on his cash investment. Six per cent. interest on $25 would be $1.50 in a year; 10 per cent. would be $2.50; 100 per cent. would be $25. A man who would not feel paid at making 100 per cent. upon any investment in a year; with an hour of his attention per day, must be an actual grumbler. If the average man could make $100 out of investing $25 in chickens, there'd be no men to work the mines. The fellow wanting hens to pay cash, must work upon a cash basis. He must pay a big price for a few fowls of a well-known breeder, and not expect to eat eggs from them, but sell the eggs for settings. He must expect to break more than a boiled egg into his breakfast glass, and forgive the grocer who sold him the stale egg. It's all a matter of relation whether things pay or not, and cash is often the least reward that can be paid for a service.

Hens are able to pay in cash returns and throw in many luxuries, if kept in reasonable numbers. A family of five needs twenty-five hens, and twenty hens pay well in a family of five. Above that number the profit lessens, because the table leavings of food in the family of five average people will go a long way toward keeping the fowls, and prove the best kind of food. if properly served. More than twenty fowls could not get enough leavings to keep the feed bill low. Where no family food leavings are fed, the manner of feeding is all changed; it is a different position, but a good one. A most esteemed contemporary writes that one-fourth of the year's food should be green. Probably it should be, and vegetables foods are green. How much vegetable green may go to waste in the average family? In fact, the family of five souls, which does not have much vegetable waste should consider its mode of life in this ever-green country and reform. If one's family is not eating salads from the hearts of the lettuce bunches, little white new onions with salt, crisp new turnips and carrots, both cooked and raw, and crisp bleached cabbage hearts, it is losing some of the land's best givings unto itself. Getting some of the best of the land's foods, he is getting burdens in the green waste, unless he has some daily furnace consuming it. The slow combustion of rot is a menace to health, and fire can't consume damp waste. Fowls are a daily furnace for the fresh green waste, and do not return ashes, which the garbage man has to collect in the end. The family green waste will make poultry thrive, will be one-fourth of their living, if the family numbers five as it ought, and make returns which the family can use in every instance—eggs, fried fish, boiled and baked fish, manure from the living to make the garden grow, and the dead carcass a deep-buried fertilizer for a tree. The moulted feathers raked in with the manure add to its usefulness as such. Poultry in no way solicit the garbage man. The vegetable rot need not go to him. Composted with the manure and buried it becomes a use, and the sooner buried the better return it makes. Just a good nice city lot, a family of five, and twenty heads of poultry, and a perennial round of city usefulness incepts—provided the head of the family be a good normal fellow; and a fellow gets normal caught by accident in this round.

Of course family poultry on a city lot must be happily confined, and not make rounds on other people's property. The entire scheme is a waste if the confinement itself make not a liberty for all lives on the lot, which it is able to do. To run wild is not liberty to the refined, domesticated hen. Well-made conditions for her, according to her breed and quality, mean liberty to her. To eat fresh, pure eggs and flesh one has caused to grow, and knows about, makes for liberty. Every man or woman taxed for land is an expression of liberty, when also taxed for a few heads of poultry.

System in Selling Eggs and Poultry.

A careful breeder with something like 500 laying hens complained not long since to the writer that he could produce good hen fruit and fine table poultry, but somehow he was unable to command a sufficient price to make the margin to which he seemed to think he was entitled. To this we quite agree, especially this season when eggs have ruled rather low and prices for the grain feeds have been high. Obviously it is one thing to grow a crop, but quite another to be able to dispose of it to advantage. Something in the way of coöperative marketing among poultrymen has been accomplished in Sonoma county. Though still in the experimental stage, it gives evidence of wearing qualities. It is not our purpose, however, to treat of coöperative or exchange systems for selling in this article.

The successful poultryman must not only be a good poultry raiser, but also a good salesman. Indeed, of the two requirements when it comes to money, the latter is almost the more essential. The greatest thing to work for is a high-class trade, which again demands a high quality of product put up in an attractive manner. Let us be more specific. First select the trade of the well-to-do—the people who possess the purchasing power. Get close in touch with the consumers, thus avoiding extra handling of your product. The cleanest and highest margin is made by retailing, provided you have a well-to-do district to supply within easy reaching distance from your poultry farm. A town like Pasadena, or Riverside, or Santa Barbara, or the residence portion of Los Angeles are ideal places for the development of a private egg trade. The extra price that you get for quality and attractiveness of package is clear gain, which should be not less than 5c per dozen above market price, and many cases much more. For instance, a single hen, produces twelve dozen eggs a year, and the private trade yields 5 cents per dozen above market price—a gain of 60c per annum per laying hen. Allow 2 cents for carton and labels, gives a net gain of 48c per hen. Figuring on this basis with our correspondent's flock of 500 laying hens, it is apparent that this difference alone would throw the balance of profit to the proper dimensions in his business. But this is not all. A private egg trade is also a creator of a retail market for table poultry, which again by reason of quality and attractiveness will also bring an increase of price. Often something along this line can be done with a hotel, a restaurant or a sanatarium, but the margins we opine would not be so good.

A Word to Gullible People.

There is no "get-rich-quick" scheme in poultry culture; it is rather a safe and steady income when intelligently handled. The experienced hand knows this, and hence is in no way attracted to the alluring announcements of recipes for preserving eggs, for making chicken feed at 10c per bushel. Again, "Send us your name and address and we will send you free sixteen sample pages of our revised book, 'Successful Poultry Culture.' This book will tell you how to actually make four bushels of the best feed in the world for chickens from one bushel of common grain, and it will tell you how to save three-fourths of your grain bill. This is certainly the greatest discovery of the twentieth century, and will double and triple your profits in the poultry business." Again, "How to make $500 per year from twenty-four hens. Valuable information for $1." These instances might be continued indefinitely, but enough are here given to show their character. There is no magic road to success in poultry culture, and these "get-rich-quick" propositions have nothing to do with Biddy in the back yard. She will continue to do business in the same old way, provided you treat her right. So give these alluring advertisements a wide berth. They are merely a means of extracting money out of the pockets of gullible people.

Scratching Ground.

One who has not lived earlier days, where he saw manure piles galore a land necessity, has a unique horror of stable manure anywhere, and only one well educated(?) in barnyard lore could think of it as a nice litter for hens. The dictionary states that the first meaning of "litter" is a kind of bed or couch, and that any litter is a bed of some kind. Offal never makes a bedding for any animals, and what straw there is in it doesn't make it one. Being sun-dried helps it a little, but one can do better than use it. Clean straw is best for litter, but fallen leaves are good, and dry weeds pulled before seeding. The litter must be clean, not rubbish. Bits of glass in the litter work much mischief to the active feet. It is far better to have no scratching pen at all than to have a quandam rubbish pile fenced in. To throw scratch feed into freshly-spaded ground from which the manure has been swept, is far better, though it may be smaller. One throws a quart of scratch feed a day into litter, and the fowls get part of their living from it. In the made ground, a cupful is enough to rake in, to induce exercise, and three cups fed to make the living amount. If a hen finds one sunflower seed in the soft ground she will scratch all day in the same ground. The scratching ground has to be made each morning in most of our soils, but a good caretaker wants to see his fowls eat to see that all are well, and can spade ground after feeding, watching them eat. The scratching pen of clean litter, however, with a quart of scratch feed worked into it each morning for twelve fowls, is less work for the caretaker, and leaves nothing to be desired for the hen.

The Fair, Fat Feline and the Female Fowl.

It is bad enough when a neighbor's cat can climb a fence and eat the small chicks, and after informing the owner of the cat what the cat has done for you, if he does not confine the cat or feed him full, so he won't want chicks, one is justified in having the cat shot. But things justifiable are not always expedient, and it is a part of poultry wisdom to expect that any cat will kill and eat any chicks any time, and to preclude any possibility of a cat getting at chicks, little chicks should be wired in little low runs, with wire net over the top and sides, the inch mesh being used. No cat can get to them; and the run once made will last twelve years handled properly. With large chicks, too big for the run, a wire door should confine them until everybody is up and doing in the morning, after the chicks are still in night

Then the skipper ran his glance over his ship as if it were no bigger than a dumb barge. The revelation! You could see he was her master. I would then, not knowing him, have guessed him for her captain. You never noticed his hat. You hardly noticed the parcel. He learned what had been done, to the time of his arrival, in all that intricate town, with six leading questions. He arranged everything up to sailing time with the same calm assurance; beckoned to me as though I were his cabin boy, and turned his back on his world as though he were omnipotence, and had spoken. I followed him obediently.

In our brief journey up the gangway a miracle had happened; the skipper had been born again. I looked at the back of that head in front of me with awe. And we had thought him charming but ineffective! My stars!

When our great vessel went out of dock that night in the wind and rain, amidst strange uproars and bewildering lights, one sight of his face, when the pierhead light caught it—alert but tranquil, slightly frowning brows, and slightly pouting underlip, and the eyes of a man who sees an enemy and doesn't care—would have given a dubious admiral confidence. As for me, I went to my berth and slept. Before going to sleep I framed a clever little epigram, as a moral to this story, but I can't think of it now.

Records of Indian Music.

NATIVE SONGS PRESERVED BY THE PHONOGRAPH.

From New York Sun.

THE phonograph has recently been used by the Bureau of Ethnology to register the native songs of the Indians. Several hundred songs have thus been obtained, and it is designed to secure the most complete record possible of the vanishing melodies.

These Indian songs as transcribed from the phonograph records have elicited the interest not only of scientists, but of professional musicians as well. Credit for the records is due to Miss Alice Fletcher, an employé of the bureau, who for a number of years has interested herself in the subject of Indian music.

In the records of the talking machine Indian music has for the first time been recorded in a satisfactorily authentic manner and the transcriptions which have been made from them are scientifically accurate. The Indians have no musical notation and apparently no theories of music. Their songs are handed down by tradition and the phonograph will be of great value in perpetuating them.

"Contrary to what I have found to be a general impression among those ignorant of the subject," said Miss Fletcher, "the songs of the Indians are not meaningless chants, devoid of sweetness, power and expression.

"The Indian is a natural musician. On transcribing a number of these songs, for instance, a striking circumstance was noted, namely, the use of the major chords of the over third and under third. As you probably know this is one of the most notable characteristics of our modern romantic composers.

"We find more or less of it in Beethoven and Schubert, still more in Schumann and Chopin, most of all in Wagner and Liszt. This fact shows, I believe, that the great romantic writers in going outside of the accepted harmonic limits made a genuine discovery of natural harmonic relations. This has long been the belief of a number of musicians, but these Indian songs afford strong confirmation of the justness of the theory, for whatever else they are there can be no question that they are absolutely natural.

"What may be called the opening of the Wa-wan or Pipe of Peace choral reminds one strongly of numerous passages in Wagner. Yet it is perhaps more daring than any of that master's compositions, for it is a twelve-measure song, beginning in B flat and ending in C.

"Surely this composition is worthy of the attention of every student of harmony as well as of the scientist. It seems a bold statement to make, but it is one amply justified, that all melodic and harmonic resources to be found in our music, especially the most modern and advanced, are also to be found in this primitive music among a people who have no musical notation, no musical theories, no systematized scientific knowledge of it.

"Nor is it in harmony alone that this Indian music reminds us of the present-day ultra romanticists as well as older masters. The Indian rhythms are frequently as complicated and difficult as any to be found in the works of Schumann and Chopin.

"I have, for example, songs simulating precisely the rhythm of some of Mendelssohn's 'Songs Without Words,' as well as of compositions by Schumann and pieces of the modern and most advanced school. One rhythmic peculiarity of some of the songs is the frequent use of a short note on the drumbeat or emphatic portion of the measure, exactly such as we find employed in ancient Scotch music.

Every tribe has hundreds of original songs which are its heritage. Many of them have been handed down through generations, and not only embody the feeling of the composer, but record some past event or experience among the tribe or clan. The people treasure them and great care is taken to transmit them accurately.

"We with our written music have a mechanical device by which a tone may be uniformly produced, as by the vibrations of a chord of given length and tension, this tone becoming the standard by which all others can be regulated. The Indians have no such mechanism for determining a pitch, and there is no uniform key for a song, which can be started on any note suitable to the singer's voice.

"Yet the songs, as is shown conclusively by some of the phonographic records which have been obtained from different singers, are repeated without any material variation. Men with good voices take pride in accuracy of singing, and often have in their memories several hundred songs, including many from tribes with the members of which they have exchanged visits.

"The Indians did not object to having the music of some of their solemn ceremonial rites reproduced by the phonograph, but on the contrary were kind enough to accede to my requests for the obtaining of good records. Perhaps that of the Calumet or Wa-wan ceremony is the most notable of these specimens of what may be called Indian sacred music.

"The music is dignified and impressive throughout, in some parts strikingly beautiful, although the phonograph has not been as successful here as in instances in which a single singer has made the record. An accurate transcript has, however, been made from the machine of this wonderful melodic expression of 'Peace on earth, good will toward men.'"

It is interesting to hear Miss Fletcher tell how she came to acquire an interest in Indian music.

"The first occasion," she says, "on which I attended one of their ceremonies I was certainly not favorably impressed with the music. Indeed, I was nearly frightened to death by the whole arrangement, savage and barbarous in the extreme to my uninitiated eyes and ears.

"Concerning the music I gleamed the impression that while it might possess a certain degree of simple rhythm it had little melody, the few tones being iterative and almost if not quite lacking in expression. But some songs which I had heard before this did not support this conclusion.

"While I was living among my Indian friends I was stricken with a severe illness and lay for months ministered to largely by my companions of the Omaha tribe. As I was thus shut in from all the world, the Indians coming and going about me in their affectionate solicitude, I would ask them to sing to me. Because I was weak, I suppose, they sang softly. There was none of the distracting drum, and, devoid of the barbarous noise which had displeased me, I realized the sweetness, the beauty and the meaning of those wonderful songs.

"Color and dramatic action are marked qualities of Indian music. Every religious, tribal and social ceremony, as well as personal experience, is expressed in the melodies and there is hardly a phase of life that does not find in a manner of speaking its representation in sound.

"Strange to say, the funeral song is expressive of joy and hope. That of the Omahas, of which I have a record and which is the only one possessed by that tribe, suggests in its major strains sunshine, birds and verdure and has a fleet, happy movement. Nevertheless there is a latent harmony between the song and the ceremony.

"Music, in the Indian's belief, has power to reach the unseen world. They think the spirit of the dead man can hear the song as it leaves the body, and the glad cadences are to cheer him as he goes from those to whom he was attached on earth, the mourners showing their grief by mutilating their bodies.

"From a purely scientific standpoint these phonographic records are very valuable. The songs of the Indian give us an interpretation of his character. We can discern from these melodic records his religious nature, his attitude toward the unseen powers that control him.

"In a way, too, they are a revelation of his social and tribal relations. In no song is there mention of the father or the wife. The grandfather is not alluded to as personal kindred, but as one whom age has made wise and fit to be trusted. The mother is only indirectly referred to, but the sister is the representative of the family, and personates the women of the tribe in many songs.

"The explanation for all this is found in the peculiar structure of the tribe and in the non-development of the family idea as we understand it. In fact the only recognized relationship is the clan, or gens, a political subdivision of the tribe.

"Among Indians, with few exceptions, the woman carries the clan, and kinship is traced only through her, the children being counted in her clan and not in that of the father. As a man can never marry in his own clan, he must be as a stranger to his wife and to his own children; and when he dies, his brothers and sisters, who constitute his family, are his heirs.

"So when an Indian sings of his home, his sister, with whom he has a recognized relationship, represents that home, rather than the wife and children, who can never belong to him. The Indian's love song is practically a song without words, consisting of unmeaning syllables.

"Friendship is a common theme in Indian songs. There are no songs of labor. The mystery song has a peculiar origin, as it is supposed to come to the composer in a vision, after days and nights of fasting and supplication. The revelation often comes in the form of some animal, typifying the supernatural agency friendly to the supplicator, and in praise of which the song is composed.

"Sometimes the revelation is the same to different persons, and in this case the one song becomes common property, creating a bond of fellowship and sympathy. In some of these songs there is an element of the weird that is truly impressive. Indeed, in this Indian music I am sure that the accomplished composer of today can find a vast world of new motifs."

Farming in California—The Land and Its Products

CONDUCTED BY J. W. JEFFREY, STATE COMMISSIONER OF HORTICULTURE.

FIELD NOTES.

Blacklisting Commission Men.

THE fruit commission merchants all over the country are in a high state of indignation because of an action of the Georgia Peach Growers' Association. The peach growers appointed a committee some time ago to investigate the standing of the commission men in each city where the association sells fruit, and this committee has just published a list of desirable merchants, with which the organization proposes now to do business in the fruit line. Of course it was necessary to have but one or two commission dealers on the list for each market, and those firms not included in the list are making a great furore over the alleged discrimination. The commission men who are not on this favorite list claim that they are being blacklisted, and threaten all kinds of reprisals upon the peach men.

California citrus growers have long since become "evoluted" beyond the point where the commission dealers are an important factor in the business of selling oranges and lemons, and our growers are consequently at peace with all parties. But with the Georgia fruit growers it is different. They have to deal in this contest with a powerful organization known as the National League of Commission Merchants, and there are those who doubt the wisdom of the Georgia growers' move. At any rate the commercial battle now on will be watched with reminiscent interest by California citrus growers who were once in the hands of these same selling firms. The commission men's organization is now demanding that the peach growers retract, or at least prefer charges against every individual commission man who may have acted in such a manner as to justify the alleged boycott. It is rather pleasant to be in the position of spectator in a contest of this kind, and the citrus fruit growers may congratulate themselves that their part is merely to look on.

New Zealander Here.

ROBERT C. A. MACPHAIL of Teviot, New Zealand, was in Sacramento a few days ago with letters of introduction from the Department of Agriculture at Auckland. He expects to remain in this State about four months, and came to learn our methods of handling deciduous fruits. Being the owner of a large fruit orchard at Teviot the gentleman comes upon a purely business mission in the interests of his orchard. He thought to hire out to some good fruit-drying firm at Sacramento or San José, but I told him he could learn more about the business in detail and in general by close observation and travel; that the California fruit growers are courteous, and liberal in setting forth their experiences in curing fruit, and he decided to visit all parts of the State.

Mr. MacPhail, who is an apple grower, says the woolly aphis is an alarming pest on the islands. But it damages the limbs and foliage, and not the roots of the apple trees, as New Zealand apples are grafted upon aphis-resistant roots. These roots, mostly Northern Spy, harbor the insect sufficiently for the summer form to crawl up over the foliage and multiply as abundantly as where non-resistant roots are used, as in the United States. the only difference being that the trees do not suffer from both root and top attacks as they do here. Mr. MacPhail says that all the horticultural investigators who have visited California from his country and Australia return delighted with the hospitality of our people and with their progress in fruit growing and willingness to give out information to the visitor.

The Baldwin Apple.

EASILY holding supremacy in the American markets over all other apples except the Ben Davis, the Baldwin apple is not of a quality one would look for to hold such continued prestige. This apple originated as an orchard fruit during Washington's first administration. Col. Baldwin discovered it growing wild in the woods of Massachusetts, and he left the statement in writing that it originally grew spontaneously in the woods about fourteen miles from Boston. It was so much better than any cultivated variety in that section that a gift of a barrel of Baldwins was not held lightly by the receiver. Now the whole accepted history of this fruit is disputed, and a committee of three has been appointed at Wilmington, Mass., to revise the records, as it now appears that Samuel Thompson discovered the fruit nine years before the time now engraved upon the tomb of Baldwin. It is an important correction, historically, but meantime we would munch the fruit regardless—if we could get it out here.

Fresh for the Harvest.

CALIFORNIA may well boast of being in the front rank of horticultural achievement, and even may lead all other States in the number of fruit growers who have endeavored by personal application to solve the problems of the orchard. But there is one field of investigation that has been neglected, if not entirely ignored in orchard practice, namely, the treatment of the trees late in the summer for effect upon the fruit buds that will make the crop the following year. I do not mean to say that fruit growers have not attended to summer and fall culture with the idea of keeping their trees in a vital and productive condition. I mean that the relation of bud formation and development of a given year toward the crop of the following year has not received scientific and practical attention as a distinctive subject.

I receive complaints almost every day about this time of the year. "Why do my oranges drop so badly from blooming time till June?" "Why do my peaches grow as large as marbles and then nearly all fall?" Sometimes these faults may arise from the spring conditions of the trees, or from climatic influences acting directly upon the young fruit. But who can say it does not arise from poor bud maturity the preceding year? I once cited a Riverside case in which the trees did not have the vitality to set a good crop while bearing the ripe crop through April and May. Another year the same orchard set a splendid crop while yet containing the old fruit. Who knows that, in both cases spring results were altogether dependent upon preceding fall conditions? I am pretty sure that no one can even approximate the causes of fruit-setting failures with the present lack of understanding as to the proper fall conditions that may produce vital setting the next season. Here is a problem for the plant physiologist or pathologist that is worthy his best and most continuous study. It may have been investigated and determined already, but I have not seen an account of it anywhere. What is the use of raising perfect orange trees every year and see them throw nine-tenths of their fruit early in the season?

Berkeley's Basement City.

WE are reminded that all things are not what they "seam" by the report of the finding of a buried city under the present city of Berkeley. It is true the old municipality has not been unearthed yet, but it has been discovered, mapped and charted by the simple means of a divining rod and psychic compass. "Of course the instruments can only be used by those possessing occult powers," innocently pursues the account. This is to discourage all other cities from discovering that they too have arisen upon the ashes of the past. The account gives as collateral evidence of the find, that Dr. Myers made excavations years ago in sight of the Fish ranch in Contra Costa county over the Berkeley hills, finding a number of stone implements and tools, and thus proving that in and around the college city once lived a race "who were advanced in science and thought." Well, this did not give the dead city any advantage over the live one under which lies the stone walls of this prehistoric race.

The strange part of the discovery is that the same divining rod used to locate water on the farms of the country will also locate dead cities. Why, it is even related that the divining rod, in its struggle to point out the angles, copings and towers of the buried walls, blistered the hands of the wife of a college professor. She vainly tried to mislead the witch hazel by pointing it away from "the great quadrangles of masonry and solid mineral walls as she fixed the lines of the buried city." That there be no doubt about this great discovery the name of Luther Burbank is used, the professor being a "follower" of the great plant breeder. Of course we all feel edified at this great achievement. It only lacks the first evidence of being more than a pipe dream to make the world wonder. However, it is manifestly unfair of a dry season like this to employ the witch hazels for this "base" purpose. Let the buried cities slumber till a wet season comes along, for there are yet a few farmers willing to pay for locating well at $10 each. Unhand the witching rod and let it return to its ancient use.

Rural Press Changes Hands.

ON the 23rd of May new names appeared at the head of the editorial columns of the Pacific Rural Press. This agricultural journal is thirty-seven years old, and during its entire life has been under the editorial control of Prof. E. J. Wickson. He will continue in this relationship under the new management. Mr. Frank Honeywell is the business manager, being also financially interested in the publication, and I suspect, heavily interested. At any rate, this well-known Los Angeles publisher will guide the destinies of the new firm, known as the Pacific Rural Press Company, and they will fall into capable hands. If it was not for violating a confidence right here, I would "give away" two other gentlemen of the south who have put their shekels into the Honeywell company. In fact, it is safe to assume that all the stock is owned in Southern California. Some time ago a San Francisco paper published this query: "How can you always tell a man from Los Angeles?" "By his pennies," was one answer, and the wise answerer received a dollar for his perception. And yet the southerners seem to have real money when the San Francisco people wish to dispose of such a good thing as the Press. Frank Honeywell wrote me a long letter a few days ago to renew the acquaintance which had been broken off but a few months. If he does likewise to others we shall soon forget that he ever quit publishing one of the best papers in the country.

Powell's New Field.

I HAD the pleasure of meeting G. Harold Powell in Sacramento a few days, and of hearing him outline his campaign with the deciduous-fruit growers to begin with this season's shipments. Mr. Powell was in Sacramento in conference with the fruit shippers and to introduce his deputy, A. V. Stubenrauch, to the new field. The problems found here will differ in detail from those examined in the transportation of oranges, but no doubt the gentlemen in charge of the new investigation will

The Wild Cherry.

PERHAPS the greatest value of the wild cherry lies in its wood, which has a fine, firm, close grain, and a beautiful reddish hue, and is highly esteemed by the manufacturers of furniture. From the fact that when it is well seasoned it does not warp or shrink like many other woods, and that it will take on a high degree of polish, this wood is a very valuable article of commerce. Like the black walnut, the black cherry is becoming scarce in some sections of the country, but from its extremely quick growth—often taking on an inch in diameter in a year, it does not take a lifetime for the grower to see it become a large tree.

The tree affords a pleasant shade when the summer days are long and sultry, and to watch a group of children gathered around its trunk in happy play in the meadow or field is well calculated to recall reminiscences of childhood days and bring to remembrance the aromatic, slightly bitter, but pleasant flavor of the little fruit that one greedily devoured in the halcyon days of the long ago. It recalls to mind youthful wanderings in field and meadow and along rail fences where sweet briar bloomed and the chipmunks scampered; where the field daisy held up its golden, white-fringed face to the sun, and the Canada Thistle pre-empted every inch of ground upon which it could gain a foot-hold, or rather a root-hold, holding it tenaciously in the face of all comers until the avenging sickle or scythe cut short its inglorious career.—[Orchard and Farm.

Butterflies for Market.

AT A time when all sorts of animals and plants are bred on a large scale, it is not wholly astonishing endeavors should have been made to raise rare, beautiful and valuable butterflies by artificial means. So writes the Berlin correspondent in the Technical World Magazine for March. In fact, the first butterfly farm was established some years ago by an English entomologist, William Watkins, at Eastbourne, a small Channel harbor, who has devoted to the industry extensive grounds covering an area of about an acre in extent, protected against ocean winds and planted with flowers, shrubs and trees. In this farm, many thousand of insects of varied species move about in a state of perfect liberty, inside a high lattice work fence, which separates them from the outside world till they are purchased by collectors at high prices. Similar plants, in which more elaborate methods of butterfly-breeding are employed, have of recent years been installed, the best-known being those founded by Dr. Hugues, at Chomerac, and by M. Andre, at Macon, respectively.

Cedar Posts Versus Redwood.

NOW that redwood posts are becoming scarce and high in price, controversy arises as to the lasting qualities of cedar posts. When a boy (some few years ago in 1837) I lived in New Jersey in the neighborhood of Woodbridge and Perth Amboy where chestnut rails and red cedar posts were used and I remember old farmers telling of red cedar such as grew in that vicinity lasting 100 years or more. About one and a half years ago we bought 1200 cedar posts, not being able to obtain redwood. Some of these we have still on hand because they were rejected by those who feared they would not last long. We would be pleased if through your valuable Press you make an inquiry as to the lasting qualities of the cedar of the northern part of this coast.

I have used the cedar which grows in El Dorado county which was generally wormy but was pronounced to last well as fence posts. As the redwood posts are getting scarce and cedar is being introduced at a trifle less first cost than redwood, we would like to get the opinion of someone who has had experience in the use of them . The writer is well posted on the qualities of redwood, having sold many thousand and used personally many hundred. I have one ranch of 300 acres fenced with posts from Santa Cruz mountains and I do not think a dozen posts in the whole line of fence can be found rotten after 20 years, while many Mendocino posts in another fence only lasted two years and had to be replaced, though some, presumably butt cuts, last very well, having been in the ground 15 years. We desire to get information if possible as to the lasting qualities of these northern posts, now being introduced, as compared with redwood posts.—[James Cass, in Pacific Rural Press.

University Adopts General Schedule.

THE Regents of the University of California have adopted the following general schedule of work for the Southern California Pathological Laboratory at Whittier and the Citrus Experiment Station at Riverside for the year 1908-09:

To continue at the Plant Disease Laboratory at Whittier (which has been satisfactorily completed and equipped during the past year) studies of the walnut blight bacterium in connection with orchard observation of varieties which are disclosing effective resistence to the disease. The work of the last year clearly indicates that grafting from seedling trees, which have persisted in bearing profitable crops in the midst of orchards seriously reduced in their total product by the blight, affords an immediately available means to increase production. The search for such trees, critical pomological and commercial study of their product and experiments with different methods of grafting will be diligently pursued both on our own grounds and in the orchards of coöperating private owners.

The work with tomato blight, which yielded strikingly valuable demonstration of the value of preventive spraying on the Laboratory grounds during the last year, will be continued, especially in relation to the control of the disease on a large scale by co-operation with local growers.

A study of the so-called "brown spot" of the orange, which injured much fruit during overland shipment the past season, will be undertaken: the investigation of the keeping quality of lemons during shipment, of the various forms of gum disease, and of other obscure troubles of citrus trees will be continued

Storage of Fruit and Vegetables.

A CORRESPONDENT of the American Agriculturist gives many useful hints on the storage of fruit and vegetables. Apples he tried in barrels, boxes, and wrapped in paper on shelves. He then tried spreading them out not more than three or four deep on the cellar bottom, which was of soil and dry; and he found that they kept better in that way. He has found that all fruit intended for long keeping should be gathered before fully ripe. The flavour is, of course, not so good, but this is more than off-set by the increase in keeping quality. Pumpkins keep best in a warm, dry place. Beets, carrots and turnips keep best buried in the soil of the cellar bottom or packed in sand, as they wither and spoil in the open air. Potatoes he keeps in bins raised a trifle from the cellar bottom; if there is rot present when digging, he sprinkles them freely with air-slaked lime as soon as he gets them into the cellar, which is stated to effectually check rotting process. Those already affected will dry up and rot no more, and no others will be affected.

All cellars for the storage of fruit and vegetables should be as cold as possible, without freezing, and should be aired as often as the outside temperature will admit. If inclined to dampness, quantities of air-slaked lime should be placed there in boxes or pails, which will absorb the moisture gases, and keep the cellar dry and sweet. As a matter of prudence in regard to health, it is advisable to keep lime in the cellar.

Value of Soot.

TONS of soot are wasted annually, while the garden ground is positively suffering from want of nourishment that it could supply. The grower who uses it with discretion (writes an exchange) will but hold its value higher as years go on. It is specially useful in small gardens, for which the animal manures are not easily obtainable, and look unpleasant when applied. In fact, with a bag of nitrate of soda, a few tins of good chemical fertilizer, and soot from the chimneys, the cottage or villa gardener can smilingly look for great results from his ground.

On some still evening, lightly dust the flower beds with the soot, applying it most plentifully around the plants—not touching the stems, but in a ring outside. Water this thoroughly, going over the same space with the fine-rosed watering pot until you are sure the water has gone down. Fruit trees, green peas, French beans, scarlet runners, and vines, to mention only a few things, are benefited by a dressing of soot. "A little and often" is the maxim to remember with regard to soot-using.

Slugs loathe this black top-dressing—that is another of its qualities. As a liquid for pot plants it will delight the gardener. Tie some up in a thin muslin bag, adding a stone to keep it under the surface, and place in a tub, can, or pail of water. Leave this for twenty-four hours and the water will be of a clear yellow-brown color, just ready for use. It may be left longer, if you are not in a hurry for it. Fill up the receptacle again when the water is exhausted. Thus there will always be a supply ready. Soft-wooded pot plants can have a weak dose at every watering when they are preparing to flower. Other pot plants can be fed with it once a week. Soot-water suits the garden beds just as well as the dry powder; but it must be applied after rain, or a watering, and not to quite dry ground. This rule applies to all liquid manure.—[West Australian Journal.

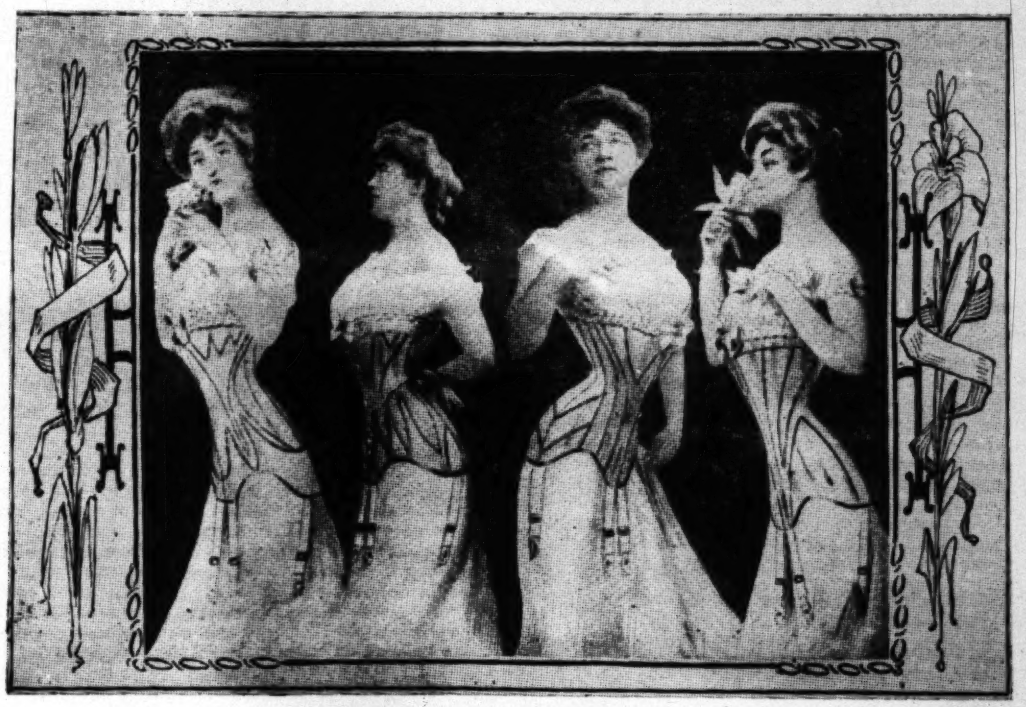
MAY IRWIN, in a newspaper article, waxes facetious over the figures of German women, especially their waists. She refers to the women of the fatherland as "jokes." Well, these "jokes" are better prepared for motherhood than American girls with wasp waists and high heels. But then, many American girls—especially those who patronize wasp waists and high heels—regard motherhood as a sometimes unavoidable evil.

The Corset Curse.

Look at a picture of that mutilated masterpiece, the Venus of Milo. Or perhaps you have visited Paris, and have seen the original in the Louvre, where the noble statue appropriately occupies a room to itself. Then glance at the picture on this page, reproduced from a fashion plate, showing the latest development of the female form divine, as the dressmakers understand it. What a travesty, is it not, on the most beautiful thing that God ever created—the perfect figure of a woman?

It is not, however, from the point of view of the esthetic that these lines are written, but from the viewpoint of health. We waste a lot of condescending criticism on northern Indians, who flatten the heads of their children, and on the Chinese, who distort the feet of their upper-class women, but neither of these practices is one hundredth part as injurious to the human race as our civilized custom of tightly compressing the female waist. If women will not consider their own health, they might, perhaps, think of the curse which they are bringing upon innocent children yet unborn.



LATEST STYLES IN CORSETS.

Following, on this subject, is from "The Art of Living in Good Health" by Dr. Daniel S. Sager (Stokes & Co., New York:)

"It should seem that, on the ground of comfort alone, the wearing of corsets would be a thing of the past. Yet the wearing of corsets is one of the greatest evils with which women afflict themselves directly, and indirectly their offspring. Corsets, cannons, and cooks are said to claim about an equal number of victims. Human nature is a contrariety. A woman will wear a tight-fitting corset, with (as she says) the greatest comfort, yet a tight-fitting collar would not be tolerated a minute. Evidently it is all a question of style. That the wearing of corsets has produced untold misery, suffering, and disease is an indisputable and well-known fact. Constriction of the waist, resulting from the wearing of corsets, produces strangulation or interference with the circulation of the blood, and is responsible for the following:

"̣. The normal power of breathing is much restricted, the lungs are compressed, and there must be an insufficiency of air on this account.

"2. The wearing of corsets is the direct cause of many of the weaknesses and diseases peculiar to women, producing congestions and tumors.

"3. It causes serious displacement in the organs of woman.

"4. It is one of the principal causes of agony in childbearing.

"5. It is one of the principal causes of premature old age in women.

"6. It is the direct cause of general disease of one or more organs below the diaphragm. This may be tumors of the liver or womb, chonic congestion or catarrah of the liver, kidneys, or womb.

"7. It interferes with the circulation of the blood, producing strangulation.

"A moment's thought cannot but convince a thinking person that anything that interferes with the circulation of the blood, extended over a period of years, must be productive of serious disease. We know that gallstones, hemorrhoids, constipation, and many other disease conditions are a result of the corset curse.

"Corsets can be replaced to advantage by many of the modern and sensible health waists, which have all the advantages and none of the disadvantages of corsets."

Gordon Hart writes as follows on this subject, in her book, "Woman and the Race:"

"In the interest of health I would that men would for a certain length of time tie themselves into corsets such as are worn by sisters and wives. How fit these men would find themselves to perform their ordinary tasks one can easily imagine! How sweet their tempers, and how happy and cheerful their dispositions one could pronounce upon with tolerable accuracy.

"It may be urged that woman's duties are different. What about the stenographers, the typewriters, the bookkeepers, the telegraphers, the saleswomen? And there is perhaps less resultant evil from confinement and restriction of the body in these methods of employment than in the case of domestic work. It would be far less harmful to a man to tie himself up in a tight corset or to topple about on high-heeled shoes than it is for a woman. He would not, of course, make himself ridiculous in this manner; I would to heaven he would, for a space, if, by doing, and through his efforts, it would leave free and unconstrained the delicate, wonderful reproductive organs of the mothers and future mothers of the race! There is yet to be advanced one good, physiological or social reason for wearing a corset.

"Of course no woman will ever admit that her corset is tight. She will draw herself in and let you put your hand between her corset and her body to prove your accusation is false; but who has ever found one woman who would or could inflate her lungs to their fullest extent in a corset? If the custom were a beautiful one it might be understood, but there is no model of beauty, either ancient or modern, whose lines approach those of the fashion-plate woman. When will women be great enough to despise the senseless dictum of an idle plutocracy, and live a life close to nature? It is possible to forego corsets and yet not look like "a bag tied round in the middle," as one woman expressed it. The dividing of the waist is an inartistic thing at the best. Women are not made in two pieces, and it is not worth while to simulate such an extravagance of mechanism.

"It is contended that the fat that accumulates about the waist in advancing years renders a corset necessary, and we must admit that the result of an immediate change to an uncorseted figure would mean in many cases an offence to the artistic eye. Our assertion is, however, that flabbiness of the muscles is the inevitable result of their unused condition. If the body were left free and the waist muscles exercised daily there would be no fatty deposit to be complained of. It goes without saying that insufficient exercise and overfeeding will produce unbeautiful results in excessive adipose tissue. No woman who cares for her beauty will sin against Nature in this manner.

Bad Suggestions.

A RECENT dispatch from Warsaw, Ind., told how a 5-year-old girl, hearing her parents talk so much about the Gunness murders, in Indiana, secured eleven little chickens and after chopping off their heads buried them at eleven different places in the garden.

This is an instance of the baneful effect of the bad suggestions that are spread broadcast by yellow journals, bill boards and other means. Whenever a particularly brutal crime is committed and enlarged upon in the press it is invariably followed by a number of a similar kind.

As to the bill boards, these pictures of crimes and violence that one sees young children gazing at open-mouthed do vastly more harm than the pictures of scantily-clothed chorus girls, about which we hear so much from time to time from certain goody-goody people.

Filtering Water.

THE average filter is not a success. A German professor who experimented extensively with filters recorded that he found more organisms in filtered than in unfiltered water.

A Los Angeles inventor has devised a "percolator," which seems to be an improvement on the ordinary filter. It may readily be cleaned at frequent intervals. Another advantage is that, being composed of porous clay, it keeps the water delightfully cool, like the ollas that hang on every porch in Arizona and other southwestern sections of the country.

Hydrophobia and Fear.

A BROOKLYN millionaire recently died at his home, of hydrophobia. He had been notified a few days before, at the Pasteur Institute, that he must die of hydrophobia, and he promptly died of it. In this case the notification was about equal to a death warrant.

Hydrophobia has been grossly exaggerated by the medical fraternity. Some physicians have gone so far as to deny its existence altogether, as a real disease. This is probably the other extreme. Yet there is no question that a large proportion of deaths attributed to this disease are caused by Fear. It is also a noteworthy fact that since the introduction of the Pasteur treatment the number of cases of so-called hydrophobia in France has enormously increased. Well-known medical investigators have searched in vain, for years, for authentic cases of hydrophobia. The morbid fear disseminated and fostered by Pasteur "institutes" has undoubtedly caused thousands of deaths. As quoted here a few weeks ago, Dr. A. Lutaud, editor-in-chief of the Journal de Medicine of Paris said—referring to the wise men of the Pasteur Institute: "They have not diminished the mortality. They have augmented it in creating the often fatal 'madness of laboratories' with which they have inoculated a great number of individuals."

A Barbarous Custom.

"I HAVE watched funerals off and on fer fifty years, and this is the biggest an' liveliest one I have seen yit."

So spoke an old farmer at a "function" held recently in Indiana, at a farm which had been the scene of one of the most brutal series of cold-blooded crimes ever recorded in America. A woman had, by means of advertisement, lured a score or more of men to her home, where, at the rate of about one a week, they had been deliberately murdered, dismembered, and the remains buried. All this for the sake of what money they had in their possession. Then the ogress and her three children had been killed and burned in her house.

It was a Sunday, and 15,000 people poured into the nearest railroad town on special excursion trains, automobiles, and all kinds of vehicles. Women clawed each other for souvenirs, and tried to wrench open boxes and cupboards. Men boosted each other up to the windows, members of churches mingled with the demi-monde in struggling for views of the pits from which the bodies had been taken. Over it all flowed revelry and merriment suited to a country fair. Under the trees maidens sat and ate their lunches, when they were not chewing gum. Postal cards with views of the horribly dismembered bodies went like hot cakes. Ice-cream wagons did a roaring trade. The only accident was when one woman had an arm broken by the overturning of a carriage.

Shocking, isn't it? Surely a disgrace to any country that calls itself civilized. Yet, when you come to think about it, this is only an extreme development of our barbarous ceremonies attending the disposition of the dead.

Our modern funerals are but a modification of the old-fashioned Irish wake, when the mourners would occasionally get drunk, and the corpse would sometimes be overturned, a free-for-all fight perhaps following. In olden times—and still today in many countries—a funeral is made an occasion of feasting and jollification. Hence the phrase "funeral-baked meats." We do not feast and jollify at funerals in the United States, in the year of our Lord 1908, but we do go through a lot of meaningless and unnecessary ceremonial that would much better be omitted.

For a person with natural feelings, who has lost a dear one, to have a crowd of more or less unsympathetic persons come to the place from which the departed is to be carried away to the last home, is certainly a most cruel and unnecessary infliction of superfluous suffering. There are extraordinary people who make a practice of visiting funerals, apparently for the chief purpose of seeing how the bereaved family looks and acts and dresses. Any right-thinking person who has lost a loved one must desire to be left alone with their grief, or at least, to be surrounded only by the nearest and dearest members of the family. As it is, this custom of crowds at a funeral is a sort of a spiritual vivisection for the unfortunate relatives. Undoubtedly the seeds of a chronic disease have been sown in many a woman at the time when she has had to go through the ordeal of a funeral, while suffering the deepest pangs of sorrow. Think of a woman who has lost one she dearly loves having to sit and listen to the platitudes of a parson and a lot of mournful music, that under ordinary circumstances would give a person the "creeps." When one may be of any assistance to the survivors that is another question. But to merely attend a funeral for the sake of curiosity, or even for the sake of showing respect to the dead is a relic of barbarism.

Care of the Body

And then the flowers. It was rather a pretty custom at first, that of placing a simple bouquet or a wreath on the bier. Like almost everything else nowadays, this custom has become absurdly exaggerated. At the funeral of any person of prominence—and of some who are not so prominent—you will see flowers carted to the place of mourning in express wagons, like cabbages, all in a few days to be wilted garbage. Is there anything sadder than the sight of decayed flowers upon a new-made grave, a few days after a funeral? Some of these flowers, beautiful in themselves, are made up into hideous monstrosities, on wire frames, so that the place around the coffin resembles a curiosity shop.

The cost of these flowers would, in many cases, keep the bereaved family in food for a year or more—and they sometimes need it. How much better, how much more artistic, how much more pleasing it would be for each friend who wishes to give a little testimonial to the departed to send a small growing plant, that could be kept and cherished in memory of the one who has gone before, some of them being planted around the grave, unless—as should be the case—the more cleanly, and wholesome, and safer method of cremation is chosen.

Then, after the funeral, the flowers, and the frou frou of the curiosity seekers' skirts, comes the big bill of the undertaker, to pay which often takes the badly-needed savings of years.

After the funeral is over there are more foolish customs to be observed by those who do things because "they" say it is the proper thing to do. A fashion writer in a woman's journal recently wrote: "A year is long enough conventionally to wear mourning for a parent." After wearing for a year these hideous robes of black, that make one look like a Sister of Misery, society will then permit you to include a little subdued color in your garment. "Tears are not considered de rigueur for more than ten days after a funeral of a near relative. After that, the widow need merely cast down her eyes, and give her nose a little dabbing with a lace-bordered handkerchief—provided the nose is not too heavily powdered."

Oh shucks! Surely of all tyrants the monster Custom is one of the worst—Custom and his twin brother Fear—fear of what people will say, and of what people will think—and of all the products of custom the modern funeral is one of the most foolish and barbarous.

Hygienic Cooking.

AS mentioned here a couple of weeks ago, at the suggestion of the editor of the Care of the Body he has been deputed by The Times management to take charge of the closing chapter of The Times cook book, now in course of compilation. This last chapter will be devoted to hygienic dishes. Flesh, fish and fowl foods of all kinds, and soups and gravies made from them will be excluded. This does not bar out semi-animal products, such as milk, eggs and cheese. Lemon juice should be substituted for vinegar. Salt and condiments should be used as little as possible, if at all. Above all, in cooking, the water must not be discarded from the vegetables, as that destroys their main value. They should be steamed or baked.

It is important that receipts should be practical—such as will work out in the kitchen. Readers of the Care of the Body who have any receipts of this kind that they have personally tried and can recommend are invited to send them in. They will be included in the closing chapter of The Times cook-book contest, which will appear in the main sheet of the paper, within a few weeks, and will subsequently be included in the bound cook book.

Write briefly and very plainly, on one side of the paper only, and read your receipt over before you send it in, so as to be sure that you have not made a "bull."

Admiral Evans and the Doctors.

AS recently mentioned here, when Admiral Evans was at Paso Robles three Los Angeles physicians went up to examine him, and on their return were recorded in the local columns of The Times to have declared that while his rheumatism was better his stomach had been injured by the powerful drugs administered to him in the attempt to cure the rheumatism. There was some criticism of the visit of these three doctors, which was generally supposed to be unsolicited. Such, it appears, was not the case, if we may judge from the following item in the Southern California Practitioner for May:

"Surgeon McDonnold, in charge of Admiral Robley Evans, requested a consultation with some of the leading physicians of Los Angeles. Dr. George W. Lasher, professor of surgery; Dr. W. A. Edwards, professor of pediatrics, and Dr. Ernest A. Bryant, professor of clinical surgery, all of the College of Medicine of the University of Southern California, were chosen. After carefully examining into their distinguished patient's condition, they could offer but little encouragement."

Handling Fruit.

"CHERRIES are ripe." This is one fruit that we don't grow in Southern California, except on a limited scale, in some of the mountain regions. It is notable that this year one sees more cherries offered for sale in a loose condition than those tightly packed in regular rows. This is as it should be. Even although the packers of California fruit are not filthy in their habits, as are the oriental packers of figs and dates, yet it is not altogether a pleasant idea to know that fruit has been so much handled, and sometimes by hands that are not altogether clean. In London you may see the old apple women at the street corners polishing up little red apples on their soiled skirts. It is even said that sometimes, when nobody is looking, they will spit on them, to help make them glisten and attract the small boy with a ha' penny to spend. Even here, in Los Angeles, you may see owners of fruit stands shining up fruit with a dusty brush. One does not need to be afflicted with bugophobia to object to this.

Fruit should be handled as little as possible. Also, it should be kept where it is not so directly exposed to flying filth—not to speak of tall dogs. The best way, of course, is to grow your own fruit. As previously observed, it is within the power of everybody who has even a small twenty-five-foot lot to raise quite a quantity of berries and salad plants.

Another "Successful" Operation.

ADMIRAL CROWNINSHIELD, a veteran sailor, 72 years of age, who had been in poor health for more than a year, died recently at a hospital in Philadelphia. A dispatch says:

"The admiral had been at the hospital for about a month and an operation was performed on him for an affliction of the nose. He never fully recovered from the shock of the operation. The immediate cause of death, however, was hardening of the tissues of the body."

One uncontested fact in this case is that Admiral Crowninshield is dead. To which may be added that he died from the effects of a surgical operation. "Hardening of the tissues" is a bit of a change from "heart failure." Operations do not, however, cause hardening of the tissues.

It seems as if they might have let this old veteran live out his remaining days in peace.

A Simple Cure for Warts.

REFERRING to the article on warts in this department on May 24, a friend of the editor of the Care of the Body tells of a simple remedy that is within the reach of almost everybody. About eight years ago a wart appeared on one of her hands. She picked and scratched it, and then had it cut. Soon the hand was covered with warts. She tried a great variety of things that were recommended to her, but they proved of no avail. Then she applied each morning to the warts a little castor oil, using a brush or stick. In three weeks they had all disappeared, and they have not since returned. And who can blame them?

The "Law of Mentalism."

IN the article on "Mental Healing" published last week reference was made to a book entitled "The Law of Mentalism" as a clever work on the subject, reviewed here several years ago. It was added: "Some doubt has been expressed as to the authorship of this book." A. Victor Segno of Los Angeles, whose name appears on the title page of the book, writes as follows to the editor of the Care of the Body:

"I have just completed the reading of your article on mental healing, and I can honestly say it is the best review of the subject I have ever seen in print. It is just to all and entirely unprejudiced. It should arouse much interest.

"There is just one thing I wish to draw your attention to—a little error regarding 'The Law of Mentalism.' There is no question and never has been regarding its authorship. You have confessed this book with one entitled 'How to Live 100 Years.' In the case of the latter book—Harry Gaze was in my employ at the time it was written, and helped me in editing it, and a number of his ideas were incorporated in it. About a year after he left me, he brought out a book entitled 'How to Live Forever,' the matter in it being very largely the same as in my book. This has confused several people as to which was original.

"The Law of Mentalism was never seen by any one until completed. I constructed the word 'Mentalism,' which has since been adopted by the New Thought people."

A Climatic Contrast.

ON Saturday, May 30, a dispatch in The Times announced that in Pittsburgh on the previous day ten persons were dead and scores prostrated by heat, while there was talk of closing the mills and factories. Yet the highest point reached by the thermometer was 88 degrees, showing the effect of moisture.

In Los Angeles on the day that dispatch was published the thermometer at noon stood at 78, and a light overcoat was comfortable for those whose circulation is not active.

To Put on Flesh.

A CORRESPONDENT who is trying to put on flesh asks whether half a lemon with an egg three times a day is advisable. That is too much lemon and quite enough egg.

Don't get the foolish idea in your head that there is any "specific" food that will work wonders, any more than a "specific" drug. The same diet that will reduce your weight will also increase your weight. Strange as it may appear to you, the very best way to increase your weight is to begin by a fast of a week or two—or a "fruit fast." If you consider a moment, however, you will see how sensible this idea is. Why are you thin? Because you do not assimilate your food. Why do you not assimilate your food? Because your digestive organs are out of whack. What then should you do—keep on shoving food into the hole into your face, to lie in the stomach and rot and overburden your liver? You might just as well try to walk with a broken leg. Give your stomach a thorough rest, and then, when it is in good condition, begin to eat moderately of natural food, eating only as much as you can digest, chewing the food thoroughly, and taking pains to include plenty of fresh fruits and green leaves, which abound in organic salts, and are also natural tonics.

Another Triumph of Medical "Science."

A CORRESPONDENT sends a clipping from a yellow journal of a column article, of which the following is the heading:

"Science Wins Long War on Baffling Pneumonia—New York Commission Solves Mystery of Dread Disease—Fresh Air is New Cure—Germ Lurks in Body Months Till Slight Illness Develops It, says Dr. Biggs."

Now, in the language of the street, "wouldn't that jar you?"

The correspondent pertinently writes:

"Is not this a wonderful discovery to be made by such a learned body of men? If this rapid progress keeps up we will, in the next few thousand years, he informed by these scientists who devote the better part of their lives to the art of healing mankind, that nature will work her own cures if left to work in her own way, unhampered by drugs and harmful 'remedies.'"

Yes, indeed. Also, it must be a source of perpetual annoyance to the medical fraternity that they cannot arrange for the breathing of fresh air to be performed only under medical prescription. If they could, what a big boom we should see in the fresh-air treatment of disease.

And This is "Science."

FOLLOWING is from American Medicine (Philadelphia:)

"All the apparatus of mystery, external and internal, has been dropped by the physician, as he advanced in real knowledge. There still remains, however, a definite tendency to consider it better for the patient that he should not know too much about his ailment or about the treatment of it. It is true that the writing of prescriptions in Latin is not maintained entirely for the sake of the supposed secrecy which it secures, but this is still one of the main reasons. Patients, as a rule, even when some confidence is extended to them in regard to the details of their illness, are usually not told much about the method by which the physician hopes to secure the amelioration of symptoms and the ultimate cure of the disease. There is a large group of modern physicians who consider it quite inadvisable to extend any such confidence to patients, since, as a rule, the appeal to a patient's reason has not so much good effect on him as the appeal to his faith and confidence in his physician has in securing the more indefinite mental effect which is an important factor in therapeutics. There are many physicians who, when ill themselves, prefer not to know the exact details of their treatment, but choose to leave these to the attending physicians without confiding in them."

Determination of Sex.

ANOTHER claim is made of a discovery of the secret of determining sex before birth. A New York woman, after thirty years of study, says she has succeeded in this, and that she has proved it by getting three girls and then four boys "to order."

This, of course, might be merely a curious coincidence. Meantime, it is stated that she is going to write a book, and that several publishers are eager to handle it. She and the publishers will, doubtless, find it profitable.

Simultaneously another like claim is made by a French scientist. He says weak men get boys, and weak women girls, which is contrary to the usually-accepted idea.

All these theories will need much confirmation before they are worthy of acceptation. It may be that we shall one day be able to control sex, but it is questionable. Undoubtedly, a strong desire on part of the woman during gestation may have much to do in deciding the result, since it is now generally believed that the ovum, before fertilization, is bi-sexual. Perhaps this is the unrecognized cause of the New York woman's success—she simply made up her mind firmly to get boys or girls, and she got them.

OUR STRAW HAT CENTER.

Standing head and shoulders above any other city in the United States in the manufacture of medium and high-grade staw hats, Baltimore may be said to be the straw-hat emporium of this country. It, to a certain extent at least, sets the fashion for America, and the products of its factories can be found on sale in the hat shops of practically every city and town in the United States and the Dominion of Canada.

Straw-hatmaking is one line of business in which Baltimore is supreme. It has competitors, to be sure, but so far it has been able to outdistance them, and it would seem safe to say that it will be many years before some other city will lower her colors. There is something significant in the fact that the recent financial panic, which disturbed practically every industry in the land and resulted in more or less depression in every branch of trade, had no effect whatever on Baltimore's straw-hat output.

The fiscal year in the straw-hat business begins with the first day of July and ends with the last day of June each season. The season of 1908 is, therefore, fast drawing to a close, and the universal opinion of the manufacturers is that it has been one of the best, if not the best, years the trade has ever known. At any rate, it has been fully up to the average. If there was any falling off in sales, the shortage was noticeable only in the cheaper grades, and was fully made up for by the increased sales of higher-priced hats.—[New York Herald.

BURIED MOUNTAINS IN SCOTLAND.

One of the most remarkable features of the geology of that strip of Northwest Scotland described in a recent memoir of the British Geological Survey is its ancient buried mountains. These mountains, carved out of the most ancient rocks, were submerged beneath the ocean, and buried in sand carried down by rivers. This sand now forms those great masses of red rock known to geologists as Torridonian, from Lake Torridon, where they occur in great force. These rocks have been themselves carved out into mountains, and the forces of denudation have revealed the fact that they have covered up more ancient mountains.

Mountains are being buried in sand today in some parts of the world, though in a different way. In certain parts of the great Asiatic deserts, and on the frontiers of India and Afghanistan, the wind heaps up the sand against the mountain. In some cases it is thus completely covered.—[Philadelphia Record.

THE IGNORANCE OF YOUTH.

"It is simply appalling what little knowledge the youth of today possesses on the social problem," remarked a physician interested in the movement to reform evils by education. "Why, young men, some of them as high as 25 years of age, come to me and ask things that children of 14 should know. The trouble with the young man and the young woman lies in the fact that they are ashamed to ask questions. I do not believe that parents should inform their children of the evils. In the first place, parents are very loath to do it and generally neglect it. The place for the young man and young woman to learn the social evils that menace the country today is in the schoolroom, where it can be taught along with the other studies and with the same patience that arithmetic is taught. It is high time that this be done for the evil resulting from the lack of knowledge cannot be worse than that which will result if they are acquainted with the conditions."—[Columbus Dispatch.

THE NEW METHODIST BISHOPS.

These eight elect will not be "prelates" in the received ecclesiastical sense after their consecration, though as a matter of course they'll be called so by some of the reporters and head-line men. They will remain presbyters—"first among equals." They will have quite as much power in their hands as even the best and wisest men can safely be trusted with, but with it the salutary consciousness of a constant and rigorous accountability for their use of it.—[Hartford Courant.
